We frequently speak in a more or less vague manner about "the foreigner," forgetting that in the eyes of "the foreigner" we ourselves are "foreigners." It is also too much the custom to blame the alien for all the ills that afflict a country, when quite frequently it is the country itself which is at fault. If nations would only cease to seek for scapegoats on which to place the blame of their own crimes and blunders, and set about removing the causes which led up to these disasters, some real progress towards permanent peace would be made.

One of these incidents which tend to a better understanding between the nations is the dedication at Sulgrave, Northamptonshire, England, of Sulgrave Manor, the ancestral home of the Washingtons. This historic home has been restored to the state in which it existed three centuries ago, and was opened with due ceremony, the Marquis of Cambridge, brother of Queen Mary, giving the principal address. The memory of Lincoln was recently honored in the mother country, and now tribute has been paid to Washington. These are outward and visible signs that the bonds between the English-speaking nations of the world are being drawn closer and closer, and it is in this direction that the principal avenue of peace lies.—London Advertiser.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The whole empire will rejoice that no unpleasant features attended the visit of Their Majesties to Belfast yesterday.

The majority of the taxpayers will not object very much to a curtailment of the paving programme this year.

There does not seem to be any agreement as to who won the polo championship.

QUEBEC CITY BECOMES LAST CANADIAN OASIS.

Ontario Has Until 19th July to Stock Up in Quantities.

TORONTO, June 22 (Canadian Press).—Ontario may order its liquor from Quebec City until 19th July, provided the Quebec authorities have licensed the necessary wholesale merchants to handle export liquor, which must be sold in quantities of not less than ten gallons.

This is the interpretation W. S. Dingman, of the Ontario License Board, places upon the recent ruling of the Railway Commission, who dealt with the peculiar situation arising in Quebec City as a result of the fact that the Scott Act is still in force there.

Mr. Dingman did not know whether the Quebec wholesale merchants had been so licensed or even if they would be.

Ease the Burden of the Blind

IF you could witness the pathetic eagerness with which the aged or invalid blind of Canada await the visits of the ladies of the Auxiliary of this Institute, you would indeed feel deeply moved.

For, sad to tell, there are those poor blind in Canada who, though willing, are unable to independently provide for the essentials of life.

And they must be cared for!

They are carrying their burden with lighter hearts since the social relief committees of the Women's Auxiliary of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind were organized and commenced their work of mercy in various parts of Canada.

Funds are needed to carry on with this important work, and to increase that power for help.

The Music That Makes 'Em Gay

As we pointed out last week, screen actors use music to help them "emote." Likewise do they laugh and make merry to the tune of the studio orchestra. WHEN you require a roof, the measurement will be in squares (100 square feet). A basis for analysis of the costs of Brantford Asphalt Slates is given below:

1—INITIAL COSTS OF MATERIALS—Brantford Asphalt Slates are sometimes higher in initial cost for the material.
2—NAILS REQUIRED—Brantford Ashphalt Slates require ONLY 664 nails to lay a square. Brantford Asphalt Slab Slates require ONLY 950 nails.
3—COST OF LAYING—Brantford Asphalt Slab Slates are four on one strip—require only one operation in handling, one operation in spacing—Individual slates are 8 x 12½ inches—Cut easily, fit easily, fit on angles and bend over round surfaces. You save 30 to 50 per cent. in laying.
4—NO PAINT OR STAIN REQUIRED—The surface of Brantford Asphalt Slates is in nature's permanent colors, green and red, unfadeable, always attractive,—requiring no stain to produce artistic effects, no liquid coats to make them fire-resistant.
5—SAVING OF INSURANCE—Brantford Asphalt Slates are classed as non-combustible by fire insurance companies—a direct saving of from 10 to 20 per cent. on premiums is effected. In certain localities fire regulations demand asbestos paper under some roof materials, but Brantford Asphalt Slates are fire-resistant and are immune from special regulations.
6—COST OF REPAIRS—From the day they are laid Brantford Asphalt Slate roofs show almost 100 per cent. of the original roof untouched. Brantford Asphalt Slates do not curl, split, crack or rot. Complete protection and permanent protection are built into Brantford Asphalt Slate Roofs.

Compare these roof costs with those of any other roofing material; it is your money you are spending and you want value for it—then buy

NOTED STAR RELATES CANADIAN RECEPTION

Eva Moore Tells of Love Toward Motherland.

LIVERPOOL, June 21.—The Canadians are a very friendly and hospitable people, they have the art of making their visitors feel at once at home, says Eva Moore, the celebrated actress. As soon as you arrive in a place, about cock-crow, or soon after, you hear a voice at the other end of the telephone say ing: "I heard that you were here. What can we do to make you comfortable?" And thenceforward you are feted and entertained and made much of until you steam away to the next halting place amid salvo of good-byes. You have to make speeches, of course, that is part of the game. But in all manner of places, institutions and clubs—the Daughters of the Empire, the Rotary Club, the Kiwanis Club, Women's Canadian Club, the Men's Canadian Club, they tried to make me believe that I was the nicest thing that ever happened. If my innate difference would not allow me to be ieve it that wasn't their fault.

Audiences Charming

And the audiences were everywhere so charming. Much of what we gave must have been strange to them—the kind of life we portrayed I mean and our English dialect. But they were enthusiastic through it all Let me say here that I like the Canadian accent very much. There is a burr about it which is very pleasant and homely.

It needed all the kindness and constant care of my Canadian friends to keep me from a collapse. You will know to what I refer. When my husband was taken ill with pneumonia and I had to leave him in Saskatoon, in the midst of the prairies, and go on to do my work alone, you can imagine what my feelings were.

I doubt that I should have survived but for the kindness of my Canadian firends, and —yes; I must say this—the friendliness and unselfish co-operation of our company It was a young company, a company of blithe spirits eager in their work, and hearty in their play. They were like so many buttresses round my anxious heart.

Still the Homeland.

And for the Canadian these little islands of ours are still the home-and I could tell you of many fervent handgrips and burning glances from men and women who have not seen my country, our old country, for years, nay! even from many who were born in Canada and had never left it, and sought to express to one come freshly from the old place how much they loved it. It made me sometimes ashamed of my temperate, though resolute patriotism when I saw it rushing like a flame from those fiery hearts. If we and such as we may be regarded as unofficial ambassadors there is no doubt what message we bring back. But there are maple leaves round the cenotaph in Whitehall. So why need we say more of that?

'SELL NOW' LEAGUE STARTS CAMPAIGN

NEW YORK, June 21.—A vigorous campaign is to be waged by the leaders of American industry in support of intensive selling by manufactures sales executives and merchants at the present time. Announcement of the formation of the Sell Now League, 119 West Fortieth Street, headed by a group of leaders of representative American industries was made here yesterday. This group includes nationally known executives who have joined in this movement in order to encourage industry to sell now to selective markets with no let up in intensive sales campaigns, this with a view of stabilizing the present economic situation.

CARL WANDERER HEARS VOICES IN DEATH CELL

CHICAGO, June 22.—Carl Wanderer, whose attorneys have secured a stay of execution on the ancient law that permits a review of the case where a murdered becomes insane after conviction, is claiming that he hears "voices" in his cell all during the night. He was to have been hanged Friday, and unless the Supreme Court issues a positive mandate forbidding the hanging, the jail officials will go ahead with the performance.

For six weeks, the attorney for Wanderer told the Pardon Board Tuesday, the slayer of three persons "has been hearing strange noises in his cell." Attention also is called to the alleged fact that he has lost weight and "has an unhealthy appearance."

He "sees things" and believes Ruth, his murdered wife, spends much time in his cell, talking to him, using endearing terms, and discussing various matters.

BOARD MAY FIGHT THE SCHOOL TEACHERS

SIMCOE, June 22.—A movement to combat the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation was launched at a meeting of the Board of Education, following the refusal of four High School teachers to go back to work on the board's scale of wages. The Acting Secretary was instructed to try and get other boards in line to fight the "wage hold-up which teachers in the Province are attempting." As a result, Simcoe High School will have only one teacher at the close of this term. Principal J. D. Christie, for 40 years a teacher, has never joined the federation, and did not ask for a raise.

HE IS BUILDING A ONE-MAN RAILROAD

Rudolph Myers Has Been Making Grade in Western Kansas for Thirteen Years.

TOPEKA, Kan., June 22.—The name Rudolph Myers will scarcely rank with James J. Hill and E. P. Ripley as one of the great railroad builders of the West, but Myers, nevertheless, is destined for a niche in the railroad hall of fame. The State of Kansas doesn't know whether to be proud of him or peeved at him. He has kept Kansas guessing for thirteen years.

Myers is building a railroad—a one-man railroad. In the spring of 1908 he breezed into Spring Creek Valley, out in Hodgeman County, behind a team of mules, and bargained with a farmer there for a narrow strip of land. He said he wanted it for a railroad right of way.

The deal was made at a price satisfactory to the farmer, and when Myers began work a few days later with his team of mules and a scraper the neighborhood began to wonder. Whom did he represent? He didn't represent anybody. What was he doing, anyway? Building a railroad. Where was it going to run? Nobody's business. Who was backing him? Nobody.

Hired a Railroad Gang.

Myers with his mule team and scraper finished grading that strip of land and bought some more. On a particularly heavy piece of grade he hired a gang of laborers that had just finished grading roadbed for the Santa Fe, near Kinsley, Kan. That led many to suspect that the Santa Fe was behind him and was concealing its identity for good and sufficient reasons, but inquiry at the main offices in Topeka elicited no information.

Still Myers kept on, sometimes with a helper or two, but mainly by himself, throwing up railroad grade across a broken prairie country, buying new strips of land as fast as he needed them and always paying cash. In one stretch of uneven country he had to make a fill seventy feet high, and he did it single-handed—one scraper full of earth at a time.

A Thirteen-Year-Old Enigma.

The general direction of Myers' railroad grade runs southwest from Jetmore, a small town on a branch of the Santa Fe. Whither he is destined, nobody knows. Myers has kept a stoic silence for thirteen years.

Perhaps he believes that some day Western Kansas will feel a gnawing urge for transportation in that particular section, and that railroad capitalists will pay him a handsome sum for his carefully graded strip of prairie land. Meanwhile he keeps plugging away, minding his own business, living alone in a one-room shack which he moves from time to time to keep pace with his scraper's progress.

And Kansas doesn't know whether to laugh at his little joke or weep for a quixotic project that may never pan out.

HEIRS OF DONIZETTI LOSE ROYALTY SUIT.

Composer's Nephews Put in Claim for Millions.

PARIS, June 21. — The heirs of Donizetti, the Italian composer, have lost their suit for many millions in royalties on the composer's operas under a decision of the highest court, holding that the heirs are entitled to to royalties for only ten year's after the composer's death, which occurred in 1848. The suit lasted fifteen years and was brought by two nephews, Giuseppi and Gaetano Donzetti, against the Society of Authors and the theatres that produced the operas.

The plaintiffs contended that the present law, granting royalties for fifty years, applied, but the court held that the law of 1798 was effective when the composer died. The plaintiffs also claimed that the royalties applied from the death of the last collaborator on the words of the operas, which occurred in 1875, entitling them to royalties until 1925, but the court held that the rights of the heirs of each collaborator run separately, dating from each death, which is new construction of the law of literary proprietorship.

URIC ACID IN MEAT BRINGS RHEUMATISM

Says a Little Salts in Water May Save You From Dread Attack.

Rheumatism is easier to avoid than to cure, states a well-known authority. We are advised to dress warmly; keep the feet dry; avoid exposure; eat less meat, but drink plenty of good water.

Rheumatism is a direct result of eating too much meat and other rich foods that produce uric acid which is absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly cold weather the skin pores are closed thus forcing the kidneys to double work, they becoming weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate the uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is expensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which helps overcome uric acid and is beneficial to your kidneys as well.

SAYS MADRID IS CITY OF PRETTY WOMEN.

London Correspondent Resents Remarks About Spanish Capital.

"I have been told," writes a London correspondent, "several lies about Madrid. The first was that Madrid is a large, ugly town, on the rectangular plan, of no interest or beauty. The man who told me this astounding lie also re-enforced it with the remark that it is 'worse than Manchester.'

"Madrid is one of the most attractive places I have ever been to in my wanderings. It is no more rectangular than London, and it reminds one of Manchester about as much as does Venice. Both contain dwellings and a canal. The paseo del Prado, which corresponds to the Champs Elyssees in Paris, is a magnificent avenue of enormous width, with rows of splendid shade trees on either side and all sorts of flowering trees in the middle. Just now it is a blazing riot of chestnuts and wistaria, with half a dozen others I cannot identify, all pink and white and mauve.

Alongside runs the Buen Retire, a fine park, just now at its best and most fresh and springlike moment. A dazzling sun shines down on masses of fine public buildings, and on the gayest streets you will find anywhere. The Calle de San Jeronimo is officially supposed to be the Bond Street of Madrid, but I prefer the Alcala, which may be taken as Piccadilly. It is wide, and has the luck to run up and down hill, so that you are always seeing it at a fresh angle. Here are as fine shops as you will find in any capital.

"The other lie was about the women. 'Oh, the women of Madrid have no national look at all—they are dull and ugly. If you want to see the Spanish woman at her best you must go to South America, or somewhere else equally handy.'

"The women and the girls of Madrid are nothing less than ravishing, from the flapper to her silver-haired grandmother. I have never seen so many pretty women in any given city, nor such a high average of beauty. It is, honestly, a rare thing to meet a girl or a woman of almost any age who does not make you exclaim, 'What a beautiful face!' Until the other day it was expected of you to do so. A pretty face, with these extraordinary laughing eyes of Madrid, brought your hat off and a murmured compliment. You could say, bluntly, 'What a beautiful face,' or more subtly, 'May your mother be blessed.'

"But now, it seems, the law has forbidden this charming custom, and the beauties of Madrid must go by amid admiring silence.

"I have been spending long hours in the company of other faces as well, the endless, fathomless treasure of pictures in the galleries, and, as a natural consequence, I am in a state of collapse. I thought it would be easy to see the best ones first and then take the rest afterward, but the miles of walls glowing with the masterpieces of the world past which you must walk in order to get at your particular painter simply make havoc of your plans. Apart from which the galleries of the Prado are anything but conveniently arranged, and not more than two-thirds of the pictures are more than half illuminated, having their backs to the light.

"But the Velasquez! I am simply drunk on Velasquez. All the nightmares of my drive from Cordova, all my misgivings about the one before me to San Sebastian, fade away before the living colors, the limitless power, the infinite and bewildering variety of this miracle-man. There are others near his, but Velasquez's portraits and his big pieces, in my quite uneducated view, simply kill them — Bellinis, Goyas, Raphaels, Titians, all of them."

WHAT IS THIS EFFORT FOR THE BLIND?

TRAINING IS PROVIDED FOR THE SIGHTLESS AND THE PRODUCTS OF THEIR WORK IS MARKETED—MUSIC AND LITERATURE SPECIALLY PRINTED FOR THEIR USE.

You have doubtless been interested in what you have read or heard regarding the progress of a national effort on behalf of the blind of Canada.

Do you realize just what this effort means?

Here are some of the things what are being done:

Industrial training and employment is being provided for the blind in centres established in Halifax, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

Useful handicrafts and the reading and writing of embossed characacters are taught in the homes of those blind people who for various reasons are unable to take training at one of the regular centres,

The product of the home-workers is bought and sold.

Personal contact is established with recently-blinded persons, and with cases which are sometimes so old that they become new in a very real sense. This work is done by an experienced Field Agent.

Books, magazines, and music in embossed types are circulated free to the blind of Canada. The monthly average circulation of books, etc., is close to eight hundred. The Institute also arranges for the transcription of music for any of its members at cost price.

An active publicity propaganda dealing with various dangers to which the eye is subject is carried on, and this is followed up with personal work, looking to the larger co-operation of medical men and nurses, employers of labor, Boards of Education, etc., in the vital matter of preventing blindness.

A residence and training-centre, "Pearson Hall," has been provided where blind soldiers may find congenial conditions while taking vocational instruction. In this connection it may be interesting to know that the Institute has entered into an agreement with the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-Establishment, under which the Institute has established an after care department for Canadian Soldiers blinded in the war.

There are other things, but they may all be summed up by saying that the Institute endeavors in every practical way to advance the interests of the blind and to ameliorate the conditions under which they live.

REV. W. H. HINGSTON COMPARES THE IDEAS AND PRACTICES OF THE PEOPLE OF ANCIENT ROME WITH MODERN NOTIONS AND ALL PHASES OF LIFE AND ACTIONS—BRIGHT AND DARK SIDES OF BOTH AGES HELD UP TO VIEW.

Rev. William H. Hingston, S. J., Rector of Loyola College, Montreal, gave a very interesing and scholarly address on "Reconstruction" at St. Alphonsus Lyceum last evening, under the auspices of the Catholic Women's League. Father Hingston declared that our civilization is largely pagan, because Christianity means the practice of the distinctive Christian virtues which do not appear in the life of to-day. Although much importance is attached to church going, it does not necessarily imply more obligation on the goer than attending the movies for instance, and although modern progress has been given as a proof of Christianity, the average man of long ago was the exact counterpart of the man of to-day in many ways, and the manner of action of the governmental bodies was exactly the same as that of to-day, when uninfluenced by religion.

Taking as his first head the open profession of Christianity which is made by the world to-day, the speaker mentioned the returns of recent census-takers, which showed the proportion of church goers in England as around 7 per cent, while 63 per cent of the population of the United States declared that they had no religious preferences at all; and 40 per cent. were not even baptized. Japan, according to the speaker, was the only nation which protested at the name of the Creator being eliminated entirely from the Peace Treaty, and its objection was overruled by the other powers.

Characteristics of Former Age.

The characteristics of the pagan world which are outstanding in the civilization of to-day, were next outlined. The bright side of these days was epitomized in material splendour, in wonderful roads, municipal buildings and aqueducts; in the control of the grain supply of the world; in the small army and navy required to enforce the Pax Romana, and in the religious tolerance of that epoch; and in the wonderful literature which still lives as an outstanding example of the art of the age. The dark side of the pagan era was exemplified in the system of slavery, which made two-thirds of the race bondsmen of their fellow-creatures, the stigma attached to work which obliged the state to support thousands of the freedmen; the commonness of divorce, as stated in the letters of Cicero, who boasted of his daughter Tullia's record of ten marriages; and the evils of raec suicide and necromancy, which infested that day and generation.

Ancient Evils Re-appear.

The speaker declared that practically all of these evils had disappeared in the early ages of the church, to reappear in our own day and generation; in the disregard of the rights of labor, which is sold in the open market to the highest bidder; in the onward march of pauperism, in the divorce evil, in the practice of spiritualism, and in the spread of race suicide—an evil which prove a serious menace to the whites of the United States in the next generation is the increasing number of blacks in their country, and the gradually lessening number of the white population.

Yearn for Christian Ideals.

"All the yearnings of the world of to-day," said Father Hingston, "are yearnings for Christian ideals. Democracy is a yearning for the ideals that Christianity brought into the world, which did not exist before the dawn of Christianity, and the desire for the more equable distribution of wealth, all these things are aspirations towards what we once possessed—lost, but please God, we will possess again."

The lecturer was heartily thanked for his fine address by His Lordship, Bishop O'Brien, and a very pleasing musical programme was rendered by the Misses Florence Leahy, Marion Hayes, Florence Giroux, Mollie Young and Mr. Ted Bartley. The stage was beautifully decorated by the ladies in charge with daisies and ferns.

POOR BUTTERFLY ASKS POLICE AID

CHINESE GIRL HOUNDBD BY HUSBAND WHO SHE HAD PREVIOUSLY HAD ARRESTED FOR WHITE SLAVERY.

MONTREAL, June 23 (Canadian Press).—Frances Cham, a pretty young Chinese girl, came to the police to-day, and told a pitiful story of her husband's brutality, alleging that he had threatened to kill her because she had refused to lead an immoral life.

Her death, she said, was to be brought about by decapitation. For this purpose her husband had purchased a large butcher's cleaver, which he had in his possession the last time she saw him.

The pair were married in Vancouver after a short courtship in China. A few weeks later her husband's brutality drove her on to the streets.

Not being able to stand this life, she fled to Toronto, but was followed and discovered by Cham, who threatened to kill her if she refused to do what he desired.

She then went to the Toronto police and had him arrested on a charge of white slavery. Immediately after this she came to Montreal, were she got a position in a Chinese store.

This respite, however, did not last long, for a couple of days ago she was once more confronted by her husband, who had succeeded in tracing her here. He then made the threat which resulted in her seeking te protection of the police.

FUND FOR BLIND

Subscriptions for the fund in aid of the Canadian Institute for the Blind are coming in slowly. Every person has seen sightless men on the street corners, pitifully eking out a living by selling shoe laces and pencils, or playing on concertinas or other musical instruments. Charitable persons give of their silver to these unfortunate ones, but the Canadian Institute for the Blind would obviate these appeals by training sightless men and women in work from which they can maintain themselves. The head and the heart of Peterborough has not been touched by this public petition or the fund would have been closed here before this. The subscriptions received by the Examiner up to noon to-day were:

PERFECT GROWING WEATHER IN WEST

Splendid Crop Conditions HavePrevailed since Mid-May.

WINNIPEG, June 23.—(Canadian Press).—Another week of perfect growing weather has prevailed over practically all the three western provinces, states the weekly crop report of grain trade news. Splendid crop conditions which have prevailed since the middle of May have continued and warm humid atmosphere with abundance of rain at most points has induced rapid and rank growth.

Precipitation, the report states, has been particulary heavy at many points in both Manitoba and Saskatchewan, but Alberta has not shared quite so well. A few points report almost too much rain and some spots in fields are little off color on this account.

Most apprehension is felt now for fear of outbreak of runst.

Nearly 1,000 schools in Great Britain have been provided with war shrines in memory of old scholars.

The Autonia, the newest of the big trans-Atlantic steamships, is to have a completely equipped kindergarten for the children.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, June 23.—(Canadian Press).—Confusing rallies and reversals occurred during the morning. Mexican and Pan-American Petroleums, Royal Dutch, Baldwin Locomotive and American Sugar steadied the list for a time at advances of 1 to 4 points. Gains were cancelled before noon, however, when greater pressure was directed against Steels, Equipments, Shipping, Motors and Rubbers. U. S. Steel made a new low at 70 3-8, and General Electric, Republic Iron, American International, U. S. Rubber, Sears Roebuck and Harvester lost 1 to almost 5 points. Other heavy stocks included Industrial Alcohol, Willys Overland Preferred and Chandler Motor. Some of these shares also established the lowest prices for current movement. Call money opened at 5 per cent.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

NEW YORK, June 23.—Contrary to expectations the reduction of the Bank of England discount rate was ignored at the opening of to-day's stock market. Initial quotations again disclosed a majority of declines, especially among Equipments, Motors and Food Specialties. General Electric Pullman, Pressed Steel Car, Studebaker, American Sugar and Beet lost 1 to 1 5-8 points. Rails were moderately lower with Leather, Rubber and Chemical Specialties. Royal Dutch at a gain of 2 3-8 points, was the only conspicuously strong stock. Losses were irregularly extended within the firts half hour.

Decline of U. S. Steel to a new low record and passing of Virginia Carolina Chemical Preferred dividend caused further losses at midday. Extreme declines of 2 to 5 points marked offerings of numerous Rails, Shippings, Oils, Industrials and Specialties.

Independent Steels and Specialties of the types represented by Chemicals, Sugar and Textiles recorded further losses in the final hour. Few leaders, including Mexican Petroleum and U. S. Steel were fairly steady. The closing was heavy.

TORONTO CATTLE MARKET.

TORONTO, June 23.—Cattle receipts light, trade weak. Heavy beef steers, $8.00 to $8.75. Butcher steers, choice, $8.00 to $8.75. Butcher cows, medium, $3.50 to $6.00. Calves, $9.00 to $11.50. Lambs, $12.50 to $14.50. Hogs, fed and watered, selects, $13.25.

DISCOUNT RATE REDUCED.

LONDON, June 23. — Bank of England to-day reduced its rate of discount from six and a half to six per cent.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, June 23.—(Canadian Press).—Sterling exchange easy. Demand 3.74 3-8. Canadian dollars, 12 7-16 per cent. discount.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, June 23.—(Canadian Press).—Considerable liquidation in Spanish River Common forced that stock down to a new low level at 59 5-8 during this morning's trading on the Toronto Exchange. Paper issue was weak at the outset, opening a point off at 61½, and offerings of over three hundred shares sent it to a low level, at which it closed at noon. C.P.R. again reflected depression in New York, losing a point at 118. Other stocks displayed a weaker tendency, fractional losses being sustained by Steel of Canada, Abitibi and Dominion Steel Corporation.

EGGS AND POULTRY

OTTAWA, June 22.—Toronto higher, specials forty-two three, extras thirty-nine forty, firsts thirty-seven eight, seconds thirty-two. Montreal firm, specials forty-two, extras forty, firsts thirty-six, seconds thirty-three four. Chicago current firsts twenty-four four half, storage packed extras twenty-six half seven, firsts twenty-six. New York current extra firsts twenty-eight thirty, firsts twenty-five seven half.

CHIGAGO.

CHICAGO, June 23. — Bullish crop reports from northwest led to upturn today in prices for wheat. Advice told of dorught damage and of hot, unfavorable weather. Buying, however, lacked volume. Opening quotations which ranged from half to 1 3-4 cents higher, were followed by something of re-action but then by a rise higher than before.

General commission house selling weathered corn. After opening unchanged to 3-8 cents lower, the market underwent a material sag all around.

Oats declined with Corn, starting unchanged to 1-8 cent. off, and later showing a decided drop.

Lower quotations on hogs put provisions on the down grade.

Evidence that stocks were accumulating prevented any important rally. The lose was steady with September at 63 3-8 to 63 1-2.

Subsequently there was much selling of September wheat and buying of July on part of commission houses. Talk of harvest delay in the south-west was a factor. Prices closed strong with July 130 3.4 to 1.31 and September 1.23 3-4 to 1.24.

GREEKS TO ACCEPT ALLIED MEDIATION.

Effort to Prevent Warfare in Asia Minor.

ATHENS, Greece, June 23. — (Canadian Press).—Indications tonight pointed to the acceptance by Greece, in principle at least, of the offer of Great Britain, France and Italy to mediate between the Greeks and Turkish Nationalists in an effort to forestall warfare in Asia Minor.

FUNERAL ON FRIDAY.

The funeral of Charles E. Rex will be held on Friday afternoon from his late home on Union Street, to the Little Lake Cemetery. Rev. J. R. Webb will conduct the services.

HUSBAND TOO MUCH AWAY FROM HOME, SO WIFE SET FIRE TO IT

Magistrate O. A. Langley allowed Eva Whitney, of Otonabee, to go on suspended sentence in Police Court to-day on the charge of arson brought against her by her husband. Mrs. Whitney, it appears, set fire to their rented home in Otonabee over some bickering with her husband.

Magistrate Langley reminded the young woman of the seriousness of arson, but spoke of the peculiar circumstances in her interest. He severely admonished the husband for not properly caring for his wife and for bringing about the quarrel that might have ended in the whole of Finlay's Woods being burned down.

"Your Honor, I'm home three times a day with her," said Mr. Whitney, when the Magistrate accused him of not maintaining a husband's attention to his wife.

"You're only home about five minutes. You swallow your lunch and then you beat it," declared, with contempt, the woman he led to the altar three years ago, and who stood beside him in County Court this morning.

"Your Honor, there were two youngsters with her all day."

"I don't want to enter into any argument. I want to see you get along better. I want to see you look after this girl. Now you may go. I hope you get along better."

PARCEL POST RATES WILL BE INCREASED.

Change Takes Effect on July 1st.

OTTAWA, June 23. — (Canadian Press).—Notice is given by the Post Office Department of an increase in the parcel post rates to Great Britain to become effective July 1. The increase is from 12 to 20 cents on a one-pound parcel, with a gradually increasing rate of sixteen cents for each succeeding pound to a maximum of eleven pounds, which will be $1.80, as compared with $1.32 at present.

CANADA PRODUCED EARLY MOTOR CAR DURING YEAR 1899

Those who have thought that the designing and building of motor cars in Canada trailed the progress of the automobile industry in other countries may now revise their ideas in this respect, for it has just come to light that the first Canadian automobile was designed and built at a time that practically marked the dawn of the motor car industry. Details regarding this first car are contained in an article in the Owen Sound Times, which states that, in 1899 A. J. Frost, for years the Studebaker dealer in Owen Sound, brought out this first Canadian car, an automobile of his own design, built by himself. Further information regarding this car is that it was equipped with wire wheels and pneumatic tires, made 18 miles an hour and 36 miles on a gallon of gasoline, was strap-cranked from the seat, had two speeds forwards and non-reverse, and saw six years of active service.

"There are few people who realize that the automobile industry in Canada, which to-day exceeds a hundred millions of dollars annually, had a start in Owen Sound," says the Owen Sound Times. "But it did, and to an Owen Sound resident is due the credit for the building of the first gasoline automobile in Canada that was in any way successful.

"Away back in 1899 Mr. A. J. Frost started to build his horseless carriage,' and it was completed a year later. He built it on what was known as the 'Stanhope' type, looking very much like a pneumatic-tired buggy without shafts. Then he changed the design somewhat by lengthening the chassis and putting the hood in front of the dash board. The motor was a French two-cylindered opposed air-cooled type 2-5-8 by 2-5-8. It drove the car about 18 miles per hour.

"The transmission was Mr. Frost's own design, and it was remarkable for its simplicity. It had two speeds forward but no reverse. It was a chain and sprocket drive to the rear axle. On this was probably the first self-starter ever made, consisting of a strap to the driving seat. Just a pull of this and the engine was turned over without much effort.

BOY SHOT WHILE CLEANING SHOES.

Neighbor Was Firing at Rabbits in His Back Yard.

HAMILTON, June 21. — While cleaning his shoes this morning on the back steps of his home on Locust Street, Burlington, William E. Buzza, 15-year-old son of George and Mrs. Buzza, was struck above the heart by a bullet and died shortly after. The lad entered the house saying, "I'm shot." Dr. Peart was called, but the youth was past human aid. Where the shot came from was a mystery for a time, but it was solved by Chief Smith. He learned that Fred Partlowe, a man over 50 years of age, had been shooting rabbits in his back yard, about 150 yards from where young Buzza was cleaning his shoes, and a bullet fired by him killed the lad. Mr. Partlowe was formally before Magistrate Barr during the morning, and explained that he knew nothing of what had happened until told by Chief Smith. He was released on his own recognizance, as it was clearly a case of accident. An inquest will be conducted by Coroner Speers. The Buzza family formerly resided in Caledonia and went to Burlington about six months ago.

CHILDREN OF THE FARMS SHOULD BE GIVEN THOROUGH EDUCATION

WARSAW PARENTS ARE TOLD THAT THE TASK OF LIFE IS THE HIGHEST FORM OF LIVING AND NOT SIMPLY MAKING MONEY.

WARSAW, June 21.—On Thursday evening last, a meeting arranged by the Department of Education was held in the town hall. Mr. Ledgeworth, orgasizer for trustees' and ratepayers' associations was here with Inspector Lees. Mr. Mills, Inspector of Continuation Schools, also was present.

Dr. Munro was appointed chairman. Mr. Ledgeworth explained that the purpose of these meetings was to engender a more intelligent interest in education. It is fitting the individual to live happily, contentedly, efficiently, prosperously, righteously in the sphere in which he is placed.

Many educated people are quite successful and do much good, but all would have been more successful and done more good in the world had they been better educated.

He instanced a successful but illiterate farmer, who said he had two brothers educated and they were not worth a dollar. But the man himself was not really uneducated, he was partly so, but he had been trained to think along lines of his work. Had he had a better education he could have lived a higher life. Education trains people to think. The most important task of life is not making money, doing well on farm, in business, etc., though these are important, but the task of living. Living, not for ourselves, but to help others to be better. Theer are many successful people who have had but little education. Those who object to education do not appreciate what education has done for them. Why are we different from the pagan? Because of education of different kinds in others. What we value most, is because of education. The powers of nations of to-morrow is determined by the kind of education given the child of to-day. It is incumbent upon us that we fulfill the obligations of ou rinheritance. The resources of Canada were here thousands of years ago, just as they are now, but not until recently were these resources opened up aid developed. It is for us to continue the development. But what are the greatest resources?, mines, forests, etc? No. The child. He who spoke as never man spoke, put a little child in the midst. If we function to our highest, it is to enable those coming after us to do greater things.

He who ignorantly, carelessly or purposely, stunts or warps the unfolding and developing of the mind of a child is under greater condemnation than [illegible] mutilates the body. It does not matter so much if one dies worth $1,000 or 1,000 cents, but it does matter if one helps develop the life that is to come after.

Mr. Ledgeworth concluded the address, of which the foregoing is simply a synopsis, by saying: "When the books are opened, may no child rise up and say, "I might have been greater, might have been of greater good, if you had done your duty."

Mr. Mills explained the different grants coming to properly equipped schools with continuation classes. Warsaw schools could be a two-room school with one teacher taking work up through the 3rd class and another the 4th class and 2 years of High school work. The High school teacher geting a salary of $1,200 and the other $1,000, with just $150 more than it is now paying. Grants would be so much more. Of course there would have to be different surroundings. He pretty frankly told what he thought of Warsaw school.

Mr. Mills also explained Separate continuation schools, also the means by which continuation pupils from neighboring sections could come in. An actual continuation school, as such, may be under the same roof as a Public school, but in that all the pupils must have passed the Entrance. There are large grants for building and 20 p.c. of value of equipment is paid yearly, so that equipment is paid by grants in five years.

The government so realizes the need of education that it is very generous in the mater of grants.

Mostof those present had reached an age when they realized that the big things of life were helping others. Those who cannot afford to send children away to school are just as good as those who can, and many will not send their children, even if they can afford it, because it is a most serious thing to send a boy or girl of early High school age away from home influence. The rural High school teacher is closer to the pupils than is the urban. Other things will come in besides the academic course.

A vote of thanks was given the speakers, and Mr. Ledgeworth replying said that the best appreciation would be shown by acting.

Women's Institute.

The summer series of the Women's Institute was held in the Institute room on Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Cronk of Pickering, addressed the ladies on "The Institute and Its Influence in the Community." Some of the points on which she touched were that whatever raises the standard of the community has its effect upon the church. Every home and each individual of that home has its effect on the community.

Women as a whole did not seek the franchise, but now that they have it is both a privilege and a responsibility. We must grasp small opportunities and great things will follow.

Men who are statesmen, rather than politicians, must be sent to parliament.

Truthfilness must be inculcated; example is better than precept. A mother who does not wish to see a caller and sends word she is not at home need not say anything about honesty to her children. A father who boasts how he "did" some one, might as well keep quiet if his son is not quite honest. There must be time for self development for the children and for the community. Time may be had partly by training oneself to work with system, and partly by spending money for labor-saving devices. There should be time for the bedtime hour with the children.

The condition of many rural schools is not what it should be.

The questions asked of parents in the Winchester school were quoted and dwelt upon.

Why criticize teachers? Was there ever a parent who did not make a mistake? In every home there should be an emergency kit, and it need not be an expensive one.

[illegible] many [illegible] find there [illegible] sion re school management, women's votes, women on school boards, etc.

Work of Bible Society.

Mr. Reynolds of the Bible Society, gave a most interesting address on the work of the society on Wednesday evening in the Presbyterian church. He gave limelight illustrations of the work among the French and in the west.

The same officers as held office last year were re-appointed.

Miss Barrie suggested that the Society give a fuller report of its work and of all moneys, as she knew of some colporteurs who, before the war, were getting $1.75 per day, and on top of this large salary were often making $25 a day on sale of Bibles.

A play entitled, "No Trespassing," was put on by the Social Welfare Club of Keene. Those who attended enjoyed it very much.

ORANGE CORNERS

ORANGE CORNERS, June 21.—The country is looking beautiful just now, the recent rains coming in time to keep the crops growing.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Howden of Fairmount, were visitors at Mr. Melville Elliott's on Tuesday of last week. Mr. Walter Magee is busy taking the census.

The garden party held at St. John's church on Thursday last was a great success. The evening darkened about 5 o'clock and drops of rain came down, but it did not darken the spirits of the crowd for still they came, many from a great distance. No doubt the play, entitled "Oak Farm," given by All Saints' Dramatic Club of Peterborough, was a great drawing card, and those who came to hear it were not disappointed. Expressions of appreciation were heard on every side and when All Saints' young people visit St. John's again they will be sure of a hearty welcome. During the interval taken for dressing instructive addresses were given by Rev. Mr. Craw of Springville, and Rev. Mr. Scott of Omemee.

Dr. and Mrs. Sutton and family attended the garden party last week.

Mrs. Murray of Toronto, who has been visiting her father, has returned home.

Miss Breckenridge was a visitor to Peterborough on Saturday.

Mrs. J. Elliott of Peterborough, was renewing old acquaintances at the garden party.

An enjoyable social was held at St. John's on Monday evening.

Mr. Arthur Jackson is wearing a broad smile these days, the stork having presented him with a baby girl. The stork also paid a visit at the home of Mr. Elwood Faulkner's and left a daughter.

RHEUMATIC PEOPLE CAN FIND RELIEF

By Enriching Their Blood With Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Rheumatism is a disorder of the blood. It attacks people when the blood is overcharged with impurities, thus setting up inflammation of the muscles and joints. Wet weather or cold weather may start the tortures of rheumatism, but it is not the cause. The cause is in the blood. Victims of this malady have every reason to fear the first dull ache in the limbs and joints, followed by sharp pains through the flesh and muscles; these are the symptoms of poison in the blood which may shortly leave the victim pain-racked and helpless. Rubbing liniments and applying hot applications may give relief, but that is all, and the pains are soon back again. You must treat the trouble through the blood, and the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases of this kind is proved by Mr. Elias Bruce, Upper Clarence, N.S., who says: "Some years ago I had a bad attack of rheumatism which left me helpless. I had to have help to dress and undress myself and could not even lace my boots without help. Of course the trouble caused me much suffering, and I was in this condition for about ten months. One day a friend who called to see me advised the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I began taking them and soon found some relief, and a short while after all signs of the rheumatism were gone, and I have not since had any return of the trouble."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

INDIAN TRAINING BEST, SAYS PROFESSOR SHARP

Every Child, He Thinks, Needs a Country Background for His Education.

BOSTON, June 22.—Professor Dallas Lore Sharp of Boston University believes that training children as the Indians were trained makes them alert and resourceful and fits them for the problems of life better than any other method. Professor Sharp is the man the late John Burroughs called 'the greatest nature writer in America."

He has been working out an experiment in "nature education" with his four boys on his farm in the hills of Hingham. He says:

"Every child—boys and girls alike—should get a country background to fit them for the fullest kind of self-expression."

The boys are Dallas Jr., 20; Waitstill, 18, who have just completed their sophomore year at Boston University; Morrison, 16, and Huntington, who will enter Boston University this fall.

"And so we came to live here in Hingham," continued Professor Sharp. "Two of my four boys were born here, and the four of them have had experiences with everything that lives and grows on the farm and in the woods hereabouts. They have gone barefoot, trapped and fished summer and winter. They have travelled these hills, making acquaintance with all forms of animal life.

"That's the kind of background, it seems to me, that every child has a right to, and that's what is behind our educational theory. A second reason for our coming here was to give the boys an experience that would make them self-sufficient, introspective, capable of doing things on their own initiative. Nothing emphasizes a boy's personality more than to find himself frequently alone and forced to depend upon his own resources.

"If I had four girls I'd put trousers on them and let them roam these woods and do the things the boys do. Most girls are being brought up in a foolish, futile way. They are pampered and prinked and ironed and starched until all their originality is gone, and they think only of their wardrobe."

A braggart chess player played three games with a stranger and lost them all. Next day a friend asked him how he had come off. "Oh,' said he, "I didn't win the first game, and my opponent didn't lose the second. As for the third, I wanted to draw it, but he wouldn't agree."

WHY U.S. OFFERS RECIPROCITY

(By J. H. BURNHAM)

The financial, and, therefore, the business condition, of the world has been thrown into such confusion by the war that unless we look closely into it and consult the somewhat technical and abstruse reports of experts, it is not to be understood. A most extraordinary and unexpected situation has suddenly arisen owing to the dramatic offer to Canada of reciprocity by the President of the U. S.

"What does it all mean?" we ask, and the answer is that it means according to the leading financial experts of the world, that Europe is going bankrupt, and that the U. S. must develop other markets. Austria, Germany and Russia have issued, and are issuing, so much paper-money, that it has really become valueless since there is no gold worth mentioning to redeem it.

Money, as everybody knows, is the commodity selected by common consent to trade with. It is of such a character in the form of gold that unlike any other commodity, it varies but little, and is not perishable. If it were not so, no doubt we would have selected some other material as a basic means of trade. But as it at present can be traded for anything, and will be accepted by everybody for that purpose, it will likely continue as the ultimate "Medium of exchange."

Hence, when paper has not gold behind it, or, like a warehouse receipt, some food or other material of great value, it becomes paper without any backing, and has the value of paper, and nothing else.

In Europe at the present time, there is practically no gold or other backing of the immense quantity of paper money that has been issued, and when the holders of paper find that the dream has ended, and that they hold only worthless paper, and nothing more, there will be the usual grand smash-up, and a tremendous convulsion of devolution. A revolution is a settling day for a country that goes into bankruptcy, and it is naturally a terrible affair. Europe is on the brink of a terrible upheaval, and the U. S. trade with it is shrinking rapidly, because Europe cannot pay execpt in worthless money. China is solvent, and so is the British Empire, and it is therefore to such countries that the U.S. is looking for the business that will keep her export trade going. Canada has htiherto been paying a high premium in exchange for the privilege of doing business with the U. S. The U. S. does not wish Canada to go head-long to ruin, and to be another Europe. That would mean the cutting-off of just so much more of her trade. So having passed a tariff bill of a high and exclusive character that would go a long way to break us up, the U. S. now offers us reciprocity, or a reciprocal lowering of tariff duties. In 1911 Canada refused the offer of reciprocity because of her fear that it would detach her from her British connections and ultimately have the effect of breaking up the Empire. In 1921 the question is: "Can Canada afford to do in 1921 what she did in 1911?"

If after the war the winning party of 1911 had gone back to the country for a renewal of the 1911 mandate, we would have known what Canada wished to have done under the changed after-the-war conditions, and would have done it. But no appeal was made to the people. No settlement of political conditions or trade policies for the future was made, and here we are face-to-face with a most alarming situation. Circumstances seem to be forcing us to accept the proposals of the U.S. and who will deny that under present conditions it looks as if our trade and business prospects for the future will be determined by this offer, and will thus place us at the mercy of our great and powerful neighbor. The criminal folly of the performance at Ottawa is now clear. We have acted at the seat of government as if we had no desire or ability to look into the future. It looks to some as if we have been betrayed into the hands of those in Canada who always wanted reciprocity; in fact, it is impossible to draw any other conclusion. What are we goin gto do about it now that the damage has been done? Canadians voted in 1911, and in 1921 find their 1911 decision on the point of reversal in spite of them. That this is a most momentous day for the Empire, no patriotic Canadian will deny. Johnson said that "patriotism was the last refuge of a scoundrel," and it certainly looks as if it were the last all right since it has played so small a part in Canadian affairs of late at Ottawa that the people of Canada have been brought by their so-called government to the brink of this crisis without being given a chance to defend themselves. We may yet pay dearly, at least in regard to our British connection and Canadian industries, for disregarding even the most elementary principles of decent administration. Our business men have caught themselves napping. And if a Canadian minister is appointed at Washington, because Canada desires to be independent of Great Britain, then she will have begun her career of independence, if not of something that will suit the West still better.

THEIR EXCELLENCIES' REGIME—A RETROSPECT.

(From the Ottawa Journal.)

So dramatic and world-wide have been the changes since 1916 that the departure of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, in October, and the arrival of the now retiring Governor-General in November of that year, seem almost ancient history.

Their Royal Highnesses, with the Princess Patricia, whose name has been carried in France and Belgium on the banner of one of Canada's most glorious regiments, left Ottawa a city almost denuded of pleasures, but with its citizens fired with a stern resolution to do their share in the Empire's fight until the Allied forces could dictate to a beaten enemy.

The welcome accorded the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire, while unmarked by any demonstrative outburst of enthusiasm, was none the less sincere, for the war was taking a heavy toll of Canada's manhood, and held first place in the minds of the people.

The city squares echoed to the sound of military commands, and Sir Sam Hughes, the Militia headquarters staff, and the guard of honour, who met Their Excellencies at the Central depot, were barely conspicuous in a sea of service uniforms which, even now, have almost ceased to bear a familiar appearance.

Not less a reminder of the flight of time is the recollection that Sir Wilfrid Laurier was present to greet the newcomers, who arrived at the moment when all Canada was reading of the gallantry of the Canadian troops at Courcelette, during the British advance on the Somme.

With their Excellencies came their daughters, Ladies Maude and Blanche Cavendish, both since married, one, all too soon, widowed, and from that day, in times of hope and of almost black despair and amidst personal bereavement, they have done their appointed tasks with high hearts and never failing courage.

His Excellency has fully maintained the reputation of his house for statesmanship, coolness in deliberations, and decision in action. In his social duties his success has not been less conspicuous, and Her Excellency the Duchess has been a helpmate in the deepest sense of the word. In war and peace both have striven wholeheartedly to ease suffering and to further those community movements that make life worth living.

To say that the younger members of the family have been popular is to do them the barest justice. They have, indeed, won a place in the hearts of all Canadians who love unaffected sincerity.

CAR LOADS ONTARIO BERRIES.

MONTREAL, June 22.— Several car loads of Ontario strawberries arrived in Montreal to-day, thus proving the fears of local retailers, who expected the Ontario berries to be exported to the United States, groundless. Fruit merchants who brought the berries said that the large baskets would probably sell at eighteen cents. The price of local berries have taken a tumble and pint boxes which sold yesterday for from 17 1-2 to 20 cents are to-day 15 cents.

FREEMASONS OF GERMANY SORRY BUT NOT PENITENT

THEY WISH TO RESUME INTERCOURSE WITH LODGES OF ENTENTE POWERS, BUT LATTER ARE NOT PREPARED TO FORGIVE AND FORGET.

When the great war began in 1914 the various Masonic grand lodges of Germany, which are directed in matters of policy by a central bund, issued an edict prohibiting all intercourse with Masons of the Entente nations. The Grand Orients of France and of Belgium promptly took up the challenge while the Duke of Connaught as grand master of the craft in Great Britain, and in its name, issued an edict barring all "brethren" of German, Austrian, Hungarian, Turkish or Bulgarian birth from any British Masonic function and from all intercourse with British Masons. These regulations still remain in force.

With regard to the craft in the United States, the latter's entry into the war in the spring of 1917, was followed by a suspension of intercourse between American and Teuton lodges not as the result of any official edict, but by virtue of a natural sentiment of American patriotism, writes Marquese de Fontenoy in the New York Sun.

It is claimed that no matter how some of the hyphenated citizens of German origin behaved during the war, the German American lodges, even those in which the ritual is conducted in the German language, maintained an attitude free from reproach as far as Americanism is concerned, and abstained from intercourse with the lodges or the Masons of the Fatherland. It is understood that this intercourse has not yet been resumed, in view of the fact that Germany and the United States are still technically at war, since there has been no treaty of peace.

German Masons Regret Break.

The Masons in Germany now apparently regret the boycott which they instituted at the beginning of the war, in 1914, and the retaliatory measures which it entailed on the part of the craft among the Entente nations, and have issued a manifesto in favor of a reunion declaring: "We do not want to be excluded from universal Masonry." But the German Masons demand a reunion on a footing of perfect equality. "Let no one presume to set us upon the penitent stool." Elsewhere the manifesto says: "Free Masonry must not be infested with politics." But this is contradicted later on by the following admission: "We German Free Masons discuss in our lodges questions of present day politics. But we consider there problems only from a Masonic point of view. Our aim is always the moral solution. It is thus that we wish to teach social ethics, social culture and Masonic education."

This official declaration of the German Central Bund, or Grand Orient of Teuton Masonry, so thoroughly illustrative of the unrepentance of Germany for all the destruction of life and treasure in the four years of the great war, is in no sense calculated to conciliate or in any way modify the attitude of the Masons of the allied nations. The latter can never forget the insolent manner in which the German grand lodges at the outset of the war responded to the appeal of the members of the craft in Entente countries to observe the laws of war adopted by civilized nations, and to conduct the conflict in the most humane and least barbarous fashion.

No matter what the treaties of peace between the formerly belligerent governments, it will be many a long day before the Free Masons of the allied powers, especially Great Britain, France and Belgium, will consent to resume intercourse with the Teuton members of the craft on a footing of equality, or before they consent to forgive and forget the attitude and conduct of the German Masons so contrary to all precepts of the craft during the war.

THE VICTORIAN LADY AND THE MODERN MAID

A Victorian lady met a modern maid,
And she raised her eyebrows and gently said,
"Now, frankly, I cannot admire your taste,
In your riding breeches and your georgette waist."
But the modern maiden gave her hair a pat:
"Why, the young men like me just like that!"

The Victorian lady seemed about to choke:
"I'm afraid you gamble and I know you smoke,
And, indeed, my dear, I do not find you fair,
With your knee-length skirt and your hearth-brush hair."
But the maiden laughed and would only say:
"But the young men like me just this way!"

The lady groaned: "You wear a seven shoe!
And the things you say, and the things you do!
Your elbows are sunburned nearly black,
And you're tanned in a V-shape down your back!"
But the maiden flourished her powdered puff,
And said: "You have scolded me quite enough!"

"You used to faint, and you know you cried,
And you used to lace till you almost died.
I don't see you were any good at all!
Could you earn a living, or pitch a ball?
And I should worry at the things you say—
For the young men like me just this way!"

Good Work Of Home And School Associations In Peterboro

The Home and School Associations, which have been doing such excellent work in connection with bringing together in closer bonds the parents, teachers and children of the local schools, are winding up their several seasons with entertainments, in which all these elements have a part. The Queen Mary association had a delightful treat on Tuesday last, which has been described in detail, and the King George School association had a wonderful time at Nicholls Oval last Saturday afternoon. The Principal, Capt. M. Park, acted as director of sports, arrangements were under the capable supervision of Mrs. R. H. Parsons, the President, and of Mr. A. A. Fowler, while the judges of the different events were Miss Fucee, Rev. Mr. Ross and Rev. Mr. Bousfield, Messrs. Mowat, Munroe and Parsons; Mr. H. Dodds acted as Convenor of the Sports Committee; the ice cream booth was in charge of Mrs. Gray, Mrs. Logan and Messrs. Gray, Couper and Gemmell; the races were looked after by Messrs. Hamilton, Anderson, Bethune, Ellis, Whatley, Saunders and Pomeroy, while the prizes were in the hands of Mrs. Dodds, Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. Gemmell, Mrs. Anderson, Miss Scott and Miss Fucee.

The girls' races, in different events, with prizes of tennis rackets, balls, bathing caps, ivory trays, bracelets, fancy pins, purses, tennis balls, fountain pens and cups and saucers, were won by Marion Jakeworth, Lilly Cockrill, S. Yeotes, Ethel Cook, A. Legon, Jean Black, G. Hawkes, D. Marshall, H. Joyce, M. Burnham, Jean King, G. Fawcett, M. Ebbs, K. Little, H. Halliday, V. Smith, L. Page, L. Bedding, D. Armstrong, D. Couper, L. Lawrence, I. Couper, M. Lipsett, O. Howland, C. Long, E. Turner and L. Fagan. The sack race was won by M. Grierson, M. Burnham and P. Rome, and the needle race by M. Lipsett, D. Couper, I. Couper and W. Adams. The teachers' race, for which a glass vase and a book were given, was won by the Misses Outram, Sisson and Paxman, and the married women's race, with such domestic articles as salt and peppers, bowls, and even a dish cloth for encouragement, went to Mrs. Whatley, Mrs. Burnham and Mrs. Hill. In the girls' tug-of-war, L. Grierson, D. Armstrong, J. Thorne, M. Grierson, M. Hawkes, L. Fagan and M. Wheeler were victorious. The girls also won a baseball game by a score of 14-11, in which their mothers were the losers.

In the boys' events, where bats and balls, mitts, gloves and fountain pens formed the prizes for victory, the winners were as follows: W. Milliken, N. Calladine, A. Fawcett, C. Forbes, S. Yeotes, M. Hunter, F. Darragh, R. Strong, G. Record, J. Ellis, W. Starr, G. Milliken, M. Starr, A. Champion, O. Rome, R. Ballantyne and L. Calladine. The hop, step and jump, sack, relay and wheelbarrow races went to R. Ballantyne, M. Starr, L. Calladine, S. Yeotes, F. Darragh, C. Armstrong, H. Throop and R. Walsh. Messrs. Park and Munro won the silver vase for the teachers' race, Messrs. Ellis, Day and Yeotes the writing paper and coat hangers which were offered as inducements in this event, and the tug-of-war succumbed to Messrs. Oke, Ballantyne, Pammett, Starr, Robb, Clarke and Woods. In a game of baseball against their fathers, the boys lost by a score of 9-5.

A bountiful supper was enjoyed by the hundreds of merry picnickers, while 50 gallons of lemonade, donated by the association, and 20 gallons of ice cream, sold at two cones for a nickel, disappeared in a marvellously rapid manner.

Local Artist's Work Bought And Kept In Peterborough

Lovers of Art in Peterborough will be pleased to know that the portrait of Miss Katherine E. Wallis by Mons. Waldman, which was shown at her recent exhibit here, will remain in Peterborough. This has been made possible by contributions from the Otonabee Chapter I. O. D. E., the Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E., Mrs. Jas. Kendry, Messrs. E. H. D. Hall, G. W. Hatton and F. L. Roy.

This portrait of Miss Wallis in biscuit porcelain was made by Mons. Waldmann, the eminent Swiss sculptor, while she was working under his tuition in his studio. It was at first a simple sketch of his pupil, engaged in modeling a little dog, which was afterwards elaborated into a decorative panel, in relief, with a lion and lioness on either side as guardians. The only existing bronze of this portrait is in the Petit Palais in Paris, one of the municipal museums of art in that city, where also are placed the portrait in relief of Mrs. Rogers and a relief of the back of the Mercury Charmed with His Own Invention.

Miss Wallis, who has been travelling extensively for the past few months in Western Canada and California, was asked to exhibit in San Diego, and had an extremely successful exhibition of her work in Winnipeg, where thousands of people visited the Art Gallery in the Board of Trade Building where it was held. After viewing some of her work, Mr. George Hill, Canada's foremost sculptor, asked the artist to execute a monument for St. Mary's, which she was obliged to refuse, on account of possssing no adequate studio accommodations and especially on account of the limited time given for its completion.

Besides the porcelain portrait recently purchased, Peterborough possesses another example of Miss Wallis' work in the decorative panel in bronze, "The Goodlie Company of Solitude," bought by the Women's Art Association for their own rooms, and a just-completed plaster relief portrait of Master Wilmot Gordon, son of Mr. G. N. Gordon, M.P., in which he is represented as a baby with his teddy bear.

The artist, who received many decorations from the British and French Governments in recognition of her service in war times, has lately been given a diploma for nursing work from the British committee of the French Red Cross.

Few Needs Of Blind People

There is nothing that can compare with the patience of the blind. They seem to be possessed of an inexhaustible fund of endurance. Their lips smile and their voices resound with living force, all the while the blinking lids or the opaque eyeballs bears a testimonial to their cruel loss. Little thing interest them; watch a blind man finger a flower whose color and radiance is nothing but a blank to his sight, or fondle a tiny dog whose unwitting tail is caught beneath the shuffling feet. A pipe is an unfailing solace, and the blind will answer with cheerful voice from a dark and gloomy corner where no light shines. And gum is another blessing. They do not crave for fine clothes and automobile rides, for the latest moving picture or vaudeville show. What they want is something to do and someone to teach them to make useful things with the busy, groping fingers. You can please the blind by teling them a creation of their hands is pretty. They cannot see it, but they are glad that others think it fine and nice, and a blind man who was in the habit of making little brown baskets and who made a departure in one case and colored a sample green, was rather disappointed in the general expression of indifference to the change. They like things with their fingers, those extremely sensitive digits that wander lovingly over the surface of a just-completed little canoe seat or flower-stand, and they take much pride in their efficiency in the laborious system of raised dots which form the ponderous Braille writing. One makes a boast of his knowledge of literature, Dickens and Stevenson and Scott living in his memory through the medium of scroll-like patterns on heavy paper. No, they do not ask much. If everyone were satisfied with the little that the blind people ask for, it would be a happy and contented world. Work is the principal good thing in their list of wants, with the bare necessities of life and little friendship to help the dark way.

On Being A Humorist

I think I made a real discovery the other day when I stumbled across the fact that one of the things I liked best to remember about one who had passed over into the spirit land was his rare gift for and appreciation of humor. And to realize that the thought of such gift and appreciation had no incongruity about it, when related to the great afterlife, seemed to give a new worth and meaning to that of which before I had only seen the more light and trifling side and magnified it into something like a virtue or an achievement.

And is not humor, indeed, a better and more worth-while thing than often we have accounted it to be! Looked at in itself it is one of the most distinctively human things about us. Occasionally we think we can note the higher animals showing some appreciation of it, but such appreciation at most is slight and fleeting. The gift of humor looks like one of the big distinctive things that a far-seeing and munificent Creator has bestowed upon His creature, man.

Looked at from the point of view of what it can and does accomplish, it is equally great and significant. How it has brightened dark skies, given gladness for gloom, made hard roads seem smooth and easy and given a zest to life that made everything fresh and new! To see a crowd of men laughing till they hold their sides, at some story that they have heard at least a hundred times, bears wonderful tribute to the vitality and vitalizing effect of wholesome humor.

But if humor is so good, and does help so much, and is so manifestly a divine and wonderful gift, we would make a great mistake, surely, in failing to cultivate and use and enjoy it, within seemly and reasonable limits, of course. And we oughtn't to set those limits too closely either. Humor has its legitimate place in serious matters—in fact, these have often been badly damaged for want of a little of it. Indeed, it can be said truthfully that we are never living more wholesomely and helpfully than when we are freely mingling the humorous with the serious in our lives, and that we are seldom rendering any better service to men than when we are helping them to laugh.—The Christian Guardian.

To Wear Thin Waists or Sleeveless Dresses

(Beauty Topics.)

With the aid of a delatone paste, it is an easy matter for any woman to remove every trace of hair or fuzz from face, neck and arms. Enough of the powdered delatone and water is mixed into a thick paste and spread on the hairy surface for about 2 minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed. This completely removes the hair, but to avoid disappointment, get the delatone in an original package.

A Blow To The New Freedom

Miss Alice Robertson, Oklahoma's representative in the United States Congress, admits frankly that she is an old maid, and says just as frankly: 'I've done a man's work in the world and I've paid the price. This is the result. I'm a horrible example. Don't follow in my footsteps; look at me as a warning, not as an example to be followed. Oh, of course, I've had proposals in my day. Who hasn't? But the men who have wanted to marry me I haven't wanted, and the men I would have married have not wanted my kind of a woman."

"To the new-fashioned woman who preaches of feminism, who shrieks aloud for the 'new fashion,'" writes Elizabeth Ellam in The Boston Herald, "this is a pitiful epitaph to be written by a woman who is regarded as one of the foremost of her sex. This woman who is in the lead wishes she wasn't. She'd take it all for a home and a family and a fireside of her own, any day.

"So true is this fact that Miss Robertson adopted a girl, an Indian girl, when she was six and brought her up as her own daughter. Suzanne married when she was twenty-six, but her life is closely bound around the heartstrings of her foster mother.

"Miss Robertson believes in love, in marriage and in happy contented homes. 'If there is any menace in the world to-day, it is too quick marriage and too easy divorce. That's not the way to build a home, or a country.'

"Miss Robertson attended Elmira College in 1873 and 1874 and that college was distinctly mid-Victorian in those days. Perhaps her views on girls and marriage are all the more unique, when you consider the early training in a college where even the piano was not allowed to display its legs! Indeed, her reminiscences of those early days are worth repeating."

The Wisdom Of The Ancients

Wise ones of the earth know that if your dream is strong and clear enough, if you oppose no obstacles of doubt or fear, it will sometime, somewhere, manifest. It is not for you to worry about the means. If your faith is great and the dream is noble, unseen hands will bring aid; miraculously the path will be smoothed for the manifestation.—Quot.

MORE MEN THAN WOMEN HAVE APPENDICITIS

Medical reports show men are more subject to appendicitis although many sudden cases occur among women. It can be guarded against by preventing intestinal infection. The intestinal antiseptic, Adler-i-ka. acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel, removing all foul, decaying matter which might cause infection. It brings out matter you never thought was in your system, and which may have been poisoning you for months. Adler-i-ka is EXCELLENT for gas on the stomach. McDermid & Jury and E. L. CHOICE RECIPES

CHEF A. L. WYMAN
By A. L. WYMAN, Chef

The streets on the east side remind one of the old public markets of Los Angeles; peddlers with push carts piled high with produce from Long Island, New York's vegetable garden, sell strawberries, green peas, string beans, asparagus and other vegetables for prices that make one wonder if the Los Angeles gardeners do not ship their vegetables from New York and have to charge more for them on account of the freight. Strawberries, large, ripe and luscious, sell for thirty cents a full quart basket; tender green peas for ten cents a pound and other garden truck for prices that make the task of furnishing the table with tasty fresh foods easy for the New York housewife.

For the past month Mrs. Wyman has collected a number o recipes from the pupils and teachers of the New York schools of cookery and I know that the following two are not only practical but are very economical.

Beefsteak Pie.

Cut in small cubes two pounds of chuck steak and place in a stewpan with a seasoning of salt, pepper, nutmeg and the juice of a lemon; stew until tender. For the crust boil five mealy potatoes; when cooked, peel and press through a sieve, beat into the mashed potatoes two beaten eggs, one tablespoon of butter, one tablespoon chopped parsley and season with pepper and salt. Line a deep pie dish with the potato mixture and lay in the cooked meat mixed with two cups of cooked potato cubes. Cover with the potato mixture, brush with the yolk of an egg and brown in a quick oven.

Hungarian Potato Dumpling.

Mash in a bowl seven large peeled and cooked potatoes, to which is added one teaspoon of salt, four eggs, five teaspoons of butter, and one and a quarter cups of fine cracker meal and the whole kneaded to a smooth dough. Take a handful at a time, pat smooth and flat, place in the center two tablespoons of stewed raisins, fold over and form into a round dumpling, place dumplings in boiling salted water and cook fifteen minutes. Remove with a skimmer and serve hot with a lemon sauce, melted butter and dust with cinnamon.

Moulded Chicken, Chef Sty e.

For a hot weather luncheon the chef of one of the old time hotels gave me a recipe for moulded chicken. Disjoint two larged cleaned chickens and cook in boiling water until tender with a slice of onion, a stalk of celery and a small slice of carrot. Remove the chicken and allow the stock to simmer for one hour. Season with salt and pepper, cool, strain and clear; there should be eight cups. Reheat and add six tablespoons of gelatine dissolved in two-thirds of a cup of cold water. Allow this to cool. Cut the meat from the chickens in large, even slices. Put a thin layer of the stock in the bottom of a large mould, decorate with thin slices of hard boiled egg, pimentos, lemon and boiled ham Cover with stock and when firm add alternate layers of white and dark chicken meat and thin slices of cooked ham, repeating until mould is full. Cover with the chicken stock. Chill and when firm, unmould, garnish with shredded lettuce, celery curls and stiff mayonnaise.

New Chicken a la King.

Cover three cups of sliced cooked chicken with a mixture of one cup of vinegar, one tablespoon of chopped parsley, one slice of onion, a bit of bay leaf, half a blade of mace and a few pepper corns, let stand one hour and drain. Place in a saucepan half a cup of butter and when it is melted add two tablespoons of grated onion, two chopped green peppers, three pimentos cut in strips, and half a cup of flour. Stir and cook for five minutes. Add three cups of milk and season with salt, paprika and nutmeg; when well blended add the chicken. Bring to a boil and add two cups of browned mushrooms, two tablespoons of capers, and the yolks of four eggs beaten with two cups cream, cook three minutes, do not boil. Just before serving add two tablespoons of tarragon vinegar and one-third cup of orange juice. Serve with points of toast or in patty shells.

FINED FOR ASSAULTING CENSUS ENUMERATOR.

SARNIA, June 21. — Pleading guilty to a charge of unlawfully assaulting a census enumerator while in the discharge of his duties, Alex. Cameron was fined $5 and costs in the Police Court to-day. In addition, he was required to pay $3.25 damages for the breaking of a fountain pen owned by the enumerator. The assault took place at the home of Caleb Lascelle, Chippawa Street, where Cameron was when the enumerator, Harry Taylor, called. Cameron, it was said, was slightly intoxicated.

That Girl With The Monkey

She was a new type to this young aristocrat. He had known girls with wealth, and beauty, and social position, but here he was head-over-heels in love with a penniless orphan, a mere circus performer, who was good at summersaults, but didn't know whether etiquette was something to eat or to wear.

Dick loved her just as she was, but aristocratic Southern families are not so easily satisfied as ardent young lovers are. The bewildered little clown found that life in a big house was quite different from life under the big top—in fact, that it was anything but a circus.

PETES WIN PROTEST; GAME WITH PORT HOPE HAS TO BE REPLAYED

Peterboorugh's protest in connection with the Port Hope-Peterborough Central Ontario League game played at Port Hope last week has been successful and the game will have to be replayed. The matter came up at a meeting of the Central Ontario League executive held in the Y.M.C.A., Oshawa, yesterday afternoon, and the Petes' contention that Base Umpire Henderson's decision in calling Cherrett out for not touching second base after a foul was in violation of the rules and that this mistaken decision had a material effect upon the result of the game, were up held by the executive, only one vote being registered in opposition to the protest.

President Arthur Kimmel, of Cobourg, was in the chair, and the other members of the executive present were Vice-President E. Parsons and Secretary John Nott of Oshawa, M. J. Dedman, Lindsay, Tyson, Cobourg, Mark, Port Hope, and J. J. Solomon, Peterborough. Representatives of the Belleville and Oshawa clubs were not in attendance. Port Hope's side of the case was presented by Manager Sheehan and Fred Chalk, while Peterborough's version was furnished by F. D. Craig.

Port Hope introduced a new aspect to the protest by claiming that Cherrett was off the base when touched by Guy. There was nothing in their registered statement of defence in regard to this claim, and as Umpire Henderson would not flatly say that Cherrett was touched off the bag, the executive did not place any weight upon this last minute alibi.

It was decided that the game shall be replayed on a date to be selected by the executive. It must of course, be played at Port Hope.

Several other matters were dealt with at yesterday's meeting. Cobourg asked for permission to use a pitcher who they frankly admitted is not eligible under the residence rules. Their contention was that it was to the interest of the League that Cobourg should be strengthened. The application of the Cobourg Club will be referred to every team in the League and after all clubs have expressed their opinion by leter the executive will deal with the matter.

PETES IN RUNNING BUT HAVE TO BEAT BELLEVILLE ON SATURDAY

The action of the Central Ontario League exec utive in throwing out the Port Hope-Peterborough game at Port Hope and ordering it replayed in Port Hope, puts the Petes right back in the running for the championship of the first half of the schedule, and the result of the game with Belleville here on Saturday is therefore of more importance than ever. A win for the Petes would leave them close on Oshawa's heels and put them ahead of the Belleville gang, and Manager Solomon's crew are determined to take the scalps of Goyer and Company, if the feat is possible. The veteran southpaw is going great just now, but the Petes have beaten him before and they are confident that they can do it again. It should be the greatest local battle of the year and fans all over the Central League circuit are awaiting the result with unusual interest .The game will start sharp at 3 o'clock.

LINGERING SPARK FROM BURNED HOUSE FIRES WHOLE SECTION

BELLEVILLE, June 23.—(Canadian Press). — After the fire which burned Alfred Rowe's house at Northport, Prince Edward County, on Tuesday afternoon was thought to have been extinguished, flames broke out afresh on Wednesday afternoon, and to-day about two-thirds of Northport village, including eleven houses and ten barns, has been destroyed, with a total damage of about fifty thousand dollars, half covered by insurance.

When the fire started again yesterday efforts were made to obtain help from other towns and villages, but without success. All the villages north of the main road were swept away by the flames. Some of them were summer homes entirely, but others were all the year round residences.

NO ONE HURT IN BIG PRIZE FIGHT

STORY OF HOW JESS WILLARD WHIPPED FRANK MORAN

After Jess Williard won the heavy weight championship of the world he became a circus performer.

In an off-season for circuses in 1916, he fought ten rounds with Frank Moran at Madison Square Garden and won a popular decision, Moran, following his defeat by John son had triumphed over Jim Coffey, another aspirant for the championship, and was considered eligible for a crack at the title holder.

He was no match for the Kansan giant, who outweighed him almost 60 pounds. Willard allowed the challenger to do the leading but Moran could not inject sufficient punitive power in his blows o even leave a scratch upon his big opponent.

In a manner of speaking, Williard whipped Moran with one hand, and in a literal manner, too. The forefinger of his right hand was broken in the third round in a collision with Moran's elbow and after that only the left fist was of much use to him. With that alone he could not knock out his opponent, so the last round ended just as Pollyanna would have wished. No one had ben hurt, and both men were a great deal wealthier than before they met.

Willard saled away the $47,500 which came to him from the purse and went back to the circus unworried by what the future held in store.

DEMPSEY FOUGHT TRIUMPHANT WAY ACROSS CONTINENT

BOXED SOMETIMES TWICE A WEEK IN CITIES OF VARYING SIZE.

When Dempsey, from training and boxing with men who knew every twist and turn in the game, had absorbed considerable experience, Kearns adjudged him ready for another invasion of the East, this time under more expert supervision.

The trip was a triumph from the start. Dempsey literally fought his way across the continent. Boxing at least once, sometimes twice, a week in cities of varying size, he hung up a great record. "Fireman" Jim Flynn, Bill Brennan, Arthur Pelkey, Fred Fulton, Porky Flynn, and Battling Levinsky were among the victims. The only reverse decision registered against him during the year was a four-round bout on the coast in which Willy Meehan beat Dempsey on points.

The second battle with Fireman Jim Flynn was one of the early bouts of the trip. It was staged in a Western town, and Dempsey knocked out Flynn in the first round, thus avenging the earlier one-round defeat at the hands of the veteran.

An anecdote concerning that battle shows the confidence which Kearns already had acquired in his new charge. Flynn's manager, believing that Dempsey again would be an easy victim, offered to wager Kearns an amount on the result. Kearns was willing to wager not only on the result, but bet that Dempsey would win in one round. The outcome proved the correctness of his calculations.

Carpentier's Bouts.

The battle with Loughrey in 1911 sent Carpentier into 'fast company" in boxing. From that time on, he was a participant in main bouts in France and England, instead of preliminary contests. He knocked out Jack Goldswain and defeated Evernden and Young Josephs, winning the British welterweight championship.

Two bouts with leading American welterweights were fought before the close of 1911. In one, Carpentier was victorious over Harry Lewis in 20 rounds. In the the other, the Dixie Kid, remembered in this country as one of the most furious two-handed welterweights the ring has seen, beat the Frnchman in a five-round bout. Henry Piet, in ten rounds, scored the other victory marked up against Carpentier in 1911.

Despite his losing to the Dixie Kid, the year bringing the British welterweight title to Carpentier had been the most successful experienced by Georges, and he was even more successful in 1912, when he encountered, for the first time, middleweights of the first class.

"THE IRON RIDER" A FRANK PACKARD TALE

Because of the brilliant success achieved in motion picturedom by "The Miracle Man," "The White Moll" and "From Now On"—the last two being Fox plays starring Pearl White and George Walsh respectively—the name of Frank L. Packard as the author of a picture is certain to mean something out of the ordinary in motion picture entertainment.

The latest product of Packard's talented pen is "The Iron Rider," a William Fox production starring handsome William Russell, which will open at the Regent Theatre today. The picture is said to be extraordinary in its dramatic and absorbing picturization of human entanglements, and all reviewers and critics have been vigorous in their praise of the element of suspense which marks the entire production.

AT THE CAPITOL.

To-night the Capitol offers a big show — Mary Miles Minter in the Little Clown, and the Vaudeville Act, Rozene, the 10-Year-Old Mental Marvel, assisted by Prof. Villiers.

To-night, and for the balance of this week, the Capitol offers a splendid picture and vaudeville programme, many splendid single and double reel serials, comedies, News Weekly, Pathe Review and Burton Holmes, and a single reel of authentic pictures, showing a day with Jack Dempsey. These are the only real genuine pictures ever taken of the champion in training, also at work and at play, and giving a boxing exhibition, and will give the public an opportunity to get a line on Dempsey before the big fight, which takes place a week from this Saturday, July 2nd.

The vaudeville act, Baby Rozene, a 10-year-old child from London, England, who does a very clever and puzzling mental mind and memory act, assisted by Prof. Villiers, who offers five hundred dollars to any child in the world who can duplicate her performance.

"The Nerviest Kid in America." That's the title sporting editors all over the country have handed Cameron Coffey, the world's greatest boy diver, now appearing in motion pictures.

From the time he was able to walk young Coffey was able to swim. And at the age of two he became an expert diver, so that he soon "headlined" programmes all over America.

When he was five years old he was performing one night at the Los Angeles Athletic Club. During a series of fancy dives he missed his footing and landed against the concrete side of the tank, sustaining a basal fracture of the skull. For weeks he was not expected to live. And even after it was certain that he would live, nobody ever expected him to swim again.

"He's done as a diver," said the wise ones. "He'll never come back —this has surely broken his nerve."

Nothing of the sort. Some months later Cameron surprised them all by beating his own height record by ten feet, besides inventing a couple of brand-new and difficult aquatic stunts.

Then it was that the sporting editors acclaimed him as "the nerviest kid in America."

Local photoplay audiences will have an opportunity to see "the nerviest kid in America" at the Capitol Theatre for 3 days, beginning to-night, in "The Little Clown," a Mary Miles Minter picture play.

This picture is from a "big top" story by Avery Hopwood, author of "Fair and Warmer." Young Coffey has an appealing juvenile role in support of the blonde favorite. Other popular actors in the cast include Helen Dunbar, Winter Hall, Lura Anson, Lucien Littlefield—with Jack Mulhall and Neely Edwards in the leading male roles.

"The Little Clown" is a real honest to goodness circus story using a real circus with lions, elephants, bears, coyotes, monkeys, not to mention the famous trained goose Mike, known to circus followers all over the country, and the famous horse, "King George." Thomas Heffron directed the picture with Eaxon Dean at the camera.

AT THE ALLEN.

HUMANE SOCIETY ON JOB WHEN ANIMALS ACT IN BIG FILM PLAY

At all times during the filming of "The Son of Tarzan" feature serial, which comes to this city at the Allen Theatre to-day, a representative of both the Los Angeles chapter of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and the Humane Society were present to supervise the feeding and proper housing of the hundreds of animals used in this production.

After the production of "The Son of Tarzan" Director Harry J. Revier was given a clean bill from the humane societies, both for the considerate treatment the wild animals received while in his charge and for the cordiality shown the representatives.

PREFER DRAMAS LIKE "HABIT"

A Survey Of The Motion Picture Field Reveals A Preference For Screen Dramas Of This Type.

Statistics recently gathered by a motion picture journal showed that the vast majority of screen patrons when sounded as to their references, declared unanimously in favor of emotional dramas. Therefore the management of the Allen Theatre has secured as the next attraction, "Habit." So popular is "Habit" that it is head and shoulders above the ordinary screen drama written by some unknown scenario writer. It fairly snaps and sparkles with clever lines and tense situations. It is superbly mounted and splendidly enacted by a well balanced cast, including Mildred Harris. It tells of the evil of allowing habit to enslave us. It deals with the forbidden fruit of desire with swift bold strokes that carry the spectator breathlessly to the conclusion.

Perhaps the scenes of most interest to women are those in the atelier of a Fifth Avenue importer and designer, where models wearing a hundred thousand dollars worth of furs and furbelows parade. The extent and richness of the fashions shown will interest all women in that these styles are all actual ones that will be worn this winter by leaders of fashion.

Mildred Harris, who plays the part of Irene Fletcher in "Habit," the notable photodrama that will be seen at the Allen Theatre to-day, not only studies her part in the various plays in which she appears, but goes further. She believes in also studying the motif, so that she can more correctly help weave the plot threads into a dramatic fabric.

CHARITY CUP GAME TONIGHT

TELLS STORY OF COLLISION

HARRY M'KEE WITNESS IN A CHARGE OF RECKLESS DRIVING ON CHEMONG ROAD.

John Macdonald, the driver of the car which collided with a machine driven by Harry McKee at the intersection of the Chemong Road and the sixth line of Smith township at about 6.45 p.m. Sunday, was arraigned before Magistrate O. A. Langley in County Police Court at 11 a.m. to-day on a charge of reckless driving. Harry McKee is the complainant in this action. V. J. McElderry is representing McKee and G. N. Gordon, M.P., is counsel for Macdonald.

After hearing McKee's evidence and part of the cross-examination, at 12.05, on the suggestion of Mr. Gordon, court was adjourned till 2 p.m. for examination of the scene of the accident and the separate roads by the Magistrate and counsels, accompanied by informant and accused.

Harry McKee, the informant, first gave evidence in this case. Witness said he lived at home with his father, George McKee, on 6th line of Smith. He was on his way to church at Bridgenorth when the accident occurred, he said.

"I was driving down the sixth line. There were in the car my aunt, Miss Ruth McKee and my cousin, Miss Evelyn Gillis. They were seated in the back seat. Miss Gillis was on the right, my aunt on the left. I was going to turn to the left or north on the Chemong road. Witness said the road curved a little to the north before it met the Chemong road.

As you approach the road have you a clear view of the road? asked Mr. McElderry.

Not very. There is a bank on the left.

McKee said he was going about 10 or 15 miles an hour. He had no speedometer, but the judged that would be the speed. He did not see the other car till he was right on the Chemong Road; the front wheels just on the road. The car appeared to be coming down grade. Witness could not say how far the other car was away. Judging by the length of the courtroom he said he thought it would be 15 or 20 yards. Continuing he told Mr. McElderry he could not tell how fast the other car was going—it was going too fast to judge, he said. McKee said it was going faster than his car. He finally testified the car was going 35 to 40 miles an hour.

Witness said he was just beginning to turn when he was struck on the left front wheel and fender by the right end of his bumper. The left end of the bumper would be somewhere in front of his right wheel. The left front wheel was all broken up, witness said and the car was otherwise damaged. All of the injury to the other car was at the front. The right fender and bumper of Perry's car was broken, he said he observed.

When the impact came his car was overturned against the ditch on the east side of the road. He fell out over the wheels and the other two passengers fell down in the back of the car. Witness said he wanted to tell the Magistrate when he first saw the car it was on the right side of the road and afterwards veered to the left.

Was there room to pass you behind? asked the Magistrate.

Yes, there was.

Was there any tooting of horns?

No. I didn't hear anything.

To Mr. Gordon witness said there was a lot of traffic on the sixth line. Mr. Gordon wanted the average number of rigs that travelled the road in a day.

Counsel for defendant submitted an engineer's plan of the intersection of the two roads to the Magistrate.

Witness stated, after considerable hesitation, there would be from three to six vehicles a day enter the Chemong road from the sixth line.

In cross-examination plaintiff said the hill on the sixth line was about 25 to 35 yards from the Chemong road. Along the north side of the line road he stated there were some bushes.

Mr. Gordon further examined him on this point and then counsel for the defence suggested the magistrate and counsels visiting the scene of the accident to gain a clearer impression of the surroundings and save taking unnecessary evidence.

Magistrate Langley and Mr. McElderry concurred that it would be helpful so court was immediately adjourned till 2 p.m.

He Fled Likely

"Flee!" she cried.
"You mean fly, don't you?"
'Never mind what insect I mean, Just run, Pa's coming!"

Insurance against visitations of mothers-in-law would be popular with some men.

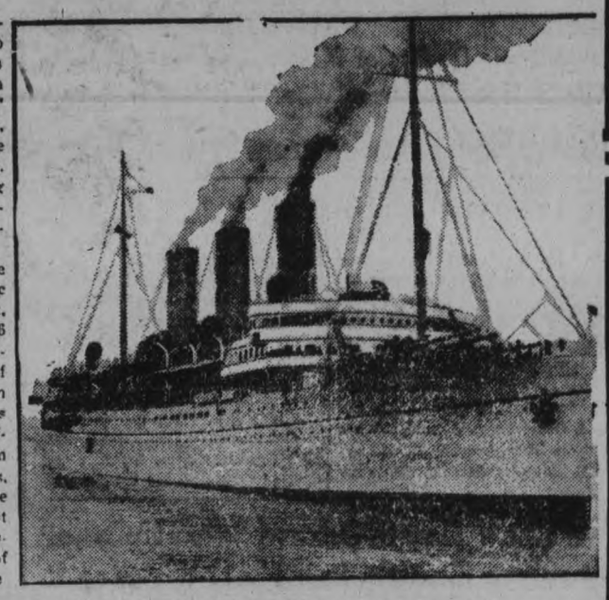
Empress Makes a Record Trip

A record trip across the Pacific Ocean from Yokohama to Victoria, British Columbia, has just been made by the Canadian Pacific liner "Empress of Asia." The time was 8 days, 21 hours, and 38 minutes. The usual time for this trip is well over 9 days. Amongst those on board during the voyage was Mr. G. M. Bosworth, Chairman of the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services.

The "Empress of Asia" is one of the giant liners of the Pacific with a length of 590 feet, breadth 68 feet, and depth 46 feet, and the gross tonnage being 15,000. The usual speed of the vessel is about 18 knots an hour. The vessel accommodates 1,100 passengers and 470 officers and crew. There is room for 200 first class passengers, 100 second, and 800 third. The ship is provided with the most comfortable equipment, and possesses double the number of watertight compartments required by shipping law.



The Canadian Pacific Liner Empress of Asia.

The main saloon of the "Empress" is 74 feet long, and 64 feet wide, lighted from the side by many prettily designed windows, and from above by a large hollow window 26 feet by 16 feet. The first class state rooms on the bridge deck are enclosed in a complete steel deck house 340 feet long. Each of these rooms measures 10 by 19 feet, with sleeping berths for two persons, and a sofa so arranged as to be converted easily into a bed if required. The sleeping berths are so designed that should one passenger only occupy the room, the upper berth can be closed up, leaving only a single brass bedstead. Several of the staterooms are fitted with a dressing room, with hot and cold water. Surrounding the deckhouse is one of the first-class promenades, 430 feet long, with a minimum width of eight feet; at the aft end for 100 feet this promenade extends clear across the ship and at the forward end it is enclosed by a screen, having large observation windows so as to give a sheltered promenade of 240 feet. A number of single, as well as double berth rooms are provided for those passengers who desire absolute privacy, and there are also a number of suites consisting of bedroom, sitting room, and bath-room. These appointments are all worked out in the English style of the Georgian period, and are extremely attractive. There is also a well equipped gymnasium and up-to-date laundry, while the kitchen and serving rooms are all that can be desired. The vessel is fitted with powerful engines and a long range Marconi system of telegraphing in addition to semaphore signalling from the bridge.

In 1913 the "Empress of Asia" made a voyage around the world arriving at Victoria on August 30th and bringing with her many South Africans. All were delighted with the trip. During the war this vessel performed notable work for the Allies. One of her most interesting trips connected with the war period was in January, 1919. Starting from Liverpool on January 2nd with 1,500 soldiers returning from the war to British Columbia, she came through the Panama Canal, arriving at Victoria on January 24th. On the way the vessel was greeted with enthusiasm at every port of call, and the soldiers who returned to Canada on this trip have a thousand happy recollections of this Empress of the seas.

WEDDING BELLS

ZEIHR—TREMAIN.

A very pretty wedding took place yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, 80 Victoria Avenue, when Miss Eva May Catherine Tremain and Mr. William Andrew Zeihr were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by the Rev. Jas. Rollins, in the presence of immediate relatives and friends.

The bride, charmingly attired in navy satin, entered the drawing-room on the arm of her father, to the strains of the Wedding March, played by Mrs. Stanley Richardson, and the ceremony took place under a beautiful arch of daisies. After a dainty repast, the young couple left for a trip to Orillia and Barrie, after which they will reside in Peterborough. The bride's travelling costume was of navy, with petal hat to match. A feature of the ceremony was the signing of the register by Mrs. T. Thornton and Mr. Will Tremain, who acted as bridesmaid and groomsman for the wedding of the bride's mother.

McNICHOL—BROPHY.

White peonies and roses in pink decorated the altar in St. Stephen's church this morning for the weddingof Miss Margaret Helen Brophy, daughter of Mrs. Helen Brophy, and Mr. John Gladstone McNichol, of Detroit, formerly of Peterborough, with nuptial mass celebrated at the hour of eight by Rev. Father Doughran, of Emmett, with Rev. Father Cullinane, of Detroit, and Rev. Father Brennan as assisting priests. This wedding, one of the most interesting of the June affairs, was attended by a large assemblage of relatives and friends of the young people.

Miss Brophy was appealing in a girlish dress of cream net over satin with wide ribbon sash. Her hat was a becoming model of white Georgette and her flowers white roses, gardenias and orchids. She was attended by her sister, Miss Irene Brophy, who was charming in orchid Georgette with black picture hat and wearing a corsage of pink roses and sweet-peas. Mrs. Helen Brophy, the bride's mother, was in blue taffeta and Georgette. The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Charles Brophy, and the wedding march from Lohengrin was played by Miss Marion Fitzgerald, as the bridal party entered and Mendelssohn's upon the departure. Mr. McCarthy, of Chelsea, was the groom's attendant.

Mr. and Mrs. McNichol went away by automobile to Detroit, the bride wearing a suit of blue and a matching hat. They will go east by boat and upon their return will reside at 263 Belmont avenue, Detroit, where a home is in readiness. Mr. McNichol is engaged in business in Detroit and it is in that city the bride has been living for the past few years.— The Port Huron Times-Herald.

FRANKS—BOATE

A quite but very pretty wedding took place Wednesday afternoon, June 22, at 4 o'clock at St. James Church, Emily, when Christina Isabelle, (Tena) eldest daughter of Mrs. Boate and the Late George Boate, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Wilbert Earnest Franks, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Franks of Peterboro the Rev. E. R. James of Omemee officiating.

The bride who was unattended was given away by her Uncle, Mr. Robert Boate. She wore a taupe embroidered suit, black mohair hat and Fitch fur and carried a shower boquet of Ophelia and sweetheart roses she entered the church to the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs. Ross Boate. The church was beautifully decorated with daisies and roses. During the signing of the register Miss Beatrice Milburn cousin of the bride, sang "I Love You Truly." The young couple left amid showers of confetti on the 5.40 train for Toronto and Niagara, and on their return will be at home to their friends at 762 Water St. Peterboro after July 15.

BANNON—DIXON.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Luke's church yesterday, when Gertrude Mae, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Dixon, of Harvey street, was united in marriage to John Otto Bannon, eldest son of Mr. John Bannon and the late Mrs. Bannon, of Emily. The bride was charmingly attired in ivory satin with picture hat and carried pink and white roses. She wore the groom's gift, a gold wrist watch. The bridesmaids were Miss Alice Davis, in costume of blue serge and georgette, with hat to match, and Mrs. Geo. Stevenson, in brown silk and brown hat. A very dainty wedding supper was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John McLean, relatives of the bride, after which the happy couple left for their future home in Emily, the bride wearing peacock blue poplin suit and hat of the same shade.

PETTY—HOPKINS

Trinity church was tastefully decorated yesterday for the wedding at 1.30 of Miss Alta Ietitia Hopkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins, Rubidge Street, to Lancelet Gerald Petty, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Petty, John Street. The bride beautifully gowned in pale pink georgette with embroidered veil caught by orange blossoms, and carrying Ophelia roses, entered the church on the arm of her father.

Her sister, Miss Sadie Hopkins, wearing mauve organdie, with hat to match, acted as bridesmaid, and Mr. W. Faulkner supported the groom. Miss Mary Hopkins, of Toronto, made a charming flower-girl. Mr and Mrs. Petty left on the 3.50 C. P. R. train for Toronto the bride travelling in navy tricotine suit with black hat.

MUSIC AND HUMOR IN CHAUTAUQUA'S OPENING NIGHT

HERBERT LEON COPE SAYS GOD-GIVEN LAUGHTER IS A QUALITY OF THE SOUL.

The Dominion Chautauqua opened its week here yesterday with a good attendance, both afternoon and evening. The afternoon session was occupied by opening remarks from the superintendent, and with a high-class concert of instrumental and vocal numbers by the Zedeler Symphonic Quintette.

This group of talented musicians, composed of piano, 'cello, first and second violin, and a specially constructed reed organ, which gave some pleasing symphonic effects, also entertained in the evening. Their programme included solos, duets, and quartettes for the stringed instruments, with Rachmaninoff's "Prelude" and two movements from Rossini's "William Tell," the 'cello having the solo in the latter, in a beautiful rendition of the reposeful introduction, with a strong, martial ending.

The musical numbers, and Miss Betty Booth's strong, sweet voice in vocal selections were heartily encored.

Mr. Herbert Leon Cope, "the funniest man since Bill Nye," kept his audience laughing from start to finish of his mirth-provoking address. Mr. Cope certainly has a way with him, and a fund of anecdote and witty stories.

"God-given laughter is a soul quality," he said, "and should be cultivated the same as the rest of our spiritual gifts," and "no matter what you are or who you are, you can have an equal amount of fun anywhere." "If you are on the lookout for a good time, you can have it anywhere, but if you are watching for trouble, you will find great gobs of it on every street corner."

The people who are suffering from "dislocation of the mazuma and inflammation of the belladonna," who will give you an "organ recital" at any time of the day or night, the grouchy man whose breakfast does not suit him or whose wife has accepted an unwelcome invitation, the farmer who wasn't disappointed at a bad crop, because he hadn't expected anything better anyway, the continual talk of the good old times which weren't good times at all, but exceedingly bad times, the girl who says "I haven't a decent thing to wear, and is perfectly right, so far as the styles go," all received humorous attention from the speaker, who declared he wouldn't change places with King Solomon in all his glory, who had never seen one-tenth of the wonders he might view if he paid a visit "to this tent to-night."

To-night's programme will include an entertainment of fun and music by little Alice Louise Shrode, and an animal play by Jamahasika's famous pets.

The 57th Band gave a fine programme of music at the Park last evening, from 7 o'clock to 7.45.

NORTH TAKING TOLL IN RUSH TO OIL FIELDS

REPORTS OF DEATHS EN ROUTE TO FORT NORMAN BEGIN TO SEEP THROUGH TO PEACE RIVER.

PEACE RIVER, Alta., June 24.—(Canadian Press.)—The long journey to the Fort Norman oil fields has at last begun to take its toll of human life, according to reports just reaching here on the arrival of the steamer D. A. Thomas. These reports were received by passengers connected with the lower river boats at the Chutes and are very meagre in detail.

The three Bayes brothers left here about April 20 last, bound for Fort Norman via Vermillion and the Upper Hay river. As far as can be learned two of the brothers were drowned, while a third succeeded in making the shore clinging to an upturned canoe. Further rumors are to the effect that the man accompanying them was drowned.

The two brothers were married men and left their families at Carcajoul.

The news was also brought of the drowning between Fort Vermillion and the Chutes of a man named Wiggins, who with three others were floating down stream to their camp at Spruce Point.

ST. JOHN'S CHORISTERS AT BURLEIGH FALLS

RECORD FOR IDEAL PICNIC WEATHER UNBROKEN STILL.

For many years past the annual choir holiday of St. John's choristers has been favoured with splendid weather, and yesterday was no exception, as the record remains unbroken.

A happy party, numbering upwards of one hundred and ten choristers and invited friends boarded the steamer "Stoney Lake" at 7.30 a.m. and sailed away to Burleigh Falls. Mrs. Darcy had prepared a splendid dinner and placed the fine hotel entirely at the disposal of the trippers, and thoroughly deserved the hearty thanks extended to her by all the party.

After spending about three hours in dining, fishing bathing and strolling round picturesque Burleigh, all aboard sounded out and the return commenced. At 5.30 Mr. and Mrs. Charles Coleman served a dainty supper, including sandwiches, cake, salad, strawberries and ice cream, which had been prepared in the city and carefully packed on the boat. Mr. Coleman has had charge of this important section of the day for many years and thoroughly deserved the kind expressions of appreciation heard on all sides.

A brief stay was made at Young's Point, where races for the choristers were held, and all who ran received a prize.

The hearty thanks of the party were extended to the donors of the prizes, Mrs. Ryerson Ritchie, Mr. W. E. Conway, Mr. Robert Fair and Mr. F. W. Miller.

This being the first trip with the choir of the Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave, the choir gave him a hearty reception, which the Vicar cheerily acknowledged, also expressing hearty appreciation of such a pleasant day.

The party was in charge of Mr. H. W. Morphet and Mr. R. J. Devey, and their untiring efforts for the comfort of the whole company were heartily cheered as the steamer neared home, and another day of unalloyed pleasure concluded with the National Anthem.

Captain Scollard and his staff did everything possible to make the day a success. Good and courteous service must surely be their motto.

MAN DROWNED IN SPANISH RIVER BELIEVED TO HAVE RESIDED HERE

The local police have received word from Northern Ontario of the drowning in the Spanish River on Wednesday of James Dickson, whose home is believed to have been in or near Peterborough and are endeavoring to locate his relatives here.

Dickson had been employed for two days by the Cleveland-Sarnia Lumber Company at Munro Siding on the Spanish River, when he was drowned in the Agnes Rapids of that river early Wednesday morning. As he had mentioned that his home was in or near this city the lumber company at once notified the local police, asking them to locate Dickson's relatives and have them write to the company at once.

According to the description given in the information Dickson was about 20 years of age, of fair complexion, face freckled, height 5 feet 9 inches, weight about 140 pounds.

The address of the lumber company which employed him is Munro Siding, via Cartier, Ontario.

Industrial Situation Brightening; Feeling of Confidence Marked

GRADUAL UPWARD SWING OF EMPLOYMENT AND PRODUCTION CONTINUES, WITH CONDITIONS APPROACHING NORMAL.

Although generally the complexion of the industrial situation in this city has not undergone any great change during the month, there is a marked tendency toward brightening. The gradual upward swing in production and employment has continued and in many cases both are at or close to normal. At no time, of course, since the beginning of the period of trade depression, has this city suffered seriously in comparison with other industrial centres, although some local industries have felt the pinch of the falling market, buying strike and tighter money.

Perhaps the improvement is most marked in the textile industry, which was among the most hard hit lines.

In no lines, however, do facts bear out the rumors set in circulation by the calamity howlers and an increased confidence is notable.

CARTOON PRIZES ARE PRESENTED

HOME AND SCHOOL ASSOCIATION OF CENTRAL SCHOOL HOLDS INTERESTING MOVEMENT.

The Home and School Association of the Central School held its final meeting for the season last evening in the Kindergarten. A large attendance of interested parents rewarded the executive of the Association for their efforts in arranging this pleasant evening.

Mr. R. F. Downey, principal of the school presided. A short but highly interesting programme was rendered. Special mention must be made of Mrs. Park's excellent solos, and of Mr. Joseph Nasimok's violin solos. Mr. Nasimok is an ex-pupil of the school.

Another very interesting feature was the presentation of the Cartoon prizes awarded by the Ontario Safety League, and of ten prizes to the best pupil in each grade, presented by the Home and School Association for faithful and efficient work in the school during the year.

As the names of the Cartoon prize winners have already appeared in the press no further mention will be made of them. The other winners are as follows:

Margaret Denne, Senior IV.
Georgina Lackey was also remembered because of her excellent standing in Senior IV.
Leslie Trevor, Junior IV.
Geraldine Lasher, Senior III.
Grace Burns, Junior III.
Helen Turner, Junior III.
Lizzie McKinley, Senior II.
Isabel Pogue, Junior II.
Harold Sage, Senior Bk. I.
Beatrice Pooley, Junior Bk. I.

Mr .A. Mowat, B.A., Inspector of Schools, presented the above valuable prizes. Following this he gave a very stimulating address on the schools of Buffalo and pointed out some places where Peterboro's schools could well afford to take a lesson from the leaders in Education across the line.

The ladies then served ice cream and cake.

The singing of God Save the King brought this interesting evening to a close.

DIED ON TRAIN.

LINDSAY, June 24. — Mrs. Robt. Avery of Toronto, died suddenly on the Lindsay-Whitby train yesterday morning. Boarding the cars at Prince Albert, accompanied by her little daughter, she was shortly afterwards seized with sudden illness and in spite of all possible aid given by Conductor Thompson and the passengers, almost instantaneous death followed before High Point was reached. TRAIN WRECKED BY SINN FEIN MINE

BELFAST, June 24.—(Canadian Press.)—A troop train conveying soldiers from Belfast to Dublin was wrecked to-day at Abertoyle, near Dundalk, by the explosion of a Sinn Fein land mine. Two soldiers and one of the train guards were killed and many others were wounded.

Two special trains with soldiers and horses, who had participated in the reception of King George and Queen Mary at Belafst had passed over safely. The third train was wrecked at a steep embankment when the mine exploded, most of the carriages falling over the embankment. Physicians were immediately rushed to the scene.

DENY DEVALERA WAS ARRESTED

CROWN FORCES HAVE NO INTENTION OF DETAINING HIM, IT IS SAID—DISORDERS IN CORK.

DUBLIN, June 24.—Famonn De Valera, Republican leader, was arrested Wednesday night near this city and later released, it was definitely established to-day. There had been earlier denials from Sinn Fein authorities that he had been apprehended.

DUBLIN, June 24. — (Canadian Press.)— Reports that Eamonn De Valera was arrested near here Wednesday night were denied here today. It was said there was no intention on the part of the Crown forces to arrest him.

CORK, June 24. — (Canadian Press.)— The police barracks were bombed and there was general street fighting in this city last night, one woman being killed, and three girls and three men wounded. The disorderes began at about seven o'clock, when Sinn Feiners in a motor threw a bomb at the Tuckey street police station and another at the barracks nearby. The Snadon street and Douglas Place barracks were also bombed, but there was little damage done to them.

The casualties occurred in the subsequent fusillades between police and Sinn Feiners. In consequence of the disturbances all persons are ordered to remain in their homes after eight in the evening instead of ten as heretofore.

YEOTES ON THE TOBOGGAN

If you smoke; you'll appreciate the bargain snaps being offered at Louis Yeotes tobacco stores. All prices are on the "toboggan"-sliding down, to get back to old conditions, before the war. This big cigar and pipe sale will save smokers a whole lot of money. As the prices mean a reduction of one-half and one third off in various lines. Yeotes buys everything in the tobacco line at rock bottom; and you'll always find that he has the best assorted stock of cigars, pipes, pouches and tobaccos from the best makers.

The brands are standard; and this smashing reduction in prices will be a good time to stock up for the ball games and other holiday events. As even as for camping parties to the lakes, and elsewhere. See advertisement.

MILLBROOK MEMORIAL UNVEILED

HANDSOME CENOTAPH OF ITALIAN MARBLE INSCRIBED WITH NAMES OF CAVAN AND MILLBROOK DEAD.

BIG CROWD PRESENT

(Special o the Examiner)

MILLBROOK, June 24. — The beautiful cenotaph erected by the people of Millbrook and Cavan to the memory of their men who died in the war was unveiled yesterday afternoon by Brigadier General King of Kingston in the presence of an assembly of 2,000 persons from all parts of this district. In the pubic square in front of the town hall this memorial, which is said to be one of the finest in this part of Ontario, raises its white shaft of Italian marble upon a granite base to a height of sixteen feet perpetuating in the chaste stone the names of the thirty-two men who died for King and country and their loved ones at home.

Cavan township contributed twenty-one names to this list of heroes and Millbrook is represented by the remaining eleven. The inscriptions are as follows:

From Millbrook.

T. W. Allen, H. E. Bennewith, W. L. Carveth, R. J. Cochrane, J. C. Campbell, R. J. Huffman, E. J. Hogan, T. G. McCorry, J. R. McBride, W. H. Orr, J. T. Sloan.

From Cavan

C. Bennett A. Ball, T. Dee, N. B. Eliott, N. M. Fair, B. Fisher W. Grist E. Guest, A. Hawkins, E. R. Hodges, A. Hann, J. Hardy, J. Jendin, D. James, G. F. McKnight, F. A. Newton, J. A. Sisson, A. E. Shaw T. Whalley.

An Impressive Ceremony

Prior to the unveiling proper, Brigadier-General King inspected C company of the 40th Northumberland reigment, under the command of Major C. R. Spencer, and the veterans of the war who together formed a guard of honour. Selections were played by the band under the leadership of G. A. Duncan and Sergeant J. Isbister. General King's address at the unveiling was a fine tribute to the men of Cavan and Millbrook and their service in the war. The dedication of the memorial was pronounced by Rev. Canon Allen M. A., whose family name is perpetuated in the community by the sacrifice of his son Thomas Allen.

Reeve W. T. Wood read the names of the Millbrook men and Reeve Harold Baptie of Cavan recited the names that form the imposing list from that township, Rev. S. T. Tucker B.D. offered prayers and passage from Scripture and the ceremony concluded with the singing of the National Anthem. Among the speakers of the afternoon was Mr. T. Staples, M. P. P., The public square facing the town hall was crowded with the throng of people from the nearby communities. The arrangements for the unveiling proceeded smoothly and altogether the occasion enrolled itself in Millbrook's records as one of the most impressive and touching in the memory of the oldest residents.

Relaxation at Park

In the late afternoon and evening the scene moved to the Exhibition grounds where a baseball tournament and the social intercourse of the people brought the day to a close. The Cavan baseball team lost to Carmel by 10 to 6; Mount Pleasant defeated Millbrook by 10 to 5 and in the play off Carmel blanked Mount Pleasant by 6 to 0.

The Ladies Aid of the Methodist church assisted by the Canadian Standard Efficiency Test boys provided supper and also had a refreshment booth from which they received in proceeds $400.

Songs, choruses and exercises by the boys contributed to the evening programme which concluded a memorable day and the patriotic sacrifice of the people of Millbrook and Cavan.

ISSUE WRITS FOR ELECTION IN ALBERTA

DATE SET FOR JULY 18---PREMIER STEWART PLEDGES FIRST ATTENTION TO AGRICULTURE IF RETURNED.

EDMONTON, June 24.—(Canadian Press).—In a general statement last night, reviewing the legislation and policy of his Government after the issuing of writs calling for a general election on July 18, Premier E. C. Stewart said that the promotion of agriculture in Alberta would be the first thought of the Government if returned to power. For educational matters, Premier Stewart said that in the past three years' grants had increased to two million and a half dollars. There are four thousand schools operating in the Province now. Premier Stewart also pledged to make a determined effort to limit the Government's financial ability to build up and maintain adequate system of roads in all parts of the Province.

CONFERENCE AT PIGEON CREEK

VICTORIA AND PETERBORO COUNTIES TAKE STEPS TOWARD REPLACING PIGEON CREEK BRIDGE.

In the hope that a plan may be reached to rebuild Pigeon Creek, members of Peterborough County Council, Victoria County Council, and Peterborough City Council are gathering on the banks of the much-discussed channel this afternoon for a general conflab which residents of both counties interested in the progress of the community may hope will end in some action.

As it is now, the route from Peterborough to Bobcaygeon is lengthened 10 miles by not having the bridge and vice versa. The effect of this situation is that business that formerly came to Peterborough from Victoria County does not prevail now, and Bobcaygeon also suffers in not securing a share of Ennismore's trade.

In the name of progress, in the opening up of the tourist trade in this district, citizens and residents of the county all hope for speedy action in replacing a connecting link between Victoria and Peterborough Counties.

MEDICINE HAT EXCITED.

Much Interest Taken in Important By-Election There.

MEDICINE HAT, Alta., June 22.—In the huge federal constituency of Medicine Hat, which measures 192 miles by 77 miles, an important by-election is being contested by Col. Nelson Spencer, candidate of the National Liberal and Conservative party, and Robert Gardiner, candidate of the United Farmers of Alberta. Polling day is on June 27. It is estimated that there are about 15,000 voters in the constituency, of whom about one-third are in Medicine Hat City, and the population is somewhat cosmopolitan, with a considerable number of Scandinavians and Russo-Germans. There is a good deal of speculation concerning the outcome, and both candidates are confident of success. The Liberal and Labor parties are not putting representatives in the field. The candidates are carrying on energetic campaigns, addressing public meetings and building up organizations as complete as is possible under the circumstances.

FINANCE COMMITTEE ALSO RECOMMENDS GRANT OF $1,000 TO SALVATION ARMY AND $100 TO PLOWMEN.

The Finance Committee of the County Council, afte hearing various deputations yesterday afternoon, decided on and recommended the following grants to the Council, which will discuss them to-morrow morning:

Peterborough City and County Citizens' Memorial Fund, 2,000; Salvation Army, $1,000; Ploughmen's Association, $100.

The committee was addressed by Judge Huycke, Rev. C. J. Phelan, G. H. Thompson, W. G. Morrow, R. Denne, and others on behalf of the Memorial Fund, and the members of the committee unanimously supported a grant to this cause.

The Ploughmen's Association asked for $200, but were cut to $100.

No action was taken on the suggestion of the City Council that the County pay a part of the maintenance of Victoria Park, and the Nevy League were not given any grant this year.

No decision was reached on the grant to the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, which the officers and directors who formed the deputation asked to be $2,000. The usual grants were given to the county agricultural societies. Otonabee, Lakefield, and Galway each got $75.00, and East Peterborough Agricultural Society were given $175. Lakefield appealed for a grant of $300, but did not succeed in securing it.

The Finance Committee further decided to take no action in the claim of the school inspectors for higher expense allowances.

This committee have to consider if it is worth $3,200 to have the acoustics of the Courtroom righted. J. A. Bradley, of Toronto, representing the Johns-Manville Co., spoke to the Council yesterday afternoon, and gave $3,200 as the cost of roughly lining the walls with asbestos as he outlined would be necessary to hold the sound and eliminate all reflections. Simllar improvements had been made to the Toronto and the Ottawa Parliament Buildings by his company, he said.

The matter was shelved on to the Finance Committee for their consideration.

STATUS OF JEWS POINT IN CASE

COUNSEL ARGUES HEBREW PROTESTANT BEFORE THE LAW.

TORONTO, June 24.—(Canadian Press).—Acting for Isadore Goldstein, salesman and manager, T. H. Lennox, K.C., this morning applied to Justice Kelly for custody of two infant children who are living with their mother, Mrs. Goldstein, after seven years' married life, in the home of her mother-in-law, left on the birth of the second child and has since lived with her parents.

The husband and father declared that when married there had been an agreement that the children should be brought up in the Hebrew faith. The mother's lawyer declared that the religious question did not enter into it at all, though the father is a Jew and the mother a Gentile.

"Both are Protestants," said counsel for Mr. Goldstein. "The law recognizes the religious element only where one party is a Roman Catholic and the other Protestant. In this case both are Protestants, and the religion does not arise in any way."

Judgment was reserved.

A NEW VIEW OF BALDNESS

It Comes From Cutting the Hair Too Short When Young, Says an Expert.

An ever-increasing number of young men—very young men—are on the road to premature baldness, said a scalp specialist in New York recently, who comes in contact in a business way with enough heads, bald and otherwise, to form an opinion on the subject. Once a man has become bald he has little chance of recovering his hair. While in the early stages of baldness, it is sometimes possible to save the hair through proper treatment, but it is better to prevent it from falling out, says this expert.

Heredity, constant wearing of hats, and all the other offered reasons for baldness in men he brushes aside and brings the crime home to the close cutting of the hair in early years, resulting in the weakening of the muscular system of the scalp, or, more exactly, its failure to grow strong enough to carry a goodly crop of hair. The muscular system of the scalp, with girls, he points out, is accustomed to carry from twenty to thirty inches of hair, because the hair is left uncut.

"During the period of development a boy's hair should be kept as long as possible, and the boy who wears his hair four or five inches long all around his head in early years, and avoids quick and violent changes of temperature to his scalp when he is between the ages of eighteen and twenty-eight need have no fear of ever getting bald.

"Ano her habit in boys and young men which later results in baldness is that of dousing the head under the cold water tap at every opportunity. The shock this gives the thousands of delicate follicles below the scalp are often sharp enough to throw them out of action temporarily. The heated scalp is loose and expanded. The sudden shock means a contraction of the tiny tissues which often results in their breaking. These tissues are really supply channels and if they are out of action, the hair bulbs miss their supply and become reduced in size, and then it is an easy matter for them to slip out of their follicles.

"Proper treatment to prevent baldness is simply to let the boy's hair grow strong by strengthening the organization which carries it. Very foolishly in the case of boys, we relieve the scalp of all its work in early years, by cutting the hair short. Consequently the muscular system develops only sufficiently to carry the inch or two of hair for which it has been trained. With girls, however the muscular system is accustomed to carry from twenty to thirty inches of hair because the hair is left uncut."

The man who is entirely bald, or who has a confirmed "bald spot," will ask what is the matter with the inch or two of hair named as the limit which is poorly instructed scalp's muscular system was trained to carry? Who wants a foot or two of hair where his bald now is?

Three hundred men who were working on the Smethwick housing scheme went on strike because the contractors refused to guarantee a 44-hour week.

NEW CRAZE IN GOLF TEAM WORK.

Fad Has Become Vastly Popular in England.

Team golf!

It's the new summertime game—and is great sport!

English golfers have taken it up and when it gets a fair tryout in America, is sure to be a hit here.

The average golfer sets forth on the course with five clubs in his bag—driver, brassie, midiron, mashie and putter.

The same clubs—or more, if desired—are used in team golf The only difference in play that is every club has its individual player. Take the five-man team as an example.

Player number one carries a driver and his only shots are made from the tee. Player number two uses a midiron and player number three a brassie. They get their turns on the open fairway, between tee and green. Player number four totes a mashie, and he shoots only when this club is needed for an approach shot, or to play out of a rut or from the rough. The last player carries the putter and he does the green work and holing out.

One of the five men is named captain, and he decides, according to the lay of the ball, who shall shoot.

Under the rules of team golf, a match between two sets of five players is a cracking good game of chance. One player may be off his game, while another may be good enough to make up for it.

In connection with team golf, the United States has five real stars who would likely constitute a champion outfit.

Jim Barnes, noted professional, is one of the longest drivers in the game. He would make a bully first man. For the brassie it would be wise to call upon Alexa Stirling, American woman golf champion, and for the midiron play it would be hard to find a better distance and direction golfer than Bobbie Jones, the Atlanta demon.

Francis Ouimet, former American golf champion, wields a wonderful mashie and would fit in nicely as the fourth player. To fill out the team any picker would turn to Chick Evans as the putter.

WILL LOAN AIRSHIPS FOR FOREST PATROL.

Lighter-Than-Air Machines To Be Tried Out.

OTTAWA, June 14.—The value of lighter-than-air aircraft for forestry patrol and similar work in Canada, will, it is expected, be demonstrated during the present flying season by several Canadian lumbering firms working in co-operation with the Canadian Air Board. By the loaning of lighter-than-air equipment to firms desirous of carrying out experiments during the summer, the Air Board hopes to develop the use of this class of air machine in Canada.

In the gift of aircraft received by Canada from the Mother Country at the close of the war, there were a number of lighter-than-air machines, equipped with 100 horse-power Rolls-Royce engines. None of these has been used yet in Canada, and it is feared that if they are kept in storage they will deteriorate and become useless.

The machines are to be loaned to Canadian companies who guarantee to the board that they will be able to give them a thorough try-out. The Air Board protects itself by securing a bond for the actual cost to Canada of the machine and equipment, and will advise the companies on any difficulties which may arise as the operation of the machine is proceeded with.

One pulp and paper company, operating in the Lake of the Woods area, has already made application for a lighter-than-air machine and mechanics are working at Camp Borden packing the first machine for shipment. Two or three other tentative applications have also been received, and the Air Board has some eight complete machines for distribution, which it is expected to have in operation in different parts of the Dominion during the year.

Some of the aircraft included in those to be loaned out are equipped with double engines, and the others are of the single-engine type. They have a gas-carrying capacity sufficient to propel them for sixteen hours.

BOBBED HAIR IS ON DECLINE

By MRS. J. E. LESLIE.

There's always something about a girl's dress to disturb the world. If it isn't heels, it's hair. Now somebody's trying to construe bobbed hair into something immoral. We have to laugh.

A girl's hair is her own. Why she can't wear it as she pleases without rousing the resentment and criticism of other folks, is one of the unanswered problems. May be the critic has something just as peculiar about his personality—it usually is a "him" makes the fuss.

Any girl who has once worn her hair bobbed, always gazes back at it as one of the happy times in her life. (Know, 'cause I did it myself once.) The joy of getting up in the morning and running a comb through her locks without the bother and discomfort of pins is something to look back at. Course it helps remarkably to have curly hair. Would hesitate to advise a girl to bob it if it wasn't, 'cause it takes so much time to care for it.

But the freedom of it, the feel of the wind blowing through, it the ease of caring for it, are considerations as far from the moral—or immoral—one accorded the girl who bobs her hair, as the Atlantic from the Pacific.

And it looks pretty, too—'spose that is where the moralists' problem comes in—funny how moralists are always finding something immoral, where none is intended.

The girl with the boyish hair—an' 'tisn't boyish either—never thought of any moral side to her act—nor definitely of being unconventional—just comfortable and that it would be becoming. There is nothing unfeminine in it.' The most feminine motives are back of the shears that clip the long locks.

If folks would only let the girls alone and have confidence in them that there is nothing but girlishness back of their queer little notions, there would not be so many questions of what is moral and what isn't.

But anyway, the style of bobbing the hair is dying a natural death—as all such styles do—and it will soon be necessary for the moralist to find a new one for discussion.

CLIMATE 61 YEARS AGO.

Contrasting the climate of this district with what it used to be years ago, J. H. Walford, Renfrew, recalls the fact that on May 19th, 1860, there was held the funeral of the late J. L. McDougall, father of the man who afterward became auditor-general at Ottawa. The Renfrew cemetery those days was where the Separate school now stands and on the occasion referred to the depressions in the surface of the ground where filled with snow and ice and the mourners shivered in overcoats and other winter apparel.—Renfrew Exchange.

When Chief Officer Harry Hall, of the Windsor Fire Brigade and Miss Pounsford were married, they were taken from the church on the fire engine.

The employees of the Miller and Co. Foundry Edinburgh have contributed £1,750 for the provision of music in the parks and gardens of Edinburgh and Leith during the summer.

Startling Charges Are Made at Investigation Toronto Police Court

ALLEGE INTERPRETER OFFERED TO "GET ACCUSED OFF" WITH SMALL FINE FOR MONEY—TELL OF "DRUNKEN BRAWLS" AT SAME INTERPRETER'S HOME, ATTENDED BY POLICE OFFICIALS AND DETECTIVES.

TORONTO, June 24. — (Canadian Press.) Witnesses yesterday at the judicial inquiry into police court matters ,gave some startling testimony.

One said that an interpreter, Elia Markowitz, had asked him for some money for getting him off with a small fine, and that he gave him $40. Markowitz said he should have received $100, and that he would "do something" against him.

This same witness said he had been in Markowitz's house, and had seen bottles on the table, but no drinking. He had seen at the place J. W. Seymour Corley, the former Crown Attorney.

Two girls living next door to Markowitz testified to noisy parties at his place, which one of them described as "drunken brawls." One of these girls testified to seeing detectives at the place, and that she had seen officers in uniform having to be helped out of the front door last September.

Three or four detectives were named by witnesses, and it is likely they will be called to give testimony.

PETERBORO LACROSSE JUNIORS DEFEATED CAMPBELLFORD 12-3

YOUNGSTERS DISPLAYED GOOD FORM IN THEIR FIRST GAME—FAST, CLEAN LACROSSE BUT ATTENDANCE SMALL.

Peterborough's junior lacrosse team defeated Campbellford juniors at Riverside Park on Thursday afternoon by the score of 12 goals to 3 in a game that just about removed the last doubts about the rebirth of Canada's national pastime in this district. The result was decidedly heartening to the boys themselves and also to the promoters of lacrosse in Peterborough, who have been struggling against all the discouragements that have kept lacrosse in the background in this province during the last decade. Johnnie Sutheruand's youngsters demonstrated that they have already learned most of the rudments of the game and that the yare eager to improve themselves on the fine points that will come with experience:

Most of them had never played lacrosse prior to this season. In fact they had seen only a few games, and but one or two of them had ever lined up in a league fixture. They have been practising on Central Park for six weeks under conditions that did not conduce to rapid individual development and to team play, except in the few practices they had with the itnermediate. But they have picked up the elements quickly and they are keen for the game which pessimists have been trying to keep buried. As the season advances they will undoubtedly smooth of some of the rough spots in their play and amply justify the confidence the club members have felt since the boys started to get under way late in the season.

Campbellford started off with a rush yesterday, scoring the first goal in three minutes. That swift attack shook the local youngsters on to their feet and from then on the defense smothered the Trent home field while Peterborough's home and centre cut loose with eight goals in a row before Campbellford beat Lou Lebar again. The score scarcely does justice to the visiting team, for they had a large share of the play, but they were ineffective in the tight spots at both ends of the field. They probably averaged more in weight than the Peterborough boys, but there wasn't much apparent difference in weight. They had considerable speed and also handled their sticks well, but they lacked the goal-getting system that got Peterborough's string of gaol. The teams were as follows:

A Fine Start.

The juniors made a decidedly good impression in their first lacrosse. Young Lou Lebarr handled himself well in goal, made a lot of clever stops, and cleared nicely. Ward Johnston and Eddie Foley made a great pair in front of the net, and with Johnston and O'Connell comprised a defence that checked closely, and showed a lot of good judgment. Johnston, Lionel Brown and Ranger worked in centre field for the first half and set up a pace that was gruelling under that mid-summer sun. They followed the play in good style and fed the home neatly. Killoran, Mein and Rosenfield, with Miller substituting, made a shifty home that bothered the sturdy Campbellford defense all afternoon. Jack Killoran displayed splendid form in stick-handling and in his methods around the net. Mein is a neat youngster who has everything but weight and lots of time to get that. Rosenfield is another clever boy and Miller also looked good from the side. Jimmy Lawson subbed on the defense and helped materially in breaking up many a Campbellford rush. In fact the defense tickled the few old timers who turned out to look the youngsters over.

Stewart in goal for Campbellford had a lively session and was far better than the score suggests. Some of the shots he stopped were right at him and with no one in front. The local youngsetrs will get wise to the swift art of making a good goalkeeper look helpless when experience teaches them not to shoot straight at the man's breatst pad. Lebrash looked to be about the best of the Campbellford lads, but Hankinson and Nicholls were also good.

Fred Goodfellow handled the game more than satisfactorily. He seemed so anxious to give the visiting team what is called a square deal that some of the local youngsters were inclined to be peevish on one or two occasions. If he was strict it was on the right side, and neither team tried to get away with anything. If Peterborough gets the same treatment in Campbellford they couldn't want more.

MAN GETS RING IF ENGAGEMENT BREAKS

NEW YORK, June 24.—When both parties, by mutual consent, break an engagement to marry, the man is entitled to the engagement ring, if he wants it, Judge Rulif V. Lawrence decided. The ruling was in the suit of Richard Rogers, Trenton, against Mrs. Thomas T. Lane, Ocean Grove, N. J.

When the United States entered the war Rogers was engaged to Mrs. Lane, then Miss Myrtle Loson, a school teacher at Ocean Grove. When Rogers went into the army the engagement was broken by mutual consent. Later he wrote from France asking for a return of the ring. Miss Loson agreed but changed her mind.

Lawyers said the decision is probably the first in English or American law on the point.

Third Attempt to Rob Officials of Imperial Bank Ends in Failure

HOLD-UP MEN CHOSE GROUND OF LAST TUESDAY'S BATTLE BUT FLED ON APPROACH OF CARS FILLED WITH ARMED MEN.

BOLTON, Ont., June 24.—(Canadian Press.)—For the third time within a week an attempt was made yesterday to rob officials of the Imperial bank. The hold-up men chose the ground of last Tuesday's battle to stage the highway robbery, but the bank party was forewarned and forearmed. The bandits fled at their approach.

On Tuesday bandits waited for the bankers at the foot of the hill leading down to the little wayside station of Cedar Mills. Yesterday they were on the top of the hill, one on each side of the road. But when three automobiles, all filled with men, were seen escorting the cash box to the Palgrave bank, the bandits fled terror stricken.

They were pursued to a neighboring woods and the bush was surrounded. The whole countryside armed and joined in the search. A cordon of fifty men encircled the woods, but only once were the bandits sighted.

DEVALERA ARRESTED; IS LATER RELEASED

LONDON, June 24.— (Canadian Press.)— The Daily Express learns through its Dublin correspondent that President Eamonn De Valera, of the "Irish Republic,' was arrested last night. He was released this morning, no charge having been preferred against him. It was stated that a slight disturbance occurred in the street. A young man intervened, and the police who hurried up, discovered that he was De Valera.

The Daily Telegraph states that documents which were found in the possession of De Valera were sent to the Irish office in London for examination. The arrest of the Irish leader was made at Blackrock.

The recording angel doubtless has to keep a special set of books in which to record secrets women do not keep.

Know-ledge

I used to think I knew I knew,
But now I must confess,
The more I know I know I know
I know I know the less.

"Through Hardships To The Stars"

THERE is a fine old family motto, "Per Ardua Ad Astra"—"Through Hardships to the Stars."

Only a person of vision could have created such a motto. Only a family with an ideal could have lived up to it.

IT seems to be a "Law of the Universe" that all human success demands sacrifice.

No institution worth while is ever developed without someone going "Through Hardships to the Stars."

The higher the ideal the more keen the sacrifice is likely to be.

THE founders of the Mutual Life of Canada had before them a very high ideal—"Service to the Canadian Nation."

They did not seek financial success for themselves, for they founded a life insurance company without capital. They wished to build an institution that would be of more than ordinary service to the people of Canada.

To achieve success without capital required superhuman efforts in the early years. By the inspiration of a fine ideal the founders were led through hardships—were called upon to practice severe economies and make great sacrifices.

ON the foundation that they so bravely laid has been reared a super-structure that is a magnificent tribute to them and of great value to the people of Canada.

Because of the sacrifices of the founders, the people of Canada can secure life insurance on the mutual principle—insurance at cost.

EVERY policyholder in the Mutual Life becomes a part proprietor. All the profits belong to the participating policyholders. To-day the Mutual Life provides protection for 84,000 families at a minimum cost and without paying dividends on any invested capital.

Keep before you that fine old motto, "Through Hardships to the Stars", and you will feel inspired to sacrifice and economize yourself in order to carry the full amount of Mutual life insurance your family would actually need if you should pass away.

"SWAT" THE WEEDS.

Chief Newhall's warning to the owners of vacant lots in the city that they must not allow their property to be overrun with noxious weeds is one that will be applauded by the public. There is a city by-law which calls for the removal of such weeds, and Chief Newhall has very properly decided to enforce it. The appearance of many streets is spoiled by lots overgrown with rank weeds, their desolate aspect detracting from the beauty of the well-kept lawns and pretty flower beds on adjoining premises. And an even more annoying feature is that the seed from these weeds is carried to nearby property and lawns are damaged as a result. The Police Department will have the endorsation of the majority of citizens if they enter proceedings against property owners who neglect to obey the warnings that have been given and who continue to allow their property to be an eye-sore and a nuisance. Peterborough is a city noted for its beautiful trees and its well-kept lawns and gardens. It would be a pity if the efforts of those who have spared neither trouble or expense in the beautifying of their homes were to be continually negatived by the carelessness of other citizens.

OFF WITH THE COATS.

A well-known local citizen yesterday suggested to The Examiner the advisability of advocating a go-without-your-coat campaign for the men of Peterborough during the hot weather. There is much to be said in favour of the idea. Men are slaves to convention. They may ridicule, more or less, discreetly the faithfulness with which women obey Fashion's dictates, but, nevertheless, they themselves are every bit as bad. Because it is the custom to wear a coat the majority of them swelter in garments that are unnecessary, and, in many cases, far from artistic. Business and professional men are the worst offenders. To the outward eye, at least, they are garbed in these days of hectic heat exactly as they were in January—minus the overcoats, of course. Our pioneer, along the pathway of rational clothes for men, asks his fellow citizens to be sensible—and thereby be cool. Off with the coats is his advice, and emancipated from the thralls of convention let Peterborough's mankind go about its business comfortably and unheatedly. The Examiner passes the suggestion on to its readers with whatever weight its approval may carry. The scheme is sensible and feasible; let us make it fashionable, and we'll all be cooler and better men.

BOIL THE WATER.

Justification for the erection of a filtration plant in connection with the local waterworks system is again furnished by the appearance of a published warning from Dr. T. W. H. Young, Medical Officer of Health, advising the public to boil all water for drinking purposes until further notice. The notice means that Peterborough's water supply, which was fairly clear during the winter months and early this spring, is once more contaminated to such an extent as to be considered unsafe. The advice of the Medical Officer of Health should not be disregarded, for the precaution of boiling the water is a simple and effective safeguard. True, many citizens ignored a similar warning last year and escaped with no unpleasant consequences, but they took chances, nevertheless, and should not do so again. Nor is the water from wells to be depended upon unless there is absolute certainty as to its purity. It has been found that in many cases such water was polluted to much greater extent than the water from the city's mains, and a number of cases of typhoid last year were traced to the use of water from an East City well. Until the "all clear" signal is given the people of Peterborough should be guided by the advice of the man who is responsible for the health of the community. That advice is, "Boil the water."

A SERIOUS MATTER.

With that misguided conception of what constitutes genuine fun that distinguishes a certain type of individual, some person sent The Examiner the other day what appeared to be an authentic announcement of the engagement of a local girl. The notice bore the signature of the girl's father, and the instructions were that he was to be charged with the cost of publishing the announcement. It now turns out that there is no engagement, and that the signature of the father was forged in order to ensure publication of the false notice.

The small-souled person who was guilty of this miserable trick no doubt believes that he has been successful in perpetrating a capital joke. In reality, however, he has committed an offence that may result in a Police Court case. Leaving on one side the distress and annoyance caused to the parties mentioned in the pseudo notice—and that is a serious enough matter—the guilty person should realise that forgery is a crime for which there are heavy penalties provided.

The Examiner, in order to protect itself and its readers from impositions of this kind, will exert every effort to discover the identity of the individual responsible; and at the same time warns other people who may be tempted to try an experiment of this nature that they may find the attempt a costly one.

It all depends who discovers these new heavenly bodies. An astronomer who does so is applauded by the scientific world, but a newspaper man who announced a similar discovery would be suspected of having had a fresh shipment from Montreal.

AT THE AGE OF 65.

Under the advice of the Civil Service Commission at Ottawa, arrangements are being made for the retirement of a large number of officials who are above 65 years of age. Within limitations the move is a good one. But it may easily be carried too far. There is need of much caution in this matter, in justice to the officials and in justice to public.

Abuses that had occurred under the old superannuation system led some years ago to the abolition of the system, as respects new appointments. Men in the service who had contributed to the superannuation fund were properly held to have acquired rights that must be respected. So the old system continued as respects these officials. But for the men appointed to the Civil Service since 1897 there was no such provision. A "Retirement Fund" was created, which was simply a compulsory savings account, a small sum being deducted from the official's salary and placed to his credit, to be paid to him with interest on his retirement, or to his legal representatives in case of death.

The abuses that had occurred under the old superannuation system were held by many to justify its abolition, and when that new law was enacted it was no doubt a popular measure. But experience has not shown that it was a wise one. The so-called "Retirement Fund," the compulsory savings fund, did not provide enough to enable an old official to retire in respectable comfort. No Government was so hard-hearted as to turn our old officials under these circumstances. So, many officials whose services ceased to be efficient were retained in office.

A year ago, to meet these cases, a temporary measure was passed, making a moderate pension allowance for officials above 65 years of age, whose services are no longer useful. It is understood that the question of a general return to the old age pension system is receiving attention and that in all probability a bill for that purpose will be brought forward at an early session. In the meantime, under the temporary measure of which we have spoken, the necessary steps are being taken to retire a large number of officials throughout the Dominion.

If the authorities are careful to see that the law is made to operate only where the official is no longer able to do useful work, the public service will be the better for what is being done. Caution is required, however, because the age of 65 years is by no means presumptive evidence of inefficiency. There are many officials above that age who are in every way qualified for carrying on their work. When health and strength are retained their age gives assurance of experience that is valuable.

The Kingston Standard, assuming, perhaps too hastily, that there is to be a general discharge of the men above 65, points out that not only in the public service but in the walks of private life, men of much more than 65 are doing most important work to-day. A long list of names mentioned by The Standard shows that in Parliament, in the judiciary, in the banking, railway, and industrial world, and in the church organisations, men of more than 65 have been and many still are taking active and efficient parts in the affairs of Canada.

The Standard, we think, is in error in supposing that there is to be a general clearing out of the men above 65 in the Civil Service. There must certainly be a process of selection, which will retain the services of many men who, while advanced in years, are better qualified for their work than younger men would be. —Journal of Commerce.

LADS TO BE HANDCUFFED MAKE THEIR ESCAPE

LINDSAY, June 22. — Two lads, Bryan and Ryan, who were accused of stealing D. As they were about to be handcuffed they made a bolt for liberty, nad have not been seen since.

NO CUT IN POWER RATES FOR THIS CITY

Peterborough is not included in the recent reduction in power costs put into effect by the Hydro-electric Power Commission; in fact, no municipality within the Central Ontario system is benefited by this lowing of tariff. The reductions elsewhere range from ten to thirty per cent., the larger cuts, as a rule, being to the smaller places, where an increase in power consumption has been relatively greater than in the bigger centres.

LAKEFIELD NEWS

LAKEFIELD, June 24.—As the time draws near for the regatta enthusiasm has grown till it has reached a high pitch. From all accounts, the surrounding districts regard July 1st as Lakefield's day this year, and so it is. Let every citizen hang out a flag, and let that flag stand for loyalty to our town as well as our great Dominion. The man or woman who is not loyal to their home town is not loyal to their country. Canada and Lakefield need boosters, no knockers.

Another silver cup has been promised for one of the events, the donor being Mr. H. G. Fitzgerald.

Mr. R. A. Hirsch and Mr. R. L. Mason are very busy arranging details as to the course for the regatta, starters and all other necessary details. And they are not the only busy people, for the young folks and children are practicing for the races, and some surprising entries are being planned.

Loyal citizens will be at home on Dominion Day to make the town attractive to visitors.

A rest-room in some central place where women with small children could enjoy a rest and older folks sit down in comfort would be a valuable asset to the village.

The day will be a very full one as the sports don't keep union hours.

Social Doings.

Mr. Harold Bickell of Peterborough is visiting Mr. and Mrs. E. Bickell.

Mr. and Mrs. Braden Blewett were at Burleigh Falls on Sunday.

Mr. E. A. Tanner of Toronto motored to the village on Tuesday.

Mr .F. J. McFadden of Peterborough is managing the Dickson store during the week while Mr. Arthur Burrows takes his holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Bickell spent Wednesday in Peterborough with friends.

Among the Lakefield people who attended the unveiling of the Warsaw memorial on Tuesday were:—Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Charlton, Miss Cora Charlton, Mrs. Theodore Crawford, Mr. and Mrs. H. Ingram, Mr. and Mrs. W. Garbutt, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Abbott, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Smith, Miss Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Norish, Mr. and Mrs. H. Bullock and family, Mrs. Chant, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Cullen, Miss Cullen, Mr. Robert Bullock, Mr. George Hendren, Miss Ray, Mr. R. M. Graham, Mr. Robert Duff, Mr. Clarence Duff, Mrs. A. Quinn, Miss Mary Quinn, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson Braden, Rev. and Mrs. P. L. Jull and children, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Lake and family, Mr. and Mrs. E. Bickell, Mrs. Nathan Payne, Mrs. McMillan, Mrs. Gillman, Mr. and Mrs. Max Kidd, Mrs. (Dr.) Smith, Mr. Roland Payne.

Miss Montgomery of Toronto and Mrs. Forney of Charlotte, N. C., who have been visiting Mrs. T. Jenkin, returned home on Wednesday.

The first social on the newly sodded Town Hall grounds will be given on Saturday evening under the direction of the Ladies' Guild of the Presbyterian Church.

FARM CONDITIONS

The following is a summary of reports made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

Fall wheat is now showing a good head, and fair yields are looked for in most sections, although the straw is rather short. Middlesex complains that smut is showing where the seed was untreated.

Spring grains are doing well; some barley and spring wheat are heading out.

Clover is generally regarded as promising only a light return. Several Representatives report early cutting of the hay crop.

Haldimand describes alsike as being short in straw but having a heavy bloom.

Haldimand also states that more alfalfa seeding has been done this spring than in the last two or three years.

Huron and Haldimand report that sweet clover and alfalfa are giving excellent results in the cutting.

Corn is making rapid growth at present, although much of it was put in late.

Essex says that a considerable acreage of tobacco has been reset on account of the dry weather.

Several Representatives speak of the heavy drop of apples during the last three weeks.

Potatoes and roots have been freely planted in Huron during the last week or two.

York reports mangels to be looking well, and some thinning has been done.

The advance in the price of hogs has been the market surprise of the week. Prices quoted at the weekend were from $10.25 to $12 a cwt., compared with $8 to $8.50 in the preceding week. There appears to be a shortage of young pigs, as many farmers have practically gone out of the hog business.

Cattle have not been doing as well as formerly on pasture, although the milk flow has fallen off but little. Prices of milk are not very encouraging to diarymen, from $1.14 to $1.25 a cwt. being paid at some factories and from 24c to 27c a lb. for butter fat at creameries. Butter is selling at 20c a lb. in Manitoulin.

Cheese ranged in price at the weekend at from 14⅛c to 16¼c a lb. Lanark claims that more cheese is being made than at the same time last year.

At a recent auction sale in Leeds, ordinary dairy cattle brought only from $25 to $50 each.

The Ontario County Representative states that the market for horses is better than it has been for some time.

Prescott and Russell observes that more tramps are to be seen on the rural roads than for some years past, some of whom appear to be looking for work.

The following remarks of the Ontario Representative regarding labor conditions fairly describe the general situation:

"Farm labor is still needed in many cases, but farmers do not feel inclined to pay the wages asked in view of present prices. The general wage for experienced or partly experienced men seems to be from $30 to $40 a month with board. I know of one case, however, where a young man is putting in his third season and is getting $60 a month and board for eight months, with the use of a horse."

The Ideal Laxative for Children

Mothers, give the little ones Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin for constipation. Acts mildly and gently. Formula on the package.

THE alert mother, ever anxious to find something better for her children's health, will interest herself in learning what is best to give them when they are constipated, have a headache, cold or fever, are bilious or dyspeptic. It stands to reason that the remedy that might be suitable for you, at your age, might be too drastic for a child.

By all means do what you can to regulate the diet, giving preference to the light, easily digested foods. But when diet fails you will have to help Nature with medicine. It would then be well for you to avoid the harsher cathartics and physics, castor oil, calomel and such, even if disguised in tablets or pills, for they weaken the child and make it irritable.

A better plan is to give half a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin. It acts mildly and gently and does not gripe or weaken. It has the unusual merit of being safe for the tiniest baby yet equally effective for grownups. The formula is plainly on the package, and a sixty-cent bottle is sufficient to last an average family many months.

There is nothing better or safer than Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin for stomach, liver and bowel troubles, and as it contains no narcotics or mercurials, mothers can feel safe in giving it to any member of the family needing a constipation medicine. It is syrupy and delightfully pleasant to take. It must meet the taste of the majority, for last year over eight million bottles were bought in drug stores, the largest sale of the kind in the world.

Buy a sixty-cent bottle today with the understanding that if for any reason it does not do exactly as claimed your money will be refunded. Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin has been on sale in drug stores for thirty years so you would not be experimenting with anything new.

Try It FREE

There are heads of families who will want to prove to their own satisfaction that my Laxative Syrup Pepsin is as effective in constipation, as mild and gentle in action, as plensant-tasting and safe, as I claim. Let such write me for a sample. It will be sent postpaid. Simply say, "Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 19 Front St., Bridgeburg, Ont.: Send a free trial bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin to—" and give your name and address. I will see that the rest is attended to promptly.

CANADA'S NEW HEAD

BYNG OF VIMY, OF CAMBRAI FAME, IDOLIZED BY CANADIAN TROOPS

(New York Times.)

Byng of Cambrai has been named Governor-General of Canada.

Many times during the war this renowned leader commanded Canadians and led them to victory. They learned to know him first when, as commander of the Canadian Army Corps, he sent them forward to the conquest of Vimy Ridge. Later, Canadians were with him in the "Battle of the Tanks" before Cambrai, his most famous victory. Byng it was who inspired Canadians, and others under his command to such unyielding resistance at Arras, the "elbow" of the British line in 1918, that he frustrated Ludendorff's plan of a complete break through and paved the way for the decisive victories of the summer and autumn of that year.

Always in the war, Byng was the idol of his Canadians—which augurs well for his success as Governor-General of their native land.

Though General Sir Julian Byng became, as a result of his victories, Baron Byng of Vimy, in allusion to the storming of Vimy Ridge by the troops under his command, it is as "Byng of Cambrai" that most people will remember him. For the "Battle of the Tanks" caught the imagination of the world. During the war the British maintained a rigid policy of not making mention of their generals except in the rarest cases; only now and then did the names of individual Britons emerge from the fog of anonymity which surrounded the doings of the British Armies fighting in France. Everybody heard of the blowing up and storming of the Messines Ridge, but how many knew of General Plumer. Not until his spectacular victories in Palestine did Allenby come into his own, yet he had done excellent service in the war from the very first days of the retreat from Mons as one of the "Old Contemptibles."

Byng Famous Over Night.

So it was with Byng. While the world rang with the storming of Vimy Ridge, the name of the man who directed the great attack remained in the background. But Cambrai made Byng famous. On that November morning in 1917, when his squads of tanks burst upon the stupefied Germans, and led an advance which almost gave the British the much-coveted city of Cambrai itself, his name leaped to the headlines of newspapers everywhere. Already famous among his fellow-officers, and beloved by his men, Cambrai gave him a place as one of the popular heroes of the war.

His appointment to the important post of Governor-General of Canada comes at a time when Canada needs to be handled with gloves. Many Canadians are "fed up," as the Britons say, with British lords, who are lords and nothing else. Talk to many a Canadian, and he will tell you that, despite the unquestioned loyalty of Canada to Britain, she has been galled too often in the past by having English noblemen "dumped" upon her—younger sons and the like — who have come to consider Canada and other far-away domains of the Empire as their particular preserves, where it is the duty of the natives to provide them with a livelihood.

Now, Byng of Cambrai is a lord, but not that kind of a lord. He is the son of an earl, but that is about the only distinction which he has not earned in his own efforts. He has been in the British Army practically all his life. He is covered with war medals. He has the unbounded love of his troops. No, Byng of Cambrai is not the kind of lord to whom Canadians object. He ought to make good in Canada.

He belongs to the "new school" in the British Army. He is a strict disciplinarian. Those under him have to mind their p's and q's, keep their buttons shiny. Always he has been a stickler for efficiency. Byng inspired, it is said, 'Colonel Rendezvous" in H. G. Wells' "Mr. Britling Sees It Through," a character who always harped on the necessity for the strictest discipline among soldiers.

Leader in "New School."

The new Canadian Governor-General's full name before he became Baron Byng of Vimy was Sir Julian Hedworth George Byng. He was born 11th September, 1862, the seventh son of the second Earl of Strafford. He early entered the British Army, receiving a commission in the Tenth Hussars. First he served with them in the Soudan during the campaign of 1884, and then throughout the Boer War, in the course of which he became Colonel of his regiment. In both of these wars he won medals and had the satisfaction, during the second one, of seeing his name mentioned in despatches. After commanding his Hussar regiment from 1902 to 1904, he was appointed head of the Cavalry School at Netheravon on Salisbury Plain. In 1909 he was raised to the rank of Major-General, and in 1914 he became General of Division.

At Netheravon, Byng began to be known as one of the leading apostles of the "new" school of the British Army. He and those who shared his beliefs went in for discipline of the most rigid sort. They drilled their men incessantly. Life was just one parade after another. Gone were the picturesqueness, the easy-going ways that characterised the old-time British soldier of the type made immortal by Kipling, with his Mulvaney, Ortheris, and Learoyd. Outsiders caught by the glamour of that kind of soldiering, were contemptuous of Byng and the "new" school, but he just plugged ahead. One of those sharing his views, by the way, was Sir Douglas Haig. Since August, 1914, most of the critics of the "new school" have piped another tune.

At the outbreak of the Great War Byng went ovr to the Continent with Byng went over to the Continent with the first British Expeditionary Force. "The First Hundred Thousand" and 'Old Contemptibles." Placed in command of the Third Cavalry Division of that body, he fought splendidly before Ypres, helping cover the retreat of Sir John French's Army from before Mons to the vicinity of Paris, where they helped win the victory of the Marne.

Sir John French was eloquent in his praise for the work of Byng and his indefatigable troopers. In one despatch he recorded that these troops "were repeatedly called upon to restore situations at critical points and fill gaps in the line caused by the tremendous losses which occurred."

In 1915 Byng was sent to the Dardanelles, where he took part in those attempts to drive the Turks from their defences which turned out so badly for the Allies. Returning to the Western front, he was appointed in 1916 to the command of the Canadian Corps. He subjected his Canadians to the most rigid form of the training in which he so firmly believed. The task of disciplining Canadian was no sinecure. Accustomed to the freer life of this hemisphere, many of them coming straight from the woods and mountains of Manitoba and Alberta and Saskatchewan, they had never felt the bit of discipline, knew little of obedience. But Byng was well aware of the kind of test that lay before them, and drilled them until all their rawness was gone. His methods bore splendid fruit. The Canadians fought on the Somme with superb courage, and it was they who, under the leadership of Byng, stormed Vimy Ridge in the spring of 1917, winning one of the most brilliant victories of the whole war.

With the Tanks at Cambrai.

When General Allenby was sent to Egypt in the spring of 1917, Byng succeeded him as commander of the British Third Army. In November of the same year he leaped into fame as Byng of Cambrai, when his troops —led by squads of battle tanks— drove deep into the German lines before the city of that name in Northern France, taking thousands of prisoners, almost capturing the city itself, and threatening the entire German position in France. Byng's name resounded throughout the world after Cambrai. To be sure, the Germans struck back a few days after Byng's advance and reoccupied some of the ground lost, but they recovered nowhere near what Byng's men had won. In recognition of his distinguished services in this Battle of the Tanks, Byng was promoted immediately after it to the rank of General.

Byng's Third Army was posted around Arras when Ludendorff made his supreme bid for victory in the early spring of 1918. The main German blow fell upon the British Fifth Army before St. Quentin, commanded by Sir Hubert Gough, which was almost wiped out by the furious impact of the enemy. Byng's Army was immediately to the left of Gough's force, and the defeat of the latter made Byng's position precarious in the extreme. But he held his ground. Had Arras fallen, as did St. Quentin and Peronne and Bapaume, the result might have been utterly disastrous, since, in all probability, it would have meant the fall of Amiens, the key position of the entire Allied line in Northern France. Even as it was, conditions were serious enough in those March days of 1918, when the American armies were not yet in the field in large force, the Allied cause was shaken to its foundations by the desperate lunge of the Germans.

Against Byng the Germans again and again hurled masses of men, hoping to sweep his army away further to the east, but they met a stone wall defence. Though the enemy penetrated far to the south of the town, they were absolutely unable to take it; the Arras "elbow" remained stuck into the side of the salient which Ludendorff's great attack created, a constant menace to the safety of the new German line.

Arras stayed in British hands to the very end. When the final great Allied offensive came, which, under the supreme leadership of Foch, pounded all the resistance out of the Germans and made them sue for peace, Byng was in the forefront of battle. Following the great forward drive of the British around Montdidier on 8th August, which Ludendorff in his war book called "the black day" for Germany, Byng's Third Army, thrusting forward from the Arras "elbow" got into the fight again with a vengeance, penetrating deep into the enemy's lines along the Ancre River. Again tanks played an important part in the Cambrai drive nine months before.

He is of Handsome Appearance.

In appearance Byng is every inch a soldier—tall, spare, with piercing eyes. Writing of him after a visit to the front during the war, Lord Northcliffe said: "Sir Julian is a big, well-made man, with strong jaws, strong ears, and a strong walk, distinctly handsome, with dark blue eyes." One of his officers, just after the Cambrai tank battle, said of Byng: 'He has never been a gallery player at all, yet with his Third Army he has led one of the most sensational surprise attacks of the war."

The wife of the new Governor-General of Canada was, before her marriage, Miss Evelyn Moreton, well known in England as a novelist. His grandfather, the first Earl of Strafford, was a British Field-Marshal, and his great-grandfather, Admiral Byng, is known to history because of his ill-starred naval campaign of Minorca, as a result of which he was court-martialed and shot. It was this treatment of Byng by the British which caused Voltaire to remark ironically that he was shot "to encourage the others."

INSURANCE VOLUME WELL SUSTAINED.

TORONTO, June 22. — One of the larger Canadian insurance companies finds that the volume of business being written at present measures up fairly well as compared with last year. There is not the same amount of large policies, but there are a great many more small policies placed than in previous years. It is thus indicated that the life insurance man has to work harder to make up his quota, but that this is being accomplished fairly well considering the circumstances of the times.

The policies involving single thousands, twos and fives, predominate in greater degree than usual. The big business of the last two years is not so prominent.

SCOTCH SUPERIORITY.

Ex-President Wilson, talking one day at a dinner about his Scottish descent, said:

"The Scotch are a proud, stiff-necked people. They ackowledge no superiors. A Scotchman and an American were talking one day on a ship.

"'In New York,' said the American, 'we've certainly got a fine lot of young men.'

"'Nae doot,' said the Scotchman 'A lot of our laddies have been emigratin' lately.'

"The American frowned and thought a while. Then he said in a sarcastic voice:

"'George Washington was no Scotchman, and he couldn't tell a lie.'

"'Ou, aye,' the Scot retorted. 'A Scotchman could, but he wouldn't.'"

Work for the Blind

(12)

ONCE, not long ago, they sat in their tragic darkness, pathetically idle and plunged in self-pity—the blind men, women and children of Canada.

To-day, thanks to the splendid efforts of a group of untiring Canadians, and to this Institute, an ever-growing number of the blind of Canada have found happiness and a new interest in life.

We have taught them in their homes to make all manner of articles of reed, wicker and willow work, mats, netting, garments, etc. From us they buy at cost the materials needed. We then buy the finished article from the blind Home-worker and sell it to the public at the same price.

In many cases their outlook on life has been completely altered. A ray of light has come to them in their darkness. And they are earning money—making themselves an asset, not a liability, to the nation.

Help us in this uplifting work. We need more money, and we turn to you for your generous support.

VARIED PROGRAMME FOR CHAUTAUQUA AUDIENCES

MR. WM. H. STROUT'S ABSORBING ADDRESS A FEATURE YESTERDAY—CHILD ENTERTAINER MAKES CAPITAL IMPRESSION.

Little Alice Louise Shrode, an exceedingly clever child entertainer, was the attraction at the Chautauqua yesterday afernoon and evening. This small lady is most attractive and received much loud applause for her impersonations in an old negro lullaby, the little bisque doll with "a pain in her sawdust" and a numerous other dainty little numbers. She has a peculiar quality of voice which causes every word to be plainly articulated, and a charming, unaffecteed manner. Her whistling, unaffected manner. Her whistpassed by anything heard here in some time. Prof. Pamahasika's pets provided the entertainment last evening, with a wonderfully trained group of cats, dogs, a monkey, cockatoos, a trick pony and some gorgeously-coloured parrots The tiny perfectly-trained little pertormers went through various difficult tricks with almost incredible ease and with an air of proud assurance which was particularly noticeable in the strutting white cockaoos in the final battle-scene, when they scaled tiny ladders, fired off guns and raised and lowered the flag with surprising agility.

Yesterday afternoon, Mr. Wm. H. Stout, president of the International Lyceum and Chautauqua Association, delivered a most absorbing and interesting address on "Seeing Life Whole". Prefacing his talk with Addisons famous saying that 'only that man becomes famous who contributes something towards the well-being of the time in which he lives", Mr. Stout remarked that the true purpose of education is to enable the student to do some one thing with joy and efficiency, and also to remember that while the who has found his true work has found the pathway to Heaven", the true meaning of life is not bound up absolutely with work. As Garfield said "what the American people do with their leisure time of any one individual will determine to a great extent the future of that individual. As the man who works to the exclusion of leisure will not be successful, so he who plays only will be in worse case, for the man of leisure with no future vision will perish, as surely as those nations without vision have perished from the face of the earth. To learn to do one hing with joy and efficiency, to get the most of leisure possble out of life and to stick to his job, to articulate with life and well-being, is the lesson for the child of to-day. "The limit of any man's education," said the speaker, "is his ability to concentrate his attention for a set period of time on an object of his own volition," and, while an ardent admirer of the public school system, having taught in American public schools for ten years, Mr. Stout averred that the public school system had fallen down in one important particular, that of giving attention to the moral and spiritual development of the student. Leadership from men and women of the proper calibre, and above all, for the rising generation, a knowedge of the English language, were advocated by the speaker, who quoted the old Methodist minister in saying, "it is an obligation of the family to give the child a new word each day."

"The only difference between a grave and a groove is in the depth," said Mr. Stout, in reference to the attitude of almost 90% of most communities in regard to innovations in civic improvements, public health, good roads, etc. and advocated as remedies for the "groove "ailment, the maintenance of sound common sense, and of a fine and genuine interest in the people outside one's own circle, saying "I would rather know the first names of all the people attending a University than all the Latin and Greek that university had to offer." Courage, the motive power in human intercourse humor, and great vision were suggested by the speaker as necessities for success in life, with a following out of the great fundamental principles of the Saviour of men.

DISCOVER COPPER STILL AND MASH

AUTHORITIES RAID HOUSE NEAR PORT HOPE.

PORT HOPE, June 25.—License Inspector Gooderich and Chief Colwill when out "still hunting" discovered a real modern still, two barrels of mash and everything necessary for the manufacture of whiskey. This important find was made in an old frame dwelling on the farm owned by Mr. Wallace, Toronto Road, formerly the property of Mr. J. W. Walker, Bloomsgrove avenue. The house is situated about a half a mile from Mr. Wallace's residence and was rented by two men from Toronto on May 24th. When renting the house one of the tenants told Mr. Wallace that his wife was ill and he was anxious to have her spend a few months in the country. They paid a month's rent in advance and have lived very much to themselves ever since.

There was very little furniture in the house and it was evident that the occupants devoted most of their time manufacturing the forbidden beverage. In addition to the two barrels of mash there was a large quantity of wheat, rye and prunes and License Inspector Gooderich remarked that the men had all a high class brand of whiskey. The still was made of copper and had a capacity of twenty gallons. The whole outfit was taken over by the License Inspector and is now in safe keeping at the bonded wareroom at the post office.

Neither of the men were present when the raid was made and as they are total strangers to that section it is hardly likely that an arrest will be made.

LONDON BANKER GETS FOUR-YEAR SENTENCE

BROCKVILLE, June 24.—(Canadian Press.)—The coroner's jury inquiring last night into the death of Dorothy and Phyllis Elliott, burned to death in the destruction of their home, brought in a verdict of accidental death, with a rider commending the father, James F. Elliott, for his efforts in saving the lives of the remaining children.

HERRINGS RECEIVED WITH ROYAL HONORS

Petrograd's Guns Thunder Salute as Dutch Ship Arrives With Big Food Cargo.

RIGA, June 22. —Honors such as are usualy accorded to royalty or to officials of high rank were given the Dutch steamer Alexander Polden when she arrived at Petrograd recently, says the newspaper Izvestia of Moscow. The steamer brought the first large cargo of food that has entered the harbor for about three years, and as she passed Kronstadt she was saluted by the battleship Marat, while Russian sailors lined the decks and cheered. The Dutch captain dipped his colors while the ship's band played, and the vessel steamed directly to the dock and began to unload her cargo of herrings.

With years of starvation at the back of them the workers at the dock, by day and night shifts, unloaded 5,350 barrels of the ship's cargo so swiftly that the next day twenty carloads of herrings were dispatched to Moscow, while the rest was left for distribution in Petrograd. Only the day before the ship arrived Economic Life wrote as follows about Petrograd:

"The fate of the city is so tragic that no comparison can be found in the world's history. The immense mortality of Russia during the last few years may be regarded as far more tragic than the fall of Pompeii.

Since the Aexander Polden made port two more steamers have arrived a Petrograd, carrying 17,000 barrels of herrings, which were quickly unloaded.

LONDON BOROUGH HAS GONE BANKRUPT

UNUSUAL PREDICAMENT OF CONSTITUENCY OF LATE WILL CROOKS.

LONDON, June 23.—London law courts are puzzzled to know how to deal with a municipal borough that has quite frankly gone bankrupt. The borough councillors of Poplar, the poorest of east London and districts find themselves unable to meet the London county council demands for sixty-one thousand pounds to cover the cost of lunatic maintenance, police protection, education and other public services.

In an action before the King's Bench the defendant councillors, among whom George Lansbury, editor of the socialist Daily Herald, is the leading spirit, explained that it had been found necessary to expend on poor relief all the current taxation from local ratepayers, there being one person in every ten of the borough' population unemployed. The borough's only assets were its dust carts and Town Hall furniture, on which the county authorities might, if they choose, levy distress,.

The latter body is placed in an awkward predicament. If Poplar is permitted to escape payment, several other London boroughs with labor councils are ready to declare themselves similarly insolvent and the whole machinery of municipal government in London will be thrown into hopeless confusion.

The proceedings simply resulted in a court order for Poplar to pay. Failure to comply will render the councillors liable to attachment for contempt. Notice of an appeal was given and the main action in the case, which is being closely followed by the public, will be fought in the higher court.

FREIGHT RATES WILL FOLLOW WAGES DOWN

Railway Commission Watching Negotiations With Employes.

OTTAWA, June 24.—Freight rates will follow wages down just at about the same rate as retail prices follow the cost of raw products. The Railway Commission is naturally watching with interest the efforts of the railway companies to reduce wages and the result of negotiations which come to a head on July 1st will have much to do with the action which the commission will take in the matter of amending existing rate schedules. Whatever the result may be, however, the board wil undoubtedly permit a period of "readjustment" before ordering a cut in rates.

In July 1st increased passenger rates go back to normal. Pullman rates remain at their present level, and no change in existing freight rates is due. It is claimed that under existing freight rates Canada is being split into a series of zones and that in certain cases traffic is being driven north and south, even in the face of duty and exchange. The live stock industry, for instance, is said to be on the point of ruin.

Nevertheless, it is predicted that rates will not follow wages downward immediately, but that a period of "reconstruction" will be allowed.

In the meantime the hearing on the projected enquiry into discriminatory rates is hanging fire.

BULLET IN HIS HEAD 35 YEARS IS REMOVED

Recovered Patient Will Make Watch Charm of It.

NEW YORK, June 24.—John Inman, Westchester County, will wear as a watch charm the 32-calibre bullet he had carried 35 years at the base of his skull. The bullet was removed recently in an operation.

Thirty-five years ago, when Inman was 15 years old, a friend showing him a new revolver accidentally touched the trigger. The revolver was discharged and a spurt of blood appeared on Inman's left cheek.

The doctor was unable to find any trace of the bullet, and as it never caused Inman any trouble it was never extracted.

Then recently he began to suffer from rheumatism, general debility, and sore throat. Dr. Zacherie immediately began a search for the bullet, locating it after half a day by the aid of an electric bulb placed in Inman's throat. It revealed a small black spot to the right of Inman's left tonsil.

Dr. Zacherie said the bullet had entered Inman's left cheek underneath the eye, just missing the internal carotid artery and imbedding itself in a bone at the base of the brain. Dr. Zacherie said if the bullet had hit the internal carotid artery it would have meant instant death.

MODERN, UP-TO-DATE RE PAIR DEPARTMENT.

FOR FISHERMEN

As the old saying goes, "If you want to start an argument, pick a subject you don't know anything about." So here goes. Have fish feeling and do they suffer pain?

This subject has been discussed from time immemorial and yet each side of the controversy is satisfied that it is right. Frankly, I don't know, although I have my own beliefs.

What is the opinion of the readers of The Examiner?

Here is one by a fisherman of some prominence and old enough to speak from experience.

Says he: "Several years ago while trout fishing, I had a friend with me who while trying out a particularly good hole, had a strike that snapped off his leader. Of course, he lost the fish. We were using worm bait. I was following him down stream and in 10 minutes arrived at the same spot and after a cast or two succeeded in landing a trout of about 10 inches, and to my surprise found that I had hooked the same fish lost by my friend a few moments before. Hanging from his mouth was about two feet of leader and the hook; a number 2 sneck had gone completely through the roof of the mouth and the centre of the eyeball; the barb of the hook protruding about one-third of an inch beyond the eye; yet with this serious wound this fish had taken my bait. It strikes me that an animal of any kind with nerves and such a wound would have suffered untold agony. Not so with this fish. He evidently used his remaining good eye to search for more food with utter disregard to his damaged condition and possibly without suffering pain.

"Again, while trolling for pike, I landed an eight pounder. From the ventral fin extending up the back a piece of flesh six inches long and two and one half inches wide, was torn off and was hanging to his under parts by a few shreds, leaving exposed the backbone and intestines. Still, with this terrible wound, the fish had taken my spoon. Later I discovered that unodubtedly this fish had been struck with a spear the night before but was still as eager to search for food as at any time in his life."

This gives rise to the question: Have fish feeling and do they experience pain?

What do you think?

HATFIELD BEHIND RAIN SCHEDULE.

Farmers Near Medicine Hat Doubtful of Rainmakers.

MEDICINE HAT, June 24.—While not getting as much precipitation as he expected this month, "Rainmaker" Hatfield states he is satisfied with the result of his operations here since the first of May. He claims he will bring another inch of rain before the end of the month, and three inches during next month. Since May 1st the rainfall has registered 2½ inches and compares favorably with three previous years, the figures for the two months in each years being 1919, 1.90; in 1918, 1.60; in 1917, 2 inches. In the year 1916, however, the precipitation was very heavy, 7.8 inches being registered for May and June.

Under his contract "Rainmaker" Hatfield does not get any credit for the first two inches of rain, but is to receive $2,000 an inch up to four inches, $8,000 being the maximum amount he can get. Thus the half inch of rain already recorded over two inches entitles him to $1,000, and if another 1½ inches fall by the end of June he will collect the maximum amount.

The farmers are divided in their opinions of the rainmaker. When early in May and until the middle of the month the rainfall was ample for crop requirements they were enthusiastic in his favor. But as the month went on and June came and the rain clouds passed over without yielding the needed moisture their fervor waned. Heavy rain over the whole district on June 16th renewed their faith. At present, although the voice of the doubter can be heard in the land, they look hopefully for the rain that must come within the next ten days in order to produce a harvest after four years of crop failures.

As to Hatfield, no one who has spoken to him can doubt that the man is absolutely convinced that his operations will do what he claims for them. Whether he is mistaken or not he is sincere. He disclaims being a rainmaker. All that he says he does is to precipitate the moisture passing over.

SWEETHEART'S FAITH GAVE US TELEPHONE.

Had Girl Not Urged Him, Bell Would Never Have Exhibited Invention.

How Dom Pedro, emperor of Brazil, spoke the word that brought respectful consideration to the telephone the unknown device of an obscure teacher, when shown for the first time at the Philadelphia exposition of 1876, is told in Power Plant Engineering, Chicago, by F. H. Sweet.

The Centennial exposition in Philadelphia opened its doors exactly two months after the telephone had learned to talk.

Mr. Sweet goes on to say:

"Bell had no intention of going to the Centennial himself. He was too poor. For his three or four years of inventing he had received nothing as yet—nothing but his patent.

"But one Friday afternoon, toward the end of June, when his sweetheart, Mabel Hubbard, was taking the train for the Centennial, and he went to the depot to say good-bye. Here Miss Hubbard learned for the first time that Bell was not to go. She coaxed and pleaded without effect. Then as the train was starting, leaving Bell on the platform, the affectionate young girl could no longer control her feelings and was overcome by a passion of tears. At this the susceptible Bell, without ticket or baggage, dashed after the moving train and sprang aboard.

"As it happened, this impromptu trip to the Centennial proved to be one of the most timely acts of his life. On the following Sunday afternoon the judges were to make a special tour of inspection, and Mr. Hubbard, after much trouble, had obtained a promise that they would spend a few minutes examining Bell's telephone. By this time it had been on exhibition for more than six weeks without attracting the serious attention of everybody.

"When Sunday afternoon arrived Bell was at his little table, nervous, yet confident. But hour after hour went by, and the judges did not arrive. They had many wonders to examine. First was the electric light, and the first grain binder, and the musical telegraph of Elisha Gray, and the marvelous exhibit of printing photographs shown by the Western Union Company.

"By the time they came to Bell's table every man in the party was hot, tired and hungry. One took up a telephone receiver, looked at it blankly, and put it down again. He did not even place it to his ear. Another judge made a slighting remark which raised a laugh at Bell's expense. Then a most marvelous thing happened—such an incident as would make a chapter in The Arabian Nights' Entertainments.

"Accompanied by his wife, the Empress Theresa, and by a bevy of courtiers, the emperor of Brazil, Dom Pedro de Alcantara, walked into the room, advanced with both hands outstretched to the bewildered Bell and exclaimed, 'Prof. Bell, I am delighted to see you again.'

"The judges at once forgot the heat and the fatigue and the hunger. Who was this young inventor, with the pale complexion and the black eyes, that he should be the friend of the emperor? For this moment even Bell himself had forgotten that Dom Pedro had once visited Bell's class of deaf mutes at Boston university.

"A wire had been strung from one end of the room to the other, and while Bell went to the transmitter, Dom Pedro took up the receiver and placed it to his ear. It was a moment of tense expectancy. The emperor, with a dramatic gesture, raised his head from the receiver and exclaimed with a look of amaze: ment: 'My God—it talks!'

"Next came to the receiver the oldest scientist in the group, the venerable Joseph Henry, whose encouragement to Bell had been so timely. One of the bystanders said nobody could forget the look of awe that came into his face as he heard the iron disk talking with a human voice.

"Then came William Thomson, later known as Lord Kelvin. It was fitting that he should have been there, for he was the foremost electrical scientist at that time in the world and had been engineer to the first Atlantic cable. He listened, then had his wife placed at the other end of the wire, to be sure, and learned what even he had not known before, that a solid metallic body could take up from the air all the countless varieties of vibration produced by speech, and that these vibrations could be carried along a wire and reproduced exactly by a second metallic body. He nodded his head solemnly as he rose from the receiver. 'It does speak,' he said emphatically. 'It is the most wonderful thing I have ever seen in America.'

"Henry and Thomson, the great masters of electrical magic, as judges, gave Bell a certificate of award. 'Mr. Bell has achieved a result of transcendant scientific interest,' wrote William Thomson. 'I heard it speak distinctly several sentences. I was astonished and delighted. It is the greatest marvel hitherto achieved by the electric telegraph.

"Thus it happened that the crude little instrument that had been to die into an out-of-the-way c rner became the star of the Centennial—the wonder of wonders"

PASADENA, Cal., June 23. — Marie Prevost, Canadian film star, was the heroine yesterday in a spectacular drowning scene. Miss Prevost was in the water in a bathing scene when the assistant director, Nat Ross, accidentally stumbled and fell into the pool. His head struck the bottom and he became unconscious. King Baggot, director, sprang in to aid him, but in doing so collided with the edge of the pool and sank to the bottom. Ross was rescued by the camera man, and Miss Prevost held King Baggot above water until help arrived. The accident occurred in the swimming pool on the Coffin estate here.

RECENT EXCAVATIONS SHOW POMPEII TO HAVE HAD TWO-STOREY BUILDINGS

Recent excavations at Pompeii give a very different idea of the ancient city and its life, according to Edward Robinson, Director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, who has just returned from a visit there. Those who have seen the previous excavations have a recollection of one-storey buildings, with straight, plain walls in the front. The new excavations, with the work more scientifically done, show that Pompeii was a town of two-storey buildings, with little balconies at the front above picturesque awning-like projections over the store fronts, where large doors opened on to the street. In the gardens at the rear of the houses roots of what must have been good sized trees have been found, the first evidence that the ancient city was provided with trees. The house fronts have been restored; doors and blinds to the stores have been put in place, and in the little gardens in the courts of the houses flower gardens have been set out on their original lines.

The new excavations, which are along the important Strada dell' Abbondanza, had not been opened to the public at the time Mr. Robinson visited Pompeii. One reason for the delay was the difficulty of obtaining a sufficient number of men to act as guards to safeguard the new discoveries. The frescoes on the walls, the contents of the houses, and even some of the excavated bodies have been left where they were found instead of being taken to museums as was the practice in the work of excavation done previously. As the Italian authorities have as yet made no announcement of the discoveries, Mr. Robinson would not discuss the nature of new frescoes, except to say that they are to remain on the buildings where they were originally placed.

Not Half Uncovered.

Previous excavation in Pompeii, not half of which has yet been uncovered, were in the western part of the town. In this part was the Forum, which was the centre of the life of the city. The Strada dell' Abbondanza ran from the Forum to the extreme southeastern corner of the town where the amphitheatre was.

"This excavation is the most interesting part of the ruins," says Mr. Robinson. "The work was begun in 1911 and until quite recently the newly excavated district had not been open to the public. It was to have been opened this Spring. The work is being conducted by the Director of the Museum in Naples, Professor Vittorio Spinazzola, and whereas the earlier excavating was done in a more or less haphazard manner he has brought to the work the most modern processes in excavation and observation of results and has sifted every particle of evidence as the work progressed so that no data should be lost. In that way he has succeeded in recovering much of the original appearance of the old houses, which was lost in the earlier excavations.

"Many years ago the process of pouring plaster in the space occupied by a dead body and thus obtaining a cast was employed by Professor Spinazzola. He has used the same methods with carbonized wood, and in that way has been able to restore the shape of much of the woodwork of the houses. The result is that where the parts of the town uncovered in the earlier excavations are in the condition of the devastated towns in France, only brick and stone walls standing in ruined condition, with the newer methods the models of the framework, doors and shutters of the houses have been reproduced, and the result is a much more life-like appearance of what the town must have been before it was destroyed.

"From two-thirds to three-fourths of the Strada dell' Abbondanza has been excavated, and Professor Spinazzola expects to continue until the whole street is uncovered. Professor Spinazzola has proved that the houses were two-storey structures, while it was previously supposed that Pompeii was a one-storey town, and that the occasional two-storey buildings shown in the old excavations were exceptions. He has also shown that there were little balconies overhanging the street, little loggias opening on the streets, as seen in many Italian towns of today. Most of the houses had shops, with awning-like projections:

Street doors have been restored with the original bronze bolts and locks. He does not replace the wood, but the doors are put up in the plaster casts exactly as they were in the wood.

Shops Had Shutters.

"The new discoveries show that the shops were usually closed on the street fronts by large wooden shutters made of slats which opened and closed like modern blinds. When the shutters were closed they were fastened on the inside with a long bar, in most of the buildings only the front part has been excavated—the shops and the entrance leading into the residences. In many of the shops they found the things that had been on sale. The aim has been to restore the shops as they were before the eruption. There is one interesting little wine shop with a counter facing the street. In this has been preserved a great bronze kettle to heat water to serve with the beverages and the fireplace where it was used. In this shop were numerous drinking cups hanging on the wall. There are shops where various household utensils were sold. In one there were bronze vases of beautiful design. They will all remain where they were discovered.

"Along the streets are little altars built against the houses with the image of some divinity painted on the wall above. On some of these altars are offerings made to the deity. They have been preserved under glass cases. The fronts of many of the houses were elaborately decorated with frescoes. These two will remain where they are instead of being removed to the museum at Naples, as formerly. The character of the houses varies somewhat, but among those so far uncovered the largest and finest have the interior decorated with wall paintings.

"In the interior of many of the houses Professor Spinazzola has discovered, in addition to the central court with the peristyle, a little garden. Some of these are hardly larger than the top of a good-sized table. From the flower designs in the frescoes on the walls he has learned the varieties of the flowers the inhabitants of Pompeii knew and has replanted the gardens with flowers that decorated the beds nearly 2,000 years ago. The resurrected Pompeii before was dead. Professor Spinazzola is making it a living thing."

Satan is willing to let men go to church on Sunday if they will work for him the remainder of the week.

MAGISTRATE LANGLEY RESERVED JUDGMENT IN AUTOMOBILE CASE

HEARING OF CHARGE AGAINST JOHN MACDONALD FOR ALLEGED RECKLESS DRIVING ON CHEMONG ROAD WAS CONCLUDED YESTERDAY.

Judgment in the County Police Court case of John Macdonald, charged with reckless driving on the Chemong Road on Sunday night, when a collision occurred between the Willys-Overland automobile he was driving, which is owned by C. Perry, proprietor of the American Hotel, and a Ford, driven by Harry McKee, at the intersection of the sixth line, was reserved till Saturday morning by Magistrate O. A. Langley, at 6 p.m., yesterday.

Harry McKee, the complainant in the case, was represented by V. J. McElderry, while G. N. Gordon, M. P., appeared for Macdonald.

McKee in his evidence, testified that he was going 10 to 15 miles an hour. He had with him his aunt, Miss Ruth McKee, and his cousin, Evelyn Gillis, in the back seat. He had just left his home to go to church in Bridgenorth, and was driving down the sixth line. Approaching the intersection, he said he did not see the other car coming south till his front wheels were right on the highway. He believed Macdonald would be going 35 or 40 miles an hour. Approaching him on the right, he said the big car veered to the left and the right end of the bumper caught his left front wheel and fender, overturning the car, seriously damaging it.

Examined Locality.

In the afternoon session, following counsels' and magistrate's view of the scene of the accident, the evidence of Mr. McKee was proceeded with.

McKee said he told the defendants he saw their car when they were back at the telephone pole on the road.

Mr. Gordon, cross-examining McKee asked him to mark on the map where the accident occurred.

Mr. McElderry objected to Mr. Gordon marking the map for the witness.

Mr. Gordon declared he "wouldnt take orders" from Mr. McElderry.

Mr. McElderry said he wasn't trying to give orders. He was only entering an objection.

"I don't want you speaking to me in that tone of voice."

"I don't have to take any impudence from you," replied Mr. McElderry.

"Gentlemen! Gentlemen!" appealed His Worship.

This little flurry blew over by Magistrate Langley marking the map where McKee pointed.

Heard no Warning.

Evelyn Gillis, who was sitting on the right side of the back seat, said that just as they were entering the Chemong Road the other car was going full speed. It was going at such a speed it was impossible to steer it straight on the road. It was swerving from one side to the other.

As Miss Gillis had not been formally sworn, Mr. Gordon protested and Miss Gillis was sworn.

When the car approached them it was first on the right, then on the left, then on the right, and it swerved to the left when it struck. Miss Gilliss aid she heard no horn being blown. Miss McKee was injured, witness told Mr. McElderry, and for that reason could not attend the court.

Did Mr. Macdonald say anything to you after the accident?

No.

Witness told Mr. Gordon she did not know whether Mr. McKee blew his horn or not. Miss Gillis said a car coming down the sixth line had to be practically on the Chemong road before a car on the Chemong Road could be seen. Miss Gillis said she thought the speed of McKee's car was 10 miles an hour while she believed the other car was going 35 to 40 miles an hour. Miss Gillis said she was watching for automobiles coming down the Chemong Road, when the yapproached the road.

Harry Archer.

Harry Archer said he was in a buggy with Miss Grant on the Chemong Road last Sunday night.

"When I first saw the Perry car I was 40 yards on the north side of the intersection of the sixth and the Chemong Road. I saw them when they came over the knoll to the north of where I was."

"It is pretty hard to say as to the exact speed, but I am quite satisfied to say it was going 35 if not 40," said the witness, when Mr. McElderry asked him to describe the speed of Perry's car from the time he saw it till it passed him. The car was going down hill, and he believed the tendency would be to increase its speed.

Witness said that he did not see the accident. He heard the report, turned around and saw the smash-up. Continuing, he described the positions of the cars as he saw them.

In cross-examination witness said he was paying al lthe attention to automobiles necessary. He had discussed with Mr. Moore, the speed of the car after the accident, he said. They agreed amongst Miss Grant and the McKees the car was going 35 miles an hour.

Miss Mabel Grant corroborated Mr. Archer's evidence as to the speed of the car. Witness described the crash as a "bang" or a loud "blow-out."

Cross-examined, she said the car was travelling at a terrific rate, but she admitted that she did not remember how fast Mr. Archer was driving. Once, witness said, she had gone 35 miles an hour in a car.

At the scene of the accident, Miss Grant said she heard the speed of the car mentioned, but did not remember Mr. Moore mentioning it.

William Telford.

William Telford, next sworn, who was at the accident shortly after it occurred, said he saw the marks on the road where the Perry car skidded. The marks ran for about 30 feet and cut right across the road from about a foot from the grass on the south side to the north side.

Both the hind wheels showed a mark on the road, witness told Mr. Gordon, in cross-examination. The marks were caused by skidding, not because of travelling through deep dust, he testified. This concluded the case for the Crown.

The Defence.

Edward Freeman, garageman, was called by the defence, and he testi- that if the Willys-Overland had been going 40 miles an. hour it would have gone right through the Ford. A car going 15 miles an hour would push a Ford as McKee's was —4 feet—said Mr. Freeman. Considering all things, witness said that he thought the Perry car would be going 20 or 25 miles an hour.

If he put on the brakes and skidded, witness said he would be going about 15 miles or so. He admitted he would have enouhg impetus at that speed to upset the Ford.

Ald. F. Whithouse testified he saw no marks of skidding on the road.

Defendant's Statement.

John A. Macdonald, defendant, said he was coming into the city to take Mrs. Perry to Chemong. Miss Mae Perry was with him in the front seat of the car. The automobile was not pulling very well but the brakes were in good condition, said Macdonald. Continuing, he said that he expected McKee to stop. Witness said he was going 20 or 25 miles an hour. There was only one spot on the Chemong Road where one can see up the sixth line witness told Mr. McElderry. At this spot he first saw McKee's car. At Mr. McElderry's request witness marked on the map where he first could see a Ford coming down the sixth line. Witness said he thought there was no necessity to blow his horn coming down to the intersection. He did not put his brakes on strong enough to stop the wheels from turning, because, he said, they would brake better. Macdonald said he put on his brakes, and tried to steer around in front, thinking that McKee would stop.

Miss Perry gave evidence next. She said when she passed the buggy she thought that they were going about 22 miles an hour. Miss Perry denied that the car swerved more than once to the left. Macdonald had his clutch and brake in coming down the hill, witness said.

Charles H. Perry testified that McKee claimed their car was going 40 miles an hour at the telephone pole when he was 75 yards up the sixth line after the accident that night. He also swore the car would not go 40 miles an hour in the condition the engine was. He saw no skidding marks, he said.

Harry McKee called in reply denied the statement alleged to have been made by him. What he did say was that the first he saw of the car was at the telephone pole. He did not say anything about his own position.

LADIES! SECRET TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Bring Back Its Color and Lustre With Grandma's Sage Tea Recipe.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While grey, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

RESULTS WERE A GREAT SURPRISE

TOOK TANLAC ONLY THIRTY DAYS TO FREE POWELL OF LONG STANDING TROUBLES.

"It was last summer that I took Tanlac and it fixed me up so fine that to this day I have been in the best of health," said Joseph Powell, well-known decorator and painter, living at 771 Richmond street west, Toronto, Ont.

"I had a chronic case of stomach trouble and for years it had bothered me day in and day out. My appetite was fairly good, that is, I could eat, but it looked like everything turned against me, and the way I suffered was enough to nearly make a fellow quit eating altogether. I was bothered with gas, bloating and heartburn—in fact, my whole system seemed to be affected. I was badly constipated and my complexion turned pale and sallow. My sleep was all broken up and I was completely run down.

"Reading and hearing so much about Tanlac I decided to try it, and the way it built me up took me by surprise. Why, in a little more than a month it straightened me out and I was eating anything I wanted, working better and feeling fine. Tanlac fit my case just like it was made specially for me, and it did the work so well that I haven't had a sign of any of my old troubles since. I can't recommend it strong enough."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by the Warne Drug Co., Ltd., and leading druggists.

IS A DESERTER AND AN ALLEGED THIEF

Gunner Terence St. Claire, declared a deserter from B. Battery, R.C.H.A., Camp Petawawa, is alleged to have taken $250 canteen funds when leaving the camp on Monday. St. Claire is described as being 28 years of age, five feet and four inches in height, fair complexion, blue eyes and light brown hair.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain How To Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, dgestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

GEORGE M. COHAN'S ULTIMATUM FOLLOWED BY DRASTIC ACTION

No Signs Around His Offices That He Intends to Open Theatres in September — Plays Have Been Returned and Three Houses Already Closed on Broadway—Objects to the Union's Activities.

NEW YORK, June 24.—(Canadian Press).—A local theatrical magazine estimates that George M. Cohan's recent announcement that he would never produce another play, netted him nearly thirty feet of publicity in New York City alone. This included one eight-column headline, one rather solemn editorial, a raft of more or less humorous editorial paragraphs and other newspaper space totalling 339 inches, which at average space rates would have cost New York's most picturesque theatrical figure a total of $2,500.

George M. secured all this by merely saying "I'm through."

Cohan's announcement was made several weeks ago, but the question as to whether he really meant it is still the leading controversial topic in theatrical circles. Opinion is varied, ranging from assertion that it was merely a bid for free publicity to a suggestion that Cohan has definitely quit the theatrical business and will be a candidate for the New York mayoralty.

Cohan has made good his threat by closing three shows which he had on Broadway, and it is reported that there is no sign of preparation for the fall season in the Cohan offices, from which sixteen companies were scheduled to start out by September 1. It is said that he has returned a number of plays to the authors and cancelled contracts on others.

It was the Actors' Equity Association which brought from Cohan the announcement that his long career as a theatrical producer was at an end. The Actors' Equity Association, which is merely a polite, professional sounding name for the actors' union, is endeavoring to force the 'closed shop" upon the producers, and leaders of the union intimated to Cohan that members of the Equity would not be allowed to accept engagements in his company if non-members were included in them.

Want Complete Organization.

The labor union element among the actors has made several moves within the past year which clearly indicate that they are out for unionization of the theatrical industry. Under an agreement, which was signed with the Producing Managers' Association at the termination of the theatrical strike two years ago, the Equity is obliged to recognize the "open shop" principle in companies controlled by members of the association. Last winter an effort was made by the Equity leaders to have the Producing Managers' Association oust the Shuberts, and it was generally understood that this was meant for an opening move in a war for the enforcement of the union rule in the theatres of the continent. The supposition was that Equity officials were determined to bring the matter to a show-down and picked on the strongest producing organization in the United States, believing that if they could win a battle with the Shuberts all others would be forced to fall quickly into line.

However, the points in the disnute were settled and the threatened hostilities did not develop.

Cohan is not a member of the Producing Managers' Association and is, therefore, without the protection of the agreement between that organization and the Equity league. Hitherto his companies have been made up of both members and non-members of the Equity without distinction or discrimination, but the new contract forms which the Equity has presented call for the exclusion of all but Equity members. And this, Cohan declares, he will not stand for.

"The Equity seems to be centering its fight on me," he said in a recent interview, explaining his position. "Durng the last few days I have been running up against the Equity shop right along in endeavoring to cast plays for next season. The new agreement that they want me to sign gives the Equity the right to call out any company at any time regardless of the contracts. In other words, the organization is put above the contract—the contract need not be kept unless they want to keep it."

Officials of the Equity have issued a statement in reply. They admit that they are out to prevent the organization of "mixed companies," but argue that there is nothing to prevent non-members coming into the Equity fold and thus becoming eligible.

If the Cohan threat is carried out it will mean that from 800 to 1,000 members of the theatrical profession will have to look elsewhere for jobs, and present indications are that theatrical jobs are going to be particularly scarce during the coming season. The industrial depression and consequent laying off of thousands of workers and general paring of salaries has already hit the theatrical industry, which is always the first to suffer when money becomes scarce. It is certain that New York producers will cut down their activities next season and the road companies will be fewer. It is even hinted that several of the large New York theatres, including the Hippodrome, may become "movie" houses next fall.

20% OF THE GROSS RECEIPTS ON SATURDAY GOES DIRECT TO THE EMPLOYEES

Fourth Annual Employees' Day — Saturday

One day each year is set aside for "Employees' Day." It is then that 20 per cent. of the gross sales is distributed among all the employees. It is part of the co-partnership idea that is being worked out by the company. This is the fourth event of this nature, and if careful planning and shrewd buying and goods marked at greatly lowered prices count for anything in the success of a special sale event, THEN THIS FOURTH EMPLOYEES' DAY WILL EXCEED ALL ITS PREDECESSORS.

On Saturday, June 25th, This Store Virtually Belongs to the Employees for 20c out of every dollar spent here will go direct to them on Monday morning. Will you lend your assistance to good service by shopping early and carrying small parcels, if convenient? An extra staff of sales people will be on hand, and every effort will be put forth to make your shopping not only profitable but pleasant.

FEAR BOY LOST WHILE DIVING IN DARK LAKE

SEARCH BEGAN LAST NIGHT OF HALIBURTON LAKE WITH SEARCHLIGHT AND GRAPPLING HOOKS.

TORONTO, June 24.—(Canadian Press.)—Whether the body of Alfred Frederick Milne, aged 19, of this city, was recovered last night from Dark Lake, in the vicinity of Wilberforce, Haliburton County, will not be known until to-day, when a telegram is expected from F. J. Milne, father of the boy, who left yesterday afternoon for Wilberforce equipped with a deep-sea grappling hook and a high-powered searchlight, trained into their depths, commencing at dark last night.

Mr. Milne first received word of the tragedy yesterday from his parents, with whom his son was staying in Wilberforce. He immediately made preparations for the trip and secured from life-savers a grappling hook and from another source a high-powered searchlight. The scant information received by Mr. Milne was to the effect that his son had last been seen diving from a rowboat in 50 feet of water, 150 feet from shore. No one actually saw the youth go down, but the abandoned row boat was found later, which led the boys grandparents to communicate to Mr. Milne senior, their worst fears.

'AMAZONIC' VIVACITY IS SCORED BY JUDGE.

Hints That Age Disparity Eliminates True Love.

COLUMBUS, O., June 24.—The old family horse and the 2-year-old make a poor team was one sentence in the decision of Judge Will Stephenson of Adams County in granting John J. Lentz, former representative from the Columbus District and National President of the American Insurance Union, a divorce from Alta Ford Lentz.

Judge Stephenson, although he refused Mrs. Lentz a divorce, asked for in a cross-petition, granted her $12,500 alimony, their sedan automobile, the house in which she had been residing and the custody of their minor child, John J. Lentz, Jr., for six months each year.

Judge Stephenson in his decision said:

"It is the common experience of man that when the discrepancy in the ages of the contracting parties is in the ratio of 56 to 34, connubial bliss does not run riot."

Speaking of the interest of Mrs. Lentz in her husband, the court said:

The heaven, the heaven, implanted glow
"That true hearts call 'love,' ah, no, ah no."

Commenting again, the court said of Lentz: "He submitted to assaults and indignities and it must be said to his credit that he was too much of a man to strike the mother of his child. Even courts admire vivacity in womankind and countenance occasional outbursts of temper, but self-preservation demands that feminine vivacity must not be permitted to become Amazonic."

LIQUOR UNDER SEIZURE HAS DISAPPEARED.

Big Stock Valued at $260,000 Gone From Warehouse.

OTTAWA, June 24.—(Canadian Press).—The two hundred and sixty thousand dollar liquor stock of the Ontario Export Company, which was seized about two weeks ago by agents of the Ontario Government, and in connection with which an interim injunction was granted by Judge Gunn, was removed in a mysterious manner from the company's warehouse at the corner of Duke and Bridge streets.

Frank Falconer, agent of the Provincial Government, who was placed in the warehouse to watch the stock, was ordered by a stranger to an upstairs room in the warehouse and was found there by Inspector Howard Graham. Prior to being ordered to the upstairs room, Falconer attempted to use the telephone, but found that it would not work.

It was later discovered that the telephone wires and the wires of the burglar alarm system had been cut.

What disposition has been made of the large quantity of liquor which is supposed to have been taken from the warehouse on motor trucks is unknown, but to-day local liquor inspectors, Russell, Graham and Enright, and Provincial Inspector Captain Collinson of Toronto with other officials are searching for it.

Mr. Raney Notified.

Crown Attorney J. A. Ritchie has been notified of the circumstances in connection with the removal of the wet goods and with Mr. F. C. Brennan, representing the Attorney-General's Department, visited the Police Station, where it is understood charges have been preferred.

The Crown Attorney and the Provincial officers, when asked as to the laying of charges, stated that they did not wish to make any statements at the present time. It was intimated, however, that quick action will be taken by the authorities, and it is expected that developments will take place this afternoon.

Attorney-General Raney was passing through the city this morning and was informed of what had occurred, and ordered that every effort be taken to recover the liquor.

CITY RESPONSIBLE FOR OPEN MANHOLE

Judge Acquits Montreal Civic Employees on Manslaughter Charge.

MONTREAL, June 24.—(Canadian Press).—Judge Leet, sitting in chambers, discharged Dennis O'Sullivan, Thomas Lyng and John Grace, civic employees, of responsibility in connection with the death of Lilly Manning, the eight-year-old girl who fell down an open manhole on St. James street, on March 10 last. All three men were charged with manslaughter following a verdict of responsibility returned by a coroner's jury when the body of the child was recovered some weeks later.

The judge strongly scored the extreme carelessness of leaving a manhole unprotected. "But, so far as I am concerned, I cannot say that any one brought before me is responsible." The city of Montreal should be prosecuted. He added that "a lamentable lack of organization" had been shown to exist.

CHINA AGAINST JAP ALLIANCE

WOULD LEAD TO VAST BOYCOTT OF BRITISH GOODS, DECLARES ADVISER.

LONDON, June 24. Canadian Press. The president of China, Hsu Shih Chang, has appealed to the workers of Great Britain for their friendly assistance in preventing a renewal of the Anglo-Japanese Treaty, according to the Herald, which prints an interview with B. Lenox Simpson, the adviser to the Chinese government, saying that Hsu Shih Chang desires such help in "the coming crisis."

Mr. Simpson is quoted as declaring that a renewal of the treaty would be disastrous, would alienate China's feeling of friendship for Great Britain, and lead to a vast boycott of British goods.

HOT WATER FOR SICK HEADACHES

Tells why everyone should drink hot water with phosphate in it before breakfast.

Headaches are caused by auto-intoxication—which means self-poisoning. Liver and bowel poisons called toxins, sucked into the blood excite the heart which pumps the blood so fast that it congests in the smaller arteries and veins of the head, producing violent, throbbing pain and distress, called headache. You become nervous, despondent, sick, feverish and miserable, your meals sour and almost nauseate you. Then you resort to acetanilid, aspirin or the bromides, which temporarily relieve but do not rid the blood of these irritating toxins.

A glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, drank before breakfast, will not only wash these poisons from your system and cure you of headache, but will cleanse, purify and freshen the alimentary canal.

Ask your pharmacist for a quarter pound of limestone phosphate. It is inexpensive, harmless as sugar.

If you aren't feeeling your best, if tongue is coated or you wake up in the morning with bad taste, foul breath or have colds, indigestion, biliousness constipation, or sour acid stomach, begin the phosphated hot water cure to rid your system of toxins and poisons.

GIRL, 14, HEADS WEIRD RELIGION.

Father Founded Omotokyo Cult; Votaries Blamed for Mysterious Death.

TOKIO, June 24.—The arrest of three priests who presided over the mysterious Japanese cult known as Omotokyo, founded by an elderly woman named Deguchi, has again brought into public notice this religion which aroused interest throughout the Empire because it is regarded as a strange mixture of extreme chauvinism and revolutionary radicalism.

Many extraordinary reports have recently been circulated concerning the mysterious influence of the cult. For instance, some people attributed the recent curious murder of a wealthy Osaka business man while he was travelling in a train from Tokio to that city, as an act of vengeance of Omotokyo.

Many wealthy people, who became interested in the cult, are alleged to have been forced to make large contributions, and it is even charged that some people who obtained intimate knowledge of the secrets of the religion disappeared. Some who went to Ayabe, a small village in the Province of Tamba, Kyoto prefecture, where is located the headquarters of the religion, for the purpose of detecting the real nature and scope of the cult, have failed to return and are entirely unaccounted for.

The charge upon which the three priests were recently arrested is unknown and the Japanese newspapers have been forbidden to publish any news concerning the arrest. A girl of 14, Naohi Deguchi, the daughter of the founder, is supposed to be the presiding priestess of the temple, and it is declared that other priests have explained the disappearance of their leaders by telling the Omotokyo worshippers that they have been hidden by some unseen deity in accordance with divine will.

One of the attributes of the temple at Ayabe was professed to be a sacred well in the compound of the temple and this water was supposed to come from a spring of holy origin. Mining engineers from Kobe working on a concession near the temple uncovered two big water pipes which fed the well from a near-by pond.

The engineers will excavate the ground of a subterranean hall below the famous golden pavilion of the temple. The story is that the founder of the cult buried $500,000 worth of pure gold in the floor of the temple and that 10 carpenters who were employed in the construction of the hall never returned to their homes.

IN BED EIGHT MONTHS

Cause—Change of Life. How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Got Me Up

Afton, Tenn.—"I want other suffering women to know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. During the Change of Life I was in bed for eight months and had two good doctors treating me but they did me no good. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I did and in a short time felt better. I had all kinds of bad spells, but they all left me. Now when I feel weak and nervous I take the Vegetable Compound and it always does me good. I wish all women would try it during the Change of Life for I know it will do them good."—Mrs. A. KELLER, Afton, Tennessee.

Women from forty-five to fifty years of age should take warning from such symptoms as heat flashes, palpitation of the heart, smothering or fainting spells, or spots before the eyes, and prepare their system for this perfectly natural change by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has helped many, many women through this trying period, just as it did Mrs. Keller.

PAIR, DIVORCED 28 YEARS, REMARRIED

Septuagenarians' Second Courtship Real Romance.

TRENTON, N. J., June 24.—An estrangement of 28 years ended here for Mrs. Rachel Davis Wells Ellmore, Philadelphia, 72 years old, and Henry Clay Wells, 75, when they were remarried.

Both responded to the minister's questions without a sign of uneasiness, and when the ceremony was ended the bridegroom kissed the bride with the same spirit a 21-year-old groom might be expected to kiss a blushing bride of 20 summers.

The first wedding of the couple took place in 1868. In 1896 there was a quarrel which Mr. Wells now admits he caused, and divorce followed. Mrs. Wells then married George Ellmore, and lived with him until his death.

Two years after the Civil War, in which Mr. Clay marched with Sherman to the sea, after fighting at Gettysburg, Antietam and Lookout Mountain, there was not even a formal proposal. He being 22 and Miss Davis being 19 years old just got married.

To win his bride the second time, however, Mr. Clay had to summon all his courage, take a trip from Trenton to Philadelphia, and there, on bended knees, not so easy for a man 75, propose in real story-book fashion to the woman whom he had not seen for 20 years.

BRITISH FOREIGN SECRETARY IN ATTACK ON THE LEAGUE COVENANT

LONDON, June 24 (Canadian Press).—An unexpected attack upon the Covenant of the League of Nations was made in the House of Lords last night by Lord Curzon, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs.

He declared that many existing international difficulties were due to the Allies having taken the wrong turning in the making of peace, and he uttered a strong appeal for the utmost United States co-operation with the Allies.

LORD CURZON

The Foreign Secretary's speech was made in the course of a general discussion on mandates, in which he admitted that Parliament was entitled to more information, but he said this was a subject involved in obscurity. The language of the Covenant was such that not even a trained lawyer knew what it meant.

Nearly twice as many girls as boys graduated from the High schools in Louisiana this year.

An official report just issued shows that 300 British women nurses died while serving in the World War.

WEEKLY REDUCTION CHAT.

"What I cannot see" says Matilda—Matilda weighs 170 when she should be 125, and looks ten years older than she is—"What I cannot see at all, is this excitement over calories. Now, you tell me if I eat fewer calories I'll get thin. But I don't see it. I think this calorie stuff is all foolishness." And having thus slangily summed up her opinion of the new scientific way to reduce, Matilda popped a large chocolate cream in her mouth and leaned back contentedly. She had brought me a lovely box of candy and was amiably helping to dispose of it. This happened to be her tenth chocolate and, knowing Matilda, I was sure she could eat even more and not have her luncheon appetite spoiled at all. As for the chocolates, they are worth about 100 calories each, and Matilda so far had taken into her system about 1000 calories of extra nourishment—unneeded nourishment, which would add to her weight something like four ounces.

All this I tried to explain to her, but I'm afraid without much result. The government estimates food values in calories and you can get a lot of excellent literature from them about it if you write for it. Matilda, however, cared not. Like most fat women, she hated to bestir herself, mentally or physically. And as for me I was content to wait till some cruelly candid person took her for her husband's mother—for then I knew that she would come rushing round and start getting slim and young-looking, without delay.

As for calories—they are merely a unit of measurement. It is no more silly to measure food by calories, than it is to measure length by feet and inches—which are units also. The term is a convenience, that's all.

As for the method of measuring—we'll talk about that later.

OUR NEED FOR IMMIGRATION

SIR JOHN S. WILLISON IN THE MONTREAL STAR.

There are vital differences of opinion in Canada on the subject of immigration. Generally the leaders of organized labor have opposed admission of industrial workers from other countries. Naturally in such a period of depression as that through which Canada is now passing there is general support for labor's position. On the other hand there is grave scarcity of farm labor and room for hundreds of thousands of people on the unoccupied lands of Western Canada. Indeed in all the older Provinces there are farms for purchase at reasonable prices in the best agricultural counties. It is not true to say that these farms have been abandoned but they are available for purchase because the sons have left the old homestead for the West or have chosen to follow other pursuits. Quebec absorbs few immigrants in the rural sections. The French-Canadians are thrifty and prosperous and there are always local purchasers for farms that come into the market. But no farmer from the Old Country needs to go into a pioneer community if he has a fair amount of capital, and if he consults the Provincial Departments of Agriculture before purchasing he need not fear for his future.

There is developing in the Dominion a new attitude towards immigration. Owing to the need of settling the West the immigration policy of the Federal Government has been sectional rather than national. There has been no adequate co-operation between the Proyincial Governments and the Federal Department of Immigration. Still perhaps we should give our chief attention to settling the prairies but there is a greater disposition to emphasize also the advantages of the older Provinces for classes of settlers who desire the conveniences and comforts of more finished surroundings. It is recognized, too, that we have never had any adequate organization for handling immigrants. We have admitted people who never should have been allowed to leave the ships or, better still, should never have been allowed to embark for Canada and then have been content to exercise the brutal power of deportation. In years past we assisted people to come to the country but neglected to select and approve. The money test is not always a satisfactory test of fitness nor if there is careful selection are assisted passages wholly to be condemned. The Salvation Army has brought many thousands of people to Canada and few have ever become a charge upon the country. The officials of the Army saw that they were guarded against mistakes by themselves and against the cupidity of other people. What the Salvation Army has accomplished it should be within the power of trained officials of the Governments to accomplish.

There are sections in the West which should never have been opened to settlement. Possibly over such great areas it was difficult always to direct settlers wisely but with the knowledge of the West that we now possess mistakes in location can be more easily avoided. If settlers are wisely placed there will be few failures on the land and the drift back to the cities of which Labor complains can be measurably prevented. It is certain that few of those who settle in the best agricultural sections fail to realize the expectations with which they came to Canada. Possibly a higher average of success has been achieved by settlers from the United States than by those who have come from overseas. This was because most of the Americans had experience in Western farming. The knowledge which they have acquired by experience we should endeavor to give to people from the Old World through the sympathetic guidance and instruction of agricultural experts and other organized private and public agencies.

We have a greater responsibility, too, than we have ever fully discharged to the foreign elements which tend to cluster in the cities. Many of these people were farmers in the countries whence they came and if we had made it our business to know more of their experiences and aptitudes they could have been turned to agricultural pursuits in this country. All over the continent there has developed a new sense of obligation to those who are so commonly described as the "foreign elements." It is recognized that they should be encouraged to assume all the responsibilities of social and political citizenship. In too many cases they have been the sport of political bosses and excluded not so much by deliberate design as by sheer neglect from the general activities of the communities in which they live. The result is to lower the general average of citizenship and endanger the social and political fabric. But we begin to have a new er teaching. We see or partly see that a wiser thing is to draw these people into the affairs of the community, to make them understand that they are not isolated groups, to show friendliness and confidence and prove by our attitude towards them that native Canadians have no rights which they do not enjoy by virtue of their Canadian citizenship.

Yet Iam glad that I was courteous to them.

For are they not, likewise, children of God?

* * *

In short we are learning that our duty to people who came to Canada is not fully discharged when they are landed at Quebec, or St. John or Halifax, that they have a right to guidance and counsel until they are satisfactorily established and that just in degree as they are well treated they will develop affection for Canada and strengthen the social and political structure. Naturally we all desire that people who leave Great Britain shall come to this country or go to one of the other Dominions of the Empire. The war forever indicated the Briton in Canada. One thinks of an Old Country Club in one of the Presbyterian churches of Ontario of which every member who was eligible for war service enlisted and of whom 70 did not return. There were like examples of patriotism and sacrifice all over the Dominion. If one still hears the whisper now and again that the Englishman is unmanageable there is an answer in what he did in the war that compels silence and reverence. Besides the pioneers who laid the foundations of this country were English and Irish and Scottish and French and no other races have such a claim to its opportunities and privileges. One does think that there could be closer co-operation between the Imperial and the Dominion Governments to keep British people within the Empire. When all is said there is nothing Canada more sorely needs than a greater population and it is supremely in the interest of the Dominion that all Governmental agencies should co-operate to ensure that those who come to us from Great Britain and other countries shall be established under conditions which will give a fair prospect of contentment and prosperity.

Many years ago it was thought that backward children could be cured by making an incision in certain parts of their ears. The belief still exists in some parts of rural England, the operation being performed usually by a woman at the change of the moon.

Motorists Hints

OIL PUMP DERANGEMENTS

Engine oil pumps are of three kinds: The force pump, with its plunger operated by a cam or eccentric; the gear type, in which the oil is forced by coarse gears running with slight clearance inside a closed housing and the vane type, in which a spring-pressed vane or wiper runs inside of a tight casing. A pump of any one of these kinds may be used, either submerged in the oil reservoir or mounted outside upon the crank case, its duty being to take oil from the oil reservoir and to force it, under pressure, to engine moving parts. The most common pump derangement consists in its becoming air bound, by air displacing the oil in its cylinder or housing. No pump, even a plunger pump, can be depended upon to force air and the oil supply usually ceases until the air is replaced with oil, by a "priming" operation, which consists in removing a plug from the pump casing and squirting in oil or removing the relief-valve cap or some connection. high up in the system, and filling in oil trouble is most commonly met with just after the oiling system has been emptied and cleaned out, but it may arise if the oil supply is allowed to run so low that, on steep grades, the pump intake is not covered with oil. A slight crack in the suction pipe or a leak in its couplings may also permit air to enter and stop pump operation. A plunger pump depends for its action upon two check valves, one in its inlet and one in its delivery orifice and if either of these fails to seat tightly, because of dirt under it, or fails to lift, through any cause, reduced. Some pumps are made readily detachable to permit their being cleaned. A plunger pump, if it has remained idle for a long time, and there happens to be water in the oil may become so rusty or stiff that the spring which raises the plunger, after the cam has acted, fails to do so, thus preventing pump action. Water frozen in a plunger-pump will prevent its action and is likely to damage it seriously, if the engine is turned over while a gear-pump, thus obstructed with ice, is likely to have its driving connection sheared off when the engine starts and a vane pump is in danger of being damaged under these circumstances. One can always tell whether a pump is working by removing a delivery connection and noting if oil is forced out when the engine is running.

WHY "LOW" INCREASES PULLING POWER

H. v. d. K. asks: Why does a Ford car pull harder when it is in low gear than when it is in high?

Answer: On high gear the drive shaft runs at the same speed as the engine and the only reduction in speed between the engine and the rear wheels is that caused by the bevel gears in the rear ends, which so reduce the wheel speed that the engine turns about 3.6 times to turn the rear wheels once. On low gear, the action of the transmission is such that the drive shaft turns only about one-third as fast as the engine and this reduction, combined with that of the rear end, causes the rear wheels to turn once for each 11 turns of the engine approximately. For each turn of the engine there are two explosions or power impulses, so that during the 3.6 engine turns required to rotate the wheels once on high gear there are about 7 explosions, while during the 11 turns required to rotate the rear wheel once, on low gear, there are 22 explosions. We think that you will see that the power developed by the 22 power impulses is about three times that produced by the 7 explosions and, as the car is moved the same distance (one wheel turn) in both instances, the pulling power must be three times as great on low gear.

VALVES MAY BE HOLDING OPEN

F. J. B. writes: The exhaust valves of my truck engine have just been ground, but it has very little power and the compression in two cylinders is weak. It does not re on all four cylinders all the time. What is wrong?

Answer: Quite likely, certain of he valves were adjusted without clearance between them and their push-rods, so that they hold open slightly. This would spoil the compression in the cylinders in which they were located and would cause these cylinders to misfire. When a valve is in what should be its closed position, there should be a clearance equal to the thickness of a sheet of paper between its stem and push-rod. There are other derangements that would account for your trouble, such as leaky pistons, faults in the ignition system and improper carburation, but considering that you have just had work done on the valves makes us think that the trouble may be in them.

Seven million coins are turned out every week by the British Mint. One week's output of coins would, if laid out in a single layer, make a gold, silver and copper carpet 10 yards wide and more than a quarter of a mile long.

An English divine of the severe old school was travelling north. Just before he got to York he opened the car window, with the result that he got a piece of cinder in his eye. Every now and then he had involuntarily to wink. When he got to York he went into the buffet and asked for a glass of milk. He gulped it down, and, then realizing that something was wrong, he said to the barmaid: "That wasn't milk, was it?"

"No, sir; rum and milk."

"But I asked you for milk."

"Yes, sir, but you tipped me the wink."

NEW CLAUSE IN THE WAR REVENUE ACT

EXCISE TAXES NOT PAYABLE ON CERTAIN GOODS.

As a result of a suit taken by the Retail Merchants' Association against the Government in the Exchequer Court, the local secretary of the association has been advised that the following clause has been inserted in the Special War Revenue Act, so as to remove the objectionable features of the old Act which caused the retail trade so much annoyance:

"Excise taxes shall not be payable on sales of goods made to the order of each individual customer by a business which sells exclusively by retail under regulations by the Minister of Customs and Inland Revenue, who shall be the sole judge as to the classification of a business."

Following up this amendment, a conference was held with the Deputy Minister, and the following sections of retail trade were passed upon as not coming under the Act, so they will not be required to take out a manufacturers' license or pay a sales tax:

Antique dealers, automobile dealers, automobile accessory dealers, bicycle and sporting goods dealers, booksellers and stationers, boot and shoe dealers, builders' supplies, butchers, carriage and waggon dealers, caterers, clothiers, coal and wood dealers, concrete paving and roadway contractors, dry goods merchants, druggists, dyers and cleaners, electrical dealers and contractors, fancy goods, cut glass, china and crockery ware dealers, fish dealers, florists, flour and feed dealers, fruit and vegetable dealers, furniture dealers, furriers, general merchants, grocers, hairdressers and supplies, harness and leather goods dealers, hardware and stove dealers, hatters, ice dealers, implement dealers, jewellers and watchmakers, ladies' custom tailors, ladies wear, lumber dealers, men's wear and furnishings, merchant tailors, milk dealers, milliners, moving pictures, monument dealers, opticians, photographers, piano and musical instrument dealers, pictures, framing and artists' supplies, plumbers and sanitary engineers, restaurateurs, seed merchants, sewing machine dealers, surgical goods, taxidermists, tobacconists, typewriters and supplies, undertakers, wall paper dealers and decorators.

Retail confectioners and cake bakers and job printers are the only two sections upon which a decision has not yet been arrived at, as to how they will be dealt with under the new Act. The case against the Government by the Retail Merchants' Association, regarding confectioners, is still in the courts, and it is hoped that this will be disposed of in the near future.

In the case of some retail merchants doing a small wholesale trade as well as being retail merchants, it is advisable that they communicate with the local secretary, so that a definite ruling may be made in their cases, through the head office at Ottawa.

Any doubt whatever in the mind of any retail merchant as to the application of the sales tax, should be referred to the local secretary.

COMING TO THANK CANADA

Mission From France About to Leave New York as Guests of Dominion—Will Visit Toronto.

NEW YORK, June 23.—The French mission headed by Marshall Fayoille, which is going to Montreal to present a statute by Rodin to the Canadian Government, will leave New York for Montreal at 8.45 p.m. to-morrow. To-day the mission was the guest at luncheon in the Bankers' Club of the French-American Society. To-night the members will attend a dinner on board the French liner Paris, at which they will be welcomed by the French ambassador to the U. S. Jules Jusserand.

Guests of Canada

From the moment that the mission starts for Montreal, the members will be the guests of the Canadian nation. They were met here by Senator C. P. Beaubien, Montreal, representing the Canadian Government. The Canadian party also included Mrs. and Miss Beaubien, Senator Raoul Dandurand and A. B. Calder, the latter representing the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The points in Canada which will be visited by the mission are Montreal, Quebec, Ottawa, Toronto, Hamilton, and Niagara Falls on the Canadian side. The party will then return to New York.

Members of Mission

The French mission includes besides Marshal Fayollie Admiral Charlier of the French navy; Gaston Menier, of the French Senate; M. Fournier-Sarvoloze and Count De Warren, of the Chamber of Deputies Monsignor Landrieux, Bishop of Dijon; M. de Loynees and M. Albert Besnard, representing the Academy of France; Gabriel Louis Jaray, chairman of the Executive Committee of the Comite France-Amerique in Paris and member of the council of state of France, and Col. Requin, of the French army.

The football engagement between the C.G.E. and the Canadian Woolens at the Oval last night for the Charity Cup donated by Rev. C. J. Phelan, was started by Rev. Phelan kicking off the ball for the C.G.E. in a fine long lift to Bartley, the left wing of the C.G.E. Rev. Phelan demonstrated that he still has considerable power behind a drive on a ball yet and the kick was loudly applauded by the fans on hand.

NOTHING TO DO TILL SEPTEMBER

PUBLIC SCHOOL TERM CLOSED TO-DAY AND VISTA OF HOLIDAYS OPENS.

Laden with books and exhibiting uncontained joy in various ways the hundreds of public school children of the city poured out of the six Public Schools to-day for the last time this term. School closed at four o'clock for the summer holidays and the pupils did not conceal the fact that they were happy. The day school closes is one of the red letter days of the year. No pupil, even "teacher's pet," but is effervescently joyful when he regards the long happy hours of fun ahead—when he can play ball or swim to his heart's content, and not be ever at the command of a school bell.

All the classes are not so exuberant, however, for the High School Entrance Examinations take place on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday next, and the large number of boys and girls who will write, while keen enough, are a trifle apprehensive. When these examinations, which will take place in the Collegiate, are finished, the doors of the school can be locked at last.

Examinations have been going on in the Collegiate all this month, and the High School Entrance papers will be the grand finals. Pupils writing their Junior Matriculations and Normal Entrance papers finished last night ,and about 3:30 o'clock a deep powerful sigh could be heard by the loungers in Central Park emanating from the class rooms in which the students were in that blissful, half-conscious state when all things are subservient to the one great, grand and glorious feeling of folding up the last paper, and signing with all impressiveness the necessary signature and with much ado depositing the carefully folded manuscript on the former teacher's desk.

On Tuesday the classes writing Honour Matriculation Papers will evacuate the school, and then the stage will be ready for the last entrants, the classes preparing to leave public school for the brighter arena of High school.

RUM-RUNNING LOST ART AT THE BORDER

Windsor Police Have No Arrests—First Time in Year.

WINDSOR, June 23.—Indicating that the crime wave along the Canadian border is on the ebb, not a single arrest was made by Windsor police during the 24 hours ending tonight at 6 o'clock. The most serious report received last night was the theft of several hens from coops of Langlois avenue residents.

No such condition has existed at Windsor for more than a year, records at police headquarters show.

Rum-running and bootlegging, which, since January of last year, has kept the police working overtime, is almost a lost art. The reason for this, the police believe, is the heavy increase in prices of liquor that the rum-runner must pay.

Imported liquors, which could be purchased for $32 a case, are now quoted in liquor dealers' price lists at $70 plus cost of transportation from British Columbia.

FAST TIME PIGEONS

MANY DRIVERS NEGLECT TOOLS.

Every motorist learns sooner or later that tools are as essential part of the motor car's equipment. This is especially true at this time of the year, when tours of some length are in order; and the car owner who thinks of tools only when he needs them in an emergency on the road is due for some unpleasant experiences which may easily be obviated.

Everyone has heard that a woman can repair anything about a car with only a piece of string and a hairpin. Unfortunately the average man is not endowed with this wonderful mechanical genius. He was to rely on some more suitable tools if his wife is not along or if she has no hairpins!

Automobile drivers generally may be divided into two classes. Either they are those who never keep the right kind of tools in their cars—if any at all—or they are the fellows who load down their vehicles with all kinds of patent contrivances and then and when they want a certain tool that it is not to be found.

When speaking of tools from the motorist's viewpoint the best advice is to take care of the special tools that come with the car as a part of its equipment. Start with this as your basis and make judicious additions. It is not necessary to invest a large sum to do this.

Hammer and Chisel.

First of all for instance, the car owner needs a good hammer and a good cold chisel. Then he needs two or three sizes of screw drivers—a large one for heavy work, one medium sized, which should be very long, such as the electricians use, so that he may reach otherwise inaccessible places, and a small one for ignition system. A good pair of square-nosed combination pliers a small pair of side cutting pliers and a pair of adjustable pliers are needed.

In wrenches, a good twelve-inch monkey wrench is advisable, also a forged steel six-inch adjustable end wrench but not the kind you find on the bargain counter. A small Stilson wrench is also convenient, but it should not be used upon nuts except in a case where the corners are already worn off and a monkey wrench will not take hold. Then a set of "S" or straight wrenches to fit every sized bolt, or nut on the car. These should all be the best quality tools obtainable.

Three files are needed, one a twelve-inch, double cut, that will not wear out with one using; an eight-inch smooth file, and a small file especially designed for the breaker or vibrator contact points. Of course, a jack and a tire pump will be in the equipment. A pair of extension pliers is handy to fish out nuts or screws or other parts which drop into the grease pan under the engine.

A Good Vice.

This is a good starter for a collection to carry on the car. If one expects to make his own repairs in the garage he will need a good substantial vice, a large machinist's hammer, an assortment of cold chisels, files and other machine shop equipment.

New cars always come with an assortment of special tools for that car, but the equipment of regular tools is usually incomplete. Along with the non-skid chains there should be a supply of extra cross links and a tool for putting them on. It is mighty handy to have a small coil of soft iron wire also. Then if one of the cross links parts company, it may be wired fast until the garage is reached, when a new cross piece may be put in or new links inserted.

No one going on a long trip should venture out without a folding pail. Then if the radiator begins to drip or if the water boils away, it can be filled. A collapsible funnel is also mighty handy for filling purposes.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, June 24.—(Canadian Press). — Short covering in the popular Oils, Steels, Motors and Chemicals imparted a degree of strength to the general list at the opening of to-day's Stock Market. Mexican Petroleum,General Asphalt, Crucible Steel, Studebaker, Allied Chemical and American Agricultural Chemical Preferred scored early gains of 1 to almost 3 points. American Tobacco, Sumatra Tobacco and Pullman were firm. Equipments and Motors were lower, however, U. S. Rubber re-acting 2 points to a new low. Heaviness was shown by Bethlehem Steel, Baldwin Locomotive, American Sugar and American In-Mercantile Marine Preferred featured the further offerings of various preferential shares at mid-day. American Writing Paper Preferred, Central Leather Preferred, and Columbia Graphophone.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, June 24 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange easy. Demand $3.73; Canadian dollars 12 5-16 per cent. discount.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 24 (Canadian Press).—Wheat prices took a new upward swing to-day owing to the continued unfavourable crop advices from the North-West. Heat and drought were unabated, and there were advices that the black rust situation in South Dakota had become serious in several counties, with head stem infection at hand. On the ensuing advance, however, selling pressure increased. Opening quotations, which ranged from 1-4 to 1 1-4 cents higher were followed by moderate further gains and then something of a reaction.

Corn was firmer with wheat. After opening 1-4 off to a like advance, the market sagged a little, but soon hardened all round.

Oats reflected the action of other cereals, opening unchanged to a shade higher, and later scoring slight general gains.

Higher quotations on hogs helped to lift provisions.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, June 24 (Canadian Press).—Pessimistic reports regarding the pulp and paper industry in Canada, combined with the passing of the dividend on Abitibi Common stock, resulted in heavy selling of all paper issues on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning and consequent losses ranging from 5 to 9 points.

President Mead's statement regarding Spanish River dividends failed to stop liquidation in these issues, the common stock declining 9 points to 48, and preferred 5 1-2 to 61 1-2. Both stocks opened materially lower and dropped rapidly throughout the session. Abitibi lost 6 1-4 at 28 1-2, and Brompton 5 at 21 1-2. Riordon sold at 10.

Weakness in the paper stocks settled the entire list. Steel of Canada was off 2 1-4 at 45 1-4, Canada Steamships Preferred 1 3-4 at 43 1-2, General Electric 1 at 107, and Toronto Railway 1 at 71 1-2. F. N. Burt was weak at 98. C. P. R. registered an advance of 2 points at 120.

RECOGNISES BED BUGS, BUT NOT COCKROACHES.

TORONTO, June 24. — Cockroaches in a dwelling and the condemning of the house in question will not justify refusal to pay the rent, in the opinion of Judge Morson.

Judgment was given David Lavine against E. Sandy for a month's rent over the case in point. Sandy claimed that the house was infested with cockroaches, and that the Board of Health condemned the dwelling.

In giving judgment for plaintiff, Judge Morson remarked that, while bed bugs were recognised by the Courts, cockroaches as yet escaped official recognition as a cause of complaint.

LACROSSE NOTES

The Intermediates will practice at Riverside Park on Saturday evening, beginning at 6.15 o'clock.

The Juniors are asked to turn out at the same time. This should provide a good work-out, and all the players are asked to be on hand.

The Intermediates go to Campbellord on Dominion Day, and are preparing to give the Trent team a stiffer argument than they got here.

The Juniors play in Hastings on the holiday, and will have a real battle on their hands from all advance notices.

REFEREED FAMOUS LACROSSE GAME HERE.

Sheriff Harry O'Loughlin, of St. Catharines, is in the city to-day visiting his son, Mr. Earl O'Loughlin, of the Canadian Bank of Commerce here.

Mr. O'Loughlin will be remembered by old-time lacrosse players and enthusiasts as the referee at the famous Peterborough-Orillia lacrosse match that ended in a riot about 15 years ago in Peterborough.

In his day, Mr. O'Loughlin was a very enthusiastic lacrosse supporter, and one of the best referees in the business.

MR. HUME CRONYN HATES SPOTLIGHT

New Chairman of Toronto Railway Arbitration Board Is a Sphinx.

ONE HOBBY'S BUSINESS

And His One Personal Interest Is His Home, Say His Friends.

By J. L.

MR HUME CRONYN, M.P., recently appointed chairman of the Toronto Street Railway board of arbitration, is one of the most elusive of Canadian public men.

This is the deliberate opinion of a painting interviewer who has spent a week trying to round him up. Mr. Cronyn's genius for avoiding what he considers superfluous limelight is unrivalled. Not only is he elusive in person, but somehow he has mesmerized his friends and relatives into a strange paralysis of speech when questioned concerning his person, habits, manners and customs.

"Do you know Hume Cronyn?" one of his most intimate business acquaintances was asked.

"Know him?" was the slow response, and the speaker's face beamed with a one hundred per cent. smile of fondest reminiscence. "Do I know myself?"

The immensely gratified interviewer whipped out notebook and pencil.

"Go to it!" he invited. "Tell me something about him."

"Well, now—le's see—I dunno—"

"How long have you known Mr. Cronyn?"

"Oh, 'bout twelve years. But—"

"Ever spend a holiday with him, or be in his company on a trip of any kind?"

"Yes. Once I had a business trip with him."

"Tell me about it."

"Oh, it was just a trip!"

"Did nothing happen? No incident? Did Mr. Cronyn say or do anything that fixed itself in your memory? Did he tell a story, or miss a train or lose his baggage?"

"Well, you see, Mr. Cronyn isn't that kind of man. He's a prince of goodfellows, a man you cotton to like glue, but he's quiet and uncommunicative and not given to waste energy in unnecessary talk. He gets things done quietly and efficiently, but he's no publicity agent for himself. I'll tell you what—you see So-and-so. He's known Mr. Cronyn longer than I have and can tell you some crackerjack stories about him."

Off went the interviewer on the trail of the crackerjack spiel. He found it ensconced behind a flat-top desk in a downtown financial office.

"Yes, I guess I know Hume all right!" was the answer, given with the same kind of expansive smile as in the first interview.

Figures in No Anecdotes

"WE'VE known around this office for years that Hume Cronyn was one of the biggest men in Canada. Now the secret is beginning to leak out."

"Fine!" cried the interviewer. "Tell me something about him. What are his hobbies? Does he play golf? Collect pictures or books? Anything!"

"Mr. Cronyn is essentially a home-bird and his main interests centre in his home and family. I believe he shoots a little and fishes a little, but outside business his main activities are domestic. His interest in politics is not increasing, but rather the reverse."

"What big business deals has he pulled off?"

"Mr. Cronyn has never failed to put across any business enterprise he has been associated with," was the vague and disappointing reply.

"Say, why don't you see Blank," continued the speaker. "He's a relative and knew Hume at the ol' swimmin' hole. See him. He must be full of the kind of stories you want!"

Straightway to Mr. Blank hied the hopeful scribe.

"Mr. Cronyn hates interviews and interviewers, if anything, worse than I do," said Mr. Blank, in tones that sent the caller slumping down in his chair.

"I shall tell you nothing about him," continued Mr. Blank, fixing the pallid scribe through horn-rimmed spectacles with anything but a blank stare.

"He would say the same about me if you were to ask him to unbosom himself about my schooldays."

"He might not, if the cases were reversed, and you were in the public eye," suggested the interviewer.

"He would. I know him better than you do!" came the hot-shot answer, placed with devastating effect.

"I'll tell you what I'll do," said Mr. Blank, relenting one half of one per cent. "I'll write Hume, and if he says he has no objection to being interviewed by proxy, I'll let you know. Good day!"

The interviewer retreated, sideways, and rushed out into the comparative coolness of the noonday sun. Two days later he learned that the required permission had come from Ottawa.

"But I want to see Somebody before I talk and get my facts straight," came the crisp tones over the wire. "I'll phone you when you can come."

Two more days later, and Somebody had not materialized. So, as time and the press wait for no man—here goes!

The Marriage Settlement

A MARRIED wit who displays his gift of repartee at the expense of his wife is not to be admired, however telling his sally. This story of Lord Sherbrook is to the point: He remarked that it was absurd for a man to say "With all my worldly goods I thee endow," when he had none. "For instance, when I married I had not a shilling with which to endow my wife." "But you had your brains, Bob," said his wife from across the table. "But nobody, my dear, could say that I endowed you with those," he replied.—Outlook.

HAMILTON'S JAPANESE

THE visit of the crown prince of Japan to London recalls a story Sir Ian Hamilton tells against himself.

During a visit to Japan he wished to compliment a geisha girl whose name in English would have been Miss Sparrow.

Rather proud of his Japanese, he endeavored to convey to her that he would like to keep her always with him in a cage to sing to him. He told her so, and she retired crestfallen.

What he had really said to her was: "My good Sparrow, I wish you would shut yourself in a box."

NEW HEAD OF C.M.A. A MAN OF CULTURE

Mr. W. S. Fisher, an Eastern Manufacturer, Widely-Travelled and Well-Read.

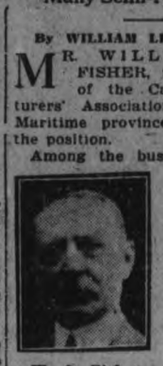
QUIET AND SOLID

A Broad-Gauged Canadian Who Has Been Identified With Many Semi-Public Bodies.

By WILLIAM LEWIS EDMONDS.

MR. WILLIAM SHIVES FISHER, the new president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, is the second Maritime province man to occupy the position.

Among the business men of the Maritime Provinces, Mr. Fisher is one of the most outstanding. He is president of the Enterprise Foundry Company, Limited, Sackville, N. B., vice-president of the wholesale hardware firm of Emerson & Fisher, Limited, St. John, and has an interest in other industrial enterprises.



W. S. Fisher

With movements for the development of St. John (his home city), he has for many years been actively connected. In the movement for the improvement of the elevator capacity and the construction of the large drydock now partly completed he was the leading spirit. It was this enterprise in connection with the development of the harbor of St. John that first brought him into prominence with the politicians at Ottawa and the business men in Montreal, Toronto and other cities beyond the Maritime Provinces, as a result of the numerous visits he made to these points in order to swing public opinion over to his side of the fence.

Although for many years an active participant in movements having for their object the general welfare of the Maritime Provinces, Mr. Fisher is equally interested in the general welfare of the dominion. One still occasionally comes in contact in "the provinces down by the sea" with men who aver that the union of Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick would have been more conducive to the general welfare of these provinces than Confederation has proved to be. Mr. Fisher is not one among these. "I believe," he some years ago remarked to the writer, "that if we had had union of the Maritime Provinces in the days preceding Confederation it might ultimately have resulted in annexation to the United States. Our natural market for coal, fish and lumber was the New England States. From the standpoint of dollars and cents annexation would at that time have been a good thing for the Maritime Provinces. Viewing it, however, from a broad, general standpoint Confederation was best for all concerned."

Of U. E. L. Descent

TO find a Canadian who is better acquainted with the dominion as a whole would be a difficult undertaking. Not only are Mr. Fisher's visits to Toronto, Montreal and other central Canadian cities frequent, but seldom a year passes without his taking a journey to the far west. And the broad Canadian spirit which he himself possesses he has endeavored to instil in the minds of his three sons, one of whom graduated from Upper Canada College, while the others received the final touches to their academic career at the Royal Military College, Kingston.

Mr. Fisher has traveled extensively in Europe as well as in Canada and is a wide and deep reader. As a Canadian his ancestry dates back several generations, his forebears having been among that band of United Empire Loyalists who settled in the Maritime Provinces during the last quarter of the eighteenth century, while an uncle, the late Hon. Charles F. Fisher, is listed among the Fathers of Confederation.

Tall and erect in figure, Mr. Fisher might easily be taken for an ex-military man. Temperamentally he is of the quiet, solid and sincere type, while his wide reading and extensive traveling, to say nothing of the influence of heredity, have endowed him with an air of culture and the mannerisms of a "gentleman of the old school." As a speaker he is sincere, lucid, and convincing, and while not an orator, his language is polished.

While Mr. Fisher has for many years been actively identified with many semi-public organizations, both provincial and dominion, he has avoided what is ordinarily termed public life, even refusing the proffered Conservative nomination for the St. John constituency made vacant by the death of Hon. A. G. Blair.

When the Dominion government expropriated the Ross Rifle Company at Quebec, the duty of disposing of the machinery and other assets was delegated to Mr. Fisher. Although the accomplishment of this undertaking occupied a period of about two years, he served without remuneration beyond immediate expenses.

THE faster a man lives the quicker he will occupy ground-floor space in a cemetery.

DRANK FOR THEIR SAKES

CHARLES COBORN, the veteran English comedian, who has started out in his seventieth year to walk from London to Penzance, has many good stories to tell of his early experiences on "the halls," before he sang himself into fame with "The Man Who Broke the Bank at Monte Carlo."

On one occasion he traveled with a tenth-rate—a very tenth-rate—variety company, and when crossing to Dublin to fulfil an engagement the word went round that the manager was drinking beer with his lunch, while the rest of them, including Charlie, had perforce to be content with water, owing to the depleted state of their exchequer.

As none of them had drawn any salary for over a fortnight, they held an indignation meeting, and Coborn was deputed to approach the manager and expostulate with him.

"Look here, guv'nor," he said, "we don't think it's playing the game. We are only drinking water and you are drinking beer."

"What is going to become of you blighters," he answered, "if I don't keep my strength up?"

Made Him Fed-Up

THREE doctors were operating on a man for appendicitis. After the operation was completed one of the doctors missed a small sponge. The patient was opened, the sponge found within, and the man sewed up again. Immediately the second doctor missed a needle. Again the patient was opened and closed. Then the third doctor missed a pair of scissors.

"Gentlemen," said the victim, as they were about to operate again, "for heaven's sake, if you're going to keep this up, put buttons on me!"

H. C. Griffith, Noted Footballer, New Headmaster of Ridley

The First Graduate of a Boys' School in Canada to Become Its Principal—Has an Inspiring Personality—Mr. H. S. Williams Principal of Lower School—Dr. Miller, Founder, Retires.

CANADA'S great boarding schools for boys are known as "private schools," whereas in England such institutions are known as "public schools." With us the term "public school" is reserved for what in England would be a "board school."

While Eton and Harrow date back to the sixteenth century, and Rugby, Marlborough, Charterhouse, and others are almost equally redolent of tradition, the Canadian schools have compartively short histories. They are products of the nineteenth century—Upper Canada, Lennoxville, Ridley, Trinity College, and St. Andrew's. But if they are short on history, they are almost as long on tradition, because the Canadian schools have inherited much of the English spirit and experience and some even of their historical justification.

One of these traditions is that there must always be a "great headmaster" one whose spirit is such that he can inspire successive generations of school boys. Bishop Wainfleete at Eton, Thackeny at Harrow, Arnold at Rugby, are but ex-surpliars of a long list of great headmasters or principals.

A change of headmaster in school marks a new era in its history. Ridley College, at St. Catharines, is just having its first experience of that kind. Dr. J. O. Miller, founder and principal for thirty-two years, retires this week and Mr. H. C. Griffith succeeds him as the new principal of the Upper School. Dr. Miller established Ridley College in 1889 and in doing so he created an institution which has found a definite place in the life of the nation. To him the late T. R. Merritt, first president, the late L. Herbert Mason, the second president, and to Mr. Geo. H. Gooderham, the present head of the corporation, the credit must be given for having built up in a little over thirty years a sound and evidencing tradition for scholarship and character and achievement.

22 Years at Ridley

THE task was not an easy one—because endearing institutions of this kind are few in number, indeed. It is not a question of geography nor finance—successful schools are built on something higher and more important.

Mr. Griffith, the second principal of Ridley College, is himself an "old boy" of the school—the first graduate of a boys' school in Canada to become principal of the same institution. It was at Ridley he got his first lessons in cricket and football as well as his first hints towards scholarships. He was head boy and senior prefect. Later he graduated from Trinity University with honors in modern languages, and with a good scholastic record. He returned to Ridley immediately as modern language master, but later went back to Trinity as professor in French. Except for this four years at his alma mater, he has spent his 22 years of educational activity at Ridley.

Mr. Griffith has an inspiring personality. He has long been an authority in athletics, because he understood their value as a character builder. He has the scholastic equipment and the mental attitude towards citizenship which must be the basis of all enduring work in such institutions as this.

The motto of Ridley College is "Terar dum prosim," which may be interpreted "Let me be spent in service." It was the motto of 450 Ridley "old boys" who enlisted in the war. Other schools may have done equally well, but Ridley is definitely proud of its war record. And now, rising stone by stone, is a new chapel in the perpendicular style, a memorial to those who fell in the great war. Its cornerstone was laid a few days ago by Canon Scott, the senior padre of the Canadian army in France, the most beloved man in the Canadian Corps. It will be a fitting monument to the sixty brave Ridlians who lie buried "over there."

Ideals in Scholarship

AT the same time there is also rising, and nearly completed, a large additon to Ridley which makes it a commodious and self-contained school. There is now accommodation in residence for 60 boys in the lower school and 150 boys in the three houses of the upper school. There will also be an "Old Boys' Quarters" with accommodation for visitors. This new building, which rounds out and connects up the Ridley group, is the gift of Mr. G. H. Gooderham, the president, and Major Ross Gooderham, the latter an "old boy" of the college. No pains have been spared by the architects and the donors to make this new building emblematic of education in the highest sense of that term. It will be not only useful, but artistically inspiring.

Mr. H. G. Williams, who now assumes the title of principal of the lower school, is an English graduate who came to Ridley thirty years ago and is now the senior on the staff. He began as mathematical master, but gradually his sphere was extended until he was given complete charge of the junior boys. For this position he has ideal qualities.

Ridley has three "colors"—the cricket team, the football and the hockey. All these boys' schools in Canada maintain the cricket traditions of Eton and Harrow, who have had an annual cricket match for just over one hundred years. The four large Ontario schools have an intercollegiate league known as the "Little Big Four," in which the cricket standard is fairly high. The same arrangements exist for football and hockey and the championships of this league are always eagerly and earnestly contested. Ridley has had its fair share of the glory in this connection, and has sent its quota of popular athletes to the different universities.

Under the guidance of Mr. Griffith, Ridley should continue to exercise that helpful influence in our school life which has given the school such a prominent place. His ideals in scholarship and character-making are just what Canada needs in these critical days.

THE CONFESSIONAL: Uncensored Talks With Big Men About Themselves

No. 40—EX-SPEAKER LOWTHER

By Emil Longue-Beau.

THE coincidences of this mortal life are past finding out. Months ago I fell in with Chesterton on the train. The next famous Englishman in our midst is also encountered while traveling, and turns out to be one of the most candid companions that have been picked up during a sadly lengthening and varied life. I happened to be in an east-bound chair car, beside a tall, bearded gentleman, next to whom were his wife and daughter—distinguished looking people, but not distinguished-feeling. The truest mark of distinction is that it should forget itself.

Mr. Lowther—for it was the former speaker of the British House of Commons, on the way to home and the House of Lords—doesn't carry side in his port. Mrs. and Miss Lowther had never traveled between Toronto and Montreal in daylight; and as it is twenty-five years since Mr. Lowther passed this way, he had forgotten, as he told them, the characteristics of the landscape through which they passed.

As we crossed the Don, and then the Rouge he asked for the names of these bubbling streams, and enquired about how long it was since the original timber was first cut out of the banksides. I remarked upon the difference between these little vales and the river courses of Cumberland, and mentioned the Martindale and Troutbeck valleys as being beyond all comparison with anything we have to show.

"We have no Howtowns and Patterdales," I added, "so you may be disappointed with some characteristics of our farming country."

It was a lucky observe; for it opened the gates of the Lowtherian good-will, which have always swung wide, when once they could be touched. He talked about the constituency he has represented for thirty-five years, and particularly about Penrith, and King Arthur's legendary Round Table that is on the right as you leave the town for Pooley Bridge and Ullswater. I tried to get him to speak of the intimate side of the great office he has just vacated, but about all he said was that he was singular in that he was the first speaker who succeeded after a long apprenticeship as chairman of committees—an office which was not officially the deputy-speakership when he suceeded poor old Mellor in 1895. He came back to Canada with this:

"I wonder if you would mind taking a look at some of the impressions I have gained during a most delightful journey; because I don't want to mislead the people at home as to what I have gathered in your wonderful country. You smoke, I hope?"

So we went into the compartment which happened to be empty for the next hour; and there Mr. Lowther talked with rather surprising freedom.

"If we had not seen the Great War," he resumed, "I should have said that what I have noticed in Canada after a lapse of 25 years, has been the most distinctive experience of my life. I don't mean your material development; though that has been remarkable enough. What has struck me most of all, is the change in what I may call your self-regarding attitude of mind. In those days we at home habitually spoke of the colonies, and of the 'colonial conference.' The Canadian people were very like us in that respect. They thought and spoke of Canada as a colony. But now—well, I really have had to mind my P's and Q's in that way. At Ottawa once I caught myself saying 'You colonials,' and, though nothing was said, a good deal was looked at me, and I have been careful since not to use the word 'colonial' when anything else would come to mind."

"A very easy discrimination, I hope," I said.

"No, indeed. I didn't come with much idea of making speeches, except the formal one in presenting the chair to the house of commons—by the way, your speaker is quite to the manner born. Of course, I was willing to do anything I could to promote every cordiality between the col— I mean the dominion and the mother country; but I hardly expected to find the passion for listening to speeches that has rather dogged me ever since we landed at Quebec, where the luggage question upset us all, as my daughter could tell you.

"It's curious," I remarked, "that nearly all the trouble about baggage seems to be experienced by our friends who have become accustomed to the English transfer methods."

"Another example of the way in which the Old World doesn't seem to be able to give balance to the New," he replied, laughingly adapting Canning's great saying, now over a hundred years old. "But, as I was remarking, I found the passion for speeches consistently strong all the way across the continent and back. Do you listen to one another as cheerfully as you listen to me?"

"We hardly endure each other," I said, and he continued:

"At Ottawa once I caught myself saying, 'You colonials.'"

"I had to learn something from the reactions to what I thought it fitting to say. By the time I left Vancouver I found from the papers and otherwise, that the feeling I discheerfully as you listen to me?" "We reflects the temper in the country generally."

"You mean, particularly?"

"I mean the very distinct fear we have in London that Canada and the other dominions are taking their equality of status with the Old Country a little too seriously. We are solicitous about that equality tending to a spirit of independence, which, we do not disguise from ourselves, may have the germ of separation in it. Perhaps we shouldn't have that fear; but it is there, and, privately, it is no use trying to cover it. Publicly, that cannot very well be said; and, after Vancouver, I have sedulously tried to avoid even a suggestions of dread of Canadian independence. I'm bound to say that even those who, like Sir Robert Borden and Mr. Rowell, are the strongest exponents of equality of status, have assured me that there is nothing whatever to be nervous about."

"One wouldn't think so, after the war," I said.

"Perhaps not; but perhaps, also you do not altogether realize the grounds of our anxiety; and the reasons why I have ventured to insist upon the value of making the most of some of the institutions which are thoroughly Imperial, even though they may not seem at the moment to be thoroughly harmonious with the sort of spirit that is developing in India and the dominions."

"Why," I interposed, "do you mention India first, Mr. Lowther?"

"Oh, I suppose it is an unconscious reflection of the general anxiety that besets us. Possibly your people here do not give much attention to India?"

"Not much," I replied, "except when our Indian fellow subjects want to settle in British Columbia, and then you can hear British Columbia's roller clear across the Selkirks."

"Ah! the very point. To be quite frank, we are much concerned about India. John Bright, you know, always hoped for the day when we should clear out of India. We have talked about India's advance to complete self-government; but we have rather assumed that such a position would never develop till long after we are gone. We felt safe in assigning that eventuality to posterity. But posterity has very rapidly come to the front, in the last few years. Do you recall what I said about India to one of the Toronto clubs this week?"

I said I did.

"Well," Mr. Lowther proceeded, "I gave as one of the reasons—perhaps the primary reason—why we have abandoned the old dream of imperial federation, the certainty that India would swamp us in an Imperial Parliament. How soon that would be, in a federation, nobody can predict. But if there ever is an imperial house of commons evolved from the imperial conference, the admission of Indians to the conference could only eventuate in one way. I gave first place to the Indian reason against imperial federation without thinking of what it involved here. That was made vivid to me afterwards by an acute friend, whose name you could no doubt know, if I mentioned it."

"Might I ask what he said?"

"He took me to task, rather, by saying that I had given away, once and for all, the conviction of myself and my fellow-Imperialists that whatever happened, England must be supreme in any Imperial Parliament. He wanted to know how I could uphold the idea of equality of nationhood within the empire, under those conditions. I ought to tell you that our apprehensions as to the outcome of the measure of Home Rule that has been set up in India, are allied to our extremely grave commercial situation. Geddes, our minister at Washington, who was president of the board of trade, before he came over, was in the habit of telling our American visitors that our supreme need in England was to lessen our population by five millions. Had you heard that?"

"Last year Vanderlip told us that," I replied; "but no editorial mind seemed to catch on to its significance."

"It is now being said," Mr. Lowther continued, "that we are ten millions too many. It is more and more impressed upon us that unless the dominions come into a real partnership as to liabilities as well as assets, Matthew Arnold's simile of the weary Tital will be justified in our experience. We can't put ourselves in the place of beggars for assistance, so we must make the most of chances of holding together organically. That is why I have ventured to suggest in several places that dominions' representation in a reformed House of Lords may offer the solution of the difficulties of the new start which the war has forced upon the empire."

"What sort of a reform would you have?" I queried. "Would you retain the hereditary principle?"

"I'm afraid you have me there," was the response. "I doubt whether the Upper House would consent to the abolition altogether of the hereditary qualification; though, if the people all over the empire demanded it, of course it would have to be conceded. You appreciate, of course, what would be involved in that. King James' remark 'No bishop, no king' was acute. The lords have a vast amount of ability in their numbers."

"It that because of the hereditary peerage, or because the Almighty does not deny to lords the capacities of other human beings?" was my last question on this score.

"You probably think that a lord should only be in a legislative chamber for the same reason that a commoner should—because of his personal capacity and personal service?" he asked me in return.

"Well," I said, "that was evidently the opinion of the Canadian House of Commons, as it was of the cabinet that told the duke to tell the King he had better cancel the hereditary quality of honors he had conferred on native-born Canadians."

"I hadn't got it quite as definitely as that," Mr. Lowther remarked. "It is rather disquieting. What do the Englishmen in Canada, of whom there must be scores of thousands, think of that attitude?"

This question led to a discussion that there isn't room for here.

The reader will not take too literally the observations of leading men about themselves recorded by Mr. Longue Beau, but will understand that they are what the speakers would be likely to say confessionally.

ORPEN WAS BLOTTO!

"A WAY they have in the army" is amusingly illustrated by a personal experience described by Sir William Orpen, the famous painter, in "An Onlooker in France."

Sir William went to France as official war artist. "I regret," he writes, "that one night while I was staying at G. H. Q. Tanks I got 'blotto.' It wasn't altogether my fault—people were so hospitable. I left Tanks on a bitterly cold evening, and called at the Canadian chateau at Hesdin. It was tea-time. The colonel, who saw that I was cold, gave me a whiskey-and-soda, which he repeated when I left.

"I then went to see Major Sir Philip Sassoon. 'A whiskey-and-soda for Major Orpen,' said he. When I got through half of it, his telephone bell rang. 'Run upstairs, Orp, and see Allen he's laid up in bed.' So off I went. 'Whiskey-and-soda,' said he. When I was half-way through it, there were footsteps on the stairs. 'That's the chief coming,' said he. 'Gosh!' said I, and I pushed my whiskey-and-soda under the bed.

"In came the C.-in-C. 'Hello, little man,' he said, 'you look cold; and they don't seem to be very hospitable here, either. He rang the bell. The orderly came. 'Bring Major Orpen a whiskey-and-soda,' he said. That did it. He talked for about ten minutes and left.

"Then in came Philip with my half-finished drink, cursing. 'I've been standing on those stairs with Orp's drink for the last half-hour, waiting for the chief to leave.' So, of course, I had to finish it. I went on to see General Davidson, and he had a nice cocktail ready for me, and a good bottle for dinner—after which I don't remember anything. But it was a bit of bad luck, one thing happening after another like that."

IN HIS MAKE-UP

A GOOD story of Sir Herbert Tree was told the other day by Mr. Joseph Harker, the well known scenic artist.

Sir Herbert was once buttonholed in the corridor of the theatre by a bore whom he particularly wanted to avoid. The actor was in the make-up of Caliban at the time.

"Surely you know me, Sir Herbert?" said the bore.

"I don't think so," replied the actor.

"I'm Mr. So-and-so," persisted the other. "I was introduced to you a few days ago."

"Im so sorry," replied Tree. "I did not recognize you in my make-up."

All Have It

SHE: "Isn't it wonderful to think of the achievements of science. So many things have been brought within the reach of the masses."

He: "Yes, indeed. Some years ago golden hair was the boast of a favored few, now anybody can have it that wants it."

Marshall Fayolle Rose from the Ranks

Noted French Soldier, Who Is Coming to Canada, Has Had a Remarkable Career.

MARSHAL MARIE EMILE Fayolle, who is coming to Canada as head of a mission to thank the dominion for its aid to France during the war, exemplifies the Napoleonic saying that every soldier's knapsack contained a marshal's baton, for he served in the Franco-Prussian war of 1870 as a private soldier. He was a retired brigadier-general, 61 years old, when the war broke out, but he volunteered immediately for active service.

He was in the fighting from the very first, taking part under Gen. Castelnan in the first French offensive in Lorraine. He distinguished himself by a bold stroke during the retreat from Morhange when he threw his artillery in front of the infantry and held up the advance of the enemy, and also by his second check of the Germans at the Grand Couronne, on Aug. 4, 1914.

He added to his laurels at Arras in the German race for the sea, and later, in 1916, at the battle of the Somme, where he commanded the fourth army. In March, 1917, he was in the thick of the fighting at Verdun.

In 1918 he was sent to Italy after the big Austrian success, where his advice did much to tighten up the Italian lines. But Foch recalled him hurriedly to France when the Germans came smashing through in the spring offensive. He was placed in command of the army of reserve, and as such won his greatest victory, that of the battle of Noyon-Mondidier.

In the summer of 1918 he was in command of a group of armies withstanding the most powerful German attacks, checking their advance to Paris and Amiens. The Americans fought under him at the Marne and with him at the Argonne.

It was this association with the A. E. F. which caused his choice by Marshal Foch as his representative to the convention of the American legion at Cleveland, Ohio, last fall. So this is his second trip to this continent.

A spectacular incident in his career came in a strange way. As a private he fought in the war of 1870 when France lost Alsace-Lorraine. As a full general in 1918, it was given him to ride at the head of a French army into liberated Strasbourg, which represented the climax of France's triumph in the war.

For a year then he was in command of the French army of occupation along the Rhine.

It was just in February last that he was elevated to the proud rank of marshal of France.

GENERAL STRIKE PROJECT LIKELY TO BE FAILURE

LABOR CONFERENCE OFFERS NOTHING BUT SYMPATHY TO MINERS.

LONDON, June 24.—(Canadian Press).—As the Labor Conference has expressed much sympathy with the striking miners, but has offered nothing more tangible in the way of support, doubts are now expressed that there will be a conference of all unions to discuss the advisability of calling a general strike. Two important unions have refused invitations to the conference, and others have not been invited.

The Government restrictions on account of the strike are being extended. Coke is the latest commodity to be affected.

It is reported that the loss to the railways through the strike is about six million pounds monthly. The Government will be called upon to provide twenty millions to cover the liabilities of the railways, which includes nine millions through the coal shortage.

WEDDING BELLS

LEGIER—McKINLEY.

On Monday, 20th June, 1921, at the Church of the Messiah, Toronto, by the Rev. Mr. Armitage, Hazel McKinley, of Peterborough, to William Charles Legier only son of Mrs. Legier and the late T. C. Legier, of Toronto.

BURROWS—WILSON.

Trinity Church was the scene of a very pretty but quiet wedding on Wednesday morning, June 22nd, when the wedding took place at 7 o'clock of Ila Marie, daughter of Mrs. Catherine Wilson and the late James H. Wilson, formerly residents of Cambray, to Mr. Arthur B. Burrows, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Burrows, of Brighton, England. Rev. F. E. Malott, B.A., performed the ceremony, and Mr. Geo. H. King, organist of Trinity Church, played the Wedding March. The choir-stalls and pulpit were beautifully decorated by girl friends of the bride with palms, ferns and field daisies. The bride, who was unattended, was given away by her uncle, Mr. H. M. Moore, of Peterborough, and wore her handsome travelling costume of navy tricotine, heavily embroidered in silk, with georgette blouse of pale pink, trimmed with lace and leghorn hat with georgette and roses. She wore the groom's gift, a gold wrist watch, and carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses.

Immediately after the signing of the register, Mr. and Mrs. Burrows left for Toronto and Hamilton. On their return, they will spend the summer at their cottage at Stoney Lake, and will reside in Lakefield, where Mr. Burrows is manager of the Dickson Dry Goods Store. The bride was the recipient of many valuable presents, among them a handsome dinner set from the office staff of the Canadian Woollens, and several cheques, while Mr. Burrows also received a cheque from the Dickson Store.

WHY WATER MUST BE BOILED NOW

CONTAMINATION IS GREATER AN EARLIER THAN LAST SUMMERD.

Citizens who regard with impunity the M.O.H.'s warning to boil all water are placing themselves and their families in danger of some serious disease, stated R. L. Dobbin, Waterworks Superintendent, to-day. The river water is in a serious condition. The situation is more serious this year than last, because of the warm weather during May and June. In May the average temperature of the water was 4.8 degrees higher than in 1920, the two figures being 53.4 and 58.2. The pollution in the water, due to work between Peterborough and Lakefield, has gradually intensified, and on Sunday the 11-pound dose of chlorine per million gallons was begun. Twelve pounds per million gallons was the maximum used last year, and it is expected that to-morrow or the next day it will be necessary to throw in the next pound, although its effect cannot be very great, according to Mr. Dobbin. The warning to boil the water in 1920 was not given till June 29, so it can be readily seen how much more serious is the situation this summer.

The water temperature to-day was 5 degrees higher than the same date last year. To-day the temperature at the waterworks was 74; in the pipes, however, it was only 70.

BIRTH.

HELSON.—To Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Helson, 77 Smith Street, on Thursday, 23rd June, 1921—a son.

27,107 POUNDS OF MILK BY ONE COW IN YEAR.

BRANTFORD, June 24. — James Wilson, Supervisor of the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada, in the official test of Bella Pontiac, the world's record producer of milk, butter fat and butter, reported that for the year ending June 18, the official record as received from the Live Stock Commissioner's Office, Ottawa, was 27,017 lbs. of milk, 1,259 lbs. of butter fat, and 1,573.75 lbs. of butter. This is much in excess even of what it was anticipated she would produce, and is nearly 75 lbs. of butter more than the previous record.

HANGMAN'S FEES.

Public hangman's fees have gone up in Great Britain. The pre-war fee was about £5 and expenses, but recently hangmen have asked for and received £10 and more and expenses. There is no fixed fee for a hangman; in each case the fee is a matter of arrangement between the sheriff of the county and the executioner.

AUSTRALIA, 5,419,702.

LONDON, June 24. — Australian census figures show that this Commonwealth now has a population of 5,419,702, an increase of 970,000 over 1911. Males outnumber females by about 83,000. Population figures for the different states forming the Commonwealth, are as follows: — New South Wales, 2,096,393; Victoria 1,530,114; Queensland, 755,573; South Australia, 494,867; West Australia, 829,228; Tasmania, 213,527.

TWO AVIATORS DROWNED.

Collided in Bombing Manoeuvres—Planes Into Bay.

WASHINGTON, June 24. — Two of the leading flyers of the United States Army Air Service, Captain Howard T. Douglas and Lieutenant Marll J. Plumb, were drowned in Chesapeake Bay after a collision of their planes in the course of a bombing raid directed at the hulk of the old battleship San Marcos, off Tangier Island.

Reports received by the War Department from Langley Field, Va., said the accident was one of the most peculiar on record. Lieutenant Plumb, flying a fast single-seat plane, was dropping bombs, and Captain Douglas, in a similar machine, was observing the raid from above. Plumb's plane had just dropped a bomb and was climbing upward, as is the custom after releasing the weapon, when it struck Captain Douglas' machine, cutting off its tail.

Bomb Dropped Where Planes Fell.

Both ships fell into the bay and disappeared, together with their pilots, whose bodies have not yet been recovered, although search had been made by a number of army and navy craft ordered to the scene after the accident.

THE PET LAMB

Once when we were very young we saw a picture entitled "The Pet Lamb." It showed a small boy looking with tearful eyes on a young lamb being sold to a rough-looking man with a knife in his belt. In those days, we sympathised with the lamb, but since knowing the delights of Jopling's Roast Spring Lamb, our feelings have changed. No lamb, either real or pictured, was quite so tender as that offered at Jopling's, 340 George Street.

EDISON IN THE BOX.

Proves in First Ball Game That as a Pitcher He is No Wizard.

WEST ORANGE, N.J., June 22.—Thomas A. Edison took part in his first baseball game to-day when he pitched five balls in a game between the Disc Record Department and the Laboratory staff of the Edison plant here.

After "winding up," Mr. Edison pitched the first ball, which the batter avoided by ducking, but the fifth ball was pitched near enough the plate to produce a foul. Then the inventor retired to the side lines. "I was always too busy a boy to indulge in baseball," he said.

GIRL, 13, TO TEACH VIOLIN IN COLLEGE.

Another, 12, Graduates From Pennsylvania High School.

OBERLIN, O., June 24.—Oberlin Conservatory has one of the youngest, if not the youngest, violin teachers in the world in Kathleen Kinney, 13 years old, daughter of Carl Kinney, editor of The Oberlin Tribune.

Three years ago Kathleen studied violin with a Public school class under Karl W. Gehrkins, Professor of Public school music here. She was a pupil for a year of Don Morrison, teacher of violin at the Conservatory. She has been teaching a class during the year under his supervision.

Kathleen won a scholarship in her first year at the Conservatory. She maintains a high scholarship average in her school work in the High school, and is popular among her schoolmates.

Society

Mr. Chas. F. Leonard, the American Consul, who has been ill for the past few weeks, has now resumed his official duties.

At the regular meeting of the 87th Chapter, I.O.D.E., held in the Y.W.C.A., Mrs. E. B. Clegg read a report of the annual meeting held in Toronto recently, and arrangements were discussed for the district meeting, which is to be held here in the fall. This will be the last regular meeting of the Chapter during the summer months.

Miss Lillian Rush leaves to-morrow morning on an extended trip to Vancouver and Victoria, B.C., to visit Mr. and Mrs. S. U. Rush.

St. Luke's Women's Guild held a very successful garden party at the residence of the Misses Calcutt in East City yesterday. Afternoon tea was served on the verandah, which was well patronized. The flower stall, ice cream and soft drinks booths did a rushing business all evening, in the beautifully decorated grounds, and a musical programme was given by the following artists: Instrumental solos, Miss Bridge and Miss Lucile Doris; vocal selections, Misses Florence Harrison, Miss M. Greene, Mrs. Perks, and Mr. Sam. Whitehouse.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Snowden, of North Monaghan, were hosts at a delightful garden party yesterday, in aid of the Braley Sunday School. The grounds were charmingly decorated with flags and Japanese lanterns, with bowls of daisies on the pretty tables where tea was served. Cake, ice cream and soft drinks were dispensed, and the Salvation Army Band played sweet music for the large crowd in attendance. Recitations were given by Miss Hazel Davidson and Miss White, with a vocal solo from Mrs. Mendell Braund. Messrs. G. A. Gillespie, of Peterborough, and T. D. Young, of Monaghan, delivered short addresses, and Mr. Albert Middleton, of Smith, acted as chairman.

Dr. and Mrs. Mathis, of Augusta, Georgia, with their two children, are visiting Mrs. Mathis' mother, Mrs. A. Sanderson, Brock street.

Miss Irene Thompson of Mt. Julian, is visiting friends in the city.

The Rev. F. E. Malott has returned from Whitby, where he has been in attendance at the annual conference of the Methodist church. Mr. Malott will have charge of the services at Trinity church next Sunday.

Mrs. Alf. Lancashire, of Toronto, is in the city for a few days visitnig with friends.

Miss Elva McIntyre, Aylmer street, leaves Toronto to-night for Calgary, where she will join friends and go on to Vancouver, leaving there for a boat trip to Alaska. She expects to return home in the course of the next two or three months.

OLDEST CHURCH BUILDING IN SUDBURY TORN DOWN.

SUDBURY, June 23.—One of the early landmarks of Sudbury, the first Protestant Church, erected by the Methodists in 1866, disappeared this week. From the time of its erection until 1908 the congregation used it for all its activities. Then they erected the present handsome new structure. Then the Baptists took over the old church and moved it to a new site and they worshipped in it until the spring of 1919, when they branched out into a larger structure.

The history of the little church has been closely interwoven with the history of Sudbury. The old church has been purchased by a contractor, who is tearing it down for the excellent lumber it contains.

ANNUAL OUTING OF RICHARD HALL STAFF.

Richard Hall & Son held their annual picnic to Wallace's Point yesterday. About 100 of the employees of the store went down to the Point in motor boats or in automobiles, returning between ten and eleven in the evening, some of the merry-makers taking an extra trip to Port Hope and Bewdley. A programme of games, foot races and dancing was enjoyed, with an excellent supper supplied by Messrs. T. Hooper & Sons.

MORE REBELLION IN RUSSIA.

Peasants' Rising in Eastern Provinces Said to Be Serious.

COPENHAGEN, June 24.—From Russia it is reported that the peasants' rebellion has assumed dangerous proportions in Eastern European Russia, and that the Government has had to detail General Sviefjin to deal with it.

From Moscow it is reported that all students have been ordered to leave the city and not to return before Sept. 15. This action is officially stated to have been taken on account of the scarcity of food, but it is said to have been really due to the unrest among the students.

Esthonian papers report that Maxim Gorky's wife has been at the frontier while trying to smuggle out a collection of diamonds and other precious stones.

STRONGLY OPPOSE DANCING.

Can't Have Dance Craze and Church Craze at Same Time.

WINNIPEG, June 24.—"If dancing is here to stay, the Methodist Church might as well shut up shop," was one expression of opinion at the Manitoba Methodist conference in session here. Mixed dancing in the schools was termed a 'perversion of our educational system," "a curse and a menace," and "detrimental to our best citizenship."

"Those who have the dance craze will never have the church craze," said Rev. Andrew Stewart of Wesley College.

FOOT TWISTED OFF; DIES OF HIS INJURY

G. H. Parslow Killed in Much the Same Kind of an Accident as His Brother-in-law.

DURHAM, June 23. — George Henry Parslow, residing five miles east of Dromore village, in Proton township, had his foot twisted off yesterday and succumbed to his injuries. He was sawing wood, when the belt slipped off the pulley. He stopped the engine and replaced it, but it shortly afterward again came off and began to wind up on the pulley. Putting his foot against it to prevent this, it was quickly drawn in and wrenched clean off above the ankle, and he died this morning, less than 24 hours after. His wife survives; also his mother. His brother-in-law, Dan McCormack, met death from injuries received in a similar accident less than two years ago, and not far distant.

Folks Always Smile Back at Her

MARY MILES MINTER in 'The LITTLE CLOWN'

Life meant just laughter and friendliness to the little clown. She lived in a carefree but busy world where family trees were unheard of and nothing mattered except doing your act your very best.
Then love came, and with it the bitter knowledge of social barriers and aristocratic traditions. Her skill at turning somersaults and making the crowd cheer availed her nothing in this stifling new world of elegance and hostility.
You will love Pat, the gay little child of the circus. You will laugh at her antics, and catch your breath at some of her most daring escapades. You will sympathize with her efforts to "learn to be a lady," and rejoice in her final happiness, won after many sajd months.

ALL SET FOR THE BIG BALL GAME TO-MORROW AFTERNOON

Everything is set for the Belleville-Peterborough Central League battle at Riverside Park to-morrow, and the indications point to one of the biggest crowds and one of the best games of the season. The game is everything to both teams, for a loss to-morrow means that the loser will drop further behind Oshawa, who are leading the parade. The Belleville team will be at full strength to-morrow, while the Petes will still be without "Hap" Harrison, but expect to have the rest of the squad in good shape. Fans are coming from every part of the district for the battle, for they know that Belleville and Peterborough always provides a sensational game when they meet. The time is called for 3 o'clock sharp.

RESULT OF THE PROTEST MAKES "POST" WRATHY

It is doubtful if there is a newspaper writer in the country, who can use more words and say less than the individual who presides over the destinies of the sporting page of the Lindsay Post. Harken to the yelp he indulges in over the result of the Peterboro protest.

"Since the inception of the Central League only three protests have ever been filed. All three have been filed by Peterboro. It is beginning to appear as if Peterboro will go to considerable length to secure a game A club that is out for the real sport of the game will either win or lose on the field. If they are beaten, all right, if they win, hurray for us. But Solomon, etc., after losing a game on the field adjourn to the committee room and argue it back again.

When an umpire is placed on the official list, he is considered by the officials to be competent to judge a ball game and until his decisions are taken as final the league will never be a success. An umpire is the boss on the field, and if his decisions are to be disputed his job is a farce. Base Umpire Henderson at the meeting yesterday declared as before that the Peterboro runner never touched second base before he was put out, wasn't within a foot of it, in fact.

The Post is wrong as usual. There have been four protests Since the Central League was formed, two by Peterboro, one by Oshawa and one by Belleville. As both Peterboro's protests were successful it is evident they were justified.

As for the contention that 'if the umpire's decisions are to be disputed his job is a farce" the answer seems to be fairly obvious that umpires, who do not know the rules of baseball should not be appointed The decision on which the Petes based their protest was utterly wrong and as long as umpires are going contrary to the rule book they can expect arguments from the Petes at least and from any other league teams who know the rules—they don't all know them by any means.

The Gun Club had a nice turn out for their shoot yesterday afternoon and some fine scores were made, considering the wind.

F. Worden of Oshawa, made a straight in the 20 bird event and carried off first prize. His shooting, along with the rest of the squad from Oshawa was good. E. V. Eldridge of Peterboro, and N. Gay of Oshawa tied in the sweepstakes at 25 birds and divided 1st and 2nd moneys. Percy Spence won third, and Chas. Tanner and Chris Graham were tied for the fourth.

Percy Spence of Lakfield won the first 15 bird event with Chas. Mills second and F. Worden third.

Chas. Mills won the cuff links for the winner's prize in event Number two at 15 birds and C. Worden won second with Roy Hutchison third.

The 20 bird event was won by F. Worden with P. Spence 2nd and E. V. Eldridge third.

The committee in charge of the shoot wish to thank the members who donated prizes. The arrangements were good and all the gunners enjoyed the afternoon's sport.

C.G.E. WON GHARITY CUP GAME FROM WOOLENS BY 1 TO 2

Through a goal secured by "Ted" Bartley when Hensby slipped in saving, the C.G.E. won a game that was more featured by the Canadian Woolens at the Nicholls Oval last night when they encountered the Woolens in the original first round for the Charity Cup donated by Rev. C. J. Phelan. The Woolens had the margin on the play, but through poor shooting and the fine defence of Griffin and McDonald, the right full back, the C.G.E. were the winners. Time and again it seemed inevitable that the Woolens would even up ,for their right, Beard and Harold Jones, were going unusually strong, but the Woolens rooters were all doomed to disappointment for the C.G.E. citadel was a mark that eluded their best shots.

After Bartley had shoved in the C.G.E. tally in the first fifteen minutes of play it was the Woolens game, with occasional bursts of speed by the Generals. Early in the second period the Woolens had a penalty kick off Marsh handling the ball, but "Mat' Shaw sent the ball flying high above Griffin. Continuing to press the C.G.E. hard, Harold Jones came within an inch of scoring when he placed a hot shot against C.G.E.'s left goal post. The ball bounced out and was returned by "Jim" Shaw from another vantage point, but nicely saved by Griffin. J. Shaw had another opening just before the last whistle rang out when his brother passed to him on a free kick. He kicked over and in kicking received a punt in the abdomen that laid him out for the remaining few minutes of play. J. L. Howarth was refree. The line-ups were:

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE ALLEN.

A DANGEROUS THING.

Is a Little Knowledge, According to Miss Terry, Who Cites an Example.

Miss Ethel Grey Terry, who plays the part of Mary Chartres in 'Habit,' the super-society drama to be seen at the Allen Theatre to-day, tells the following story on an illiterate provision dealer who has made millions and has read up on Guatemala in order to have something to talk about. After describing its climate and scenery, a la Encyclopedia Brittanica, someone asked him if the natives are bellicose. "Only the fat ones," he replied.

NATURE FORESTALLED HER.

The Wife Could Not Do What Her Husband Accused Her Of Trying to Do.

Emmet C. King, who essays the role of Richard Fletcher in "Habit," the society drama at the Allen Theatre to-day, quotes a conversation he heard between a man and his wife The husband can't find his tools which he has misplaced and barks:

"Some one is trying to make a fool of me. You can't do it; I've held this job too long!"

"Yes. Too long!" said the wife with a sigh.

AT THE REGENT.

NEW PICTURE A GEM OF DRAMATIC FORCE

One of the most intensely dramatic photodramas that it has been our pleasure to see for so metime, is current at the Regent Theatre, where Wiliam Russell in "The Iron Rider," produced by William Fox, from a story by Frank L. Packard, began an engagement last night.

The suspense grips one at the very outset and increases in intensity as the pictures progresses. In our view this photodrama contains enough interesting entanglements to make half a dozen ordinary pictures. Russell's leading woman is pretty Vola Vale.

The picutre concerns a young lumber company foreman in a lawless town, who takes the oath of the Iron Rider band, organized thirty years before by his father, in order to put down lawlessness. His difficulties and his perils are serious; and the girl he loves is the daughter of the sheriff—the latter being in league with the lawbreakers.

How the boy clears himself in the eyes of his father of a supposed violation of the oath as an Iron Rider, escapes being lynched by a mob, and finally brings harmony to discordant elements that seem to defy human means, is startlingly told.

EXCELLENT BILL AT THE CAPITOL

The Capitol was filled last evening and had an excellent bill of entertainment. "The Making of a Rose Bowl," "A Day with Jack Dempsey," a rollicking comedy of a self-serve lunch room, and "Rozene," the little ten-year-old child wonder from London, England. This is a small, fair-haired little maiden who is blind-folded and asked to name the articles which Prof. Villars touches on his way through the audience. Her clear, precise little voice answered truthfully and instantaneously, and purses, rings, a coin dated 1918, a nail file, a parcel, etc., were named from the stage as her companion circulated rapidly through the balcony and main floor. The safety-pin which one evidently fore-minded gentleman had brought with him, the nose which she pronounced as being "Roman," the little boy whose cap still remained on his surprised head, the material of various articles and the initials thereon, were named by this small lady with unerring precision, in a surprising exhibit of mental telepathy.

Mary Miles Minter in "The Little Clown," as a small daughter of the circus has one of the most delightful roles of her career. The menagerie of animals, the daring bareback rider, the performing bears, camels and elephants are something different in the moving picture line, and the adventures of "Pat' in the world of the "big top," combined with a thrilling heart interest, make "The Little Clown" a very attractive picture.

HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP BATTLES

The history of the modern prize ring, generally considered to have started with the defeat of Paddy Ryan by John L. Sullivan at Mississippi City, Miss., February 7, 1882, may be divided roughly into two eras. The first, 20 years in length, ended when Jeffries stopped Bob Fitzsimmons for the second time on July 25, 1902, at San Francisco. "Jeff," having beaten all logical contenders, was starting down the list for the second time, preparatory to retiring and handing the title to Marvin Hart.

Sullivan's "reign" lasted 10 years, during which the "Boston boy" defended his title in two major bouts. His memorable 75-round battle with Jake Kilrain was the last championship contest fought in America with bare knuckles. The fight, one of the most bitter in the history of the American ring, was preceded about a year by Sullivan's 30-round draw with Charley Mitchell at Chantilly, France.

The introduction of gloves changed the game. It suited Corbett's style of fighting, and on September 7, 1892, "Gentleman Jim" was the victor over Sullivan in 21 rounds at New Orleans, La. Corbett's next important battle in which he successfully defended his title came when he stopped Charley Mitchell in three rounds at Jacksonville, Fla.

Then 'Ruby" Boby Fitzsimmons loomed up. "Fitz" met Corbett at Carson City, Nev., on March 17, 1897, and Corbett's supremacy was at an end. The heyday of Fitzsimmons, too, was comparatively short. He met James J. Jeffries in a Coney Island ring on June 9, 1899, and a new champion was enthroned who was to meet the greatest man of his day and retire undefeated until coaxed out of retirement.

Jeffries beat Fitzsimmons in 11 rounds. On November 3, 1899, "Jeff" won a referee's decision over Tom Sharkey at Coney Island in 25 rounds. In 1902, the big Californian heeded Fitzsimmon's demands for a return match and again stopped the lanky Cornishman, this time in eight rounds at San Francisco.

It was another battle of champions when Jeffries met Corbett at San Francisco a year later. Again Jeffries was invincible, knocking out "Gentleman Jim" in 10 rounds. After stopping Jack Munroe in two rounds at San Francisco in 1904, Jeffries retired, handing the title to Marvin Hart after the latter had defeated Jack Root in 12 rounds at Reno, Nev. That paved the way for the conquest of Tommy Burns the following year, bringing fistic history down to the present era.

Jim Corbett's ambition continued to function long after Bob Fitzsimmons took the heavyweight championship away from him. His desire to regain the lost laurels got him into pecks of trouble, the trouble being furnished by James J. Jeffries.

Jeffries was the champion and Corbett, who had relinquished the honor six and a half years before, bucked up against the battling blacksmith with heavy odds against him.

It was a one-sided fight, staged in Mechanic's Pavillion at San Francisco on August 14, 1903. Jeffries with his 225 pounds subdued his 185-pound adversary in the 10th round, the challenger's seconds throwing the sponge into the ring while their hero was being counted out.

It was not the first time Corbett had bowed before Jeffries. In the fourth round he was toppled to the floor under an onslaught of rights and lefts and again in the sixth there was contact between his knees and the carpet for nine counts.

The blow, which finally settled Corbett's aspirations, was a fearful one, jammed against his stomach with tremenduous force.

There was much sympathy with Corbett's effort to come back. He had been a popular champion in spite of many reversals.

In or out of the ring Corbett had an agreeable personality which won for him many friends and the well-known title, "Gentleman Jim."

BURGLARS STOLE CAR.

PORT HOPE, June 24.—It was not until Tuesday morning that Miss Benson, Dorset street, discovered that thieves were in possession of her large McLaughlin car instead of the garage men whom she expected were repairing the auto. It appears that burglars gained an entrance to her private garage Sunday night and made off with the car, the absence of which on Monday morning Miss Benton attributed to her orders that it be taken and repaired by a local auto repair firm. Finding her mistake on Tuesday, she immediately notified the police of the robbery, and Chief Colwill Wednesday located the car on a side road east of Cobourg, where it had been abandoned.

WESTCLOX HIT TWO PITCHERS HARD AND DEFEAT CRESSMAN'S BY 17 TO 4

DOUGHTY PITCHED STEADY GAME FOR CLOCK-MAKERS AND ALSO HIT WELL.

Westclox knocked "Al" Wade out of the box, and gave Freddy Scates a bad mauling when they defeated Cressman's at Riverside Park last evening by the score of 17 to 4. It was a stiff set-back to the store nine. By playing at their form of last evening, the clock-makers should win the second half of the Mercantile League as they now have two wins. Their remaining game is with Barrie's.

Wade started the game for Cressman's, but the big fellow had nothing but good intentions. He retired to the garden in the second with two gone and six runs against him. Scates pitching to Legros retired the side and held Westclox to a pair of runs in three innings. Then a miscellaneous shower of hits, boots, passed balls and wild pitches gave the Big Ben crowd nine runs.

Al. Doughty lived up to expectations and twirled a steady and effective game. With the willow he helped a lot. In four out of five times at bat he found men on the bags. His infield out scored a run in the first; his smash down third, which Sage failed to hold, scored two more in the second; he singled to left in the third and later scored on a passed ball; a single in the sixth made another brace of runs, and when Long missed his fly in the seventh two more runs counted. Prosser gave him fine support behind the batters and he also hit well, his long drive in the first starting the run-getting. Two singles drove in as many runs.

Bergoine returned to the game with Cressman's, but it was apparent he was not in the best of shape, following a leg injury. Usually reliable as a hitter he went through the game without a hit.

The game by innings:

First Innings.

Lundy beat out a biff to Bartley, C. Wolff singled, and Prosser doubled to left, scoring Lundy. H. Wolff also hit, scoring his brother. While Doughty was being thrown out at first H. Wolff scored. Legros was passed. Theobald hit into right, Scates throwing out H. Wolff at the plate. Henry fanned. Three runs.

Doughty hit Scates with the first pitched ball. Wade grounded to Lundy, who touched Scates going into second and doubled Wade at first. Bergoine skied to H. Wolff.

Second Innings.

Powell singled into left and Lundy was safe on a waft down third. C. Wolff grounded to Sage, who threw out Lundy at second. Prosser hit to Powell, and when H. Wolff sent a high fly to middle, Head dropped the ball after a run. Sage failed to handle Doughty's drive down third, C. Wolff and Prosser going home. H. Wolff went out going into third. Wade was relieved by Scates, the former going to right field. Legros, the first batter to face Scates, grounded out, Bartley to Cobb. Three runs.

Head shot a drive over the shortstop and stole. Long fanned. Bartley drew a pass. The runners made third and second, and Head scored on Cobb's out at first, Lundy handling a hard drive. Sage struck out. One run.

Third Innings.

Westclox failed to do anything with Scates in the third. Theobald flew out to Cobb. Henry was deadheaded, and then thrown out by Bergoine, going into second. Bartley threw out Powell.

Graham hit the first one down first, Legros stopping the runner. Scates drove the ball to the left field flag for two bases. Wade singled into short right. Henry returned the ball to head Scates off, Doughty relaying to Prosser and getting the runner at the plate. It was a nice play. Bergoine flew out to C. Wolff.

Fourth Innings.

Lundy grounded out, Sage to Cobb. C. Wolff was safe on Sage's error and he stole, also making third and scoring on a passed ball while Scates was working on Prosser. The latter grounded out and H. Wolff fanned. One run.

Cressman's came strong in their half. Head hit to middle. C. Wolff got the range and then lost the ball in the sun. Head making second base. Long hit over short and Bartley was passed, filling the bases. Cobb hit to Lundy, who, instead of making sure of an out at first, threw to the plate, and as is usually the case the runner was safe. It's the wrong play when you have a lead of six runs. Then Prosser gave Cressman's another run when he threw to third to get Long. Powell missed the ball in the sun and Long ambled home. But the presentation didn't bother Doughty. He fanned Sage and Graham. Scates, with two and three on him, was passed. Prosser went after a hard foul fly from Wade and got it, retiring the side. Two runs.

Fifth Innings.

Doughty singled into short left and stole second. Legros flew out to Graham and when Bergoine dropped the third strike on Theobald, and was forced to throw to first, Doughty went to third, scoring on a wild pitch. Henry bounced in front of the plate and Bergoine sniffed him at first. One run.

Bergoine almost upset Legros with a drive, the fielder beating the runner to the bag. Head beat out a hit to short. He was forced by Long. The latter stole second and scored when Bartley hit into left, Theobald letting the ball get away. The pitcher threw out Cobb. One run.

Sixth Innings.

Henry flew out to left. Lundy started the clock-makers on the rampage by singling to left. C. Wolff was hit. Prosser's single to left scored Lundy. H. Wolff was passed, filling the sacks. Doughty hit in two runners, and with Legros at bat a wild pitch and a passed ball gave Westclox two more runs. Legros finally fanned. Theobald was safe when Barley failed to handle his grounder. Henry ended it by striking out. Five runs.

C. Wolff pulled Legros off the bag, allowing Sage the base. Prosser got it back by throwing Sage out at second. Graham missed three. Scates beat out an infield hit and then went out going into third when Wade grounded to Lundy.

Seventh Innings.

Powell singled, and when Lundy dumped a slow one down third he made the bag. C. Wolff hit to Sage, who touched Powell. Lundy went out via the same route on Prosser's grounder. H. Wolff hit for a base. Doughty hit a high one over short into left, Long losing the ball. C. Wolff and Prosser scored on the play. With Herb Wolff at third and Doughty at second, Bergoine threw to the middle sack, Wolff scoring. Legros hit Doughty home and Theobald fanned. Four runs.

H. Wolff threw out Bergoine, and Doughty stopped Head on a tap to the box. Lundy fumbled Long's grounder but nothing developed, as Bartley hit to the pitcher, who threw to first and the game was over.

LAWN BOWLING

Defeated Newmarket.

Three rinks of Newmarket Bowlers, who are touring Eastern Ontario visited us on Tuesday night and played three of our own rinks with the following result:

Newmarket	Peterborough
Broughton 20	Bowes 21
Fergus 10	McCusker 25
Binns 13	Cairns 16
43	62

While the local rinks won in each case the games were very closely contested and were much enjoyed by the players, and a good crowd of spectators. After the games the visitors were banqueted at Hooper's parlours and a very enjoyable time was spent. On the following morning the visitors were taken in hand by the Chamber of Commerce who took them around the city and showed them the chief places of interest. Before leaving for Lindsay they expressed their delight at what they had seen and assured us that Peterborough was one of the most beautiful and one of the most progressive cities they have ever visited. Altogether they thoroughly enjoyed their visit.

Next week the following schedule games will be payed.

SCOTSMEN BLANK VANCOUVER 3-0

TERM IT BEST GAME OF TOUR THUS FAR.

VANCOUVER, June 24.—(Canadian Press.)— In what some of the visitors described as the best game of their tour, the Scottish professional soccer team last night defeated Vancouver picked team of amateurs for the second time. The score was 3 to 0. Both teams put up a splendid exhibition of football.

The visitors showed more keenness than in their first game here last Saturday.

GETTING FED UP ON THIS OVERSEAS SERVICE EXCUSE.

ST. CATHARINES, June 21. — Jonathan Fuller was given six months in prison by Magistrate Campbell to-day for holding up and robbing two men in an automobile one night recently. Fuller said he merely as a joke, flashed a shaving-soap container, and the two men handed over their money.

Fuller's lawyer made a plea for leniency on the ground that Fuller is a returned soldier, whereupon Crown Attorney Brennan retorted that it struck him they were getting fed up on this overseas service plea.

"Service in the army should be a guide to good citizenship, in that a man learns disipline. It should be no excuse for crime," said he.

WHALES NEAR ST. JOHN.

ST. JOHN, N. B., June 22.—Yesterday sharks and to-day whales figure in the harbor news of St. John. Harry Belyea of West St. John said this morning that within the past few days he saw three whales near the entrance of the harbor. One, he said, was fully 40 feet long, and the other two smaller.

ALEXANDRIA SWEPT BY FIRE; MANY ARE HOMELESS IN WAKE

DISTRICT ABOUT HALF A MILE SQUARE DESTROYED YESTERDAY.

ALEXANDRIA, June 24.—(Canadian Press.)—Breaking out from a cause unknown yesterday afternoon a disastrous fire swept the southeast section of this town, destroyed 21 frame dwelling houses and one store and rendered as many families homeless. With such rapidity did the flames make thier way through the district, which is known as Johnstown, that firemen were utterly unable to cope with them.
The section swept by the fire is about half a mile long and about as wide.
The residents of the dwellings were mostly French-Canadian factory workers and in almost every case lost all the contents along with their homes.
The homeless families are being cared for by a Citizen's committee.

VOL. XLIX., No. 148 PETERBOROUGH, SATURDAY, JUNE 25, 1921 PRICE THREE CENTS

ST. LAWRENCE-TO-SEA WATERWAY WOULD COST $250,000,000 AND FALL CAN GIVE 1,700,000 H.P.

JOINT INTERNATIONAL REPORT SIGNED AT DETROIT LAST NIGHT FAVOURS SCHEME WHICH WOULD COMBINE FOUR METHODS SUGGESTED AND PRODUCE POWER DOUBLE THAT OF NIAGARA

WOULD ALLOW OCEAN-GOING SHIPS TO REACH GREAT LAKES, OPENING UP INLAND COUNTRY

(Exclusive to The Examiner. Copyright, 1921, by Francis Osborne, Jr., of The Detroit Times. All rights reserved.)

DETROIT, June 25.—The Joint International report on the St. Lawrence-Great Lakes to the Sea Waterway, signed here on Friday night by the Canadian and American Commissioners, states that the whole project of providing an ocean-going steamship waterway from Lake Ontario to Montreal can be built for approximately $250,000,000, and that 1,700,000 horse-power from the water fall can be developed at the 10 locks planned.

The report was signed by Col. W. P. Weston, representing the United States, and W. A. Bowden, Chief Engineer of the Dominion Department of Railways and Canals for Canada.

It is to be forwarded to the International Commissioners at Ottawa and Washington next week.

The waterway planned in the report is approximately 120 miles long from a point opposite Prescott, Ontario, and Ogdensburg, N.Y., at the northern tip of Lake Ontario, to Montreal.

It provides for the passage of ocean-going steamships as far west as Chicago and Duluth.

Plans are submitted for waterways of two different depths, 25 feet and 30 feet, the latter being favoured, with four schemes for the improvement given:

1—By means of locks and navigation dams in the river.

2—By means of locks and side canals.

3—By a combination of the two preceding methods.

4—By means of locks and power dams.

The system favoured in the report is a combination of all four plans, by which more than twice the power now developed at Niagara Falls, which now produces approximately 700,000 horse-power, can be developed. This water power would pay for the whole project within a few years, the report says.

The estimate of the cost given above is an average of the several estimates for the different methods and represents labor and material costs of the present time, about 80 per cent. over pre-war prices.

One-Fifth of Cooper Estimate.

An interesting comparison of the official government estimates with a report submitted to the International Commission by Q. L. Cooper last year, shows the government estimate of $250,000,000 to be about one-fifth of the Cooper estimate, which was $1,200,000,000; the Cat Island dam project, located about 25 miles down stream from Lake Ontario, which was suggested by Cooper, had an estimated cost greater than the entire International project, or $300,000,000. Two imoprtant canals cutting off large bends in the river at Iroquois, Ontario, and Morrisburg, Ontario, are projected in the drawings. These are to be an average of 300 feet wide at the bottom and will be entirely separate from the present canals around rapids at these points. It is at these points and at Lake St. Louis that the principal power development plants are to be located.

One of the most favored plans calls for 48 power units of 40,000 horse power, each developing about one-third of the theoretical power of the St. Lawrence, said to be about 500,000 horse power. The ten locks provide for an average fall of 30 feet each. The total fall from Lake Ontario to Montreal is 225 feet.

Power is Secondary.

Regulations of the levels of Lake Ontario and the discharge of the St. Lawrence river are provided in the plans. The report states that the navigation interests are paramount in the plans. The power development is coincidental and secondary to the passage of ocean going vessels to and from the Great Lakes.

The capital costs of the development and maintenance of the waterway, which can now be regarded as anaccepted fact acording to the engineers, is divided between the United States and Canada. The improvement, according to the report, will have each country hundreds of millions of dollars annually.

An important consideration in the report is the effect the project will have in increasing the low water flow in the St. Lawrence ship canal. It is said the regulation of the discharge of Lake Ontario will prevent some of the trouble found there at present.

The report, survey and estimates have consumed more than one and one-half year's of work by a large staff of American and Canadian engineers. There are 64 six foot square drawings and several hundred sheets of manuscript.

MILTON, Ont., June 25.—(Canadian Press). — It is rumored in Halton that Premier Drury will enter the arena of Federal polltics and run as a candidate for the House of Commons in this county at the next general elections. Halton farmers have followed the advice of the Premier and will call themselves the People's Progressive Party.

If he runs for the Federal seat there will be a three-cornered fight, with Dr. Anderson, the present Government member, as one candidate, and probably a Liberal as another.

Dr. Anderson, M.P., stated yesterday that Premier Meighen had accepted an invitation to speak here in August. Preparations are being made for a big reception to the Prime Minister.

OTTAWA, June 25.— (Canadian Press.) — Statistics recently compiled by the Department of Labor here showed that at the close of May last the cost of necessaries of life in Canada was considerably less than in the previous December, but was still 72 per cent. higher than in December, 1913.

FEDERAL AND PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENTS WITH FRENCH ARMY GUARD OF HONOR MEET MARSHAL.

MONTREAL, June 25.—(Canadian Press).—Met at the C. P. R. Station by representatives of the Federal and Provincial Governments, and by a guard of honor, consisting of about fifty French army veterans Marshall Fayolle, with a distinguished French Mission, arrived in Montreal, this morning, from New York. There was also large gathering of citizens present to welcome the mission and the concourse at station around nine 'clock presented a very official aspect.

A busy day awaits the party, for their programme includes no less than six receptions, three vists to academic institutions, a drive round the Mountain and city and a demonstration in Lafontaine Park. They leave to-morrow morning for Quebec City.

Accompanying the distinguished visitors were Hon. C. J. Doherty, representing the prime minister of Canada, Senator Beaubien, and Senator R. Dandurand. Shortly after ten o'clock the visitors proceeded to the city hall where they were tendered an official welcome to the city by Mayor Martin, who pointed out that the large French population of Mnotreal formed a strong bond of sympathy between it and the French Republic represented by the notable members of the delegation.

BRISK BUYING ON LOCAL MARKET

Each market day finds more garden produce on the market, and today there was plenty of it, and it sold readily. There was a small outside market but a fairly large basket market.

Business for the vegetable men was good and most of them were not long in disposing of their early supplies of carrots, beets and green peas. Green peas sold at two qts. for 25c at a birsk rate, and soon every basket was emptied.

Beets and carrots sold at 10c a bunch; nice heads of cauliflowers were on the market this morning, and this vanguard of the season sold from 20 to 40 cents a head. There were plenty of lettuce and green onions at 5 cents a bunch.

Old Potatoes.

Selling old potatoes seemed to be as hopeless a job as ever to most of the farmers. Fifty cents was the prevailing price per bag.

Like the dear old pals they are butter and eggs stuck on the same price to-day — 33 cents. Chickens did not have such a high opinion of themselves, and young and old birds alike brought only 30c a pound.

CENTRAL PARK.

The Gospel song service to-morrow will include "Tell Me the Old, Old Story," "Peace, Perfect Peace," "When the Roll is Called," a male duet, "There Was One Who Was Willing," also a mixed quartette, "Have You Read the Story." Service at 8.15 sharp.

PROGRESS MADE IN FIRST WEEK UNAPPRECIABLE

DISCUSSION OF UNDERLYING PRINCIPLES OF POLICY FEATURED IMPERIAL CONFERENCE SESSIONS.

BRITAIN CHEERFUL IN FACE OF GREAT CRISIS

(By Grattan O'Leary — (Canadian Press Staff Correspondent).

LONDON, June 25. — The first week of the Empire Congress closed Friday without having made much progress toward the disposal of the practical problems with which it has to deal. This week's sessions, indeed, have been entirely absorbed by reviews and discussions of the principles presently dictating the foreign policy of the Empire. Such discussion, of course, has been necessary, inasmuch as it was essential that the statesmen of the Dominions should be thoroughly informed of the international position as viewed by the Foreign Office before attempting to deal with, and determine, matters of high policy, or even to offer constructive criticism and advice respecting the policies to be pursued in the future.

Meanwhile, the British people are passing through a severe test, news from Ireland continues gloomy, the industrial situation is bad, four million people are unemployed, and the worst drought in a quarter of a century threatens the nation with a tremendous loss. Despite all this, the people remain amazingly cheerful. The same spirit which triumphed in the darkest days of the war is proving similarly invincible in the crises of peace.

GAVE RECITAL

Before a large audience, at the Conservatory of Music Hall last evening, the piano pupils of Miss Bessie Elcome gave a most interesting recital. The different numbers were rendered in a manner creditable to the careful training of the teacher and the close attention paid by the pupils to technique and tone. Miss Lillian Eastwood, soprano, sang "Hearts of Gold" very charmingly. Those taking part in the programme were as follows: Hazel Davidson, Mary Bulmer, Ether Smiedmore, Eva Barringer, Gwendolyn Lucas, Olive Manley, Gracie Abbott, Helen Jones, Margaret Walker, Muriel Wilson, Margaret Reid, Agnes Graham, May Johnston, May Wood, Georgia Hardill, Gladys Walker, Dorothy Hoey, Margaret Johnston, Isobel Carter, Alda Bartlett, Dorothy White, Blanche Abbott, Amy Fairbrother, Madeline Willis, Mary Mulholland, Frances McFadden, Miss Claire Mason, Eva Elliott and Helen Lamb, Arleigh McKone ,Kenneth Wilson, Gordon Wray, Jim Wilson, Everett Sisson, George Huffman and Leonard Rambo.

At the conclusion of the recital Miss Bessie Elcome was presented with two beautiful bouquets of flowers from Eva Barringer and Margaret Walker.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, June 25.—(Canadian Press). — The settlement of short contracts over the week-end probably accounted for the further recovery of prices in the Stock Market at the opening of to-day's short session. Oils, Rails and Steels were the most benefited by this process. Mexican Petroleum, General Asphalt, Royal Dutch and Cosden rose 1 to 1 3-4 points. Transcontinentals, Grangers and Coalers were higher by fractions to 1 point. Bethlehem and Crucible threw off some of their recent heaviness and Mercantile Marine Preferred, yesterday's weakest feature, rallied 1¼ points. Sears-Roebuck, Retail Stores and U. S. Rubber were among the firm specialties.

SPECIAL SERVICE FOR INMATES OF HOME.

The inmates of the Protestant Old People's Home will worship at Trinity Church to-morrow morning. Several members of the church have offered their cars to bring them to the service and take them again to the home. The Rev. F. E. Malott, pastor of the church, will preach. Mrs. King will sing.

Britain, remarks some one, is a bit of land entirely surrounded by hot water. Germany, it might be added just now, is a country presenting enormous bluffs on every side.—San Francisco Chronicle.

CITY AUDITOR TO MAKE DETAILED REPORT ON THE UTILITIES BOOKS

Ald. Joseph Crowe has found out where the Peterborough Utilities Commission has fomented trouble amongst its water-users—in not requiring the city auditors to make a detailed statement of the Commission.

The statement of the city takes up 70 printed pages, the City Trust Commission give out six pages of detail, the Collegiate Institute have seven, and the Public Schools' statements fill 10 pages; yet the Waterworks statements, not in detail, cover two and a half pages, and the Hydro-Electric two pages.

"The citizens want information. I don't see why they should not get it. If we had had detailed statements of the Waterworks and Hydro-Electric, the people would be better satisfied."

Ald. Turner agreed with Ald. Crowe. Other members acquiesced, and a motion was put through that the city auditor be instructed hereafter to make a detailed report on the books of the Utilities Commission.

Salary Fixed.

One by-law was passed last night. Dr. T. W. H. Young's salary was fixed by by-law at $600.00 as city physician, and $1,400.00 as M.O.H.

MINERS AND OWNERS MEET TO SETTLE COAL STRIKE; BELIEVE TENTATIVE AGREEMENT LIKELY

FAILURE OF MINERS TO SECURE SUPPORT OF OTHER UNIONS TO ENFORCE MUTUAL DEMANDS INFLUENCED DECISION TO MEET OWNERS.

HOPE GOVERNMENT WILL RENEW SUBSIDY OFFER

LONDON, June 25.—Leaders of the Britih Miner Federation met with representatives of British Mine Owners to-day for the purpose of taking steps to end the coal strike. There was a general belief early today that before the meeting was concluded some sort of agreement would be reached which would permit the miners to return immediately to the pits.

The decision to re-open negotiations was reached at a meeting of the executive committee of the miners Union last night. This step was influenced by the failure of the miners to secure financial support from other unions and the reluctance of other labor organizations to join with the miners in enforcing their mutual demands. It was indicated that the representative of the government might be present at today's meeting, and it was hoped the government might renew its offer to grant the ten milion pound subsidy to the coal industry.

LONDON, June 25. (Canadian Press.) Both the striking coal miners and the mine owners have accepted an invitation extended to-day by the prime minister to confer with him at the Board of Trade on Monday with a view of endeavouring to reach a settlement of the coal strike, which has now been in progress almost three months.

BROCKVILLE PLANS $40,000 MEMORIAL

BROCKVILLE, June 25. — (Canadian Press). — Plans for the erection of a $40,000 war memorial building here were launched at a meeting of representative citizens and war veterans last night.

VACATIONISTS SPENDING HERE

MANY CANADIANS SPENDING HOLIDAYS IN CANADA AND THUS KEEPING MONEY AT HOME.

OTTAWA, June 25.—(Canadian Press).—Canadians in ever increasing numbers are this year taking advantage of the holiday possibilities of the Canadian National Parks, according to the Dominion Park Commissioner. It is expected that the tourist travel to the parks will this year set a new high level. Already hundreds of Canadians have spent their holidays in the National Parks, and, in addition, far greater numbers of American tourists are this year coming to Canada.

The unfavorable exchange situation is causing a great many Canadians to spend their holidays in Canada.

LIGHTNING PRANK IN EMILY TOWNSHIP HOME

Lightning gave one of its strange and inexplicable demonstrations during a storm on Thursday in the home of J. J. Lintick, Lot 19, Concession 3, Emily Township. Mrs. Lintick was placing a kettle on the stove when the lightning flashed into the room, apparently in the form of a ball of fire. It whirled the kettle out of Mrs. Lintick's hands and blew off the top of it. At that moment Mr. Lintick had opened the door to enter the kitchen. The glaring light blinded him for a minute or two, but neither he nor his wife suffered in the least from their experience. The ball of fire, as Mr. Lintick describes it, seemed to burst in the room and disappear across the room through the kitchen wall, which caught fire. Three pails of water extinguished the blaze.

JOHN M'DONALD WAS FINED $50

On the charge of reckless driving on the Chemong Road on Sunday night, John Macdonald was found guilty by Magistrate O. A. Langley in County Police Court to-day and fined $50 and costs.

Magistrate Langley found that Macdonald was driving immoderately. He placed considerable emphasis on the fact that accused was driving down grade, and he placed weight on the evidence of Harold Archer and Mable Grant, that the car was travelling at an excessive speed. The fact that the position of the two cars failed to show an excessive speed was, according to Magistrate Langley, due to the fact that Macdonald put on his brakes farther up the road than he said he did, where Magistrate Langley believed he first saw McKee, and was therefore only travelling about 15 or 20 miles an hour when the two cars struck.

COUNCIL NIPS MOVE FOR USE OF CONCRETE

ATTEMPT OF ALD. GORDON AND ALD. CROWE TO HAVE SOUTH GEORGE PAVED THUS ENDS IN FAILURE.

PLEAD NECESSITY FOR DRASTIC CIVIC ECONOMY

An attempt by Ald. G. N. Gordon, supported by Ald. J. Crowe and Ald. N. Phelan, to have George street south paved with concrete instead of bithulithic, failed in Council last night. In the Board of Works' report it was recommended "that the contract for paving George street from the C.P.R. to Romaine street with bitulithic on a five inch concrete base be offered to the Warren Bitumnous Paving Co. at the quantity prices in their tender."

Ald. F. Whitehouse moved, seconded by Ald. R. Jones, the adoption of the report.

Wanted Concrete.

Ald. Gordon moved an amendment that all the words after Romaine street be struck out and substituted with the word, "with concrete, according to the City Engineer's specifications," and that the lowest tender for the work be accepted. Ald. Gordon followed up the amendment with a criticism of the suggestion of putting a costly pavement on that part of the city. Ald. Gordon said the road was not excessively travelled and most of the adjacent land belonged to the government or was vacant. He strongly opposed putting down any kind of pavement but concrete because of the acute financial straits this city is getting into.

Debenture Debt.

To explain this serious situation he read the following figures: City's present debenture indebtedness $3,324,582.22; city's tax rate, 36.3; 1914 debenture indebtedness, $1,796,890.06; 1914 tax rate, 26 mills; 1914 Board of Education debentures, $309,419.88; 1921 Board of Education debentures, $572,697.76; 1914 Board of Education rate, 9.75 mills; 1921 Board of Education rate, 12.92 mills.

It strikes me it's time to call a halt. I think that pavement is too expencive. Ald. Gordon commended Ald. Crowe's suggestion that the city lay the pavement itself under the City Engineer.

Ald. Crowe said he knew where the city could get a second-hand mixer for $1,500 and went on to support his contention that the city should do the paving job itself.

Objected to Concrete.

City Engineer Parsons again protested against paving George street with concrete.

Ald. G. L. Hay supported the best navement for George street, and Ald. Jones believed in relying on Mr. Parson's reports. Concrete in his opinion would not stand up as well.

On the grounds of a saving of $7,000, Alderman Phelan stood out for a concrete pavement, supporting Ald. Gordon. "Everybody's got their tax bills and are kicking," he said. "I think right now with the debenture debt where it is it would warrant us putting down the cheaper pavement."

Mayor McIntyre—"I'm not in favour of paving with concrete or anything else. The majority of people don't want it. I feel very serious over this. I think we are going too fast. I think we should cut the whole thing out."

After Ald. Whitehouse had spoken strongly on not prejudicing Hydro-Electric against the city there was added to both the original motion and the amendment these words: "Providing the Hydro-Electric Commission insist on the work being done this year." This rider indicates that the majority of the Council are not anxious to go ahead with the paving, and if the Hydro do not insist there will be no paving this year from the present outlook.

Ald. Gordon lost his amendment, Aldermen Whitehouse, Jones, Turner and Hay supporting the original decision on bitulithic.

THE CHAUTAUQUA

The Gilvan Light Opera Singers entertained the audience for the Chautauqua performance yesterday afternoon and evening. This is a group of talented artists, and their performance was enthusiastically received. Two merry little numbers from "The Madcap Duchess" and "Rob Roy," an Indian love song with sweet rippling minor strains, the Barcarolle from "The Tales of Hoffman," and two brilliant solos from the clever pianist, Mr. Harrison W. Burch, were rendered in the afternoon, and the evening's programme consisted of a number of repeatedly-encored vocal solos from the different members, two selections from "Madame Butterfly" in costume by Miss Martha Cooke, soprano, and Miss Hazel Huntley, contralto, and a short version of "Ruddygore," with the two lady vocalists, Mr. Joseph Kendrick, tenor, and Mr. Tom Morris, baritone. The four members of the quartette have beautiful voices, which blend in harmonious melody, and the pianist, a true artist with simple, unaffected style, was listened to with rapt attention in his rendition of Liszt's "Second Hungarian Rhapsodie."

In the afternoon, Major Arthur E. Runnells, of Montreal, delivered a striking address on "Sea Power and World Freedom,' dwelling on the part played by the English navy in winning the world war, in transporting men, ammunition and supplies from every corner of the Empire to the battle front in France, and describing the different classes of British shipping, from the small fishing smacks to the mighty Dreadnoughts, which swept the seas for mines, hunted for submarines and escorted ships, in the days of the mighty struggle.The month of November, 1918, was described as having furnished the largest contribution of events to world history of any similar cycle of days in the annals of time, and Major Runnels gave a detailed description of the surrender of the German fleet to the English navy.

"Only that nation which had men at its head of the highest moral and spiritual character could have passed safely through the storm," declared the speaker, instancing Mr. Lloyd George, Admiral Sims, Sir Douglas Haig and General Byng as examples, and "the great need of this hour is a clear and friendly understanding between the United States and Great Britain. What Great Britain wants to-day is such an understanding as will enable her to protect upon the seas her great and far-flung Empire, and the eyes of the world of to-day are looking towards Great Britain and the United States to build a highway upon which the broken nations of the world may come into their own." The speaker closed with a tribute to the Union Jack, "that flag which is the symbol of an Empire mighty beyond precedent, which is the greatest exponent of liberty, democracy and tolerance we have in the world to-day, and of a navy which has given Great Britain the freedom of the seas."

To-night's programme includes a recital from Ferdinand Filion and assisting artists, with an illustrated lecture by Dr. Frederic Poole, "With Allenby in Palestine and Lawrence in Arabia."

Mill Hilda Kershaw, an English boy, aged nine, has just completed his second crossing of the Atlantic.

Mr. Arthur H. Smith has been elected the first Mayor of the new borough of Aldershot, England.

A small boy, on being fined 5s at Highgate, England, Police Court, said, "I protest and shall appeal."

A steamer unloaded 400 tons of French coal at Folkestone Harbour, England, without opposition of any kind.

Peterborough, England, scavengers are to be allowed, at the discretion of the surveyor, to smoke while at work.

SIMS OFFICIALLY REPRIMANDED FOR SPEECH RAPPING IRISH IN U.S. AND HYPHENATE ELEMENTS

"I GOT WHAT WAS COMING TO ME, I SPILLED THE BEANS," ADMIRAL TELLS NEWSPAPER MEN.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(Canadian Press.)— Rear Admiral Sims, President of the Naval War College at Newport, was yesterday publicly reprimanded by the Secretary of the Navy for having delivered what is officially regarded as "a highly improper speech in a foreign country" at the luncheon given at London by the English speaking Union on June 7 last.

The letter of reprimand will be published in the general orders of the navy and read at the next general muster of officers and enlisted men at all shore stations and on shipboard throughout the American Naval Service.

Immediately after receiving the letter which administered the reprimand, Admiral Sims went to the White House to pay a courtesy call on President Harding.

"I've been reprimanded," said the Admiral to newspapermen as he was leaving the White House. "I got what was coming to me. I spilled the beans."

MAKING A CENT GO FAR AS A QUARTER

NEW YORK, June 25.— A twenty-five cent piece placed in machines at Grand Central station will cause 24 one-cent stamps to come rolling out. So will a penny, after it has been run over by a trolley car. Four youngsters discovered this fact, and it was not long before the machines were being stripped of their stamps and in return the company operating them were receiving little of anything but flattened out one-cent pieces. An agent watched the boys dropping the coppers in, and they appeared in the children's court to-day.

CAMPBELLFORD DOUBLED THE SCORE ON HAVELOCK, 6 TO 3

PEPPERY GAME ON FRIDAY ATTRACTED BIG CROWD IN TRENT TOWN—HAVELOCK FADED IN LAST HALF.

(Special to the Examiner.)

CAMPBELLFORD, June 24. —In one of the snappiest lacrosse games ever played on local grounds, Campbellford Intermediates defeated Havelock this afternoon by the score of 6 to 3. The weather was ideal although rather warm and an exceptionally large crowd was present.

The attendance may be roughly estimated from the fact that nearly 300 automobiles were parked in and around the Exhibition grounds.Havelock sent over a numerous contingent, and for the first half of the game they saw their team get a shade the better of the play. The half time score was 3-2 in favor of the C.P.R. town crowd, but from that stage, Campbellford began to take the lead. They got two goals in the third quarter to Havelock's one, making the score 4-3.

The last final was decidedly Campbellford's. Powers let two goals get by while his team was held scoreless. The local defence played a splendid game. Big Tom Thomas had a great day, keeping the Havelock home out, and stopping many a rush. Pat Kelly in goal turned in a brilliant performance, blocking shots time and again. Harte was exceptionally effective among the home players, all of whom acquitted themselves splendidly.

For Havelock, Charlie Holmes and McGee in centre field, were in the midst of the fray all afternoon, and were the best of the visiting team.

The line up was as follows:

Powers	goal	P. Kelly
Hooper	point	T. Thomas
O'Brien	c. point	D. Mitchell
Wright	1st def.	Montgomery
Holmes	2nd def.	Gannon
McGee	centre	A. Jacobs
D. Brennan	2nd home	D. Graham
W. Brinkman	1st home	Hartt

8th—Harte, Campbellford.
9th—Jacobs, Campbellford.

The penalties were:

Brennan, 5 mins.; McGee and Haughton, each 5; Mitchell, 5; Gannon 5; Haughton 5; Gannon 5; Gannon, 10 mins; Thomas, 5; Kelly, 5 mins; Kerr and Holmes, each 5 mins; Rowe, 5 mins.

Jack Creighton of Peterboro, refereed the game satisfactorily. He was strict and managed to keep it clean. A flare up in the last quarter was precipitated by Holmes starting to mix it with Kerr . For a moment a general scrap seemed imminent, but the incident passed over without any serious outcome. It took five men to hold Jim Kerr until the flurry of excitement subsided.

FIFTY DURHAM FARMERS FOUND PLEASURE AND PROFIT IN OUTING

TOOK MOTOR TRIP THROUGH WESTERN ONTARIO, CAMPING OUT AT NIGHT, PROVIDING THEIR OWN MEALS AND VISITING FRUIT AND LIVE STOCK FARMS.

A group of Durham county farmers made a three day trip through Western Ontario last week that may become a model to be adopted and developed generally throughout Ontario. Everywhere farm work was suspended. Hay wasn't quite fit to cut and the grains were still green and lush. It was an interim of comparative idleness. A thoughtful gentleman named Patterson said to be associated with the Government agricultural bureau in Durham proposed a tour and more than fifty farmers jumped at the idea like school boys on an adventure.

They procured tents, improvised their own commissariat and started out on a short expedition of pleasure and instruction that proved all too brief. They visited fruit farms and orchards and called upon some of the foremost stock breeders in the western part of the province. When night overtook them they threw up their tents, choosing some desirable spot that appealed to their fancy, cooked their meals in the open and altogether had a thoroughly enjoyable three days. Mr. N. McGill's overseas experience proved valuable in the work of pitching and breaking camp. There was little or no work, no waiters to be tipped, but plenty of fresh air and the joy of getting back to nature,. And with that was the educational feature of the journey, which was so successful that it may became an anual affair, probably extending to other groups of farmers. The fleet of automobiles found good roads in many sections, and provided the essential advantage of travelling wherever these temporary nomads chose to go. The outing was quite a holiday, with one regret, that it lasted only three days.

PRICES OF CHEESE.

The experiment that is being tried out this season by United Dairymen Co-operative, Limited, of Peterborough, in holding weekly sales of cheese from Peterborough County, in Toronto, has been working out quite satisfactorily of late. This week the cheese of two Peterborough county factories, Myrtle of Ennismore, and Victoria of Havelock, were sold in Toronto at 16 1-2c. As the freight charges are lighter to Toronto than to Montreal auctions, of the company, this price proved a good one.

ASK TENTS FOR THE HOMELESS IN FIRE

OTTAWA, June 25.—(Canadian Press).—The fire which destroyed 30 buildings, mostly homes of working men, at Alexandria is suppose to have started in a barn from the great heat on a tar roof. About 20 families are homeless and application has been made by Mayor George Semon to the Department of Militia for tents. For the meantime the homeless are being cared for in public halls.

NO MORE JOBS IN CANADA FOR BRITISH-BORN

DOMINION HAS CANCELLED ITS ADVERTISING IN BRITAIN—POLICY OF CAUTION HENCEFORTH.

OTTAWA, June 25.—The Dominion goverenmnt has abandoned advertising in Great Britain because, without the expense incidental to it all the immigrants now desired are available. This is the reason assigned for the action, along with consideration of economy.

"It is unnecessary to advertise," stated a departmental authority today, "when, for the price of a cable saying the bars are let down, immigration will come in a-plenty."

Policy of Caution

The present policy in respect to immigration is one of caution at least until such time as the problem of re-establishment is disposed of and readjustment after the war is better accomplished. Farmers and farm help and domestics are always welcome, but while there is not a ban on others, no great encouragement is given an influx. Sixty thousand people came to Canada in the first two months of the present fiscal year. The official disposition is to exercise great care in the selection of immigration for some time.

Must be faced.

Eventually, however, and perhaps next year, the problem will have to be tackled in a broad way, because it is considered that only by extensive agricultural immigration and by labor designed for the development of natural resources can the war debt be wiped out, railway deficits eliminated and the national financial situation generally adjusted.

Assistance Unavailable

If financial conditions permitted of it, some form of assistance to settlers might be resorted to, but for the present this is out of the question.

TRENT ASSN. TO MEET TUESDAY

FIRST ANNUAL MEETING TO BE HELD IN ORILLIA.

On Tuesday, June 28, the first annual meeting of the Trent Waterways Development Association is to be held in Orillia and on City Clerk Armstrong's fyle last night there was an invitation to four members of the Council to be present, and assurance of others being welcomed if they could attend. Besides the communication there was a deputation of the vice-president, F. D. Kerr, and the sec retary, Len Fraser, who came before the Council with regard to a grant of $300 to the association to cover advertising and expenses this year.

First Year's Work.

The first year's work was largely taken up with organization, advertising and publicity for the Trent Waterways, Mr. Kerr said. The advertising and publicity had evidently got results, he said, for manifold inquiries about the waterways had been received from wealthy and prominent Americans in all parts of the States. The Dominion government had helped along the publicity work with motion pictures shown throughout the United States and Canada.

At the meeting a year ago the Association aimed at $900 being secured. Lindsay pledged $100, Orillia $300, Midland $200, Campbellford $50, Severn River Improvement Association $50, and Peterborough mentioned giving $200 this year as it did last, said Mr. Kerr. Advertising expenses for the year were $1,030 of which $30 is still to be paid, the speaker said and so the request for $300 from the Council was necessary to carry on the work. Mr. Kerr emphasized the financial benefit to this city if many wealthy Americans came to the lakes in the summer and Peterborough's industrial position would be shown them and new industries might possibly be attracted to Peterborough.

Mr. Fraser spoke briefly, corroborating what Mr. Kerr had said of the successful advertising and publicity campaign. He said he did not think Peterborough would want the Association asking Orillia for money when at the same time it is entertaining 100 delegates to the convention next week.

The Appropriation.

The City Clerk said there was $200 allowed in the appropriations for the Association.

Mr. Fraser said $800 was expended in salaries and office expenses this year that was paid by the local Chamber of Commerce. None of the city's money would be used in this way.

"I think if you get $200 you will do very well," said Ald. Crowe.

Supported Grant.

Ald. Whitehouse—I'm very sympathetic to this scheme. Peterborough has been too backward in the past. I think if we could find this extra $100 we would show Peterborough was appreciating the efforts of these men. It is just like paying for advertising ofr our own city."

Ad.l Gordon said he was willing to support it and commended highly the work of the association. He moved, seconded by Ald. Whitehouse, and it was carried, that a grant of $300 be made to the Trent Waterways Develoment Association.

Seeing they got the grant, Ald. Crowe said a saving could be effected in delegates.

"I didn't think we were going to send any?" questioned the Mayor.

The secretary of the Association went after the Mayor on this point. Orillia was sending 30 he said, and if Peterborough's four men guaranteed the city's moral support, the Association would rather have the four men and waive the $100 grant, he said.

To Send Deputation.

It was decided, though, to send a deputation, and after Mr. Kerr and Mr. Fraser had gone, Ald. Whitehouse, seconded by Ald. Jones, moved that a deputation be sent, consisting of Mayor McIntyre, Ald. Hamilton, Ald. Phelan and Ald. Crowe.

WOMEN WOULD FILE ON HOMESTEADS, NOW

Motion Presented at Session of Federated Women's Institute.

EDMONTON, Alta., June 25.—A motion urging the Federal Government to permit women to file on homesteads on the same basis as men was presented at a session of the Federal Women's Institute.

The sentiment of the meeting seemed to favor such a policy, and it is likely that a resolution to this effect will go forward. Since the war, it was pointed out, women have found they are quite capable of managing farm or business affairs and of doing manual labor. There was no reason why they should not be granted the privilege of acquiring land if they so desired. When a husband and wife together did the necessary work on a homestead the wife had a right to part possession of the land.

BISHOP OF TORONTO AT ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

KIWANIS MEET IN TORONTO IN 1922

COAL DIGGERS STRIKE NEARS END, THOUGHT

HORNE TELLS COMMONS SITUATION AT CRITICAL POINT AND APPEARS TO BE CHANCE OF SETTLEMENT.

LONDON, June 25.—(Canadian Prss).—Further indications of the possibility of a speedy settlment of the coal crisis appeared yesterday. In the House of Commons Sir Robert Horne, president of the Board of trade, said the situation was at a most critical point, when there appears to be a real chance of getting a settlement. Because of the delicacy of the situation he declined to discuss the question further.

Early in the day it was rumored at the Labor Party Conference in Brighton that the Miners Executive Committee was about to make "an unexpected decision."

AFTER WINE CELLARS.

U. S. Congress Make Rich Disgorge.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Congress should make the rich disgorge their huge private stock of liquor, Representative Pou, North Carolina, said to-day.

Amendment of the prohibition enforcement statutes in this way would make them operative on rich and poor alike, according to Pou, who is ranking Democrat on the house rules committee, which now has the Volstead supplemental prohibition bill under consideration.

During excavations at St. Osyth, Essex, England, a huge skeleton, believed to be that of a Danish or Norse invader, was unearthed.

St. Pancras Council, England, is dismissing from its service married women whose husbands are earning enough to keep them.

MEIGHEN STRESSES NECESSITY FOR AUTONOMY FOR ALL PARTS OF EMPIRE AT IMPERIAL MEET AGAIN EMPHASIZES DESIRABILITY OF CLOSE RELATIONSHIP WITH UNITED STATES, IN WHICH VIEW MOST SUPPORT HIM.

LONDON, June 25.—(By Grattan O'Leary, Canadian Press Correspondent.)—In his speech at yesterday's sitting of the conference of Premiers, the proceedings of which were confidential, Premier Meighen is understood to have strongly stressed the view that only with the fullest autonomy for all component parts of the Empire can the whole survive, and to have again emphasized the desirability of close relationship with the United States. He is understood to have been warmly supported by Premier Smutz of South Africa, and also, to some extent, by others in the conference. Indeed, one of the outstanding features of the conference is its unanimity in the belief that friendship with the United States must remain a cardinal principle of the British foreign policy.

At the conclusion of the first week of the conference it is discernable that if the proceedings are going to take a longer time than it was at first supposed they would, and that the naval question will play an important part in the discussions. As for the decision in regard to the latter question, however, that is altogether a different mater.

The Japanese alliance will, it is understood, be taken up Monday.

RAILWAY RATES MAY STAY HIGH?

OTTAWA, June 25.—Freight rates on the railways may not come down speedily, at least, in proportion to any cut in the wages of railway labor, according to views expressed in some official quarters here. The chairman of the Railway Commission, without going into details as to when or to what extent rates might be diminished, has laid down the general principle that wage reductions would be followed by rate reductions. The Canadian National Railway situation, however, in conjunction with the national finances, is cited as rather against this idea.

TRENT RIVER HAPPENINGS

TRENT RIVER, June 25.—Mrs. Tom Bennett, of Toronto, is at "Kilarney" with her daughters, Loretta, Vera and Jewell.

Mr. H. Rose of Toronto, has purchased a lot from Mr. John Sedgwick near "Laf-a-lot'" and intends erecting a spacious summer home with large verandah at once.

Mr. Ed. McCann, of Toronto, has purchased "Laf-a-lot" from Mr. J. Sedgewick.

Prof. C. F. Davis and family arrived yesterday en route to Healy Falls, where they will camp for the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Bradford of Toronto, are holidaying at "Rockwyn."

Rev. Mr. Skene of Havelock, called on some of his parishoners yesterday.

White Hall Gardens is open six nights of the week and although Wednesdays and Fridays are the big nights, many from a distance attend nightly.

The cottagers will be well supplied with daily needs this summer as bread will be delivered from Campbellford several times a week. Meat will be sold from three markets, Messrs. Riendeau of Campbellford, Simpson of Hastings and Mr. V. C. Chaplain of this locality, and Mr. Holcombe of Havelock, delivers fresh vegetables regularly.

Rain is very much needed in this locality for the crops and early vegetables.

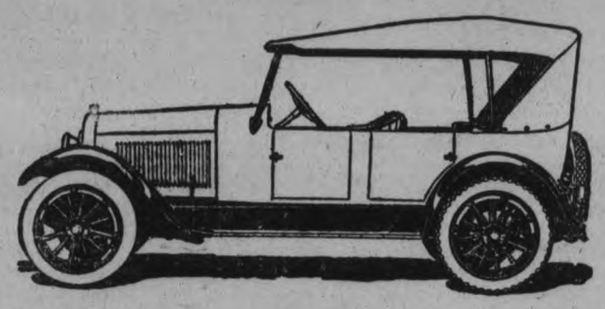
The strawberry crop has fallen far short of all expectations, as most of the plants have been killed with early frost. Mr. Chiles, general merchant, has had shipments of the fruit from Niagara district, the price being 23 cents per box.

The egg market is going at 28 cents and butter selling at 35 cents.

NEW GOLD VEIN IS FOUND.

Fort William Men Make Discovery on C.N.R. Near Sapawae Lake.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., June 24. —W. A. Matheson and Mayor Hayne of Fort William have come back from a gold mining location which they have taken up on the north shore of Sapawae Lake along the Canadian National Railway, bringing with them some rich samples of visible gold. The quartz is peppered with specks of gold and in some of the specimens nuggets of pure gold can be seen in the crevices of the honeycombed rock. The vein is a new discovery in a district where gold prospectors 20 years ago found some rich ore and the vein is said to be from ten to twelve feet in width.



Buy a Chalmers As an Investment

Buying a Chalmers car is recognized as a sensible and sound investment. One that pays definite returns.

Because of its low upkeep and replacement costs, the Chalmers is economical to operate. It renders service more continuously. It is at your command when wanted.

Due to Careful Designing

The low maintenance of the Chalmers is due to careful designing. Chalmers' engineers developed the hot-spot. This device pre-heats the fuel before it enters the cylinders. This saves fuel. It reduces carbon. The motor runs more smoothly and accelerates more quickly. It renders better service, always.

Find Out for Yourself

The man who investigates, will easily find the truth of these statements. We will be glad to go into detail and explain just how fine a motor car investment the Chalmers is.

You owe it to yourself to make this investigation.

THE CITY'S PART.

Last evening the Examiner congratulated Chief Newhall on his decision that owners of vacant lots must see that they are kept free of weeds. In this connection the city authorities should endeavour to set an example for the community by a systematic attack upon the weeds and rank grass that are to be found along the side of many of the local streets .There would be little use in prosecuting property owners on this score if on the city's streets weeds are allowed to flourish. Some thoroughfares, it is true, have received attention, but many others are in a far from desirable condition. Chief Newhall's campaign against weeds on private property should be simultaneous with a civic drive against the same nuisance on public property.

WHY NOT THE MOUNTIES?

It is somewhat amazing to find in connection with the operations of the bandits who have been terrorizing the people of the Bolton district that the Provincial police have not been despatched to the scene. Their presence there would seem to be highly desirable as an indication to the community that they are not left to fight their battle with outlawry single handed. And although the affair may be a provincial matter, there is a feeling that episodes of this kind might furnish scope for the activities of the Royal Mounted Police, a detachment of which is stationed at Ottawa. The Mounties have not been called upon for very strenuous service since they were brought east. Beyond doing duty at some of the race tracks and guarding the income tax offices, their duties have been light and some of them might be available to the Bolton district. Rounding up a gang of bandits is work that the Royal Mounted do better than any other body of men, and they would doubtless welcome the chance to show their ability.

THE WAR MEMORIAL.

The Finance committee of the County Council has recommended a grant of $2,000 towards the fund for the erection of a memorial in honour of the soldiers from Peterborough city and county who made the supreme sacrifice. The grant will be a very welcome addition to the fund and a stimulus to the memorial committee to press their campaign with renewed vigour. The project has been allowed to drag long enough, and it is gratifying to find that substantial progress is now being made towards the carrying out of this very necessary tribute to the memory of the unreturning brave. Many citizens who have read of the dedicating of war monuments everywhere have felt a little ashamed that Peterborough could not show the world that her heart is grateful towards those who gave up their lives for the Empire. They will appreciate the substantial contribution from the County Council and will hope that the scheme will be pushed through to completion as speedily as possible. Until the memorial has been erected and dedicated, Peterborough cannot feel that she has been worthy of the several thousands of her sons who went forth to fight and of the hundreds who did not come back.

UNNECESSARY NOISES.

Toronto's Medical Officer of Health is embarking upon a campaign to put an end to the unnecessary noises that aggravate the people of the Queen City. His first objective is to silence the chauffeur who plays a solo upon the horn of his car to let his employers know the machine is ready, and if Dr. Hastings has his way the man at the wheel will have to climb out and ring the doorbell. The result of the Toronto experiment will be watched closely by sufferers everywhere, and should Dr. Hastign's campaign prove successful, Peterborough's Medical Officer of Health may be persuaded to put the muffler on here. There are a number of sounds the people of Peterborough could do without. The noise of a flat-wheeled street car is one, and there is also much noise in the working of the mechanism on those green, one-man affairs that rattle and bang along Charlotte street. The energetic citizen who chooses 6 a.m. as a suitable time for cutting his lawn, the motorist who likes to ramble around with the cut-off of his car open, the individual with the tin gramophone who has a mistaken idea that his neighbors would rather listen to a band record than sleep, these are some of the cases that Dr. Young might include in his list. And there are more when he has finished with them.

WOULD YOU HELP A BLIND WOMAN?

Can you think of anything quite so pathetic as a blind woman? She cannot see the flowers or the trees, the fields or the sky!

You can help these women carry their burden of eternal darkness more easily.

There is a comfortable house at 331 Sherbourne Street, in Toronto, where homeless Canadian blind women find a home. It is called Clarkewood, and was purchased about a year ago by the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

During the day, the blind girls and women who live there make aprons, kimonas, and night dresses in the blind women's workshops. They pay a part of the money they earn to help pay for their board and lodging. In the evenings they play games, read their specially printed books, knit, sew, sing, and listen to music.

Since Clarkewood became a realised fact, happiness and joy have come into the lives of these homeless girls and women who will never see again.

But Clarkewood must be maintained. We turn to you, in good hope, to-day to ask for your generous help. Subscribe liberally to the Fund for the Blind, being conducted by The Examiner, and enable the Institute to still further lighten the darkness of those girls and women whose only fault is their handicap.

Donations for this splendid cause will be gratefully received at The Examiner office.

ARE THERE NO CANADIANS?

A well-known lady resident of Brantford has called the attention of The Expositor to the fact that the census enumerator who called upon her refused to accept her plea of being a Canadian when asked her nationality, and as one of her somewhat distant ancestors happened to be Scotch, she was thus classified. The explanation of the affair was that Canadian nationality was not recognised.

A correspondent of The Manitoba Free Press voices the same complaint in part as follows:

I believe the main object of our educational system is to produce a Canadian citizenship and nationality from the various peoples who have come to our shores. There are thousands even among the more recent arrivals who rejoice in the name Canadian, as a definite and distinctive nationality. But now when the census man asks these individuals for their nationality they will be told that they are not Canadians, but are simply transplanted Poles, Germans, Ukrainians, Russians, etc., etc., and doomed for ever to remain as such during a thousand generations.

Why compel the Mennonites to send their children to the public schools, there to learn the national tongue, if after all they cannot become Canadians?

Why move heaven and earth to enlist every agency for the instilling of Canadian ideals in the young minds when our stupid Government at Ottawa through the agency of the census, ignores the Canadian nationality, and nullifies the entire programme of national education?

My family have been in Canada upwards of 150 years, yet we cannot call ourselves Canadians, but must needs hark back to a remote period through a multiplicity of Scotch, Irish, English, Welsh, and French, to find out our real nationality in the year of our Lord 1921.

To my mind a census for Canada that does not take into consideration the name Canadian on a par with English, Scotch, Irish, Welsh, German, Polander, Jew, and every other class of our polyglot population is a national disgrace.

In its comments on this letter, The Free Press says:

The instructions of the census-takers would seem to indicate that those who were responsible for framing the questions had decided that there was no such thing as Canadian nationality. Though a man's ancestors for six or seven generations have lived in Canada and helped to make this country what it is to-day, he cannot describe himself simply as a Canadian. The men who recently made the name of Canada known and honoured in Europe and throughout the world cannot satisfy these Government agents by asserting that they are 'Canadians," though their forefathers originally came to Canada one hundred or two hundred years ago.

It is a funny thing, assuredly, that in Canada there are no Canadians and people are to be for ever classed, no matter how long their residence here, according to their ancestry. We suppose the explanation offered will probably be that the census returns in the past have been made in this form, but as we approach another Dominion Day, it is appropriate to ask why, if Canada has attained the status of a nation, there are no Canadians in this country —Brantford Expositor.

SOME FINEST TYPES OF IMMIGRANTS

LONDON, June 25.—"Some of the finest types of immigrants that were ever brought to Canada came to Western Canada this year," declared J. Farrel, representative of the Ontario Department of Immigration, at a dinner of Wentworth delegation of farmers here. We made a few mistakes as we had in the past and will in the future, he said. But I challenge any person to contradict my statement that we were able to place more the past year on farms who remained there contented than any like period before. We have made a careful survey of the situation, and as far as we can estimate out of a total of 400 placed in the district, only four have returned to seek employment in the cities. There may be one or two others, but even then the precentage is remarkably small.

BIGGEST CELEBRATION EVER HELD

MORE THAN THREE THOUSAND DOLLARS SPENT ON ATTRACTIONS

Port Hope has celebrated Dominion Day since Confederation, but the programme this year surpasses all former ones. More than three thousand dollars has been spent on attractions and the big show will go merrily along from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. In the morning there will be a free open air concert at the Town Square for the children. The afternoon programme consists of horse races, three classes, with purses of one thousand dollars. League baseball match, Lindsay vs. Port Hope; climbing the greasy pole; Stewart and Mercer in acrobatic and trapeze work; Shook and Lipton's Famous Nickle Plate Shows, consisting of the world's greatest marching, waltzing and dancing dogs. Wonderful performing canary birds. The richest dressed animal act in existence. The Flying Keeler's, the world's greatest aerial artists. The most sensational and intrepid trapeze performance, extent performing on a steel apparatus thirty-five feet in the air. Tug-of-war, for which the Anglo Oil Company, of Toronto, is presenting a beautiful silver trophy valued at fifty dollars. The competition is open to the local factories and the firemen.

In the evening there will be three vaudeville acts, and just previous to the fireworks the male quartette, Messrs. Pipher, Kimmel, Doney and George will sing several of the old familiar songs. They will use megaphones and the band will play the accompaniments for some of the songs. The programme closes with a beautiful display of fireworks, including aerial flashes, mammoth fire balloons, wheat fields of the West and Prairie flowers, Niagara Falls by Moonlight and a firework portrait of the Prince of Wales. The 57th Regimental Band of Peterborough, and the Durham Regimental Band of Port Hope will provide music during the entire programme, and will give a massed concert in the evening. You can't help liking our programme. Plan to spend the day in Port Hope.

Bringing Sunshine To The Blind

ONE of the greatest sources of comfort and happiness to the Canadian blind men and women who are confined to their homes is our Home Teaching Department.

Not only has this invaluable branch made the burden of these afflicted people infinitely more easy to carry; it has given them a means of earning money; in many cases, in fact, it has been their sole means of support.

But these teachers, who are themselves blind, must be given most careful training to prepare them for their work. A Normal Class for Home Teachers is, therefore, conducted in Toronto.

The training of the teachers and the visiting and teaching of the Blind in their Homes is a heavy drain on the funds of the Institute. But this splendid work, nevertheless, must carry on.

You are, therefore, asked to-day to be generous and big-hearted in your contribution to the cause of the Canadian blind.

Navy Tales

By a Lieutenant in the United States Navy.

Pipes.

In a doughnut the hole doesn't count. The space could be sold for advertising. In a pipe the hole is the whole thing—except when it leaks. An! even then it's the hole you're after.

Pipes cover most of the holes in the world. Once, according to Mark Twain, this wasn't the case. A tunnel was so long that it stuck out a mile on the other side of the mountain! Of course no one could see it was there; but the government which had to pay the contractor's bill did.

On a single battleship there may be more than 3000 miles of pipe, not quite enough to reach from here to the moon, but enough. Still, when you consider the length of intestine a man has, you cannot be surprised at a man-of-war.

There are four principal kinds of pipes: steam, water, oil, air, and electric conduits. (Do you know the correct pronunciation of conduit?)

Steam pipes are the greatest bother, expense, and profit. They leak more easily, cost more to make and repair, and the most useful we have. Steam must go to and from all engines, pumps, and other auxiliaries. Steam-heated, quarters, dynamos, and galleys, boost the batting average of a pipe fitter tremendously.

Water pipes are second only to steam—really they should come first because steam was water before it exploded into vapor. Ah, scintillating sunlit wavelet—you've a whizz of a trip ahead when a warship sucks you in. Round dizzily you spin in a centrifugal pump, are shot to the fat condenser, or a fire and bilge pump, to fall stunned and bleeding at the feet of one who exclaims: "Hey Bill, hold this bloomin' hose whiles I ask more pressure from them mutts below!"

Fresh water pipes are leaner and more exclusive. But fresh water is a high-priced commodity aboard ship. Very properly its vehicle should be distinctive. To boilers, feed-tanks, double-bottoms, and the 100-gallon coffee boiler, lead trim well-jointed series of pipings. Such mothers of luxury as the scuttle-butt and shower, the ice-machine and pantry-plug, are too out of keeping with the warlike atmosphere even to be mentioned.

Oil could just as well do without pipes. There isn't any too much of it; and, except when near the flames, storage tanks suffice to guard its muck-and-gurryness.

Pipes for electric wires or conduits are used on practically every circuit on the ship. Otherwise the insulation would rot, and in exposed places be broken most of the time. There are deeply buried alleyways under the lower decks through which great masses of conduits pass just as under the streets of a city.

Pipes for compressed air or pneumatic tools are small and heavy. Often when the use is to be of a temporary nature they are of rubber strengthened by steel wire. In navy and ship yards portable air tools are supplied with thousands of feet of this sort of piping.

Dimensions, shapes, and materials of which the pipes are to be made, are all specified by the Bureau of Steam Engineering in the Navy Department. Seamless drawn, 2-inch steel pipe may be needed by the boilers, which are nothing but great steel boxes full of pipes and a fire under each. A million feet may be needed.

Another day the copper market may go into hysterics over a governmental order for copper fresh-water piping. Wrought-iron and cast-steel, composition, brass, and galvanized piping are taken according to the use to which they are to be put. Corrosion of iron or steel frequently requires copper or composition to be used though many times as expensive.

Piping of the tubular masts and voice pipes need only be mentioned. With French briars and corn-cobs my catalogue is complete. Only left me is to remind you of the greatest naval pipe known to mankind:

Pipe down : : : : .

EXTENSION

Navy life is cut and dried beyond measure. Man sleeps and eats, works and plays, fights and idles with machine-like regularity unequaled in any other profession.

Furlough is no exception to the usual precision of a man-of-war's routine. At periodic intervals certain percentages of the ship's company are granted certain amounts of leave. Only in emergency or to reward some marked valor—such as six months good behavior—is the bluejacket's furlough extended.

Ordinary liberty is different. Overnight absence from the ship is granted at every opportunity. In port usually only one-quarter of the crew are required aboard—of course excepting wartime when never more than half can go.

One sailorman wasn't satisfied with plain liberty. He wanted more than just to hit the beach. To go and soak his soul in idleness was his one desire. So he set about finding the weak spot in this Navy system. He nailed it soon enough. And for one whole year he worked the emergency gag as follows:

He got a week's leave from the Fleet base. On the sixth day his wife took sick and would have died except that the kindly Skipper wired a two days' extension to her husband's furlough—which was just enough to let them take in the butcher's picnic that Sunday.

Next time his uncle was run over by a train or fell out of a balloon, or something violent like that. Then to vary matters the simple-minded mariner proceeded to get into the town jug which enabled him to procure extension through his friend the sheriff.

When law courts, sick family, contagious diseases, and other mild excuses failed to entice extra days from the tolerant Captain, the rascal was forced to invent even more crafty reasons why it was humanly impossible for him to return on time.

And all the while he kept within the law. Which was his undoing.

For it is also within the law to grant a man furlough and the very moment he has reached home to wire him that he must return immediately in order to be aboard for target practice—which the man will not miss as that would mean losing prize money. Or to grant a man furlough and just as he goes over the gangway to land him back on deck with the news that he is about to be a witness at a courtmartial. Or to grant a man furlough when the ship has secret orders to sail an hour before he is due to leave.

"Look here, my friend," said the Executive Officer after he and the man had been keeping within the law for about a year, "let's call it square and stick to Navy ways."

"I've got to hand it to you, sir," was the answer—proving that even in its weak spots the Navy is cut and dried. . .

YOUR HEALTH

By Andrew F. Currier, M.D.

Treatment of Burns, Including the Ambrine Treatment.

The objects sought in the treatment of burns are the relief of pain, the overcoming of shock, and the restraining and limitation of reaction and of congestion and inflammation of the internal organs.

If burns are slight the principal object seems to be to protect them from the irritating effects of the air.

After being as carefully cleansed as may be possible or necessary, they should be covered with olive oil, or a mixture of linseed oil and lime water, or thickly powdered with zinc and bismuth.

Or when these substances are not available a covering of molasses, flour or white lead may be used.

It is well to spread these substances upon gauze or cheese-cloth and then cover the surface with absorbent cotton securely applied.

The fluid in blisters may be withdrawn through punctures but the skin must not be broken, if possible.

The dressings must not be removed more frequently than is essential for cleanliness and healing and great care must be taken in removing them for the process is extremely painful and will retard healing unless done so as to avoid irritation.

To prevent extensive scarring and contraction skin grafting may be required in severe burns.

In burns resulting from the action of acids, alkalies like bismuth or bicarbonate of soda, or chalk must be applied as promptly as possible.

If an acid like carbolic acid has been swallowed, plaster scraped from the wall or flour or white of egg or milk may be used.

If the burn has been produced by caustic alkali vinegar or some other mild acid should be used as an antidote.

The diet must be extremely simple for a few days after burns have been received because the digestive ortgans are incompetent to do much work.

Thirst is usually intense and may be relieved with ice and water and with sedative drugs if necessary.

The bowels must be kept open and frequently this can best be done by enemata.

During the present war burns have been frequent and severe in connection with the barbarous and diabolical practices of the Germans.

This has led to what is known as the ambrine treatment of burns which, with its modifications has been an inestimable boon to the injured.

Ambrine treatment is described in Penhallow's Military Surgery as introduced by Dr. Borthe de Sanfordt, ambrine being a secret proprietary preparation consisting of paraffine, as a base, combined with certain resins.

It is of a muddy brown color and as a dressing is not friable nor elastic and forms a tough, protective layer to a burned surface. It is applied in a melted condition with a brush or atomizer and is a painless dressing even on a fresh burn.

Healing under this dressing takes place quickly without contractures and with soft scars.

Sollman and Beiter whose experience in the treatment of burns in connection with the work of iron furnaces has been very extensive, found the application of ordinary melted paraffine as a dressing too painful and they were able to completely obviate this by spraying the burned surface with liquid vaseline, covering this with a film of absorbent cotton and then painting with a coat of melted paraffine.

Keen's method of treating extensive burns consists in first giving a hypodermic of morphine, then a hypodermic of salt solution and a hot rectal enema of the same with application of heat to the feet.

In half an hour, if the patient is not reacting well, he is to be placed in a hot bath of salt solution or boric acid solution without removing his clothing.

Half an hour later he is to be placed in a room at 110 degrees F., his clothing removed and such dressings applied as may be deemed suitable.

DISCOURAGEMENT.

Discouragement is a form of creeping paralysis which is caused by thinking in a dark-blue frame of mind. If people who are too easily inclined to become discuoraged would refuse to think on any mournful subject like ironing a hole through a new shirtwaist or ruining the complexion of a cocoanut pie, what a scene of perpetual and unbroken bliss this world would be!

Sometimes the most trivial happenings will cause a man to fall into a pit of discouragement with a quicksand bottom and go about looking like an apprehensive hay-fever victim. A little thing like a rear tire blowing out a long way from home, on a bright, sunny day when all nature is being baked to a dull chocolate hue, will cause some men to become so highly discouraged that they will utter disparaging remarks which almost set fire to the grass. This shows lack of control and also a shortage of parental discipline in early youth.

Some people become discouraged when they are talked about, but more when they are not. The best way to avoid discouragement caused by gossip is to light in the straight and narrow path with both front feet. The most abused man in the world is the one who goes home drunk four nights out of six and then discovers that the sewing circle has been reading his pedigree out loud. Great discouragement is also experienced by candidates for office who fail to arouse anything in the form of applause except a snicker. It is not noticed, however that this diminishes the number of candidates who project themselves into the limelight with the aid of a double-column half-tone.

When discouragement has some reason for existence the best antidote is the hand-clasp of a real friend who operates in foul weather as well as fair. The paltry sum of a few hundred dollars has pulled many a victim of deep-seated discouragement away from the brink of bankruptcy and put him on his feet with a fresh stock of goods and a determination not to extend credit to the entire universe. If there were more of the kind of friendship which doesn't want interest on its money, there would be fewer suicides in the daily papers and more people wearing a grin like a Cheshire cat.

One husband and a clear conscience is the recipe of Mrs. Martin E. Wilson, of Pittsburg, for reaching the century mark. Mrs. Wilson is 102.

BABY KEN.

Bright as a Sunbeam, Thanks to Virol.

Lamerton, Tavistock,
2.11.19.

Dear Sir,

Here is a photo of Baby Ken—as hard as nails and bright as a sunbeam. He is 8 months old, and weighs 21 lb. He has been a "Virol Baby" from the age of 10 weeks, before which he was very small and thin and could never be satisfied. I usually tell his many admirers that he is a "Virol Baby."

Yours gratefully,
(Signed) (Mrs.) L. A. T.

Virol is used in large quantities in more than 3,500 Hospitals and Infant Clinics. It is invaluable for the expectant and nursing mother herself, whilst for children it supplies those vital principles that are destroyed in the sterilising of milk; it is also a bone and tissue building food of immense value. Virol babies have firm flesh, strong bones and good colour.

IS THERE A BABY IN YOUR HOME?

Is there a baby or young children in your home? If there is you should not be without a box of Baby's Own Tablets. Childhood ailments come quickly and means shoud always be at hand to promptly fight them. Baby's Own Tablets are the ideal home remedy. They regulate the bowels; sweeten the stomach; banish constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fevers—in fact they relieve all the minor ills of little ones. Concerning them Mrs. Moise Cadotte, Makamik, Que., writes: "Baby's Own Tablets are the best remedy in the world for little ones. My baby suffered terribly from indigestion and vomiting, but the Tablets soon set her right and now she is in perfect health." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE OLD SERVANTS REFUSE TO RETURN

In one of the old Pantagenet houses of England the belted earl and her ladyship live in one corner of the castle. The rest of the fine old mansion is closed, William Allen White writes in Collier's. The servants needed to run the house are no longer available. Money will not hire them. Their men have been commissioned in the army because the earl's son—who had a right to sit at the foot of the throne and who had also the blessed privilege of hearing the king by ancient right address him as cousin—the earl's son lighted one cigaret too many on the parapet, and when he and his kind from Eton and Harrow went out, commissions in the army fell to the cook's son and the housekeeper's son and the parlormaid's brother and chambermaid's sweetheart, who, being commissioned, promptly took their womenkind out of service. They are feeling what they never felt before, these domestic servants of the nobility—the spur of ambition.

So they have left the castle, and such of the servants as stay have begun to assert their rights, to manifest their self-respect. "Whatever you do," said her ladyship to her guest, "don't ring a bell!" To the question in the visitor's face the hostess replied: "If you ring a bell the servants will leave. I have only three. They have announced that they will do their work, but they forbid interruptions by bells!" The hot water appeared on schedule; the service flowed into the guest-room in its regular channel, except that fires were so low that the visitors' feet were frostbitten; the meals were served on time and were well cooked. But the servants were efficient shop assistants, no longer feudal serfs. And the earl chopped the trees in his own forest with his own hands for his own fires. The meager household allowance of coal that the fuel controller gave to the earl from the mines under the earl's own lands was barely enough to heat the servants' rooms.

And as for the broad estate over which the earl ruled as an agricultural overlord and industrial entrepreneur six years ago, through his coal mines—the estate is all crumbling. The land is passing into the hands of small farmers; the old yeoman farmer fairly well-to-do, of good old yeoman stock, going back to the Conqueror—he and his kind are taking the ownership of the land of the belted earl in 100-acre lots, and the nation, having taken charge of the earl's coal mines, may now relieve him of the burden of mine ownership as well. For the parliamentary committee by a large majority has reported in favor of the government ownership of all mines of every description.

And because the earl's son sleeps under the poppies of Flanders and his daughters are married and gone, the earl is a weary, confused old man, chopping wood in the forest to keep his old wife warm. He cannot fight the new order. No leadership is calling him. He knows that the end is coming for him and his kind. He realizes quite definitely that in a few years the castle of the Plantagenets, who were royal in the last Henry's days, probably will fall into the hands of a brewer or a draper or a stock broker, who will put in a central heating plant to defile it, debase the privacy of every bedroom with hot and cold water, and degrade the place with a wilderness of bathrooms, so that four servants can run the place with a wilderness of baths where 100 retainers once served the baron under Elizabeth.

The millions the old earl received from the yeoman farmers for his land have been divided with the state in yearly income taxes; and now on the horizon he sees a parliamentary bill gradually approach which provides that capital as well as income shall be heavily taxed. So the old man in the forest sees even his capital unsafe, and he wonders curiously how the little gray man at Windsor feels about the prospects of succession for the genial young Prince of Wales.

The Belfast traders have suggested that young men in warehouses should join the Special Ulster Police with the object of preventing robberies.

Trenton, N. J., reports that in spite of prohibition there are more prisoners in the jail than at any time during the last ten years.

WHERE DOES UNDERSTANDING COME FROM?

By George Matthew Adams.

Happiness in this big world is primarily understanding. Solomon understood that and so he said: "With ALL thy getting (knowledge)—get UNDERSTANDING!"

It is much to say that you understand But understanding is impossible without knowledge. And knowledge becomes a useless acquirement, without the ability to see inside of things.

Carlyle says that to know a thing you must first love it.

The song that you love, you understand. The flower, the tree, the painting, the book, the human being—that you love—you understand. You enter into the beauty of each. You walk in freedom, as though a privileged owner.

So that the things that we love, we may not be able to analyze, but we may be sure that we understand them.

And it is from our own especial appreciation, our own inward seeing and living in of those things that bring us joy and onward growth, that we are able to evolve a brand of understanding entirely simple and inspiring.

It doesn't take great ability to become loved in your town. Just love (understand) everybody—and your popularity immediately looms. Take no interest in anybody or anything—and soon your interest in all life will become but a shadowy substance.

The one glory to a man in a small town is that he is an everybody!

On the other hand, an everybody—anywhere—is a SOMEBODY. One who—understands. Knowing by appreciating, sympathizing, loving—everything and all—both great and small.

Uneasy is the tooth that wears a misfit crown.

DOES FINANCIAL INDEPENDENCE MAKE THE LOT

Of the Unhappily Married Woman Easier? Yes, Indeed, And it Often Adds Contentment Even to That of the Happy Wife.—Says Fern Howard.

Yesterday someone asked me this question: "Are financially independent wives happier than dependant ones?" And to this I reply that at least some wives are happier through becoming financially independent, than they would otherwise have been. Let me tell you about two of my friends who have recently achieved self-support.

One of them is a friend who for sixteen long years endured the position of an unhappy wife. But who through her economic independence, she has attained a greater amount of contentment than she had ever thought it possible for her to attain. In speaking of her former woes she said, "For years, I endured a nagging husband who thought he could hold me in subjection by the power of the almighty dollar. The petty expenses of a household nowadays mount up to a large sum during a period of a month. And I was constantly humiliated by the fact that I was forced to ask for the extra sums necessary to cover unexpected expenses.

"This caused friction. After every one of these stormy sessions, when I was forced to prove just how the unexpected expenses were incurred, I used to think to myself: 'Oh, If I could only make a little money of my own—Why, I would be willing to put it all into such little expenses for the household—and say nothing to him.

"You see, I had an inkling that if my husband and I could avoid the subject of expenses, we could get along more harmoniously, and perhaps, in time, even contentedly. And this is what actually did happen, when I found a way to make money

"For, of course, the woman who is sufficiently persistent and determined, can find some way to earn. I just thought and thought until I hit upon a means of making money. Now my husband gives me the regular monthly check he has always given me, and when the expenses exceed the amount he has allotted, I say nothing about it, and pay it myself; that is better than the old, unhappy way, isn't it?"

Yesterday, I met a friend whio, n spite of the fact that she is the mother of three lovely children, has attained her dream of economic independence. And happiness is the result. In speaking of her joy in being able to earn her own living, she said, "I do not believe in marriages being arranged on a monetary basis; but I do believe in a woman's being economically independent, if she wants to be.

"Don't misunderstand me: I don't mean that Fred is mean with his money. I have always had all I want to spend. But I wanted to earn, just because I then could occasionally be a little extravagant if I wanted to be! You see, with his money, I felt, when I was extravagant, that I was throwing away his hard work."

AN OLD RESIDENT OF OMEMEE DEAD

JAMES CUNNINGHAM SUCCUMBED TO A STROKE—OMEMEE NEWS.

OMEMEE, June 25.—The death of another old resident of Omemee took place on Wednesday, in the person of Mr. James Cunningham. Mr. Cunningham had been in his usual health until Monday when he received a stroke and never regained consciousness before his death on Wednesday. He leaves of his immediate family his sorrowing wife, two daughters, Mrs. J. Kerr, and Mrs. E. Lloyd of Omemee and one son, Fred of Lindsay.

The funeral which was under the Orange Order took place on Friday to Emily cemetery and was largely attended. Rev. Mr. Stillman conducted the services.

A Presentation

Miss Corbett, of Peterborough, who has had a class in music here for some time, gave her last lessons here last week. Before her departure, her pupils took the opportunity of presenting her with a cut glass water set. Miss Corbett was indeed greatly surprised but made a neat reply thanking the pupils for the beautiful gift. Miss Scott of the Conservatory of Music Peterborough, will continue in Miss Corbett's place at Omemee.

Garden Party

The Garden Party under the auspices of the Methodist Church on Wednesday evening did not reach the desire of many but considering weather and the mosquitoes there was a fairly good crowd and those, who failed to come for supper missed a meal worth remembering as the tables were laden with many varieties of tempting salads, pies of every description, cakes, sandwiches, etc., the waiters were ever alert to take your order. The programme which was to have been given by the S. A. Band of Peterborough was a failure on account of the storm which lasted until supper time and the band did not appear.

A 15c supper was served the following night, which goes to show the vast amount provided by the ladies of the church and altogether (the proceds are quite gratifying.

Millions of People Are Suffering

Indigestion, Headaches, Constipation, Sallow Complexions, Kidney Pains, Rheumatism are all caused from a poisoned system, due to the Liver. Doctors recommend that you take one Tanated Calomel tablet before each meal, or two at bedtime, and in a few days your pains will disappears, your complexion will become clear and you will feel keen, bright, vigorous and life once more will be worth living. The wonderful success of this new drug (Tanated Calomel) is due to the fact that it is the only drug known that acts upon the Liver. No Salts or Seidlitz are necessary to remove it from the system, as it is self-illiminating. You, no doubt, have taken all sorts of medicine for your particular ailment, but you never get permanent relief, because the medicines you have been taking do not act upon the Liver. Doctors now say that 90 per cent. of all ailments are due to the inactivity of the Liver. A poisoned system soon decays, and that is why I would recommend that you go to F. C. Webber's, Charlotte street, and get a box.

Zion had completed their last innings and Norwood had just begun when the visiting team disputed and refused to carry on.

Norwood's prospects of being the victors were very encouraging and there is no doubt whatever but this would have been the result had the game ended in the regular way, which would have proved much more satisfactory to the local team.

LILACS.

By Donald A. Fraser.

Where do you lilacs get your spring sweet breath?
Why do you blush in purple modesty?
Ah! if you'd tell, I'd know why I love you,
And, delving deeper, know why God loves me.

I only know you flood my soul with calm:
You give it peace in spite of pressing pain;
Your smile I catch and so with braver heart,
Forsake the shadow for the sun again.

SEWING MACHINE MAGNATE HONORED

SIR DOUGLAS ALEXANDER, PRESIDENT OF SINGER COMPANY, A BARONET.

The name of Douglas Alexander as a Baronet of the United Kingdom appears in the Official Gazette of June 4th in the list of birthday honours conferred by King George.

Sir Douglas Alexander Bart., is the President of the Singer Manufacturing Company and its sewing machine subsidiary corporations all over the world. The honour is conferred upon him in recognition of notable war services rendered both by the Singer Companies, of which he is the head, and by himself personally.

The career of Douglas Alexander has been a most interesting one. He was born July 4, 1864, at Halifax, Yorkshire, England, son of Andrew Alexander, well known Canadian horticulturist and botanist. At an early age his parents went to Canada and settled in the city of Hamilton, Ont., where Douglas Alexander was educated at the Collegiate Institute until he was admitted to the Law oSciety of Upper Canada. He was articled to Alexander Bruce, K. C., called to the Bar and admitted as a solicitor in Chancery in 1886. After a short practice in Hamilton, he entered the service of the Singer Manufacturing Company; became a director of the company in 1896; was appointed Vice-President the same year; and became President in 1905, succeeding the late Commodore Bourne, wit hwhom he had been associated as the Vice-President during a number of years.

Sir Douglas Alexander resides at Edgehill, Stamford, Conn., and at No 1, West 72nd Street, New York City. The necessity for prolonged travel to the company's foreign branches, has not left him much leisure, but he is keenly interested in all sports. He was married in 1892 to Helen H. Gilespie, of Hamilton, Ontario, and has four children, Douglas H., of Princeton University, Agnes E., Helen D., and Archibald G. Alexander.

ADVERTISE FREELY IN NEWSPAPERS IS ADVICE TO RETAIL DRUGGISTS

Newspaper advertising was strongly urged upon the druggists at the annual convention in Toronto of the Ontario Retail Druggists' Association by Frank Stockdale, conductor of the 'Retail Merchants' Institute, Chicago, and formerly chief of lecture bureau, Associated Advertising Clubs of the World. Mr. Stockdale advised the druggists to seriously consider the newspaper proposition if they desired to increase their sales and add new customers to their lists of patrons. The druggist should place his advertisements on the basis of two per cent. of his sales, Mr. Stockdale said.

CRITICISM AND REMINISCENCE

(By PATERFAMILIAS)

THE GREATEST FARCE IN HISTORY.

I have had before me all week a despatch which reads that the trials of the really big guns on the list of German officers accused as war criminals will come before the German supreme court when the men on the French list will be arraigned. Among these men are three generals —Stenger, accused of issuing an order to his infantry when marching through Belgium and France to kill all French wounded falling into their hands; Col. Von Schak, military governor of the Cassel district during the war, and General Kruska, commander of one of the biggest prisoner camps, he who is accused of causing the death of 3,000 Anglo-French prisoners in the Niederrywehren prison camp near Cassel by introducing among them Russian prisoners infected with spotted typhus..

What is the Use?

But what is the use of bringing these fiends in human form to trial in their own country, and by their own countrymen who, by birth and education, were in sympathy with German war methods, which included ruthless destruction of both life and property? Is it not quite evident that justice cannot be found in German courts for such military brutes, when already two officers of German prison camps have been tried, and finding them guilty of revolting barbarity toward prisoners, their judges imposed sentences which distort justice into a travesty bordering on defiance of the Allies. For one got twelve months, not in prison, but in a fortress, where the discomforts of confinement may be mitigated by the consolation of personal gratification in the fruits of earth and vine— providing he can pay for it, and such prisoners or their friends generally find a way to do so—to say nothing of congenial company (German, of course), in which the time can be passed pleasantly if not profitably. Such is the idea of military punishment in a German fortress gleaned from the records of the past. The other convicted officer—please emphasize the convicted—goes to prison for a paltry six months.

Mockery of Justice.

Just imagine it, all ye lovers of British fair play! Six months for atrocities toward men of your own race which in most cases spelled a lingering and torturing death; a similar punishment to those imposed on many a sister and brother British mortal, who, in dire straights committed some paltry theft to keep body and soul together, may be.

And so, if the foregoing sentences are to be taken as precedents for those to follow in the case of other war criminals, even as the war promoted by Germany was the greatest crime in history, how much more do and will these trials constitute the most stupendous comedy the world has ever seen, a farce in which the laws of God and man are held up to derision by Hun culture— I beg their pardon, it should have been spelt with a "K."

Killed the Wounded.

Now, this German General, accused of ordering the shooting of French wounded, faces a rather serious charge from our point of view —that of wholesale murder, to be brutally frank—and the French claim to have convicting evidence. That such revolting crimes were actually resorted to by German soldiery is borne out in a report to the Prime Minister of England by a French committee of men in high office, appointed to investigate. And here are a few clauses from that report, which makes abhorrent reading:

"At Bar-le-Duc, the head surgeon Ferry brought up some depositions made to him during his work. Sergeant Lemerre, of the ... infantry regiment told him that he was wounded in the leg, Sept. 6, at Rembercourt, by a fragment of a shell; he had been left on the ground for eight days, by the German ambulance men, who had certainly seen him. On the fourth day, an officer was going over the battle field with his revolver in his hand, and this sergeant was again shot by a soldier. Several times he saw the German stretcher-bearers firing on our wounded."

"The soldier Dreyfus ,of the .. regiment of infantry, told Dr Ferry the following fact; he was wounded at Somaine, on the 10th of Sept., and he was leaving the battle-field, when he met three Germans. He told them, in German, that he was wounded, but they answered that was no reason why he should not be shot again, and he was fired at point-blank, in the eye."

"On August 22, a German detachment marched through the district of Bouvillers (Meurthe et Moselle) to the farm of Petite-Rochelle, whose proprietor, M. Hamilton, was caring for some French wounded. The commanding officer ordered four of his men to go and finish off nine wounded who were in the barn. Each of these were shot through the ear. Mme. Hamilton asked for pity, but the officer told her to be quiet, pressing the muzzle of his revolver on her chest."

"Aug. 25th, the abbe Denis, priest of Remereville, was tending Lieutenant Toussaint, the highest in grade in the forestry school last July. Wounded in battle, this young man had been wounded by the bayonets of all the Germans who went past him. His body was one mass of wounds."

"At the Nancy hospital, we saw the soldier Voyer, of the ... regiment of infantry, bearing the marks of German cruelty. Wounded in the spine, near the forest of Champenoux, Aug. 24th, paralysed in both legs, in consequence of his wound, he had stayed lying on his stomach, when a German soldier turned him over brutally with his rifle and clubbed him on the head. Others, in passing, had beaten and kicked him."

"Finally, one of them had inflicted wounds on him under each eye, with some instrument which the poor fellow could not distinguish, but which must have been a pair of scissors, according to Dr. Weiss, head surgeon and professor of the faculty of Nancy."

"Seven French soldiers whom M. Weiss was tending, told him they had seen the enemy killing the wounded on the battle-field. They pretended to be dead to escape, but some Germans had beaten them with the butt of their rifles to see if they were alive.

"In the same hospital, a German soldier, with a wound in his abdomen, told Dr. Rohmer that it had been inflicted by his officer because he had refused to kill a wounded Frenchman."

"Then another German, wounded in the back, caused by a point-blank discharge, told Dr. Weiss, that a soldier had fired on him, by order of an officer, to punish him for having carried several wounded to a neighboring village."

It is for commanding the commission of such outrages as these that General Stenger is to be tried. Let us wait and see how he gets along. If guilty—you'll notice I do not say "found" guilty, for it's not likely he will be, in the abstract meaning of the word — there does seem to be but one punishment to fit his crime, and that is death at the hands of the public executioner, who is paid for ridding this world of all such murderous wretches to safeguard a law-abiding society.

As for Col. Schack's crime of causing the death of some 3,000 Anglo-French prisoners by situating them in a manner to assure their infection with that virulent disease known as spotted typhus, it would be simply outrageous to punish him for a joke of that nature. For 'tis said that was the German idea of humor, to let the Allies get acquainted by mixing the different nationalities together in the same camp. And if we wait patiently the world will probably see a German supreme court's idea of humor in its adjournment of this what the Allies so unreasonably characterize as a crime against humanity.

Why These Three Only?

Why call these three men in question the big gun in war criminality, when the whole race left themselves open to the conviction that they were all really great criminals—in thought if not in deed. As for the army, I have before me a list of some 200 counts against them gathered by reputable French officials. That list includes tragic scenes and sacrilege of revolting barbarity; priests assassinated; nuns outraged; brutal outrages on women; old men massacred; children odiously maltreated; most revolting acts savagery could think of; wounded soldiers tortured; peaceful citizens exposed to brutality; acts of revolting bestiality—and fiends responsible for such blood-curdling atrocities are to be tried by men of their own race and mind!

How absurd it all is, this so-called trial of war criminals! For forty years the present German generation were educated up to the Hun idea of war—win it by fair mean or foul. Exterminate the enemy, in battle and out of battle; give no quarter; terrorize man, women and child by violence and even sudden death, by destruction of property and ruination of industries; see red and kill in order that they (the Germans) might sit atop of the earth, with the rest of the world paying tribute—on such lines of superhuman progressiveness were the whole German race educated the past four decades, and to judges of such a nation do the Allies in foolish tolerance look for punishment of crime supreme.

A Comedy of Comedies.

It is indeed a comedy of comedies to expect justice administered to the Stengers, the Cruises ,the Laules, the Schacks and other German war criminals of their ilk, by judges born of a womanhood who lauded atrocities and thronged the movies to see picturized with responding applause the sinking to a watery grave of innocent women and children, passengers on the ill-fated Lusitania, a non-combattant ship sunk by order of a high command. The nation, as a whole, seems to have been contaminated by the German policy that war is war, no matter what treachery, breach of prescribed international rules, or revolting atrocities are resorted to that Germany might win; then in expecting fair trial of and adequate punishment for those whom we consider guilty of capital offences seems like, comparatively speaking, originating a tribunal presided over by justices in sympathy with crime to punish those who are convicited of criminal offences.

Foes of Humanity.

Germany and her crimes against humanity is an old subject now, but the writer feels justified in criticising these war horrors again, having been asked to do so by one who, like many others, is inclined to think, by daily revelations, that in reality Germany must have won the war. She has been allowed by her so-call-victors to play fast and loose with treaty terms while she quietly makes progress toward rehabilitation; to becloud the Allies with subterfuge while she tenaciously prepares for bidding again for the markets of the world with low-priced products; and now, she befools Britain, France and Italy into letting her be the arbiter of the fates of such war criminals as the world has seldom seen— men with whom, quite natnrally, her courts' sympathies lie. Still they say we won the war. But did we?

PRECAUTIONS AGAINST BOVINE TUBERCULOSIS

A few years ago the United States breeders of pure-bred cattle, recognizing the necessity of more effective measures for the control of tuberculosis, arranged a conference with officials of the Bureau of Animal Industry at Washington, the result of which was the adoption of what is known as the Accredited Herd Plan, meaning that the herd had been thoroughly tested and found entirely free from any symptoms of tuberculosis. The plan proved so successful—over a thousand herds being accredited in a brief period—that a decision was arrived at to adopt the system in Canada. Regulations were promulgated, which came into force in September, 1919, and have proved gratifyingly successful, a number of herds having been accredited, while many others are under test. There is now an agreement between this country and the United States that cattle from accredited herds may enter either way, without detention or test. Under the Municipal Tuberculosis Order, passed at Ottawa some years ago, and the more recently adopted Accredited Herd Plan, compensation is paid for animals officially slaughtered and the owners are permitted under regulation to realize whatever they can from the sale of the carcass.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

MADE-IN-CANADA GOODS EQUAL IMPORTED BOTH IN QUALITY AND FAVORABLENESS OF VALUATION

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS, SHOES, TEXTILES, CANNED GOODS, KITCHEN UTENSILS, PAINT, CONFECTIONERY AND TOILET PREPARATIONS ARE AMONG MADE-IN-CANADA ARTICLES THAT OFFER AS GOOD VALUE FOR SAME PRICE AS IMPORTED

The argument is still advanced that if Canadian goods are equal in quality and compare favorably in price with imported products, the buying public would give a preference to the domestic commodities. There can be no question that in many lines Canadian manufactured goods offer better value to Canadian buyers than do competing imported products, and yet imported articles have a considerable sale in this country because they are widely advertised or because of the popular belief that imported goods must be superior to those produced at home. The hearings before the Tariff Committee last fall supplied abundant specific evidence that many Canadian products were equal in quality to the best imported goods and were obtainable at lower prices. Actual investigations made by the Canadian Reconstruction Association have shown that:

1.—Canadian agriculturists generally purchase farm machinery more cheaply than do farmers in any other country in the world, and farmers west of Manitoba buy binders at lower prices than do farmers at places directly south in the United States.

2.—Canadian boots and shoes, grade for grade, compare favorably with the best imported products and are available to the Canadian buyer at considerably lower prices.

3.—Canadian woollen mills are producing cloths of splendid quality at prices considerably below those charged for imported woollens.

4.—Canadians are buying large quantities of imported perfumes, tooth paste and other toilet preparations at higher prices than those at which Canadian-made goods of equal or superior quality are obtainable.

5.—Canned fish, vegetables and fruit, generally speaking, are as low priced in Canada as in the United States or elsewhere.

6.—Canadian-made kitchen utensils of aluminum, grade for grade, are unsurpassed by the products of the United States and Canadian retail prices are as low as, and in most cases considerably lower than, the United States prices for corresponding utensils of the same grade.

7.—Paint is normally as cheap in Canada as in the United States, or cheaper, after allowance is made for the difference in measure.

8.—Confectionery and biscuits are lower priced in Canada than in the United States.

The above list could be greatly extended, but comparisons in the case of the foregoing articles will show that Canadian manufacturers base their selling prices in general upon cost of production and that they do not base their prices on the laid-down prices of competing imported articles.

It is time the Canadian people got away from the unreasoning assumption that imported goods must be superior to those of domestic production. Many imported products are widely advertised, and by such advertisements a demand for them is created, which gives them a sale in competition with the goods of Canadian producers who are not in a position to advertise their articles to anything like the same extent. Again, many dealers carry imported goods and press them upon their customers because in this way they can handle more or less exclusive lines. There is little doubt that in many instances goods have been sold to Canadian importers at "dump" prices, notwithstanding the Canadian anti-dumping clause, by manufacturers in the United States or elsewhere who seek in this way to get their excess production or floor stocks out of the country of manufacture and thus to protect their home market. Canadian requirements are small as compared with the market in the United States, and if Canadians are to produce at the lowest unit cost they must be assured by tariff protection of most of the Canadian trade. If it be made possible for United States producers to cut into the Canadian trade, the amount of business obtainable to the Canadian plants will be reduced and costs of production will be increased. Experience has shown that domestic competition can be counted upon to keep down prices of Canadian products if the manufacturers here are given reasonable assurance against destructive competition from more powerful manufacturing units abroad.

* * *

There has been considerable criticism recently of the tanning and leather manufacturing industries and complaint has been made that the prices of manufactured leather goods have not been reduced in the same proportion as has the cost of hides. In the first place, it should be clearly understood that no tanner is buying any considerable amount of hides at a cost of four or five cents per pound as is sometimes alleged. The hides offered for sale by the farmer or country butcher are green and lose 20 per cent. or more in weight in the curing process. The prices of country hides at Montreal or Toronto now range from about eight cents to eleven cents per pound, according to quality and weight, but a price of from eight to eleven cents per pound means a much higher cost for the usable part of such hides. Often such hides are badly trimmed. Of they may have manure attached, which adds to the weight, or they may be of undesirable weight. The hide may be seriously damaged by knife cuts or scores as it is taken off the animal, or may be otherwise defective. Packers' hides are regarded as superior to the country hides and command higher prices because of more expert care in taking the hide off the carcass, better grading and generally more efficient handling. But with both country hides and packers' hides there is necessarily much shrinkage and wastage. The hide may be long-haired and weighted with moisture. Often the hide is grubby, with worm holes eaten completely through it. The grain may be damaged as a result of contact with barb-wire fences and otherwise and a heavy aggregate loss results to farmers from exposure of cattle to such risks and from neglect. Branding also involves much wastage, and there is a spread of from 2 to 4 cents per pound between the prices of branded and clear hides. Even with the most experienced handling, there are likely to be some knife cuts or scores. All such defects affect the cutting value of the hide and consequently the price which is paid for it. A very considerable proportion of the average hide has to be turned to inferior uses and only selected portions are satisfactory for manufacture into the finer grades of leather products.

By reason of the accumulation of hides, the quality of those now offered is poorer than is the case under normal conditions. In many cases deterioration has taken place and, in the language of the tanner, the common run of hides is "more sloppy" than normally, a certain proportion of them being damaged on the grain or rotting as a result of having been held in the hope of higher prices, while others are not suitable for coloured leather by reason of what are known as salt stains.

The change in popular demand and insistence upon the best quality in leather products is partly responsible for keeping up the price of leather goods. For many purposes side leather is too thick and has to be split into what is known as grain leather and split leather. In 1914, black wax splits were selling at around 15 cents per foot and considerable quantities of such leather were exported from Canada to the United Kingdom. To-day, there is practically no market for black wax splits. Workmen in England who formerly bought boots made from such leather are calling for grain leather shoes, and exchange is also operating to discourage exports of split leather from Canada. In the United States many tanners are selling "splits" for glue stock at only a nominal price. This means that one-half of the hide in many cases has to be thrown away or sold at only a very low price and the major part of the cost of the hide and of tanning has to be put on the grain leather. The demand for inferior leathers has been so small that in some instances it has been found unprofitable, at present prices of tanning materials, etc., to tan parts of the hides and large quantities of "bellies" have been sold for the manufacture of glue.

Again, the popular demand is for coloured leather, with black leather in comparatively low demand. The demand of style is thus for leather made from freshly-cured hides, for the reason that old hides are not suitable for the manufacture of coloured leather, on account of salt stains. If black leathers and split leathers were in strong demand as was the case before the war, hides would command a higher price or leather would be selling at a lower figure. In 1914, the best grade of coloured calf was selling at 40 cents per foot. To-day the same calf leather sells at 55 cents. Black calf sold before the war at from 30 cents to 35 cents per foot, while to-day's price is from 40 cents to 45 cents. Black side leather in 1914 was selling at 20 cents per foot and to-day is actually lower than the pre-war price at about 26 cents.

Wages in the tanning industry have been only very slightly reduced. Tanning materials are still high in price. Most of these have to be imported and exchange paid on them. Coal for power purposes is still high and the manufacturer is paying exchange on such fuel. Administrative and selling expenses are high. Freight charges are much higher than ever before—the l. c. l. rate on sole leather for a distance of only 30 miles is over one-third cent per pound. So far as the tanners are concerned, they are not making any more money than they were making in 1914—few are making as much; and some of the tanning companies have been losing money heavily during recent months. In summary of the leather situation:—Hides are two or three cents below pre-war prices; split leather is almost unmarketable or finds sale only at very low prices; black side leather is cheaper than in 1914; calf leathers are not greatly higher than before the war; and even with the prevailing low price for hides the leather tanning industry is barely "breaking even" under present conditions.

So far as boots and shoes are concerned, there is a heavy demand for footwear of glazed kid, and the prevailing price of this leather represents an advance of more than 100 per cent. over the price obtaining in 1914. Black kid, which could be bought in 1914 at 25 cents per foot, now costs from 50 to 60 cents, while coloured kid, obtainable at 35 to 40 cents in 1914, now costs from 75 to 90 cents. This leather is made from goat skins, which come from Brazil, South Africa, India, the Balkan countries and Turkey. Much glazed kid is imported for the manufacture of boots and shoes and other leather commodities, but some kid leather of good quality is now being manufactured in Canada from imported skins.

The Canadian buyer of shoes of domestic leathers does not want footwear made from the heavier hides; the demand for shoes of side leather or of "kip" is very small, while the call for so-called 'workingmen's boots" is only about 25 per cent. of the pre-war normal. It is this situation in part which has resulted in the low price of raw hides and the apparent disparity between the price of hides and the cost of leather footwear. The principal demand is now for fine shoes, especially Goodyear welts, and as a result only carefully selected leather can be used—second grade leathers are not wanted for such purpose.

Again, styles are changing frequently and the manufacturers are under heavy expense for lasts, pattern, etc. During the war there was an abnormal demand for high-cut boots at a time when there was a shortage of leather. Now, with leather in abundant supply, the consumers are calling for low-cut foot wear. This consideration also is a factor in explaining the comparatively low price of hides at the present time. The Canadian public, too, are demanding a better finished shoe than ever before and this means higher cost of production. It may be said, however, without fear of contradiction that the tanners' prices for leather have been adjusted on a basis of the present value of hides, and the manufacturers of leather goods have also adjusted their prices on a basis of the present cost of leather. The manufacturers' prices of boots and shoes have been reduced by from 30 to 35 per cent. from the "peak" prices.

Almost every manufacturer of boots and shoes or other leather products has suffered considerable, and in some cases exceedingly heavy, losses as a result of slackened demand for the goods which he manufactures and the sharp decline in inventory values. Where manufacturing profits are being made at the present time they are exceedingly moderate. The public little realizes the losses, difficulties and serious problems with which practically all business men have been confronted during the past few years.

A MODERN MIRACLE

What Mr. Robert I. Buchanan, of Sarnia, Ont., has to say:

It is with great pleasure that I can testify to the great curative qualities of Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets and Hou-Tan Ointment.

The summer of 1902 I took typhoid fever which left me with inflammatory rheumatism. My legs used to swell and the pain at times was almost unbearable. In January, 1903, I was compelled to go to bed and one month after my leg broke open at the knee. I was removed to Sarnia Hospital, where I spent almost one year and during that time had four operations. A part of the femur was removed from my leg and they made an incision through the other leg which went right through the bone. I left Sarnia hospital in February ,1904, and started to treat with other remedies but they failed to do me any good. In November, 1906, I was taken to Toronto hospital. At that time my right leg had gone back knocked-knee and straightened it. I came They put a Thomas splint on to straighten it up and opened up the wound again. I left the hospital in February, 1907, and remained at home until July, 1907, when I returned to Toronto hospital again. They broke my leg just below the knee and straightened it. I carle home in December, but the sore in my leg was still open. I was then using the cupping treatment which helped a little for a time. I tried a number of different Ointments, but they did not appear to help me.

In July, 1908, your agent left me a box of Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets and Hou-Tan Ointment. After using them for about six months my health has been fully restored and the four different sores on my leg are completely healed.

Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets and Hou-Tan Ointment are for sale at WARNE'S DRUG STORE, Peterborough. Herb Tablets 25c., 50c. and $1.00 per box. Hou-Tan Ointment 50c.

U.S. SEAMAN'S ACT FORCING SHIPS TO REGISTER WITH US

MANY U.S. VESSELS UNDER CANADIAN REGISTRY AS A RESULT.

WASHINGTON, June 25.— (By Canadian Press)—Actual results of the La Follette Seaman's Act, which tends to increase the cost of operation of United States shipping, were described by Representative Mills of New York, in a speech in the House He declared that on the Great Lakes this act forced many vessels under Canadian registry.

"Let us consider what have been the actual results of the operation of this law," said Mr. Mills, "on the United States marine of the lakes, and it is unnecessary to generalize it is unnecessary to assume or imagine. These are actual facts. Take the G. B. Hall steamers that carry more than a million tons of coal from the port of Rochester in the state af New York. Today they are nearly all under Canadian registry, having been transferred in 1917 because of the operation of this act. One hundred thousand passengers leave Rochester yearly by way of Lake Ontario and go down the St. Lawrence. They are all carried on vessels under the Canadian flag because of the provisions of this act. Take pulp wood boats. Here is a fair example of how it effects them. The steamship Ford, a vessel of 609 tons gross, operated with a crew of 13 men in 1915 and after the passage of this act was equipped to carry 17 men. That increased the cost of operation per annum $5,000, the equivalent of the interest charges on the entire capital invested of some $100,000. Take the steamship Jut in Bay, which in 1911 had 2 fire men, 2 engineers and now has 3 fire men, 3 officers, 2 engineers, 2 oilers, and she makes a five hour run. Take the vessels of the Detroit and Cleveland navigation company. Their run is 7 hours from Cleveland to Detroit. The seamens Act increased the crew of seven of their vessels by 40 running anywhere from 12 men on one ship to 2 on another Take the steamship Alabama of the Goodrich company. Her pay-roll in 1915 was $3,200 a month and in 1916 after the passage of this act, it was $4,200 a month an increase of $1,000, and certainly wages in 1015 and 1916 can be fairly compared. Take the Cleveland and Buffalo line. One of their boats, one of the largest passenger boats on the Great Lakes the increase in the pay-roll an one vessel alone, owing to the Seamen's Act is over $13,000, and if you realize what a vast amount of capital is represented by such an interest charge, you will readily appreciate what it means in respect to the construction of the new vessels to operate on the Great Lakes. These are, generally, the results of the passage of this act.

"Here is one vessel the C & B line, that never makes a trip of over 3 1-2 miles and never operates more than 8 hours a day. She was obliged to increase her firemen force. Take the sand boats, 40 or 50 on the Great Lakes, with a plant investment of $5,000,000. These boats actually operate on the Lakes only some 3 or 4 hours per day. They are never more than 3 1-2 miles from shore and yet one of them, when it was changed from the Canadian registry to the U.S. register was obliged to increase her number of firemen from one to three, an increase of $875 to $1,125 a month. Though she was not actually operated more than 4 hours a day, this force was tripled in the fireroom under the terms of this unreasonable Act".

An acre, under favorable conditions, will produce 20,000 lbs., of onions.

THE SATURDAY COLUMN

(By QUINTUS)

Transportation and cheap transportation is the making or unmaking of a country. Russia realised that when she builded her trans-Siberian railway and some day the people of Canada who in the mass seem not to be able to look after their mass interests, will wake up to the fact, and even municipal or street railways will be cheap. Russia's great railway, six thousand miles long, has fast trains from Moscow (the geographical centre of European Russia), and slow trains, but whether fast or slow, they are cheap, good and clean. The railway is now about all double-tracked. Passengers furnish their own bedding in the cheaper or colonist trains, and every one hundred miles there is a place where the best of bread at a penny a pound, roast geese at fifty cents apiece, chickens roasted and, like all the other fowl, tender and sweet at twenty-five cents each, butter at fifteen to twenty cents a pound, and the equal of Danish butter at that. The truth is that Siberia will one day supply the world with foodstuffs. Wages are one-tenth of Canadian wages. Before Red Revolution smashed the greedy selfishness of Russian bureaucrats and tried to govern a country contrary to nature and to God, as many social reformers are trying to do in this country in their own interests, too, Russia was proceedingly slowly but surely to colonise her great north-eastern parts. Millions of patient, industrious peasants have moved by reason of cheap transportation into Siberia, which in climate and fertility, is the equal of our own great west, without many of the drawbacks. The farmer of the U. S. was long ago alarmed over Siberian competition. Climatic and other drawbacks which make the Canadian west an expensive luxury, and the U. S. farmer did not greatly fear it, but Siberia is another thing. There is no drawback to Siberia, except an occasional drought, and the hard winter, and as a soil treater that is a necessity, while to the Russian it is a season of ease and pleasure. Of course, even the poor, crazy Russian government knows better than to build railways all over everywhere, chasing the colonist into out-of-the-way corners and making public ownership and transportation a joke or a crime. People cannot take up land here, there and everywhere and then scheme and plan with politicians and money lenders to get railway extensions that cannot possibly pay. The great cheap through trans-Siberian line is built and if people cannot find good land and favorable places within reach of it over thousands of miles, then they can take camels or prairie schooners and go elsewhere, but land speculation and rail madness is not allowed in Eastern Russia, whatever other forms of fiendishness are practised. Ninety per cent. of the Russian population is peasant and they are a quiet, patient, industrious people. The knout or the law lets them alone, except when war disturbs them. In Canada we have not the knout, but we have its equivalent. We have not one czar but many. They deal with lost souls, women's skirts and the proper method of feeding babies, and they will have everything all right or they will smash it to pieces or put it in gaol. Not so in Russia. Before Lenine and Trotsky, they had some liberty. Now they are nearly as free as we are here. They have their Cossacks and so have we.

But that will be all right in time. After every war there has been a period when religions and philosophies suffered eclipse or amendment. Reformers saw their chance and they made the most of it. This does not refer to Rotarians, who seem to be as far above synods, presbyteries, conferences and the like as Christ was above the people, and so far as I can see the comparison is not irreverent. But they found it necessary to taboo religion and politics. Those two most important things they considered hopeless. The people's business and the people's souls are alike left to fate. In Russia it is or was a bit better than that. Here the interests are the first consideration and "let the people take care of themselves.' In Russia it is or was the people first and let the interess look after themselves, and the interests seem to be doing pretty well.

The Russian way produced the great trans-Siberian railway and very cheap transportation for people and goods, going or coming. The Canadian way produced the Canadian railway-and-land tangle and a desperate great-west. Of course we will come out all right after the people have sweated and been sweated a bit more. Our people are in some ways like the Russian peasants. I will leave it to the reader to say how. When they come to thinkof it, it may help to help them out of the difficulty. We like taxes you know. They are higher in Canada than in Russia, but if you will sent a cart round to cart us to the polls we will still vote to make them higher. There is more of the simple Russian fool about us. Eh? What? If 'prosperity is contentment, then the Russian peasant has got us beat. We are a self-confessed barbarous and uncivilized people crying out that we have light and goodness and sweetness, etc., etc., but yet governing by the lash and handcuff.

But I must get back to Siberia. The railway employees keep the long trains and the many stopping places as clean as the C.P.R., and as well handled, or pretty nearly so. Of course there is a deficit, but not a heavy one, and it is really not a deficit but a bonus for purposes of cheap transportation for the people and the development of trade which returns the expenditure many fold. Heaven help this expensive country when Russia gets settled down, unless, of course, our interests get to it, when the interests will prosper but not the people. This is a great world, isn't it? And yet we have been saying for so long that it is pretty nearly perfect. Who has been buncoing us?

WILL BE GUESTS OF THE ORILLIA BOARD OF TRADE

EXECUTIVE OF TRENT WATERWAY ASSOCIATION WILL MEET AT ORCHARD POINT, NEAR ORILLIA, NEXT TUESDAY.

The Executive of the Trent Waterway Development Association have happily chosen one of the favorite spots in the Central Ontario district for the annual meeting, to be held next Tuesday, June 28th.

The President, Mr. G. K. Fraser, owner of the cruiser "Wanderer," stated that Orillia had been particularly chosen for the convention this year, owing to the marked support given by its public-spirited citizens in boosting the waterway. Since choosing Orillia, Mr. Geo. J. Overend, Secretary of the Board of Trade, has notified the association that the board will act as hosts to the delegates from all the interested municipalities from Georgian Bay to Lake Ontario, and luncheon will be supplied at 1 p.m. at the Orchard Point Inn, near Atherley, a few miles from Orillia, on the waterway. Automobiles will also be at the disposal of the delegates arriving at Orillia to motor to the hotel.

Have Many Enquiries.

The work of the association during the past year has been considerable, and the net results will, no doubt, be seen by the increased tourist traffic on the waterway during the summer months. About two hundred enquiries have been received by the association, following the extensive advertising campaign, which has placed this most delightful course as one of the best cruising areas on the North American Continent. One cruiser, named "Ben," property of Mr. G. W. Healey, is now on its way from Gatun, Panama Canal.

The President remarked that the concrete evidence of the joint efforts on the part of all the municipalities through the association, which will be submitted in the annual report, will, no doubt, stimulate the municipalities to make further efforts in the utilization of a valuable asset.

Municipalities Invited.

Invitations have been forwarded to all municipalities and interested organizations throughout the entire route, and the Hon. J. D. Reid, Minister of the Department of Railways and Canals, Mr. A. L. Killaly, Chief Superintendent, and Mr. D. E. Eason, Superintending Engineer, are endeavoring to be present.

The delegation from Peterborough will likely include four members of the City Council, Mr. Jos. J. Duffus, President of the Chamber of Commerce; Mr. F. D. Kerr, Vice-President of the association; Mr. Leon. Frazer, Secretary; Mr. E. A. Peck and Mr. R. B. Rogers.

A MOONLIGHT EXCURSION

Someone gets you some deck chairs, and you all sit down facing the water, and look at the moon, and everyone says, what a lovely night it is. And just when you are nicely settled they decide to retrace their steps and climb all over you once more. And the young fellow who is sitting a few feet down by the rail gives you the "once over" a couple of times, and then turns his attention to the girl with the ears-pads, the middy and no hat who has a near-blonde chum with her. When the boat stops at the Locks a young auburn-haired gentleman comes along and lifts his eyebrows at this girl. They engage in conversation, and she promises to meet him on the moonlight the following evening. That they have apparently never met before, does not seem to matter in the least, in fact on board a moonlight excursion, none of the conventions matter in the least. You leave them all behind you on the wharf, to be resumed when the voyage is completed. The two young soldiers who are sitting on the rail, seem to be rather lonely. The young ladies who come and gaze at the water in their extreme vicinity, evidently think so. They strike up a conversation with them, gradually become more and more friendly, and when you last see them the soldiers have an arm each around their respective partners, whose heads are resting comfortably on military shoulder straps. Someone throws a lot of peanut shells down on the crown of your best hat, so you decide you will go down and look at the dancers. There they are, on the lower deck, teetering and jiggling around and around in the most aproved modern manner. It is hot and stuffy and you don't stay long. Upstairs someone has pre-empted your chairs, so you settle yourself at the rail and prepare to enjoy the view. Immediately ahead, at the second stanchion, a young lady appears to be sitting on a young man's lap, or vice versa. It is hard to say. Her head is completely obliterated from view. In the stern of the boat, with backs to the audience, another pair are silhouetted against the moonlit sky. However, their profiles remain a conventional two inches apart for the duration of the journey, and another couple to the left apepar to be quite content with holding hands.

A small boy turns the wheel at the Locks, and a deck hand slips on something or other and falls into the water. Great excitem...t ensues. Everybody rushes to one side of the boat and peers into the dark waters. A man says, "He's a goner," and a woman screams. Another deck hand throws the swimmer a rope, and presently he has scrambled out and is turning the other wheel with great vigor and much dripping of water. The small boy on the other side has gone on with his task in the face of all the excitement, quite unmoved. The couple at the second stanchion resume their flirtation, in fact he becomes quite ferocious, and kisses her a great number of times, until her girl companion who has been sitting unnoticed all this time, pulls her skirt. The lights go on, and the girl straightens her hat. Something hits the boat, and the one who always knows everything tells you it is a log. The young man across the way gives the girl another embrace, and they get up and go downstairs. Everybody gets off.

CENTRAL ONTARIO OIL CO., LTD.

The prospectus of the Central Ontario Oil Co., Ltd., of Peterborough, Ont., will be issued shortly.

It will show a tract of no less than eleven hundred and fifty-five acres secured. Two hundred of this will be owned outright by the company, which is a great feature.

That Mr. Edward J. Cowain and his son, W. R. Cowain, who is a well-known business man of Peterborough, are backing up their faith in Mr. Edward J.'s method of discovering oil by turning over their farms to the company without one cent of cash, and, besides this, it cost them a great amount of cash and time from business in getting this company in shape to make it as safe as possible for the investor, shows the implicit faith they have in the success of the company.

Mr. Cowain has tested every farm by his system and claims there is no doubt as to oil being on every farm the company controls.

The manager of a very wealthy company who has taken up a large tract of land is so impressed with this system that he is paying Mr. Cowain the compliment of using it in determining the location of the lake of oil, which he, too, believes exists in the district.

A large bonus is given those who share in the first risks.

GOOD TIRES FOR GREATER MILEAGE.

Hail, the cord tire! Though its rise to popular favor has not been spectacular, steadily and through sheer merit it has established itself in the realm of motordom. Not many years ago cord tires were considered only as equipment for luxurious cars. Their cost was considered prohibitive by the average motorist. They were used almost exclusively on the boulevards of the big cities during their early days.

To-day they are found on every type of passenger car and have even invaded the truck field, and in some lines of motor transportation have ousted the solid rubber tire. Practically every make of passenger car has adopted them as standard equipment. The popular demand is for cords for replacements, and cord equipped new cars are the most attractive "buy." The cord has been found as rugged for rough country roads as for city pavements.

Canada's four hundred thousand motorists are deeply indebted to the cord tire. It has set new standards for mileage and tire economy. With cords delivering remarkable service it was necessary for manufacturers to improve the materials and construction of fabric tires to the new service standard of cords. Consequently the motorist of to-day is getting more than double the mileage and at lower prices than he did in the tires of ten years ago. Cords have strengthened the entire tire line-up.

The modern cord tire was evolved from the Palmer bicycle tire. While the patents were owned by J. M. Palmer, of England, Goodrich manufactured them exclusively in the United States for a number of years. Later, when Palmer sold his patents to a rubber company in Silverton, England, the American rights under these patents were acquired by the Goodrich company in 1912.

Many changes and improvements in construction and method of manufacture of this type of tire have been made during the past ten years, but the original cord pneumatic tire idea for bicycles has been the fundamental principle throughout.

Automobiles would have been impracticable without pneumatic rubber tires, and, since pneumatics were first developed for bicyles, modern motor transportation history must reserve a prominent chapter for the bicycle's contribution.

OPPOSITION TO TARIFF RISING

CONTROVERSY IN U.S. CONGRESS OVER CANADIAN LUMBER DUTIES EXAMPLE.

WASHINGTON June 25.—(By Canadian Press).—Difficulties in the way of the permanent tariff bill are getting worse rather than better. Not only is there every indication that both houses will have the utmost trouble and controversy in fixing the rates but there is complete uncertainty as to where the bill will become law.

The controversy over the tariff on lumber imported from Canada is an illustration of the wide difference of opinion about fixing rates. This difference exists not only as between republicans and democrats but among the republicans themselves. The most intense opposition to duty on lumber from Canada proceeds from republican members who represent agricultural districts and who are aware that the farmers with their long experience in high lumber prices are antagonistic to such a duty.

But there are plenty of snarls and tangles additional to the lumber question which confront the ways and means committee of the House, which is the committee framing the bill. The wool rates and rates on woollen goods and the rates on cotton goods are matters of serious dispute.

There is no doubt that the leaders of the ways and means committee have determined to put high rates on most products and articles. They are high tariff men and they have no sympathy with the low tariff idea. It was predicted early in the present session of Congress that the ways and means committee would report on a bill with exceptionally high protective duties. As times goes on, this prediction is more and more being fulfilled.

Strong elements in the House and Senate think that the United States will make a mistake to adopt such a policy and what is needed now is encouragement of foreign trade instead of tariffs which will tend to restrict such trade. Hence when the ways and means committee reports on its bill both the House and Senate may prove to be of a temper to upset the ways and means programme. Certainly, there will be a concerted movement in that direction. Many republicans fear the political results of an extremely high tariff. They recall that after the Payne-Aldrich bil, with its high duties was passed, the country turned over to the democrats to the extent that it elected a democratic house in 1910. Then, in 1912, the House and Presidency as well went to the Democrats. This history is still too fresh in the minds of many members to make some of them view with complaisance the efforts of the high tariff element to write duties in the new bill at too exalted a level.

The impression is growing in Washington that it wil be next fall before the tariff measure is a law. It is the general belief that it will be October or November before both the tariff and taxations are acted on.

A toothbrush so shaped as to reach both surfaces of the teeth at once has been patented.

Survival of the Fittest

These are days to test men's mettle. It is so easy to ride when the tide is high and demand is greater than supply.

It is easier to "lie down" when the tide is ebbing and wait for it to rise again.

But the easy way is not chosen by the successful man. When the tide is high, he fights for the pinnacle of achievement.

When the tide is low he fights a thousand times harder to maintain the position he has won, and to hold it against all comers when it rises again.

This is particularly evident amongst those who have used Daily Newspaper Advertising to assist in building their business.

They have not quit advertising; they are not lying down because business isn't good. They are going tooth and nail after every ounce that the market affords.

They don't strike a balance sheet every night, and get an attack of nerves because it happens to be on the wrong side for a few weeks.

They know how to stay on top.

Are you one of the fittest?

STATEMENT OF UTILITIES COMMISSION TO THE CITY COUNCIL RE WATER RATES

At the special meeting of the Council held last night the Clerk read the following statement from the Utilities Commission, no further action being taken in regard to the water rates' increase beyond the adoption by the Council of the resolution requesting a deferment of the increase passed at the Committee of the Whole Meeting on Monday night:

To His Worship the Mayor and City Council.

Gentlemen,—We have seen the report in The Examiner of the meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council held on Monday evening and of the resolution passed at that meeting with respect to the water rates, and we believe it is not out of place for us to take cognizance of the resolution before it has been reported to or acted upon by the City Council.

Some ratepayers have the erroneous impression that the interest and sinking funds for the waterworks debentures are paid by the City Council out of the tax rate, and while members of the Council no doubt know that no part of such interest and sinking funds have been paid out of the taxes, we might point out that the amount of debentures authorized to be issued by the City Council for the Waterworks Department and which have been sold amounted on December 31st, 1920, to $636,200.00. The interest on these debentures amounts to $28,612.95 a year and the sinking funds required to retire the debentures upon their maturity is $13,682.94 a year, making a total of $42,295.89 per year. This was paid last year, as were the amounts for interest and sinking fund every year since the city purchased the waterworks by the commission out of the waterworks revenue.

Deficit of $6,512.13.

The revenue of the Waterworks Department from all sources in 1920 was $69,995.86, and the amount required for debenture charges was $42,295.89, or 60.4 per cent of the total revenue, which left a balance of $27,622.97 to meet the operating expenses of the system.

The operating expenses of the system in 1920 were $34,175.10 and the revenue available to meet them after paying the debenture charges was $27,622.97, which left a deficit of $6,512.13.

Causes of Deficit.

The Council must be familiar to some extent with the conditions which caused this deficit. The cost of construction work, which added to the yearly charges, had greatly increased in the last few years, owing to the greatly increased cost of material and labour, and for similar reasons the expenses of operating the waterworks had increased. It may be that the water rates might have been increased sooner, but the opposite view is now taken by the Council that they are being increased too soon.

In fixing the rates which are to go into effect on July 1st next, we took into consideration the results of last year's operations. These were facts, and facts which had to be faced. We did not arrive at a conclusion hurriedly, for the subject was considered by the Commissioners individually and in meetings for several months, and we do not think it is discourteous to point out that we think that with the consideration we gave the subject and having access to all the information available, we were and are in a better position to judge of what is necessary than anyone who looks at the matter from the outside and hurriedly gives a judgment.

We repeat, what we have said elsewhere, that we are most willing to give information on any point connected with the operation of the utilities under our charge. They are the property of the people of the city, and we fully realize, and have always realized, that we are in charge of them for the people and that the citizens, and every citizen, is entitled to such information as is desired.

More Money Needed.

The deficit in the operation of the waterworks last year, as we have pointed out, was $6,512.13. If the same rates were maintained during the whole of this year, and the cost of operation was the same, there would be another deficit this year of $6,512.13, and this amount has to be provided for. But there has been a further issue of debentures for extension and improvements made in the system which will add to the amount to be raised for interest and sinking fund $1,581.61. The interest on the debentures authorised to be issued to pay for the construction of the filtration plant, which we hope will be issued soon, will be $11,375.00 for the six months. We also hope that the filtration plant will be in operation for three months of this year, and this we estimate to cost $3,500. Putting these figures together they are:

Deficit based on operations of 1920	$ 6,512.13
Increase in debenture charges	1,581.61
Six months' interest on filtration plant debentures,	11,375.00
Three months' operation of plant	3,500.00
Total	$22,968.74

Many Expenditures This Year.

The reesolution of Committee of the Whole Council assumed that there will be a decrease in the cost of operation this year of $6,512.13. This appears to have been based on a remark of the Chairman of the Commission. What the chairman said was that he noticed a decrease in the last pay list at the rate of about $400.00 a month, and if this could be maintained for twelve months it would amount to $4,800.00. It would be a mistake to depend for results on a calculation based on a half month's figures, especially in view of the facts that there are hydrants which should be lowered to prevent freezing, in addition to those which were lowered previous to this year, and that some smaller mains laid years ago must be replaced by larger ones on streets that are to be paved. When the Council gave notice of its intention to pave certain streets this year, steps were taken to improve the system on those streets, and some of the work has been done and preparations have been made to relay part of the main on Water Street north of Brock Street, and on Simcoe Street east of Water Street, and pipes have been purchased for this work.

Allow Margin.

We have shown that the requirements this year, based on last year's results, will be $22,547.13 more than last year. The increased revenue to be received from the city for fire protection, etc., is $11,600.86, which will still leave a deficit of $11,367.88. The increase in revenue from the new rates for six months based on last year's consumption would be $18,748.63, which would leave a surplus for the year of $7,380.75. This, as we have said, is based on last year's consumption of water, but we have to bear in mind that the higher rate may result in greater economy in the use of water and less consumption by some consumers, and greater carefulness to avoid leakage, and that the revenue will not come up to this calculation. In addition, the rate of bank interest has been increased from 5½ to 6 per cent., which has not been allowed for in these figures. We do not believe it is prudent to calculate on an even break in revenue and expense, because that is a risky thing to do, and that it is wiser to try to provide for a margin so as to be on the safe side. That is what we have done, and if there is less consumption of water by some metered customers, or for any unforeseen reason the revenue is less than calculated upon, or the expenditure through any cause is higher than estimated, there is a margin in the estimates to come and go on, but not too large a margin on a business of this size. If there should for any unexpected reason be a deficit, the waterworks, which, of course, means the people who own and use the waterworks, will have to make it up, and if there should be a surplus the people again will get the benefit of it, for they own the works and the revenue is theirs.

Not Wise to Defer.

In view of the facts as they exist, we do not believe that it would be wise to defer the putting into force of the new rates and to face another and larger deficit this year, in addition to the deficit of last year. The work of getting out the accounts is well forward, and to delay issuing them and to do the work over again would only add to the expense and add to the increased deficit that would be caused by deferring the new rates.

Ready for Audit.

As to the matter of a special or independent audit of the Commission's books referred to in the resolution of the Committee of the Whole Council, that is a matter entirely for the City Council to decide, and should be as necessary whether the rates were intended to be increased or not, for if the Council thinks that such an audit is required the deferring of the increased rates could not alter that necessity. The Utilities Commission has never had anything to say as to who would audit their books or as to how he would do his work or what he shall publish in his report, for the city auditors appointed by the City Council have always audited their books, because the law directs that the accounts of the Commission shall be audited by the auditors of the Corporation. If, therefore, the City Council wishes to have a special audit made of the Commission's books or any further audit made than they have already had made, we will be pleased to give every facility and assistance to such auditor, as the Council appoints for the purpose.

Water at Cost.

It is our policy to furnish the water at cost. That we believe to be the correct policy in connection with the service of any public utility. It is our intention, and was before any question as to rates was raised, to watch closely the results of the operation of the waterworks and to have statements taken off frequently. If we find that the rates can safely be reduced we will do so as soon and as often as it can be done. The charges have been reduced several times since the city purchased the works, in order to carry out that policy.

A Comparison.

We have published a comparison of the present and the new rates based on a seven-roomed house, and we wish to compare the proposed new rates with what the citizens were paying when the waterworks were purchased by the city. The comparison is as follows for a seven-romed house, with the usual fittings:

	Water Co.'s Rate.
House with seven rooms	$8.00
Bath	2.00
Water Closet	3.00
Wash Basin	1.00
2,300 sq. feet of lawn	4.00
	$18.00
Less 10 per cent.	1.80
	$16.20
	Proposed New Rate.
House with seven rooms	$7.38
Bath	2.70
Water Closet	4.02
Wash Basin	1.38
2,300 sq. feet of lawn	4.68
	$20.16
Less 10 per cent.	2.02
	$18.14

This is an increase of $1.94, or of 12 per cent., and the new rate is for filtered water, and at a time of increased costs of construction and operation. We do not consider this discreditable to the public ownership and operation of the utility.

Yours very respectfully,

Peterborough Utilities Commission.

LAWN SOCIAL WAS SPLENDID SUCCESS.

The lawn social held by the Park Street Baptist Sunday School on the church lawn last evening was splendidly patronized. The grounds were prettily decorated with Japanese lanterns, and the dainty booths for ice cream, home-made candy, strawberries nd cake were kept busy all evening. Music was supplied by the Sunday School orchestra of Park Street Church, under the able leadership of Mr. W. Ford. This orchestra is a splendid little example of good training, and the selections were much enjoyed.

THE OFFICIAL ACT OF "RECEIVING" A LETTER AT THE CITY HALL SAID TO BE EQUIVALENT TO BURYING IT

THE CITY HALL ARCHIVES GOBBLE UP COMMUNICATIONS THAT BEAR THE "RECEIVED" STAMP —WILL REMOVE TREES.

Failing to receive any satisfaction from the Board of Health, although he made two attempts, Dr. T. N. Greer, Medical Officer of Health for North Monaghan, wrote the Council last night that the city side of Monaghan Road, south of Patterson Street, was filled up with rubbish.

"The place is pretty well filled up now. There is nothing there but tin cans now. There has been nothing put there in a few months," said R. H. Parsons, city engineer.

The communication was received.

The Archives.

When a letter is received, it is "dead," and put in the vault. This is what happened to a letter from Col. G. H. Gillespie, Inspector of Cadet Services, M.D. No. 3. Col. Gillespie's letter stated that on 11th July a Cadet Camp opened at the Exhibition Grounds for 400 cadets of this city and district, to last six days.

"In cities where these camps have been held in the past, a grant of $100.00 has been given for prizes for the encouragement of sport amongst the boys at Camp. Last year the Peterborough Council were good enough to give $100.00 for this purpose, and I now appeal to you again for a similar amount."

Ald. Crowe and Ald. Gordon were the mover and seconder of the motion killing the request.

New Sidewalk.

Engineer Parsons reported on the cost of laying a sidewalk on the north side of Murray Street from Bethune to Stewart Streets, at a total cost of $465.63, of which $102.60 is chargeable to property owners.

F. C. Rooke, a grocer at the corner of Aylmer and Prince Streets, appealed to the Council last night to have the oil put down on Aylmer Street from Prince to Lansdowne Streets, a distance of 160 feet more. On Lock and George Streets, he said, the oil was extended to Lansdowne Street.

Ald. Frank Whitehouse, chairman of the Board of Works, agreed to see that the oiling was extended as requested, although he reminded the Mayor that they were going to be short of oil.

Filtration Plant.

The following resolution of the Peterborough Utilities Commission was referred to the Finance Committee by the Council last night:

"That the City Council be requested to pass a by-law, as authorised by the City's Act passed at the last session of the Legislature, to provide that the debentures to pay for the construction of the filtration works shall be issued for ten years, without a sinking fund, and renewed at the expiration of the ten years for twenty years, with a sinking fund, and to give authority to sell the debentures.

Remove Trees.

On the City Engineer's recommendation the Council granted permission to the following residents to remove the trees mentioned:

Mrs. Rody, 585 Chamberlain Street, two willow trees.

N. W. Anderson, 571 Aylmer Street, one maple tree.

W. C. Elliott, 575 Aylmer Street, one maple tree.

James Lewis, 579 Aylmer Street, one maple tree.

G. A. Borland, 581 Aylmer Street, one maple tree.

W. Cartner, 165 Stewart Street, two Manitoba maples.

P. Hynes, 485 Bonacord Street, three maple trees.

George Grange, 540 Charlotte Street, one tree.

LOCAL GUNNERS HOME TO-MORROW

Capt. Douglas Lawrie, O.C., 4th Battery, said this morning that the detachment which went to Petawawa on Tuesday night would likely return on the first morning train from the East to-morrow morning.

The O. C. stated he had no word from the detachment, but expected they would leave Petawawa to-day, arriving home early to-morrow morning on the 4.16 train.

Four gun crews went to Petawawa. There were 32 men in all. Firing as to take place on Thursday and yesterday.

The four officers ith the Battery were Lieutenants J. W. Stevenson, D. W. Cameron, B. Betcher, and H. Crane.

LARAMIE HOLDS THE RANGE

By Frank H. SPEARMAN.

"Robinson's shack was empty," he said. "Whether he got wind of yesterday I don't know; anyway, he's skipped there's nothing left on the place.

"What's there to this talk of Barney's about Abe Hawk?" demanded Doubleday.

"From what Bradley says, it looks as if he might be right," said Van Horn. "The horse Hawk took is eating grass in front of his cabin. We saw him when we got here and waited for Hawk to show himself."

"He didn't do it," interrupted Doubleday huskily and baring his teeth as he spoke.

"Stone's watching the place."

"Is Abe there?" demanded Doubleday.

"You tell," returned Van Horn. "He may or may not be. That horse may be a stall. We've got to close in somehow on the shack and find out."

A cowboy clattered up from the creek and pulled his horse to its haunches between Doubleday and Van Horn. "He's just closed the door," declared the cowboy. "The door was open when we got here—wasn't it, Harry?" He pointed his finger at Van Horn in his excited appeal.

Van Horn scowled and waved his head from side to side in irritation. "The door was open, yes; the door is shut, yes." Then he swore at the alarmist. "You blamed monkey," he pointed to the cottonwood. "Don't you see how the wind is blowing? That door has been swinging half an hour. The shack is empty."

But nobody could be found with confidence enough in Van Horn's belief to close in and demonstrate its truth. After a litany of hard words, in which everybody took more or less part, Van Horn declared he would demonstrate. Whatever his faults, he was dead game, a formidable antagonist in an encounter. He was risking his life on his belief that either Hawk was disabled or the cabin was empty. Stripping himself to shirt and trousers, turning his effects over to a cowboy, bareheaded, and with only a six shooter in his hand, he shook out his long, brown hair, hooked up his belt, and started to crawl up a little wash breaking into the creek not far from the cabin.

There was no point from which he could be seen, and his companions, secreted where they could watch the cabin, bent their eyes along the course of the wash up which their hidden leader was making his way.

Fortunately for the slippery undertaking, Van Horn, by a little digging as he made his way carefully ahead, was able to crawl to within fifty feet of the door without exposing himself to fire. Reaching the nearest spot he could attain with safety, he called in stentorian tones to the cabin:

"You're surrounded, Abe; you can't get away. If you want to surrender I'll guarantee your life. Come out unarmed and I'll meet you unarmed. If not, it's what Gorman and Dutch Henry got, for you Abe."

The cabin gave no answer back. But Van Horn would not be baffled. Knowing it would be suicide to venture closer, he sought patiently his answer on the ground he was covering on his way back to the creek. And on the ground he found it.

"He slipped us," Van Horn called out when Doubleday arrived, "but I've got his trail."

Doubleday swore a bitter oath. "Two hundred and fifty dollars to the man that gets him!" he shouted huskily. Some of the boys gave a whoop and began to look around, but they did not scatter much.

Van Horn, losing no time, led Doubleday part way up the break along which he had crawled. Telltale traces of blood at irregular intervals, sometimes imprinted as if by a hand on the flat face times smeared on a starving tuft of bunch grass, where it clung desperately to a crevice in the scant soil—all so slight and so well concealed that only the mere chance of Van Horn's crawling up the very break chosen by Hawk for his escape to the creek had revealed it to his pursuers. The tracker took the slender trail, followed the wounded rustler to the creek bottom, and thence down the creek to its junction with the North Fork. There they lost the trail in a pool of water, nor could they pick it up again.

A mile below the fork of the Turkey stood Jim Laramie's cabin. The raiders had already entered on his land; his cattle and some of his horses were, in fact, grazing in and about the creek fork. The following of Hawk's trail had been a nerve racking job. Hawk, his enemies knew, might be waiting at any turn in it and that meant, in all probability, death for some one. In consequence the pioneering fell chiefly on Van Horn; even Stone showed little stomach for the job. But the trail was now completely lost.

"There's a bunch of horses grazing at the fork," said Van Horn as Doubleday reached the front, "Laramie's, I guess—anyway, the trail is gone."

A council was held. Doubleday, long headed and crafty, listened to all that was said. Van Horn finally asked for his opinion.

"I don't know no more than the rest of you; but a blind man can figure a few things out. He's hit, ain't he?" Barb put the question as one not to be gainsaid, and found none to say him nay. "He's looking for help, that's more'n likely, ain't it? He's a mile from Jim Laramie's cabin, not more; he's three miles from anybody's place—what?" he exclaimed as Bill Bradley interrupted to suggest that it was less than two miles over to Ben Simeral's. "All right," shouted Barb, "Hawk's here, ain't he? He's close to Laramie. Laramie is his friend. Where would he go—what?".

Chopping his ideas out as with an ax, Doubleday showed his companions what they should have thought of without being told. "The thing to do," he added "is to go down to Laramie's cabin and see what we can see—and find out what we can find out."

It was precisely what Bradley had feared would happen, but there was no escape from Doubleday's logic and no help for what others than Bradley feared might follow.

On the morning the raiders entered the Falling Wall, Laramie had started with Henry Sawdy for the Reservation to appraise some allotted Indian lands. Laramie rode home that night; Sawdy promising to stop at the ranch on his way down in the morning stayed that night at the Fort with Colonel Pearson. Laramie got home late. He was asleep next morning when a door was pushed open and a man walked unceremoniously in on him. To what instinct some mountain men owe their composure when disturbed in their sleep by a friend, as contrasted with the instant defense they offer in like circumstance to an enemy, it would be difficult to say—certainly there is a difference.

Laramie half opened his eyes to realize that Abe Hawk had come into his room and seated himself on the one chair. Laramie was not inclined to wake up. "You're early, Abe," was his only greeting. Hawk made no answer.

After a further effort the drowsy man roused himself to the attention that seemed demanded in the case. "Going somewhere?" he mumbled perfunctorily.

"Yes." Hawk's hard tone might have surprised his host for a moment; but if it did, drowsiness overpowered his senses once more and it was some time before he realized that his visitor was sitting silent at his side and that he himself ought to say something. In protest he shifted his comfortable position in bed. "Get your breakfast ready, Abe," he said hospitably, but with his heavy eyes closed.

"I've had breakfast."

"Where you bound for today?"

"On a long trip."

"Which way?"

"Home."

"What do you mean 'home?'"

"I mean hell, Larrie—the home long waiting for me."

Laramie's eyes batted slowly. He rose on his elbow. Not half a dozen times in all their long acquaintance had Hawk shortened Laramie's name in speaking to him; and then only when he spoke as he rarely did from a depth always hidden from the men among whom his wasted life had been spent. Roused by something in the utterance of his guest, Laramie looked at him.

If the sight was a shock the mountain man gave no outward sign of it. The lower right side of Hawk's face had been torn away as if by some explosion and blood, darkened by clay and rude styptics, clotted the long beard which naturally fell in a glossy black. His disordered garments blood-smeared and hanging loose—his coat sleeve and his shirt torn from his forearm for bandages, his soft hat jammed low over his eyes—for an instant, Laramie hardly recognized him. But the cold black eyes that looked out of the wreck of a man before him pierced so clearly the long shadows of the early light that Laramie had no choice but to realize it was Hawk and even the shock only served to restrain and steady him. He showed but little of his amazement when he sat up and spoke, quietly.

"What's up, Abe?"

"Night before last I was playing cards with Gorman over at Henry's. After daylight Gorman went out for a bucket of water. We heard a rifle shot. I looked out the window. Stormy was tumbling.

"You know the draw that runs down past his corral. Barb Doubleday, Pettigrew, Van Horn, Stone and a bunch of cowboys and Texas men lay in that draw. It was hell to pay from daylight till dark. The Dutch man got his right at the start. They tried to rush me. I stopped three of 'em and dug myself in. Then we went at it hammer and tongs. In the afternoon they put a hole through my whiskers. After awhile they clipped my shoulder. Then I got a bullet through my arm." He held up his left forearm swathed in a mass of soiled and blood-soaked bandages.

And he told of Van Horn's godevil.

"The raid's on," muttered Laramie.

"Soon as it was dark, I began to dig under the sill," Hawk went on. "They began lighting fires. I knew they couldn't keep those going a great while. About ten o'clock I crawled out under the front sill and got to the creek; I never was so gone for water in my life. I set a candle so it would fire the shack when it burned down and sneaked a horse from their bunch and got over to my place." He looked at his arm. "I tried to keep things bound up. Maybe I left a little red behind me. If I did, they'll be after me."

His story haltingly told; his utterance through his torn cheek thick and plainful but savagely uncompromising; carrying a physical burden of wounds that would have overwhelmed a lesser man but with a deadly hate showing in his manner, Hawk from sheer weakness paused.

"I went to my cabin to look for more cartridges," he added slowly, "and not a damned one was there left on the place." He hesitated again. "I didn't want to come here ——."

Laramie sprang to his feet. "Where the hell else would you go?"

Hawk heard unmoved the rough assurance; perhaps his eyes flashed, for Laramie's voice rang strong and true. He already had his hand on Hawk's chair. "Come over here to the light," he said, "till we get some of this dirt off you. You need a bath, Abe. For a clean man you look like——."

Hawk put in his right hand. "I'll do for all the job that's left ahead of me."

"What job's ahead of you?"

"You've got a rifle like mine, Jim; the heavy one you don't use."

"Well?"

"I come here to see if you'd lend it to me."

"Why not?"

"Got any shells for it?" snapped Hawk.

"I guess so."

"I left the horse at the cabin to stand 'em off awhile. They'll lose a little time there. They'll come down the creek — can't come any other way. I'm going to wait for 'em in the timber."

"What for?"

"I'll finish with Doubleday and Van Horn, anyhow. Maybe I can with Stone."

"And they'll finish with you."

"After I get them three the rest are welcome to what's left of me. I've got to be moving."

"Hold on a minute, Abe." Laramie sat down on the side of his cot his knees spread apart, his elbows resting on them, and his hands clasped as he leaned forward, head down, to think.

"Them fellows are riding every minute," Hawk reminded him grimly.

"Let's talk this thing over," persisted Laramie.

"I'll pay you for your rifle right now," mumbled Hawk, feeling with his right hand in his trousers pocket for some gold pieces.

"Don't talk monkey stuff, Abe."

"They don't make a monkey out of me," snapped Hawk. "Give me your rifle and let me go."

"After we've talked it over."

Hawk pulled himself up out of the chair. "You blamed fool," he said profanely. "Don't you know that bunch will track me to your door and smash us with lead or burn us up in this shack if they get here first? Give me the rifle," he thundered, "or I'll go into the timber with this six shooter. What do you mean? Are you going to turn yellow on me because I'm a thief?" he demanded with a fearful oath.

Laramie moved neither hand nor feet. "You're an older man than I am, Dave," he replied, without even looking up. "I can take words from you, I'd hate to take from anybody else, you know that, and you know why. You won't talk; all right. Now I'll tell you where you get off: you're not going down to the timber—not a blamed step," he added deliberately. "Finger your six-shooter as much as you like." Laramie waved his hand with his words. "Use it on me if you like. But, by heaven, Abe——." As his voice changed, he jumped to his feet, adding like lightning, "you're not going to use it on yourself!"

He sprang for Hawk, reaching with his left hand for the gun. In tigerish ferocity the two men came together. Sleepy Cat worthies had sometimes speculated on what might happen if the two men most known and most feared in the Falling Wall country, Hawk and Laramie, should ever quarrel. They met now; but in a quarrel the wildest gossip had never fancied. Reeling, feet slipping, knees and hands locking, eyes staring, no word spoken and breathing hard, the two struggled in the middle of the cooped-up room—Hawk striving to free and kill himself; Laramie determined to wrest the gun from his grasp.

It was an unequal contest. Weakened by loss of blood, Hawk was not long a match for the only man on the range who, under other conditions, could have stood up before him. Gradually, with the gun in his right hand, Hawk was bent backward, with Laramie's left hand slipping along the barrel closer and closer to the grip. Prolonged by the fear of further injuring the wounded man, the tempestuous effort for mastery ended when Hawk was forced to the bed and Laramie's iron fingers closing on the gun wrenched it from him.

Hawk was done out and Laramie without more resistance straightened him out on the bed.

"You're worse hit than you think," panted the conqueror. "I've got a scheme better than your's, if there's time to put it through. Wait till I get a couple of horses."

The clatter of a horse outside cut into his last words. Laramie instantly slipped Hawk's revolver back into his hand, picked up his own gun and holster, strapping it to his waist as he ran, crossed the room, tore up a board in the floor, snatched a pair of rifles from their cache and hastening back to Hawk, his eyes glued all the while to the door, pushed one rifle into Hawk's hand and swung the other to his hip.

Not a word had been spoken. But preparations for a reception had been made complete and eventualities thoroughly considered. Heavy footfalls outside announced the approach of a man. The next moment the door was flung open and the intruder heard Laramie's voice in savage emphasis.

"Pitch up!"

The intruder did not, however, pitch up. It was John Lefever. He stood amazed. "For the love of God," he exclaimed, "what's broke loose?"

"Come in, John," cried Laramie, seizing his arm. "I want your horse a minute. Stay here till I get back—come, Abe, lively!"

"Where you going?" demanded Lefever, staring as he tried to collect his wits.

Laramie hurried Hawk past him. "That'll depend on the shooting, John," was all Laramie hastily said. "Doubleday and Van Horn have got a bunch of Texas men raiding the Falling Wall."

Lefever, gazing stunned at Hawk, talked as if he saw nothing. "I know all about that," he cried. "Man, alive, that's what I'm here for. Hold on, can't you?"

"Not now. Just stick around till I get back."

Lefever caught his breath in time to fire one more question.

"What about Abe?"

"He's not coming back. Scout around down along the creek, John, so you can see these fellows when they ride in. Hold 'em as long as you can."

Horace held up his hand.

"Be reasonable,' he protested. "Don't go bothering me about who she is. I'll have trouble enough explaining to her who you are.'

Two powerful stevedores, who had had some sort of falling out, were engaged in unloading a vessel at a St. Louis dock. Uncomplimentary remarks and warnings of intended violence were exchanged whenever the two passed each other with their trucks.

Peterboro's Venture In Oil Exploration

HIT AND MISS PROPOSITION THAT BROUGHT RESULTS—LOCAL COMPANY SPENDS MONEY TO FIND OUT.

(By F. H DOBBIN)

Just now speculative public attention is centered on the possible oil fields and developments that may be brought to light as the result of preliminary explorations in the Far North, say one thousand miles beyond Edmonton, Alberta. Inaccessable, so far as transportation is concerned, but from all accounts promising. Only huge amounts of capital may exploit, though locations are being staked by the hundreds. Climatic difficulties are tremendous and the cost of operation colossal. The next three years will bring out the showing and tell us if we have another rich and valuable oil field in the Dominion.

The talk and interest in this discovery may be an excuse for telling something of Peterborough's venture, first one of the kind, into oil; to locate and drill with the hope that some day a "gusher" would be uncovered. For at the time oil was the golden wand that was unlocking riches in the States to the south. Whale oil as an illuminant was fast being driven off the market. The pioneer candle, home made and home greased, was almost a thing of the past in urban localities. For kerosense was the coming light and old-fashioned whale oil lamps were being altered to take and consume the new fuel.

Profecting Was General.

This was in 1864-65. More or less talk among the people. Blairton to the east had set a-going a very acceptable iron mine. Down at Marmora and in the adjoining townships gold was being looked for with a prospect of success, though the avails from the rock promised to be slow but sure. In behind what is now Havelock an English company was spending money in a prospect for gold that promised slow, if sure, return. Up on the shore of Bald Lake, an arm of Pigeon Lake and tucked in behind Big Island, (exploited for its timber by the Boyd ompany) a bed of stone, such as is used in the art of lithographic printing, had been discovered. Samples taken out promised to be useful. In Galway the Stricklands and others were digging into beds of what looked like a fairly payable stratum of lead ore. All this promised, at least, that activity might be the rule.

"Money" Was Chary.

So Peterborough sat up and took notice. Surely there would be something that Peterborough might claim as its very own. And this longing to get something that might prove profitable was taken up and for a few months the prosecution of the Trent Valley Canal had a well-deserved rest. Some geological sharp had dropped hints that in this neighbourhood oil might be found. He even sent forward a friend who prospected to see if the locality would bite for a scheme and take stock. No, the town would be cautious. The monied men of the burg were almost venturesome in real commercial speculation, but boring into the vitals of the earth on a sort of "hit and miss" proposition did not promise lucrative returns.

Inevitable Public Meeting

Finally a friend of a friend came along and things now looked much better. After some period of canvassing a public meeting was called with the object in view to organize a company "to prosecute operations to ascertain if petroleum existed in paying quantities in this neighbourhood." The meeting discussed the proposition from many angles. Where would they bore? How much would it cost? How far down would the boring have to go to find out if oil could be found? Nothing was known or divulged as to the geological strata underlying the town, of the indications of oil—in fact, no information, only large conjecture. But the meeting wanted to spend some money and took a sporting chance.

A committee was at once appointed to consider and report. Which it did at an adjourned meeting on June 25th, 1865. So far as the financial requirements were concerned, that committee had made up its mind and said that a joint stock company would be about the right thing, so that no one man could get in any deeper than another, and if $4,000 stock were subscribed and of this $2,000 paid up at once it would be enough to begin operations on, which seemed reasonable. For fifty-five years ago two thousand dollars seemed quite a heap of money. Someone expressed the opinion that by the time the hole had gotten down to, say 400 feet, the committee stood a chance of seeing what it was looking for. This statement, though rather cryptic, satisfied for the moment.

Driller Makes Bargain.

In town was Mr. John Cragie, Jr., brother-in-law of Jack Stephenson of canoe invention fame, who had come back from working around the American oil fields, erecting derricks and such appliances. Cragie professed to be able to drill such a hole as would be judicious and to do it "judgematically," as he defined the operation. He offered to put down the four-hundred-foot hole at the rate of four to six feet per day and do it for one thousand dollars. As no one had the slightest idea of the cost of holes, and whether prices were likely to advance or recede and as the well would in any event be an upside-down monument to civic enterprise, a bargain was at once struck.

All of this was extremely edifying and practically clinched the proposition. Everybody was eager to see the thing started. So on formal motion, duly seconded and carried, the Peterborough Petroleum Company was organized, with a Mr. Hall as President and a Mr. Stewart as Secretary, and a sufficiency of trustees from among the qualified stockholders. And by June the 30th all this had been settled.

Promoters Paid Up.

On August 14th a first call was made on the stockholders, and the required fifty per cent. paid in. Having now the sinews of war, it was necessary to find out where the drilling should be located. There was a distinct call from parts of the town so that the patronage of the company should be bestowed here or there, for if the anticipated gusher was struck the value of the property in the immediate neighbourhood would at once increase amazingly. But to drive the machinery of the derrick power would be required. If located away from any of the then visible sources of power a steam plant would have to be made use of. Such would absorb quite a chunk of the capital. This was frowned down on.

Bore On River Bank.

In the end it was decided to use water power, and, of course, along the river was decided on. Power close to a spot where the derrick and boring tools could be erected and driven by means of a belt, or rope, from the source of power. So a spot was selected, without any consideration as to the probability of hitting oil, on the edge of the river bank, alongside the Blythe mill, the spot now being covered in the head race of the Auburn electric Power-house. Nearly opposite the old ruined foundation, the retaining wall of which still stands on the west side of the road. Foot room for the derrick was scooped out of the bank. The derrick built up, a sort of straddling contrivance, much like those supporting windmills, with a waling-beam at the top, from which the chain to connect with the rope and boring tools was suspended. The whole driven by a sort of crank motion from below. The tools—drinks, easing links, grappling irons, hoisting apparatus, etc.—had been brought in from the oil regions in order to get the right thing. And on September 4th operations commenced.

A $1,000 Hole.

Now a hole 400 feet long is something of an orifice, even when homemade. If pulled up and stretched along the sidewalk on the north side of Hunter street it would extend from George street to Bethune street. And in money cost about a $1,000 a hole, as holes went at the time. Cheap enough, one would say; not much more than the cost of a line fence at $2.50 per foot.

It has been remarked that Mr. Craigie promised to expedite the hole at the rate of from four to six feet per day. It would have been better for him if he had taken the contract on the cost-plus plan, same as the Hunter street bridge. For by October 5th they had gone down only 52 feet. One could almost measure the depth with an ordinary fishing rod such as used in those days. The stockholders were getting inquisitive, and to fend off public inspection, which had grown apprehensive, the derrick and working floor were both boarded in and operations continued, as one might say, in camera.

Like a "Movie" Resort.

It had grown to be a place of public resort. Folks out for a walk in the evening, there being nothing like the "movies" or the Lift Lock to provide entertainment, strolled up to the works to see how the operation was getting on. Fellows would scramble down the bank and get sticks and have them rubbed by the rope as it moved up and down in the hole, and then smell the sticks and carry the stick up the bank to let enquiring friends have a smell also. At that time the nose was relied on more than eyesight to discover if oil were about the premises.

Rumour Was Previous.

On October 7th it was rumoured in town that oil had been struck. Good! Just like Peterborough, everybody said, to do the thing quickly and show the territory that when it came to discovering oil Peterborough was right up in the front row. Critical investigation showed that while there seemed to be indications there was not enough to be conclusive, which was putting it diplomatically. On the strength of the rumour, those interested went out and made another call on the shareholders. By November 8th a depth of 134 feet had been reached. There was no doubt of this, for when the drill was hauled up to be sharpened they tied a piece of red flannel on the rope at the top of the bore, wound the whole thing up on the roller and afterwards stretched it out along the road and took the dimensions. Water brought up from the bottom of the hole developed; it was said by those who drank it a strong saline taste. This, if not oil, was hopeful. Perhaps, as one remarked, they might strike a salt well if not oil. Either would be acceptable. Then again the superintendent averred that at times gas exuded from the bore of the well. Many matches was used in lighting the exudation.

We now come to a critical time in the exploration. By November 23rd the drill, at a depth of 200 feet, had reached and passed through about thirty feet of dark red sandstone. This sandstone, when ground to powder by the drill and as suspended in the water that filled the hole, gave a distinct encouraging color to the prospect. And on this basis another slight call was made on the subscribers.

Youth Takes a Hand.

Shortly after it seemed to a number of choice spirits, of which there were many in the town, that the enterprise deserved encouragement. Among these were Dave Henthorn, and his twin clip Bill. Three-fingered Jack Robinson, than which no finer conspirator could be found when mischief was on the tapis. Bill Wrighton had much of versatility and Dan Haggart knew a thing or two. Besides, standing on the outskirts of such an aggregation, in a sort of engineer and consulting capacity, as Harry Winch. These men and others were fresh from the triumph of devising and putting on public view, the 24th May preceding, the first great and goreous kalithumpian aggregation and procession—a whale of a success. Had they not introduced to an astonished and admiring public the Prince of Timbucdahyrrucagruopjilis, Generalissino of the F.X.S.G.T., etc.? And much other thaat was rare and uncommon. The foregoing particulars are mentioned to show that there was talent at hand.

Hole Had Been Salted.

By December 20th the drill had gone down to the 250-foot level and was getting rather unmanageable. The weight of the wet rope was a hindrance. The following morning the startling intelligence reached the centre of the town that oil had been struck. Real goodness to gracious oil. One who had hoofed it from the scene to Hunter street had brought a sample in an old oyster can. It was critically examined. Almost black, decidedly greasy, had all the attributes of the crudest of crude oil, of stench, filth and the other things that were said to be present in oil when purloined from the entrails of the earth. Citizens stirred the contents of the can with pieces of shingle and speculated. Dan Haggart, who was prowling about, realized the situation. He had invested $20.00 in the venture just in a spirit of comradeship. He found a taker and sold out on the spot, the only man with presence of mind and who grasped opportunity. A rush was made for the scene of action. All streets led to Blythe mill. People who managed to squeeze into the confined space where the drill rope was bobbing up and down presently emerged and went up on the bank and used queer language and to clean the Villaneous mixture off the soles of their boots. The floor was covered and more came up with the motion of the drill rope. Samples were eagerly solicited. No trouble to show goods. Stockholders arrived and congratulated the drillers, postponing a vote of thanks and resolutions for another occasion. Peterborough was now on the map. But of the stockholders several were cautious and unconvinced. Of the Doubting Thomas kind. The well would go deeper, to see if the indications would hold out.

Then the Rope Broke.

All hands knocked off for Christmas, and during the week following a calamity ensued. The drill stuck in the well. In pulling at it the rope broke. Disappeared down the hole and despite all efforts to fish it up remained. Mr. Cragie said that if proper tools were procured he could recover the rope and drill, but the ensuing call for more money found few takers. During January operations ceased. At a meeting of shareholders a statement was submitted that $2,252 had been expended, which was moderate considering all the excitement and conversation the venture had occasioned. Following, the trustees were instructed to wind up the company, and so mote it be.

The well had been "salted," as it was termed. Beyond the shadow of a doubt and as verified by the admissions of those who had a hand in it. Getting a good sized barrel they had collected a lot of deceased whale oil, paint oil and axle grease, mixed in with flour, a lot of potash, half a pail of lye, some real coal oil, and all the old oil that they could scrap off the shafts in the base of the flour mill. The contributions were as many and varied as the donations to a Sunday School tea meeting. Having pulled up the rope and drill and gotten considerable water out of the hole, the mixture was heated over a fire at the road side in the deep, dark dead of night and poured in, with the tools and rope replaced. The first few strokes of the apparatus brought the concoction surging to the surface and spewed it all over the floor of the derrick. The smell was hideous and the hue awful. As Dave Henthorn said, it banged Bannegar. But it made and gained results, which after all is the chief end of endeavor.

Eventually, the derrick was wrecked and the hole became obscured, no doubt by this time filled in with the tools at the bottom, to be found in ages hence by some enquiring friends, or accidentally stumbed on.

FOUR BUILDING PERMITS ISSUED THIS WEEK

Only four building permits were issued at the City Hall this week. They were:

James F. W. Blaiklock is building a dwelling on Elias avenue at an estimated cost of $5,000. The house will be of brick veneer and stucco, 36 feet 6 inches by 25 feet 9 inches, two stories and eight rooms.

The other permits, all for small amounts, were to James Ballantyne, 277 Armour road, verandah, $75; James G. Graham, alterations, 599 Water street, $200, and Philip Johnson, summer kitchen, 191 Lake street, $40.

THEIR BROTHER'S KEEPER.

ROME, Ga., June 25.—A remarkable situation has developed here in connection with the arrest of two negroes at Cleveland, O., for the murder of two negro brothers in this country in 1921. The prisoners are brothers, named Campbell. Both were found by Sheriff Wilson in prison at Cleveland when he went there on information that Jim Campbell, the man wanted, had been arrested. When the Sheriff reached Cleveland both of the negroes claimed to be Jim Campbell, and being unable to decide which one of them was the real fugitive, the Sheriff brought them both to Georgia.

Each of the negroes still maintains that he is the man wanted and Sheriff Wilson, being unable to determine which one should be placed on trial, is holding both while seeking identification from outside sources.

ALMOST HELPLESS FROM ST. VITUS' DANCE

The Muscles of the Hands, Face and Body Affected.

St. Vitus dance is a disease of the nerves brought on by a morbid condition of the blood. It is common with children, and attacks girls more frequently than boys. Irritability is frequently one of the first signs noted. The child frets, is quarelsome and does not sleep well. The jerky movements that characterize the disease come a little later. The limbs and sometimes the whole body jerks spasmodically, and in severe cases the power of speech is affected. Such a child should not be allowed to study, but should be kept quiet, given a nutritious died, remain out of doors as much as possible. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will help the blood restore the shattered nerves. The value of these pills in cases of this kind is shown by the following statement from Mrs. Frank Reynolds, Windsor, N.S., who says: "When a young girl I suffered very severely from St. Vitus' dance. I could not keep still for a moment. If I tried to handle dishes I broke them, and could not safely attempt to hold a thing in my hands. No matter what was done for me, I could not control the twitching in my face and body. My parents gave me several remedies, but they did not help me. Then one day my father brought home a half dozen boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After two boxes had been taken there was an improvement in my condition. By the time the last box was gone, to my own great joy and relief to our family, my condition was normal, and I have since enjoyed good health. I never lose an opportunity to say a good word for Dr. Wiliams' Pink Pills."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BEST THINGS LIFE CAN GIVE.

(N. R. in Vancouver World.)

On the very eve of his physical breakdown and retirement from the strain of ministerial life, Mr. Bonar Law, it will be remembered, delivered a particularly brilliant rectorial address at Edinburgh. That he must have been at the time in a very highly strung state was apparent from the fact that once during his speech he lost its thread and paused for nearly a minute before he could regain it.

He chose a theme, "Ambition"—from the promptings of which no man in public life has suffered less than he has—and there was so much in his remarks worthy of consideration that the suggestion has been made in several quarters that the address should be printed in pamphlet form.

Remembering the love and esteem which the Canadian-born British statesman has awakened in the breasts of his colleagues, and, indeed, of all who have come into personal touch with him, the following passage—which is, perhaps, the key to his character—in his address is worthy of particular consideration:

"Apart from religion, the best that life can give consists of two things. They are very simple things, and perhaps not only simple, but commonplace. The first is human affection. This gives us always in our daily life a zest and interest outside ourselves. The second is work which is worth doing."

Human affection and worthwhile work—the rest is tinsel.

G.W.V.A. Bazaar

The ladies of the auxiliary to the G.W.V.A. are already engaged in preparations for their bazaar to be held in the early part of September. This promises to be quite an ambitious undertaking and will be followed out according to the ideas of the President, Mrs. E. V. Frederick. The rooms at the G.W.V.A. Hall, where the ladies hold sway, will be converted into a miniature house, with living, dining, bed and bathrooms and kitchen. Each room will be furnished according to its character and articles will be sold to correspond, as doylies, serviettes, etc., in the dining-room, pillow cases, towels and bureau scarves in the bed-room and household utensils in the kitchen, making an altogether new departure in the ordinary routine of bazaars.

There will be a "mystery tent" in connection with the event. For fortune-telling and palmistry experts, two well-known local ladies, and booths for light refreshments. Different ladies have been appointed as convenors for the bazaar, which will be held for two days.

U.F.W.O. Picnic

The local branch of the United Farm Women of Ontario held an Executive meeting on Thursday afternoon to make arrangements for helping with the forthcoming picnic to be held under the auspices of the U.F.O. The ladies of the organization have been asked to co-operate with the men in making the picnic a success. As it is to be a county affair Lakefield has been chosen, to give the people from the northern districts a chance to attend. A programme of sports, games and dancing has been arranged and Premier Drury, J. J. Morrison, General Secretary of the U.F.O., and the Hon. T. A. Crerar have been asked to deliver addresses.

Group Of Local Housewives Taking Occasional Day Off In Hot Weather

Household and family cares sit lightly on the shoulders of the average man. He looks after most of the big things of course, and mows the grass in summer time and attends to the furnace in the chilly months, but he doesn't have to bother about the proper hours for getting the meals or darning the children's socks, or seeing that their drinking water is boiled before using. The well being of the cake cooking in the oven, the renewal of milk or bread tickets, the new pair of shoes for Johnny or Annie, have not much space in his thoughts at all. He eats breakfast and dinner, and goes off to his factory or office, comes home in the evening to a good meal, and reads the paper in peace and comfort. And the majority of women don't say an awful lot about the little details which infest their lives, going on cooking the same things day after day and washing the same old dishes after three meals, without much protest. However, they like a day off occasionally and that is what a certain group of women in this city have once in every year. Thursday of this week saw their annual excursion, when about 15 exemplary mothers forsook their homes and families for a whole long day on the water, up to Burleigh and back again, just doing exactly as they like, without a care in the world. Each lady brings only one item for the lunch, whatever her particular specialty may be, one member always contributing the loyster salad to the feast.

Does Franchise Change In Any Way The Relations Of Sexes?

The following letter has been received:

To the Editor of the Woman's Page.

Madam: We were having a dispute the other day as to whether women who have the right to vote, and claim to do all that men do, can expect to be treated by men as they used to be before they could look after themselves. An answer would oblige, as men are saying that women can look after themselves since they want to, and women are grumbling about it.

I know men who used to jump to help a woman, or be called something unpleasant by other men, are all agreed now that women must learn to help and protect themselves. Inquirer.

As we are quite sure that a number of ladies have ideas on this important question, we would like very much to have some contributions from any woman or society of women, who care to voice their opinions, either over their own signatures or a nom de plume.

APPRECIATION

The folowing poem was composed by Miss Winnifred Davison, graduate of the Ontario School for the Blind, Brantford, and now employed as Dictaphone Operator and typist at the head office of the Institute. The note of appreciationn recorded in its stanzas will appeal to those who know what enforced idleness means to an ambitious soul. Regarding the "Lamp of Hope," Sir Arthur Pearson says: "This Lamp should be kept filled with the oil of contentment, its wick of endeavor should be diligently tended, and it should be kept burning brightly, shedding those beams of light which bring courage to the sightless, and a desire to assist on the part of those blessed with sight. The oil must be replenished lest the flame flicker."

OUR LAMP OF HOPE IN CANADA.

To Those who have made the Canadian National Institute for the Blind What it is.

It made our hearts with rapture swell
To hear Sir Arthur Pearson tell
How those brave boys who lost their sight
While doing battle for the right
In fair Dunstan's found again
Their places in the ranks of men,
And started out with life to cope,
Each guided by a "Lamp of Hope."

For us in Canada, whose eyes,
Might not behold the earth and skies
For many years no guiding light
Dispelled the darkness of our night;
No aim, no battle for success,
But just a blank of idleness;
Life seemed a drear, dependent thing
From which no real joy could spring.

Then ,like a flash, the news went forth,
To east ,to west, to south, to north,
That kindly friends to us would give
A chance to live as others live;
A chance some useful trade to learn,
A chance to work, a chance to earn;
To take our places in the strife,
To make a living and a life.

To those who saw and met our need,
We owe a debt of thanks indeed;
Employment is enjoyment, friends,
And nothing else can make amends
For what we lose through lack of sight;
Then help to keep this beacon bright,
And as it guides us safely through,
It may reflect some cheer on you.

DISCOVER ANCIENT INDIAN CEMETERY.

Bodies Unearthed on Point Salubrious Farm—Dates Back Fully 500 Years.

The discovery of an Indian burying ground, dating back about 500 years, has been made by John Nichols, a Cape Vincent, N.Y., archeologist while excavating on the Cline farm at Point Salubriaus. Nineteen bodies were found and with them many relics of hundreds of years ago.

Although various relics have been found from time to time at Point Salubrious, this is the first time that an ancient cemetery has been discovered in that vicinity. Hundreds of years ago, the Indians had a large fishing camp at Point Salubrious and this is believed to account for the many relics found in the past and for the more recent discovery of the burying ground.

The cemetery was located on a large mound, ten rods long and six rods wide, being about twelve feet high. With the exception of one large grave in which ten skeletons were found, the graves contained but one body and were scattered. All of the bones were badly decayed.

The first skeleton found was evidently that of a woman. It was lying on its side. The right arm was extended along its side and the left doubled up with the hand resting on the back of the head. The legs had been bent back under the body which was facing west. The Indians had no particular method of burying their bodies and this accounts for the various positions in which the skeletons were found. With the skeleton of the woman were found a number of beads, but nothing else

With the skeleton in the second grave were thirteen bone harpoons two axes, a rub stone, used in finishing tools, a number of awls and a few arrowheads.

The grave containing the ten skeletons was by far the most interesting of the ones unearthed. All were evidently skeletons of men and with the exception of one, which was in a sitting position, all had been thrown in together. The skuls were crushed in but whether this had been done in battle or by the pressure of the earth upon the decaying bones can not be determined.

With the ten skeletons were 200 bone awls and harpoons, one red slate gorget, an ornament worn on the breast; nine arrow heads, one scraper, for use in wood working; and a number of bone slakers, used in making arrowheads.

None of the graves was of uniform depth. The deepest was four feet in depth and the shallowest six teen inches.

Mr. Nichols has temporarily discontinued his excavations but will resume them again soon.

Rinso is not a "Washing Powder"

The fine granules of Rinso look much like a washing powder, but make this test: Use a heaping teaspoonful to a glass of boiling water, let it cool and then "turn it out."

POOR CHILDREN NEED MILK FED TO HOGS IN PROVINCE

THOUSANDS OF GALLONS IN ONTARIO POURED INTO PIG TROUGHS OWING TO OVERPRODUCTION.

Thousands of gallons of milk poured out to the hogs of Ontario every day, while hundreds of poor children in Toronto are in need of milk, was the shocking information a Toronto woman received at a meeting of the Women's Institute at Brampton.

Investigation of the facts brought forth an admission from President Stonehouse of the Ontario Cream and Milk Producers' Association, that there is at the present time an over-production of milk.

"A certain over-production at this time of the year is quite regular," stated Mr. Stonehouse, "but this year it has been greater, due to the early season for turning cattle out to pasture. The cows came through last winter in better condition and the average production per cow is greater. Another reason is that milk production has been stimulated and many farmers have gone into dairy production."

"Why then is the price of milk not lower?" Mr. Stonehouse was asked.

Milk Lower.

"The price of milk is lower," said he. "Last October the price was $3.25 per 8 gallon can to the farmer. On November 1st it dropped to $2.90 per eight-gallon can. On May 1st it was $2.50, and on June 1st, $2.20. That means that the farmer pays 20 cents a can to get it down to Toronto, leaving him $1.90 net. At 32 quarters to the can this is less than six cents a quart."

According to Mr. Stonehouse, it cost the vendors six cents a quart to distribute the milk, and the consumer in Toronto is getting milk at 13 1-3 cents a quart.

"Could not the producers get that milk to the poorer children of Toronto at a much less price?"

Can't Distribute.

"The city by-law would not allow the producer to distribute milk. It has to be pasteurized before being delivered," said he. "The dairies are equipped with the pasteurizing plants, and it would cost them the same to distribute it."

Mr. Stonehouse stated that as the result of the recent 'drink more milk' campaign, there was a tremendous increase in the consumption of milk in Toronto.

"I might say that we are consulting with the authorities as to how milk can be supplied in the city, and at a price that will make it available for all growing boys and girls."

Speaking with regard to feeding the milk to the pigs, Mr. Stonehouse stated emphatically that no farmer would give anything but skim milk to a hog, and that all the cream was being preserved for the purpose of making butter and cheese.

"The skim milk, too, is not wasted, for it is helping to produce another food product," he continued, "and it is up to the farmer to say whether it pays to produce the milk."

Into Other Channels.

"On the whole," continued Mr. Stonehouse, "there is not an overproduction, but the present condition is partly due to the milk condensers closing down, owing to lack of a market, and, as a consequence milk has to be diverted into other channels, such as the manufacture of butter and cheese. The butter and cheese markets have taken care of the surplus created to a great extent; the only difficulty being that there are hardly enough plants to take care of it."

FAIR SEX NOW SMOKING PIPES

United States Congress to Tackle Problem.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—If it is true that women in the nation's capital are smoking pipes as well as cigarets, Representative Johnson Mississippi, will introduce an amendment to his women's anti-cigaret bill to stop the practice, he said to-day.

His bill prohibiting women from smoking cigarets in public places was before the district of Columbia committee to-day. Johnson will ask for hearings.

Miss Alice Robertson, Oklohoma congress woman, to-day declined to sponsor an amendment to the Johnson bill prohibiting men from smoking cigarets in public places.

"I am not sure that cigaret smoking is a government matter," said Miss Robertson, who is against fad movements.

Johnson introduced his bill because he saw a flapper take a cigaret from a young man and smoke it on Pennsylvania avenue.

"This cigaret smoking by women is worse than whisky," said Johnson. "It is endangeering the race."

THE HOME CIRCLE

All day the busy feet have trod the garden paths; all day the merry voice has echoed through the rooms; but now, when twilight is deepening into night, and the lamps of heaven are being lighted, the noisy feet grow still, the childish voice is hushed to the low-breathing of the evening prayer, and as the brown head sinks wearily to rest upon its pillow the red lips murmur faintly, "So tired."

Ah, tired one, oftimes thy feet will falter and grow weary ere they reach the prime of manhood; and to thee will come hours when not as now the innocent sleep of childhood will bring thee rest.

Often 'from other lips than childish which has been, "So tired!" Eagerly we toil for an independence which some day in the far-off future is to bring us rest; but as night after night we laid our weary heads upon our pillows, we are still looking forward, still unsatisfied; and thus it will ever be with us till the Master calls. Sometimes ambition is the guiding-star spurring us onward to the temple of fame. But the path is a thorny one; the foot-steps falter; the brain grows dizzy; and from the heart goes forth the cry, "So tired!" Yet temptingly a siren voice whispers of glory, and of rest and again the feet press forward, till the goal is reached. But alas! for the rest which ambition brings. Too often with the cup of glory is mingled the poison of envy, and again is heard the bitter cry: "So tired!" 'Tis thus we all weary. And yet we would not fold our ands in idleness because perchance, we may sometimes grow "faint with the burden and heat of the day." To us has been given a glorious privilege to press onward in the battle of life, and if our chosen path be that of truth and right the assurance of well-doing will be our sweet reward when, by-and-by, we shall partake of that joy and peace of which the blessed never tire.

Not until recent years have the "dads" of this country had one fraction of praise really coming to them. The "mothers" have always had more or less praise. Of course when it comes to down right appreciation, they'll probably never get their full quota, but they ca 't deny that there has been a lot of high sounding things said about them. They deserved them all, too, God bless them, and a whole lot more.

But now, you know, our "dads" deserve a lot more than they ever really get. Our fathers are, as a rule rather quiet. They don't say much about their duty to their family or about their hopes. Just be cause they are so quiet we often fail to appreciate the load they are carrying. Many a father sacrifices too much and gives up his life too fast for the comfort of his family.

Men, as a rule, seek to hide all sign of sentiment or emotion and many sons do not know of their father's pride or hopes. Fathers have the same yearning pride as Mother's only they cannot express it by the same tender ministries.

Get a little closer to your dad, boys and girls. He needs your companionship and understanding.

When we hear praise bestowed upon other people we call it flattery.

ONTARIO LEADS AUTO INDUSTRY.

$57,000,000 Invested in Twelve Hundred and Eighty-Nine Plants in Canada.

The manufacture of automobiles has become an important Canadian industry, a report of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics for the year ending 1919, which has just been issued, showing that the capital investment at that time was approximately $57,000,000. Of the 1,289 plants, 1,236 made repairs, 42 produced accessories, while 11 manufactured automobiles. Ontario is the centre of the industry, no less than 639 plants of one kind or another being in that Province at the end of 1919. Quebec came second with 165.

It is worthy of note that, in proportion to the population, the largest number of automobiles is to be found in the Prairie Provinces, this being doubtless due to the circumstance that the distance in that portion of the Dominion make the automobile more of a necessity than in some other parts. It is quite possible, also, that the large number of Americans found there, to some extent, explains the more general use of these machines. So it is found that Saskatchewan whas 136 plants, of which all but two make repairs. Alberta has 98, Manitoba 84, British Columbia 84. The returns indicate that the automobile is less generally used in the Maritime Provinces than in any other portion of Canada, Nova Scotia having only 49 plants, New Brunswick 34, and Prince Edward Island 2.

In 1919 Ontario was the only Province in which automobiles were then manufactured, the capital investment having then been $48,801,000, of which approximately $35,000,000 was invested in manufacturing plants. How completely that Province dominates the industry may be seen in the fact that the investment in all the other Provinces amounted to no more than $8,000,000. In capital investment Saskatchewan came next, with $1,813,002.

During 1919 the amount paid in wages and salaries was $15,389,000. The number of employees was 12,139, of whom over one-half were employed in automobile plants. The materials used during the year were valued at $61,279,000, no less than $51,690,000 having been in the manufacture of automobiles. The selling value of the products at the works was $101,196,000. The number of cars turned out in that year was a little over 68,000, there being 21,000 other machines.

In the export of automobiles and their parts Canada is doing a large and growing trade. In 1915 these exports were valued at $3,054,000; in 1918 at $9,431,000; in 1919 at $7,501,000, and in the year ending March 31, 1921, it was $19,628,000. Australia and New Zealand are the best markets that Canada has for cars while the United Kingdom, India, South Africa and the Dutch East Indies also take a goodly number. The United States takes quite a quantity of parts, the value of these during the fiscal year 1919-20 having been $282,000. Altogether, 21,128 cars were exported in the fiscal year ending March, 1921, as compared with 12,750 in 1919.

THE LAKEVIEWS WIN FIRST GAME OF THE SECOND HALF

DEFEAT GENERALS IN SNAPPY BATTLE IN JUVENILE SERIES—HOME RUN FOR ALLEN, THE FIRST CIRCUIT CLOUT OF THE SEASON.

Lakeviews got off to a good start in the second half of the City Juvenile League scheduled last night, when they defeated the Generals at the Riverside Park in the opening game by 6 runs to 3. Lew Lebarr's team had to come from behind to turn the trick for the outfit coached by Bob Ross were 3 to 0 in front at the end of the first half of the fourth.

Charlie Shaughnessy tossed them up for the winners and gave an excellent performance, allowing only seven hits, whiffing thirteen and refusing to issue a complimentary once. Fred Batten made his initial appearance on the rubber for the Generals, and turned in a good game, striking out eight men and allowing only seven hits, two of them being made on misjudged flies that should have been converted into outs. His support was not as good as Shaughnessy received.

It was a nice game of ball, featured by the first home run of the season. Right fielder Allen of the Generals did the Babe Ruth stunt, smashing one down the left field foul line. Allen also had a double to his credit. The youngsters in the juvenile series are playing snappy baseball, and the fans who stay away are passing up a good thing.

A couple of wild pitches sent over the first runs of the game. With one out in the Generals' half of the third, Batten hit at a wild pitch for his third strike and reached first when the ball got away from Rogers. Wells was safe on an infield tap, Lebarr being off the bag for the throw. A wild pitch scored Batten. Chartren singled past Moore but Shaughnessy put on the brakes by fanning Wilson and Starr.

The Generals hung up two more in the fourth. With one gone Allen walloped a circuit clout to left. Edgar singled to left and stole second and third as Davis fanned. Batten's long fly to deep right was dropped by Miller and Edgar trotted in. Wells pounded to Lebarr for the third out.

The Lakeviews tied it up in their half. Rogers led off with a single over third and stole second and third. Shaughnessy drew a pass and purloined third. Lebarr scored the pair on a single to left and went to second on the throw to the plate. Whitlow hit to Mahood who let the roller get away, and Lebarr carried the tieing run over. Whitlow died trying to go to third on the play, Wilson to Davis to Wells. Rody was hit but was out, Davis to Wells, in an attempt to double Miller, the ick hoisted one to Starr.

Generals had a good chance to forge ahead again in the fifth, for with one down Wilson singled to right and Starr poked a double to right centre, sending Wilson to third. Shaughnessy got out of the hole by striking out Mahood and Allen.

In their half the Lakeview gang took the lead. Moore beat out a single to third and stole second. Fitzgerald grounded out to Wells and when Starr threw badly to third in an nattempt to duoble Miller, the runners went home. Miller reached first on Wilson's miss but died stealing. Mahood made a nice stop of Rogers' hard smash but threw high to first, the batter going to second. Shaughnessy fanned to end the innings.

The winners made sure of the game in the sixth. Lebarr faned but Whitlow singled to centre, Williams misjudging the drive. Rody followed with a double to right, another misjudged fly. Pethick hit to Batten who bluffed a throw to first and caught Whitlow going home, but the runner managed to scramble back to third. The play filled the bases. Moore's sacrifice fly to left scored Whitlow, and Rody scored the final run on a high throw to third by Davis. The score:

JUNIOR TITLE TO METHODISTS

WIN THEIR SERIES IN CHURCH LEAGUE BY DEFEATING ST. LUKE'S 15 TO 3.

George Street Church nine won the championship of the junior series of the Church Baseball League, by defeating St. Luke's at Nicholls Oval last evening. The score was 15 to 3. The teams played snappy ball for four innings, after which George Street drew away from their opponents. The Methodists hit the ball hard.

Both McGill and Smith pitched nice ball, and the latter would have made it close had it not been for some erratic fielding on the part of his team mates.

Emmett Sheehan, the Y.M.C.A. shortfielder and pitcher, is progressing favorably after an operation for appendicitis.

Playing in Norwood on Thursday, the Zion team took exception to the umpire's work, and withdrew from the game. The score was 14 to 12 for Zion and while the players were arguing, a runner at third scored, making it 14 to 13. The game will be replayed at Norwood next Monday evening. A win for Zion will tie them with Keene for first half honors, and a win for Norwood will take them into the play-off with Keene.

Keene and Douro played a league game at Douro on Thursday afternoon, the visitors registering an easy win by the score of 17 to 6.

The Westclox team will fbe holidaying soon and they have asked that their game with Barrie's, scheduled for July 2 be moved forward. If grounds are available the game will be played early next week.

BOSTON'S BASEBALL DRIVE.

Mitchell and Rudolph, Former Toronto Pitchers, Given Credit for Braves' Punch.

NE WYORK, June 25.—Chances that the Boston Braves, directed by two of the men who had considerable to do with the great dash of the team to a National League pennant and a world's championship in 1914, will repeat this season, are being seriously considered by baseball experts who have watched the team in its series against the New York Giants here this week.

Manager Mitchell, of the 1921 Braves, was the first lieutenant of George Stalling, the manager in 1914, directing the work of the pitchers that season. Dick Rudolph, veteran hurler, who is now Mitchell's right-hand man, was the Braves' most effective pitcher in that campaign that carried the Boston team, in last position on July 4, to the pinnacle of major league baseball.

The combined efforts of Mitchell and Rudolph now have the "Big Four" of the Braves' pitching staff, McQuillan, Fillingim, Oeschger and Scott, working smoothly despite the hazards of the "lively ball." The team is batting well and is fielding aggressively.

A HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP BATTLES

Jack Dempsey defended his title for the first time last Labor Day against Billy Miske. He was the same terrible mauler that put Williard aside. His punches seemed to have almosst super human force behind them and Miske lasted less than three rounds.

The challenger had grit a plenty and he knew how to box. He landed direct wallops against the champion frequently and his quick footwork eluded several punches. Although forced to be inactive for a year under the care of surgeons, Miske showed himself a much better scrapper than when he appeared on the eve of the Dempsey-Williard match and fought Battling Levinsky.

But he was no match for the Giant Killer, Dempsey disabled him in the second round with a vicious blow over the stomach and just below the heart. In the third round he knocked him down three times before Miske was forced to quit.

Te first time he was felled he stayed down for the count of nine and he was smiling when he regained his feet. The attack that finished thee fight consisted of a hammer blow to the stomach followed by a right to the chin.

Mary Miles Minter was given a farewell luncheon by the Realart Picture Corporation at the Biltmore Wednesday afternoon. Over 100 of her friends, newspaper correspondents and others attended.

She sailed yesterday with her mother and sister for Europe for her first visit to the other side.

RING BATTLES OF DEMPSEY

The string of 17 knockouts convinced boxing promoters and the public at large that Dempsey, in spite of unpopularity because of his failure to get into active military service in the war, was the logical man to meet Jess Willard for the heavyweight championship of the world. "Tex" Rickard clinched the bout.

The principals met in New York Feb. 9, 1919 to agree to conditions for the bout. The statutes of New York at that time made illegal articles for a boxing bout signed in that state. Accordingly, when conditions had been settled, the principals, their managers and "Tex" Rickard ferried to Jersey City and signed the papers in a railway waiting room.

After virtually every city of account in the United States, where boxing was legal, had been mentioned as the possible site, Rickard announced that Toledo, O., had been selected for the bout, July 4. City and state officials declared themselves favourable to the plans and the boxers, about six weeks before the scheduled date, started training in camps near the big arena.

In spite of Dempsey's great record for hitting, many persons, including Willard himself, were confident that the huge bulk of the Kansan, who had always maintained fairly good physical condition, would make him impregnable before his smaller opponent.

Dempsey, apparently unmindful of the disparity in height and weight, declared that he was going to tackle Willard as he had tackled his victims of tho past two years—with a rush. The fact that he had put out both Carl Morris and Fred Fulton, men much larger than himself, in the first round, made him confident that he could defeat Jess Williard in the same manner.

The defeat of Carpentier by two of the greatest midde-weights that America has had, Billy Papke, the "Illinois Thunderbolt, and Frank Klaus of Pittsburg, is now cited by persons who believe that the Frenchman stands small chance with Jack Dempsey at Jersey City, July 2.

Carpentier was then only 18 years of age but was big and rapidly growing out of the middleweight class. He already stood five feet, 11 1-2 inches, his present height, and it is declared that he had considerable trouble making the middleweight limit for both bouts. He was meeting two of America's best boxers, both in their prime.

Carpentier's defeat at the hand of Klaus came early in the year. Although defeated, he gave Klaus a great battle for 19 rounds. Then it was Descamps, rather than Carpentier, who brought the battle to a close. The manager climbed through the ropes to save his groggy charge from further punishment and Carpentier, remonstrating, was forced to quit. Klaus winning on a foul. The American, however, was a clean-cut winner and surely would have scored an actual knockout had the bout continued.

In October of the same year, Papke stopped Carpentier in 17 rounds at the Cirque de Paris. A ringside witness declares that the result of that battle is small excuse for believing that Carpentier, then a boy, should not now, a fully developed man, be a real rival for Jack Dempsey. Carpentier, with all his cleverness, stood toe to toe with the heavy-hitting American for more than a dozen rounds and went down defeated in a gory but manly way.

A thrifty man who had lost his savings by speculation was contemplating suicide. Entering a drug store he asked for four cents worth of arsenic.

The drugist's suspicions were aroused.

"What for?" he asked as he regarded the gloomsy aspect of the customer.

"Two cents," replied the man.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE ALLEN.

Motion picture patrons who remember "The Branding Iron," by Katharine Newlin Burt, and that means every person who saw that powerful photoplay, will want to see Mrs. Burt's new picture, "Snowblind," coming to the Allen theatre for 3 days, beginning Monday. It has been made from her new novel of the same name by Goldwyn, directed by the same man who was responsible for the picturization of "The Branding Iron," Reginald Barker. "Snowblind" is a vigorous, red-blooded drama of Canada's Great Northwest interpreted by Russell Simpson, Cullen Landis, Pauline Starke and Mary Alden.

AT THE ALLEN.

"PUCKERED CHEEK" COMEDIAN SEEN IN LATEST OF MERMAIDS

Frank Hayes, the "puckered cheek" actor who was the funniest of all the "cops" in more than forty Keystone Comedies, has an important role in "High and Dry," latest of the two-reel Mermaid Comedies at the Allen Theatre Monday. He appears as a quite aged and most homely old maid who is wild to be married and who finally gets her wish by kidnapping the bride(but herself falling the victim of a desperate and defeated suitor.

Jimmie Adams, who scored such a hit in "A Fresh Start" and 'Nonsense," is the featured player with Thelma Percy as leading woman.

AT THE CAPITOL.

The Capitol offers a great show Monday night—Wallace Reid in "The Love Special" and Harold Lloyd in "Now or Never," the first big 3-reel comedy he has ever produced. A great program!

The popular and pretty Capitol continues to do a good business in spite of the warm weather, and the answer is not far to seek—the atmosphere in this cozy resort is many degrees cooler than in the street, the perfect ventilating system and the immense exhaust fans on the roof keeps the Capitol at all times supplied with a constant flow of flesh air. This, combined with the splendid programs presented, easily accounts for the splendid patronage extended to them since their opening last April.

The program offered the first 3 days of next week will please all who see it. That favorite star, Wallace Reid, will be seen in "The Love Special," a mile-a-minute comedy-drama, full of love, laughter and thrills.

The comedy end of this big show will be well taken care of by the million-dollar comedian, Harold Lloyd, in his first big 3-reel special comedy, "Now or Never." Lloyd has made many single reel and two-reel comedies, but this, his newest tornado of laughter, is 3,000 feet long, and it's as clean as a new pin and as funny as any comedy yet produced.

A single-reel Rolin Comedy, Topics of the Day, 8th episode of "The Avenging Arrow," Pathe News, etc., will complete a big and splendid program at the usual popular Capitol prices.

Manager Abbey is making every effort to give the public the excellent service that goes with Paramount theatres everywhere, and the best proof that he is making a success is the splendid patronage being extended to the Capitol, Peterborough's theatre beautiful.

AT THE REGENT.

BLANCHE SWEET AT REGENT.

A Girl's Fight to Rise Above Her Environment.

Montana—a name remmiscent of the old frontier—of cattle wars, of gold stampedes, of outlaws and grim vigilantes, is the locale for "That Girl Montana," the Jesse D. Hampton-Pathe feature in which Blanche Sweet is starred at the Regent Theatre.

"That Girl Montana," adapted from the novel of Marah Ellis Ryan, tells the romantic story of a girl who had been forced by a cruel father to wear boy's clothes and be his companion in robberies and at card cheating.

When she finally escapes his evil influence, she struggles to live down a past for which she was not responsible, and prove her right to the friendship of decent people. Interwoven with the adventure and daring is a charming romance between the girl who did not trust men and the man who had lost his faith in women.

Miss Sweet is given the supnort of Mahlon Hamilton, star of "Half a Chance" and "Earthbound," and of Frank Lanning, Edward Peil, Clare DuBrey and Kate Price. Montana, along the Kootenai River, is the locale of this outdoor story, the scenes for which were taken at Truckee, California, where the country is very similar to the Kootenai district.

GLASGOW LOSES TO U.S.A.

Huge Contract for Steel Axles for Indian Railway Goes to Americans.

GLASGOW, June 25.—The Scottish steel interests are greatly stirred by the fact that for the first time in history a U.S. concern has secured a valuable contract for the supply of steel axles to the state railways of India.

Glasgow firms tendered their lowest possible price after allowing for cheaper coal and pig iron, but they were thirty per cent. over the U. S. quotation for the contract.

The value of the contract is not stated, but it is said to run in six figures.

George Randolph Chester Had Luck With Him This Time

George Randolph Chester is a lucky youth. He's not so youthful in years—he wrote his first 'Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" story a number of moons ago. But he's always retained his youthful viewpoint.

When he was having a real inland lake constructed on the Pacific Coast for use in his new production, "The Son of Wallingford," some professional "Calamity Janes" were fearful of the weather. "With the wrong weather this job will take months and months to complete," they said.

"All the more water for the lake," said Mr. Chester. "But I don't think it will rain."

And it didn't. Such dry times were never experienced on the Coast, meteorologically speaking. Mr. Volstead didn't have a thing to do with it.

Then the workmen started to build the big dam. Three hundred feet long; base, 30 feet; top, 12 feet; depth, 25 feet.

"Heaven help you if it starts to rain now," said the members of the Worry Club to him, comfortingly. "You'll be pronouncing the name of that dam a good many times. You'll simply have to keep your whole cast engaged. And that's a big cast, you know. Why, the expense will——."

'It won't rain," said Mr. Chester.

"It won't rain," said Mrs. Chester, co-author and co-director of "The Son of Wallingford."

And it didn't.

The dam and the sluice-gates and the boathouse 'n'everything were constructed. There wasn't any rain. The specially constructed pumps went on pouring 45,000 gallons of water every hour into the lake to cover the hourly seepage. In due time, the big scene was filmed for "The Son of Wallingford."

"It can rain now, if it wants to," grinned the creator of Wallingford. "In fact, I think it will."

In just exactly twenty-four hours Mr. Chester found himself a weather prophet in good standing.

It did rain. It poured. It stormed. The weather went on a noisy debauch. It flooded the lake. Part of the dam was torn away. This was in the last week in May, when the Pacific Coast caught its biggest storm in 20 years. In 36 hours the construction work of weeks for "The Son of Wallingford" was washed and torn and blown away.

But by that time the lake scene had been safely steered into its celluloid harbor. The last camera crank had been turned on the last scene. The negative of "The Son of Wallingford" was speeding East, for editing and titling at Vitagraph's Brooklyn studio.

Jackie Coogan Home Again; Starts Working on New Films

Amidst the blare of a brass band and the cheering of hundreds of friends and admirers, six-year-old Jackie Coogan and his daddy dear and 'mumsy' stepped from the California Limited at Los Angeles Monday afternoon.

"Gee, I'm awfully glad to get home again," said Jackie as he put his arms about four-year-old Patsy Marks, his girl playmate, and posed for the battery of clicking cameras. "New York? Oh, I think New York is wonderful, but I missed my home and my dog Mike. Besides, I want to make some more pictures."

With the child celebrity's homecoming, comes the important news that he is not going to accept all of those fabulous offers from vaudeville managers. Nor is he going to make pictures for the big film corporations as was announced recently. Neither is the New York Hippodrome going to claim him as its stellar attraction. Jackie is to make a series of five feature photoplays produced independently by his father, Jack Coogan. The pictures will be produced in Hollywood at the Brunton studios pending the erection of a special studio for the child's own use.

Arrangements have been consummated with the West Coast Theatres, Inc., controlled by Gore Brothers, Adolph Ramish and Sol Lesser, whereby that big organization will finance the entire series of Jackie Coogan films. It is expected that production cost will reach between $750,000.00 and $1,000,000.00. Work on the initial Coogan film will start July 15th.

It is hard to determine just how much money this six-year-old boy is going to make during the coming year. His tremendous success in "Peck's Bad Boy," which came mighty near eclipsing "The Kid" records throughout the country, places him in the Chaplin-Fairbanks-Pickford class with little difficulty.

With all the popularity thrust at his feet, with his name on the lips of every picture fan, regarded as the greatest child actor the stage of screen has ever brought to light, receiving the highest salary of any child artist—with all of this, Jackie Coogan is the same natural unassuming little chap that he was the first day he clasped Mr. Chaplin's hand and said: "Please to meet you, sir."

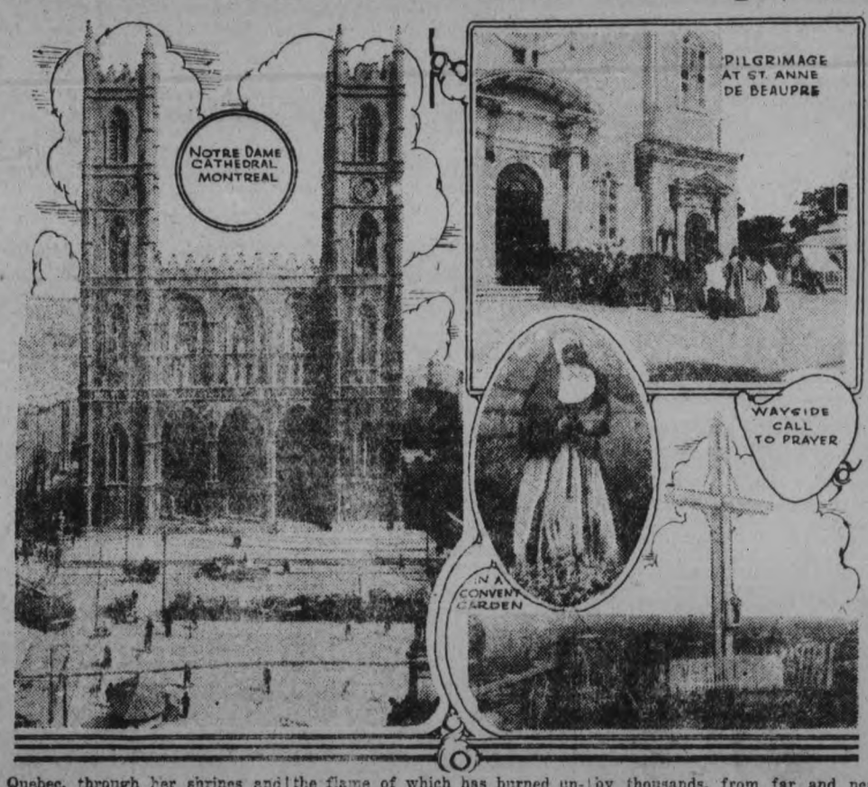
Shrines and Churches of Quebec



Quebec, through her shrines and churches, proclaims that she was born and bred in the fold of the Roman Catholic Church. To-day, nearly three centuries since the Cross and Lilies of France were planted on the hills above the St. Lawrence, the religious institutions then founded still flourish. Soft-footed nuns, cowled monks and flat-hatted priests are met on every hand as they go about their duties. Always the cross is in evidence—crude wayside shrines along the country roads and great golden crosses upon city spires.

Quebec City may be called the heart of this church in America for there is its Westminster, Notre Dame de la Paix, commonly known as the Basilica. It was founded in 1645 and holds the remains of nearly every Bishop of Quebec, also other ecclesiastics and notable pioneers. In the Chapel of the Ursuline Convent burns a votive lamp, the flame of which has burned undimmed through peace and war since it was lighted in 1717. Under this chapel rests Montcalm, France's defender of the City of Hills.

In a square among the little houses of Lower Town stands the unpretentious church of Notre Dame des Victoires, near the site where stood Champlain's house. A beautiful custom is maintained by the Franciscan Sisters' Convent in its office of perpetual adoration with two white robed nuns ever kneeling before the altar.

The most widely known Quebec shrine is that of Ste. Anne de Beaupre in the little town of the same name, connected with Quebec City by electric tram and motorway. This shrine, built in fulfillment of a vow made in 1650 by storm-harassed sailors to Ste. Anne, the mother of the Virgin, is famed for its cures. Each summer pilgrims by thousands, from far and near, kneel before the miracle-working shrine.

Montreal, too, has its celebrated churches and shrines. Its Cathedral of Notre Dame, a $6,000,000 edifice, contains a bronze St. Peter which pilgrims travel far to kiss. Notre Dame Bon Secours has a unique chapel built above its roof, a replica of a miraculous structure at Loretto on the Adriatic, while the Virgin in Our Lady of Lourdes Church is ingeniously illuminated and the shrine under the church is fitted like that of the famous Grotto at Lourdes in France.

At Ste. Anne's on the western end of the island of Montreal, stands an ancient edifice, once the westernmost church in Canada, at whose altar knelt explorers and voyageurs ere committing themselves to the perils of the wilderness beyond.

Is Mildred Davis "Lady Bountiful?"

Mildred Davis, Harold Lloyd's leading lady, has all kinds of requests on her time and purse. Came a letter this week from British Columbia that dissolved Mildred, her mother and even her father in tears. It was from a man who claimed he had been an acrobat and was injured in a fall. Now he was making bead bags. Would Miss Davis please match the enclosed sample bead so he could continue the work?

Miss Davis would, and dispatched her mother on a shopping tour. Although the bead has not yet been matched, Miss Davis says it will be if she has to send the sample all over the country.

Different was another request which came last week from a woman who gave the star the opportunity to support eight children!

"The funny thing about this was," says Mildred, "I almost felt as if I'd have to support those eight children from now on and was wondering how I'd do it!"

New Child Actor Is a War Orphan

Philippe de Lacey, the three-and-a-half-year-old youngster who has the principal child role in the Pathe production of Rudyard Kipling's "Without Benefit of Clergy," is a French war waif whose real identity probably will never be revealed. He was found by an American Army nurse beside the body of his mother following an air raid at Nancy when he was but two days old. His father and three of his brothers were killed in action and his grandmother was fatally injured by the air bombs that killed his mother.

It was Miss Edith de Lacey, an American Overseas Hospital nurse, who rescued the child and sent him to a base hospital. She later adopted him and brought him to this country. When she reached New York she learned that the youngster possessed unusual photographic possibilities and managed to place him in several productions.

Harold Lloyd Not Superstitious, But—

Harold Lloyd says he has no superstitions, but just the some "bad luck hobbies." He won't walk under a ladder. He won't cross a lot motoring, he makes his chauffeur turn around and go some other way. He refuses to go through a tunnel. The Third Street tunnel, Los Angeles, is one of his adversions. Recently his chauffeur was about to drive through this tunnel, but Mr. Lloyd dismounted and had his man pick him up at Third and Hill street.

Many amusing incidents are associated with his refusal to go out a different door from which he has entered the building. Most doormen at the Los Angeles theatres know Mr. Lloyd and good naturedly let him take any exit he prefers. Occasionally he encounters someone who attempts to herd him along with the crowd. Then an argument ensues which has sometimes lasted an hour. But on such points Harold Lloyd makes no concessions.

Chester Chum of Dead Humorist

George Randolph Chester, creator of "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," whose "Son of Wallingford" is being filmed on a huge scale for Vitagraph, for many years worked at the next desk to "Luke McLuke," in private life James Warren Hastings, on The Cincinnati Enquirer. At that time Chester was editor of the Sunday edition of The Equirer and Hastings was exchange editor. It was in 1912 that Hastings was given a chance by The Enquirer to achieve his pet ambition of writing a humorous column, and soon he became known across the continent by means of his "Bits of By-Play," while his co-worker, Chester, was pursuing fame with his inimitable chronicles of the adventures of Wallingford. Hastings died last week after a long illness.

It is strongly rumored in film circles that three producing firms—Selznick, Associated Producers and Robertson-Cole, will combine forces.

The rumor hounds also have it that Famous-Players and First National, among the leaders, will combine.

NO REFLECTION OF THE MANAGEMENT OF THE HOUSE OF REFUGE

Full confidence and satisfaction with Mr. and Mrs. David Campbell's management of the House of Refuge was declared by the County Council in a standing vote yesterday. During this session the Grand Jury's report urging certain improvements at the House of Refuge was the subject of a lengthy discussion, Warden Griffith in his opening address requested that the Council as a whole visit the institution, but this step was regarded as entirely unnecessary. The House of Refuge committee was empowered to do whatever was necessary to comply with the recommendations of the Grand Jury, but it was pointed out that the institution had been inspected by the government official a short time before the Grand Jury's visit and had been found in a good condition.

The Council felt that if anything was lacking at the House of Refuge they themselves, and not Mr. and Mrs. Campbell, were at fault.

The Burden Of Poor Health

is hard for anyone to bear. Why go through life wearing yourself down and reach perhaps an early end when Chiropractic points the easy road to Health and Happiness?

HOW CAN I GET HEALTH?

Thousands of sick people have asked this question in years past, and it is a question that was not always satisfactorily answered. After 25 years of clinical experience, during which time hundreds of thousands of sick people have received benefit, the answer, without any qualification, is CHIROPRACTIC.

A PEARL OF GREAT PRICE.

If you are a good business man, you will take particular pains to safeguard what you consider to be your most valuable asset. A man's most valuable asset is undoubtedly HEALTH, but he does not always safeguard it. On the contrary, he very often shamefully abuses it and then wonders why when he has reached middle age he has lost all his former vigour. HEALTH is a precious gift. CHIROPRACTIC will help you to conserve your HEALTH, and a SPINAL ANALYSIS NOW might reveal some unsuspected defect which, if adjusted, would make a new man of you.

DEVALERA WILL ACCEPT, DUBLIN IS CONFIDENT

PREDICT, HOWEVER, THAT HE WILL ATTACH SHARP CONDITIONS TO ACCEPTANCE REGARDING SAFE CONDUCTS.

COLLINS AND MULCAHY MAY ACCOMPANY LEADER

LONDON, June 27. — (Canadian Press).—The belief that Eamonn de Valera, "president of the Irish Republic" will accept Mr. Lloyd George's invitation to come to London for a conference with the government and Premier Craig of Ulster, designed to bring about a settlment of the Irish problem, is expressed in the majority of the reports reaching this city from Dublin. All reports agree that Mr. Lloyd George's invitation caused a profound sensation in Dublin and that the question whether De Valera would accept was the subject of Universal speculation.

Sources predicting that De Valera will accept are very generally agreed that he probably will attach sharp conditions to his acceptance, one being that more fitting guarantees than were contained in Lloyd George's letter must be given regarding the safe conduct of certain of his colleagues whom De Valera may wish to have accompany him. This applies especially to Michael Collins, a former commander-in-chief of the Irish Republican Army and Richard Mulcahy, who frequently has been referred to in England as an organizer of assassinations."

Two Ambuscades

DUBLIN, June 27.—(Canadian Press).—A police sergeant and a constable were shot dead early today when a police patrol was ambushed in Milltown, County Galway. Yesterday a police patrol was ambushed near Ballycastle, County Mayo. The police took cover and a fight ensued in which five armed attackers, three of whom were officers of "the Irish Republican army" were captured and another killed. There were no police casualties. Arms, ammunitions and important documents were captured by the police.

UNIONIST PAPER TAKES EXCEPTION.

BELFAST, June 27. — Canadian Press. — The Belfast Unionist newspaper, the Northern Whig, takes exception to Mr. Lloyd George's attempt to draw Ulster into a conference with the Sinn Fein, declaring that Lloyd George is not treating Sir James Craig, the Ulster Premier, fairly, in asking him to meet with Emmonn DeValera.

"What has Ulster to do with DeValera's absurd claim that he has set up a Republican country?" the paper demands.

AGRICULTURAL EXPERT SAYS BRITAIN WOULD BE ABLE TO EXPORT DEAD MEAT TO AMERICA.

LONDON, June 27.— (Canadian Press.)—If Great Britain were to remove her embargo on the importation of live cattle for fatting and freely import cattle and maze from the United States as well as Canada, her better feeding facilities and climatic conditions would soon enable her notonl yto end dead meat imports, but presently to export dead meat to America. This is the view of Moreton Frewen, famous agricultural expert, in a letter addressed to Lord Findlay, chairman of the commission which is making an enquiry into the probable effects of a renewal of the cattle embargo, in response to Canadian protests that the embargo involves an unwarranted reflection upon the health of Canadian live stock.

23 FIGHTING COCKS ADORN CITY TABLE

(Specia despatch to the Examiner).

BUFFALO, June 27—Twenty three choice fighting cocks will be killed taday and cooked to adorn the table of a city institution as the result of a raid on a cocking main yesterday.

Some months ago the Buffalo breeders went to Hamilton and lost heavily on their birds. A return match was arranged and the Society for the Prevention of cruelty to animals learned that the fight was going to take place just outside the city. The sheriff was tipped off. Sheriff Waldo and four deputies swept down on the International fight but a sentry stationed on the outskirts of the crowd of more than a hundred gave the alarm and the men escaped into the woods.

SEES DEFICIT FROM RADIALS

COUNSEL FOR NON-HYDRO MUNICIPALITIES ARGUES BEFORE SUTHERLAND COMMISSION.

TORONTO, June 27 .— (Canadian Press.)— Argument of counsel commenced to-day in the long-drawn out investigation by the Sutherland Hydro Radial Commission into the advisability of proceeding with the programme of radial construction by the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission. R. S. Robertson, counsel for the "non-Hydro" municipalities, was the first to address the Commission. He declared that except in a few special cases rural municipalities would derive no benefit commensurate with the financial burden imposed by the proposed lines. Mr. Robertson said that the proposals put before the government were incomplete in numerous essentials, excesively high in the estimates of cost, and that a deficit might easily be expected from their operation if constructed. Further, he stated that the districts in which the proposed railways would be built are already served by roads which may with a moderate cost be made to meet all needs.

HYDRANTS BROKEN; FIRE UNCHECKED

STRIKING QUEBEC FIREMEN DENY RESPONSIBILITY FOR BREAKING THEM.

QUEBEC, June 27. — (Canadian Press.) — Sabotage is reported to have broken out in Quebec, where the police and firemen went on strike Saturday night for higher wages.

This morning a fire in the suburb of Limoule destroyed three houses before it could be arrested because the hydrants in the neighborhood had been tampered with. The blaze was finally put under control when a number of the striking firemen came to the assistance of the volunteer fire fighters. They mended the broken hydrants.

On behalf of the strikers a statement was issued denying responsibility for the damaged hydrants.

POPULATION IS NINE MILLIONS, NOW ESTIMATED

OTTAWA OFFICIALLY VOUCHES FOR THIS FIGURE AS LIKELY TO BE SHOWN BY CENSUS NOW BEING TAKEN.

ONTARIO SECOND IN NUMBER OF BIRTHS

(Special despatch to the Examiner).

OTTAWA, June 27. — That the decennial census now being taken will show Canada to possess a population approximating nine million is the offical estmate here. From statstics already available and by the use of two methods of computation utilized by International statisticans the Dominion's population is varously estimated at 9 1-4 and 8 3-4 millions. The department here has decided that a middle point might be struck and places the estimate at nine millions.

At the lase decennial census the population was something under 8 millions. In relation to the census now being taken vital statistics relating to births in the various provinces during 1920 are of interest. They are as follows; Quebec 83,466; Ontario 72,492; Manitoba 18,450; Saskatchewan 22,051; Alberta 14,224 Nova Scotia 13,138; New Brunswick 10,699; British Columbia 9,418; Prince Edward Island 2,281.

WEST INDIES AND CANADA OUGHT TO LINK UP MORE

SO CHURCHILL TELLS BANQUET TO PRINCE.

LONDON, June 27.—(Canadian Press).—"The more the West Indies are linked up with Canada the more certain the future will be", said Right Hon. Winston Churchill, secretary of State for the colonies at a banquet tendered his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, by the West Indies Committee on Saturday.

Mr. Churchill pointed out that at the Imperial Conference Canada really was not complete commercially or geographically unless associated with the tropical West Indies and he was confident that the more these two great portions of the British Empire were inteersted in each other the greater the benefits would be for both.

RECOMMENDS SALE OF T. & O. LOTS

NOT ASSESSABLE AND MUNICIPALITIES HAVE LONG PROTESTED.

COBALT, June 27. — (Canadian Press.)—Chairman George W. Lee, of the T. and O. Commission, which completed a trip of inspection of the Ontario government road, has announced that the Ontario government has been recommended to place on sale through the municipalities of the north, the entire number of between six and seven thousand lots which the commission holds outside of its right of way. As government property these are not assessable, and the commission's recommendation is the result of a long series of protests from the municipalities where they are located. In the township of Bucke alone over five thousand lots would thus be made assessable and revenue producing, should the government approve of the commission's recommendation.

THE WEATHER

Sunday was a warm day. At two o'clock the thermometer was up to 93 degrees in the shade, and the mercury hovered around 90 degrees all day. The warmest previously this year was 91 on May 21st. Sunday's temperature has not been exceeded since June 3, 1919. It was 97 on that day. June of 1919 was a very warm month. There were nine days of 90 degrees or over, as compared with only seven days of 90 degrees in the month of June in the previous 25 years. The lowest last night was 67 degrees. It was warmer than the preceding night.—W. P.

PROLONGING OF CONFERENCE IS QUITE LIKELY

MAY LAST THROUGHOUT JULY AND EVEN THEN ACTION MAY BE POSTPONED PENDING FURTHER DISCUSSION.

IRISH CONFERENCE WILL CAUSE FURTHER DELAY

LONDON, June 27.— (Canadian Press).— The Imperial Conference which reasembled today and which was expected to enter upon serious discussion of the various problems it was called to consider, is likely to last much longer than originally was proposed, probably throughout the month of July. Even then, it is believed it well be found necessary to postpone action on many subjects pending further discussion. The possibility of a delay in the proposed daily meetings also is seen in the fact that Premier Lloyd George has invited Eamonn de Valera, "President of the Irish Republic" and Sir James Craig, Premier of Ulster to come to London for discussion of the Irish problem.

FRIES EGGS ON STEPS OF THE U.S. CAPITOL

CONGRESSMAN BET IT WAS HOT ENOUGH AND IT WAS.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—(Canadian Press)—"You win", gasped Congressman Joseph Pringey of Oklahoma as he mopped his brow and lost a wager to Congressman John W. Langley of Kentucky. Langley bet that it was not hot enough yesterday to fry eggs on the steps of the Capitol. Pringey said it could not be done. Langley secured a couple of eggs from House Restaurant and started his culinary task The frying was slow but when Langley flipped the eggs over and spoiled a "sunny side up" Pringey admitted he had lost.

WILL PROSECUTE FOR TRADING ON THE SABBATH DAY

INSTRUCTIONS TO THIS EFFECT RECEIVED FROM ATTORNEY-GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT.

Crown Attorney Hatton has received notification from the Department of the Attorney-General that the Lord's Day Act is being openly and widely violated by persons buying from farmers along the main roads on Sunday, and advising him to take active measures to stop this practice. The letter states:

"Information has reached this Department that there is a good deal of buying and selling along the main roads on Sunday between farmers, fruit growers, etc. and motorists, in violation of the Lord's Day Act, which is to be found in the second volume of the Revised Statutes of Ontario, page 2962. As you know, there are two Lord's Day Acts in force in this province, but the one which I have indicated is that under which prosecutions, if instituted, should take place. I will be glad if you will communicate with the High Constable, thelocal Provincial ponce and others, advising them that the practice complained of must be stopped or that prosecutions will be instituted.

"The Attorney-General will be glad if you will regard this letter as both urgent and important. In the event of the practice not ceasing, kindly see that prosecutions are launched.

"Yours faithfully,
"EDWARD BAYLEY,
Deputy Attorney-General."

INMATES PROTESTANT HOME ATTEND CHURCH

About 20 of the inmates of the Protestant Old People's Home were taken to Trinity church yesterday morning by some of the kindly carowners of the church.

Rev. F. E. Malott delivered an interesting sermon at this service from Psalm 84, Verse 11: "The Lord God is the Sun and Shield.. The Lord gives grace and glory. No good thing will he withhold from them that walk rightly." Mr. Malott spoke of the care and providence of God in His treatment of His children, emphasizing the name by which the Psalmist described God as the 'Sun' who gives spiritual light and heat to His children.

In the evening, the sermon dealt with the example from Acts 20, of the young man named Eutychus who fell asleep during the sermon.

Mrs. Geo. H. King gave several excellent vocal solos at both services.

BURGLARS TRY TAKE RING FROM FINGER OF SLEEPING WOMAN

GUELPH, Ont., June 27.—(Canadian Press.)—An attempt of daring burglars to remove a diamond ring from the finger of a sleeping woman, and her subsequent awakening while the operation was in progress, was all that prevented one of the most unique robberies which has been attempted here in some time.

Two men climbed up the front of the verandah of the residence of George Jackson, Lyon avenue, early Sunday morning, removing the screen from the bedroom window, and entered the room. Mrs. Gardiner, of Chatham, mother of Mrs. Jackson, was the occupant of the room, but she did not awaken until one of the intruders attempted to remove a diamond ring from her finger. When she awoke and screamed the burglars made a hasty exit and succeeded in getting safely away.

Harrison gave the alarm and Langston was discovered lying on top of one of the iron cages at the rear of the building, whence he was returned to his cell.

FATHER AND THREE SONS TAKEN BY POLICE SATURDAY IN ONE OF SWIFTEST AND SMOOTHEST RAIDS EVER EXECUTED HERE.

PROBE STRANGE DEATHS ENDED IN ROUND-UP OF 4

Charged with poisoning eleven head of cattle belonging to one of the main witnesses in the trial that ended with the imprisonment of two of their members three summers ago, the notorious Hill family of Dummer Township are in the toils again.

Robert Hill, the father, and his three sons, William, Davis, and Russell, were arrested in their homes at two o'clock on Saturday morning by a detachment of the Peterborough Police Force, led by Chief Newhall, in one of the smoothest and swiftest raids ever executed by the local Police Department.

They appeared before Magistrate Dumble on Saturday, and were remanded until Thursday, 30th Jnue.

William and Davis Hill were refused bail, and are being held in the County Jail.

Robert Hill and his son Russell were set free under their own recognisance to return for trial next Thursday.

Several other material witnesses who were caught in the police net, were also liberated on the same condition.

Cattle Died Suddenly.

According to the information obtained by The Examiner, a large number of cattle belonging to a Dummer farmer, whose evidence counted heavily in the previous trial of two of the Hill boys, died mysteriously and suddenly a short time ago. A veterinary surgeon was called to examine the dead catle, and it was at first thought that they had died of a disease. The owner was not satisfied with this opinion, and consulted Chief Newhall.

Crown Attorney Hatton and the Provincial authorities were interviewed, and acting upon the decision then arrived at, Chief Newhall sent one of his youngest constables to make inquiries. The result was the round-up of the Hills before dawn on Saturday.

"Armed to the Teeth."

The police first surrounded Davis Hill's house, where, after a little delay, he and another man, who is described simply as a witness, were arrested. The rest of the party were found at Robert Hill's house. Most of them, according to the report The Examiner received, were armed to the teeth.

The raid was so carefully planned that the police swooped down on each house without giving the least alarm. Both sections of the Hill family were completely surpprised. The police feared that they might meet with the experience of a previous occasion, when members of the family were completely surprised, them getting warning of the approach of the police, took to the bush, and eluded the searching parties.

At Davis Hill's.

The police left Peterborough about ten o'clock on Friday night in their automobile, and picked up reinforcements in a Ford along the way.

The moon was full and bright, and to avoid giving any sound of their approach, the automobiles covered the last five miles leading to Davis Hill's house with the lights turned out, and the wheels feeling cut the waggon ruts. It was a rough road, strewn with big boulders, over which the automobiles lurched not noiselessly, but as quietly as possible.

FOUR HILLS OF DUMMER ETC.

Near their destination, the cars were pushed into the bush that skirts the road on both sides, and a man was left in charge of them. The police took no chances of having their cars discovered and possibly hacked. Experience had taught them to exercise the fullest caution in that part of the county.

No One Home.

The police posse walked the last quarter of a mile, arriving at Davis Hill's home at two o'clock. The place was deserted. Not even a dog barked. The police had forced their way in, but their searchlights discovered nothing but empty rooms.

Chief Newhall and his party withdrew to the yard, and in a secluded spot held a countil of war. Several of the men urged that the raid be carried to the father's home across the fields, but while they were deliberating two figures were seen in the moonlight approaching the house. The two men pumped themselves a drink before they went indoors, and a moment later a dog's sudden barking demanded instant action. With a rush the police were up to the house, but even in that short time the window through which they had crawled before was now tightly nailed.

Davis Hill and his companion were found in bed. They had jumped in without undressing just as they had come from the fields. They were placed under arrest without any opposition, and the police soon after moved on to Robert Hill's place.

Sleeping on His Rifle.

They surrounded the house without betraying their presence. Knowing the lay-out of the house, Chief Newhall went directly to a window, and flashed his light on to the face of William Hill, who was snoring peacefully on his rifle in the bed directly under the window.

Chief Newhall tapped on the pane with his revolver, which he held in the field of the light.

"Come on, Bill; get out of that bed and open the door. Don't touch that rifle," shouted the Chief. "Your hands up."

"Who's that?" William Hill answered. "Is that you, Sam?" he asked, on a second quick thought.

Hill obeyed instructions, which were shouted into the room, and covered by the Chief's pistol, opened the door, where Sergeant Wigg slipped the handcuffs about his wrist.

It was stated to The Examiner that the Hills were armed to the teeth. Modern rifles were found at both places, and as already mentioned, William Hill was sleeping on his when the police surprised him.

Chief Newhall declined to give any details of the charge, except to say that it was a serious one. He recalled that three years ago William Hill was sentenced to two years in the Kingston Penitentiary, and his brother Davis Hill to three years, for stealing cattle. William came home a year ago, and Davis Hill's parole expired in March last.

LLOYD GEORGE INVITES RIVAL IRISH LEADERS TO A CONFERENCE IN LONDON "TO EXPLORE TO THE UTMOST THE POSSIBILITY OF SETTLEMENT

BRITISH GOVERNMENT ANXIOUS THAT KING'S PLEA FOR RECONCILIATION SHALL NOT HAVE BEEN IN VAIN, SAYS PREMIER —MOST SKEPTICAL SEE RAY OF HOPE IN THIS MOVE—TREMENDOUS SENSATION IN ENGLAND.

LONDON, June 27 (Canadian Press).—News was received in London from Dublin yesterday afternoon that Eamonn DeValera has received an invitation from Premier Lloyd-George to come to London for a conference on the situation in Ireland.

DeValera is calling a conference of his colleagues immediately to decide on what course to pursue.

The invitation sent by the Premier to DeValera to come to London to discuss a settlement of the Irish question aroused a tremendous sensation throughout Britain.

A reply is expected to reach Downing Street by Wednesday or Thursday, and even the most sceptical of politicians say that it will be extremely difficult for the Dail Eireann to refuse to empower a delegation to go to England for the purpose as outlined by Premier Lloyd-George.

D. LLOYD GEORGE.

British Premier, who took a great step toward settling the Irish question in his invitation to the rival Irish leaders to meet in London in accord with King George's plea for reconciliation.

The view shows one of the original industries of the town and district —the old saw mill that stood on the line of "Teh Creek" as it finds its way through Jackson Park.

The mill and power site was just about where the dam now stands at the upper reach of the stream and park. The power was developed by one of the old-fashioned "undershot" wheels, the flume carrying the water under the wheel in a stream of about six feet wide and a foot in depth. In all, about four horse-power would be developed, except at very high water.

In times of flood, the wheel was raised up by means of wedges under the journals, or places where the shaft on which the wheel revolved, rested. Considerable of the lumber and scantlings of the first houses in Peterborough were cut at this old mill.

Farther up the stream was another mill, known as "Bests' Mill," giving a similar service to the settlers in the vicinity. For years, the remnants of these old structures stood n lonely exposure, until the efforts of the boys, on ventures of great daring, pulled and battered what was left, and the fragments were cast into the current and carried away.

CONFERENCE TO SOON FACE ITS CRUCIAL TEST

NEXT FEW DAYS MUST MARK TURNING POINT IN THE COURSE OF INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS AT IMPERIAL MEETING.

SEE NAVAL RACE IN WAKE OF JAP TREATY

LONDON, June 27.—(From Grattan O'Leary (Canadian Press Correspondent).— With the coming week, the conference of Prime Ministers faces its crucial test. Indeed in the opinion of most competent observers here, the decisions which the assembled heads of the Empire take with in the next few days may well mark a turning point in the course of International affairs.

This view is held particularly by the opponents of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance. They contend and their voice appears to grow steadily in strength, that the one great hope for progress toward disarmament is an Anglo-American Japanese understanding rather than a special Anglo-Japanese Aliance .

In support of their views they declare it to be inconceivable that the United States, faced with an Anglo Japanese treaty, will do any other than carry out a stupendous naval program such as some of its leaders have proposed, this in turn compelling Great Britain and Japan to enter upon a madder race for naval supremacy. Nor is this school impressed by the claim put forward by Premier Hughes of Australia, and others, that it would be possible to modify alliance in such a way as will make it acceptable to the United States, they argue, there will always remain room for doubt and suspicion and the question is asked what Englishmen would think if a special military alliance were being made between Japan and the United Stats.

The text of the Premier's letter inviting the rival Irish Leaders to a conference in London reads: "The British government are deeply anxious that, as far as they can assure it, the King's appeal for reconciliation shall not have been made in vain. Rather than allow another opportunity for a settlement in Ireland to be set aside they feel it incumbent on them to make a final appeal in the spirit of the King's words for a conference between themselves and representatives of Southern and Northern Ireland.

"I write therefore to convey the following invitation to you, as chosen leader of the great majority in Southern Ireland and to Sir James Craig, Premier of Northern Ireland.

"(1) That you should attend a conference here in London in company with Sir James Craig to explore to the utmost the possibility of settlement.

"(2) That you should bring with you for that purpose any colleagues whom you may select. The government will, of course give safe conduct to all who may be chosen to participate in the conference.

"(3) We make this invitation with a fervent desire to end the ruinous conflict which for centuries has divided Ireland and embittered the relations of the peoples on these two islands who ought to live in neighbourly harmony? with each other and whose cooperation would mean so much, not only to the Empire, but to humanity, we wish that no endeavour should be lacking on our part to realize the King's prayer and we ask you to meet us as we will meet you in the spirit of conciliation for which His Majeesty appealed.

"I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
"D. LLOYD GEORGE."

LIGHTNING THE CAUSE OF FIRE AND 2 DEATHS

TWO-THIRDS OF BUSINESS SECTION OF ALBERTA TOWN WIPED OUT AND TWO BOYS KILLED IN TORONTO.

EDMONTON, Alta., June 27. — (Canadian Press).—Fire caused by lightning striking gasoline tanks at Spirit River, Alberta, caused property loss of over two hundred thousand dollars Friday night, according to word reaching here yesterday. Two-thirds of the business section of the town was wiped out.

TORONTO, June 27.—(Canadian Press).—Two youths were instantly killed and two others injured Sunday afternoon when they were struck by lightning. The double tragedy occurred on the banks of a swimming hole in Harris bush at the head of Westlake Avenue, near Cedarvale. The boys had been engineering a dip in the creek, and had just climbed the bank to put on their clothes in the hope of getting home before the rain set in. They were lifting their clothes from beneath a large tree, when a flash of lightning and a crash of thunder came. Two of the boys fell dead, while a third, who was not beneath the tree, but within a yard and a half of his chums, was struck on the back and legs. He fell unconscious, and was found lying with the other two boys when a number of men came to render assistance.

Clayton Groh, aged 13 years, of 392 Meagher Avenue, and Bert. Morris, aged 17, who lived in a house at the corner of Norwood Road and Swanswick Avenue, were the lads instantly killed.

THE PARKING PROBLEM.

The practice of parking cars along the curb in the business section of Peterborough is rapidly developing into an intolerable nuisance, and the authorities will have to soon grapple with the problem and endeavour to reach a practicable solution. The market square takes care of a large proportion of the cars, but some other parking place will have to be found. It has been suggested that the middle of Simcoe street from George street to Aylmer street might be used for this purpose. There was some reason for objecting to that plan last year when the temporary bridge across the river was being used and the use of the direct route to the bridge as a parking place would have proved a handicap to the fire department, but that objection does not hold now and the Simcoe street plan might be tried out. It would afford some measure of relief and might remove a few of the cars that are proving a nuisance along George street. Business men are complaining about present conditions and their protests are entirely justified.

THE COAL STRIKE.

The conference which is to be held in London to-day by representatives of the coal mine owners and their striking employees with Premier Lloyd George is of great importance, and the whole Empire will unite in the hope that the renewed negotiations will bring a settlement of the trouble and give British industry and the trade of the Empire a chance to get back on their feet. It it a hopeful sign that the conference is the result of a request from the miners themselves for another meeting. The strikers have found that other trade unions are reluctant to furnish any further financial support, and that it is idle to expect the rest of the labour organizations to strike in sympathy with the miners. The latter are being left to fight their own battles, and apparently they are beginning to realize that the struggle is a hopeless one and that the wisest policy is to secure the best terms possible. To-day's conference may bring peace—at least the prospects are brighter than they have been at any time during the three months of the strike.

THE SPEED MANIACS.

Referring to an article on speeding in these columns the other day, a motorist complains that the Examiner's description of conditions on some of the roads leading out of Peterborough, especially on the Chemong Road, was exaggerated. The Examiner does not believe so. There is far too much fast driving of cars at night along the Chemong highway and only a benign Providence has averted a long list of accidents. The legal speed limit of 25 miles an hour means nothing to the reckless drivers who boast of the record time in which they cover the six and a half miles between Peterborough and the park, and until the authorities succeed in convincing them, by means of stiff fines, that the limit must be observed, it is to be feared that the Chemong road will continue to be regarded by them as a suitable speeding ground on which to trifle with death and disaster. The man who rocks the boat and the other fellow who fools about with a gun that he doesn't know is loaded, are sane and sensible alongside the speed maniac who sends a 2,500-pound car hurtling along a narrow road at a speed that constantly menaces his own safety and that of others.

A CLASH OF OPINION.

Judging from Secretary J. J. Morrison's recent speeches, the power behind the throne in the United Farmers of Ontario does not seem to have changed his views in regard to the "broadening out" of the farmers' poliitcal movement. He holds stuboornly to his class prejudices and succeeds in keeping many of his admirers faithful to the same views. On the other hand, Premier Drury recognizes that the movement cannot hope to permanently succeed if it remains in the narrow groove that the U.F.O. secretary declares to be essential. There is a direct clash of opinion here and it will be interesting to follow the addresses of the two men during the summer cycle of farmers' picnics, and to watch the effect of their remarks upon their audiences. The people of Ontario who are not connected with the United Farmers undoubtedly believe that the Premier is sound in his reasoning and that the farmers, by allowing their candidates to be selected only at a convention of U. F. O. delegates, cannot logically ask for the support of electors who have nothing to say about the selection of standard bearers.

LEARNING TO BE BLIND AND BUSY.

With banners, with drums they marched away, their eyes lit with the love of country, and reflecting the far gleam of adventure—

Stumbling, led by the hand, with no drums and no banners, they returned—sightless!

For you, for love of their country, they entered the street of everlasting darkness.

But they were not left to gloomy thoughts and self-pity. In Pearson Hall, a fine old fashioned house on Beverley street, Toronto, our blinded Canadian heroes have been taught a new usefulness. In Pearson Hall they have found happiness. A staff of competent instructors teaches them massage, cobbling, basketry, netting, typewriting, Braille (the blind print), English and French, etc.

The Federal Government is discharging its obligations by paying for the instruction and board of these gallant men. But there are the extra comforts, the recreational necessities, and the extra needs of these men that must be supplied.

The Examiner is conducting a fund for blind Canadians and the generous readers are asked to subscribe to this splendid cause. Send your donations to the Examiner office.

SOME NEWSPAPER FIGURES.

An editor who has a morbid taste for post-mortem examinations, has prepared a schedule of the comparative publishing costs of a newspaper since the year 1907. In submitting his figures, he makes the trite remark that while during the war and after, men in several lines of business spent much of their time holidaying in Florida or California, or acquired a taste for high powered motor cars, and the wage earners blossomed forth in silk shirts, the average publisher either went broke, or burnt the midnight oil trying to keep on the right side. In his figures he takes the year 1907 as normal and put every item in that year on a basis of 100. His schedule shows the great increases since then, and incidentally the editorial salaries have advanced less than any other branch of the cost.

In 1907 wages were at 100; in 1914 they had advanced to 178, but in 1921 the figure is 393. Newsprint, from 100, jumped to 177 in 1914, and to 623 in 1921. Newspaper postage, which cost the normal of 100 in 1907, was 147 in 1914, and 337 in 1921. Ink was 100 in 1907, 200 in 1914, and today stands at 331. Editorial expense jumped from 100 in 1907 to 120 in 1914 and 241 in 1921. Miscellaneous expenses went from 100 in 1907 to 125 in 1914, and to 244 in 1921. Taking the average of all newspaper costs, it was found that while the average in 1907 was 100, in 1914 it was 159, and in 1921 it reached the high mark of 411.

From reading these figures it is not surprising to read next that over four thousand publications have gone out of business in the United States and a great many in this country. The reason is not far to seek for advertising rates and subscriptions have not advanced in anything like a corresponding degree. The publishing of the above figures shows how hard the newspapers have been hit by the inflation in prices; so far there is little indiceeded since June 3, 1919. June of to anything aproaching that figure. —Kingston Whig.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Sunday street cars justified themselves yesterday in the opinion of hundreds of citizens who had occasion to visit Little Lake cemetery.

A disgruntled fan suggests that we add to our list of undesirable noises the sound of the Peterborough ball club dropping towards the cellar.

Judging by what is officially reported about Peterborough's water supply, that 80 per cent. increase may be justified after all, for besides hydrogen and oxygen, the civic water contains chlorine, coli bacili and a few other trifles.

There is one thing about a hot day. It provides a topic of conversation for a lot of people who, as a rule, find it difficult to talk about anything but their neighbors.

As an American exchange puts it, many folks who complain that they are not getting all that is coming to them are pretty lucky at that.

Spend your vacation in Canada is a better slogan than ever this summer.

Boil the water. A little trouble now is better than a lot of fever later on.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

A Chicago alderman who died recently, was reputed to be worth $500,000. We have known aldermen who weren't worth thirty cents.

A man in Switzerland has created a record by marrying the same wife three times in five years. No, Hortense, they aren't movie stars.

Anti-Tobacco Orator—You go into a store and buy a cigar and in its wake you get wine, whiskey, brandy.

Voice in audience—Quick! Where do you buy your cigars?

The American Reform Bureau is vigorously attempting to induce the authorities to ban the Dempsey-Carpentier bout. We are becoming more convinced daily that the statue of Liberty is a great monument to American humor.

Patient—What shall I take to remove the redness from my nose?

Doctor — Take nothing—especially between meals.

Almost any man knows, observes the Winnipeg Free Press, thtat he could write better stories than he reads in the magazines if he didn't have to devote all his time to earning a living. Well, anyone who will finance such an individual in his first attempts at literature will be rendering a great service to a suffering public.

Another astonishing fact regarding women is that telling one that she is worth her weight in gold won't keep from trying to ward off obesity.

Fine Links.

The man in the rainbow stockings was trying to play golf. The difficulty was, of course, to hit the ball. It was so much easier to hit the ground. He hit that every time. The turf flew in all directions. Swish! Swosh! Plop! More excavations. Something was wrong somewhere. It couldn't be his stockings. It must be the links. He turned helplessly to his opponent. What do you think of these links?" he exclaimed. "What do I think of 'em?" gasped his opponent, wiping a bit of soil from his lips. "Pouff. Best I ever tasted."

Reduce the Cost of Selling
—Use Long Distance

THINK of Long Distance in terms of time and money saved. "Use the 'Bell' to Sell." It is today the most effective form of approach to customers. Your personality, the convincing tones of your voice, will bring results when everything else fails.

"Many of our Long Distance calls are now Station-to-Station calls"—writes a subscriber. "We notified our customers that two of our most capable men had been designated to look after Long Distance business. As soon as Long Distance calls, our Private Branch Exchange operator switches the call instantly to one of these men, which gives our client the advantage of Station-to-Station rates.

"Increasing the efficiency of a sales force ten per cent is well worth while. Our Sales Manager calls up our travellers by Long Distance, or they call him. He encourages them, advises them, helps them to secure orders. If competition has arisen he learns of it in time to meet it."

Finding Work for the Blind

(14)

AN officer of this Institute sat talking to the superintendent of a big manufacturing plant. "It's unfortunate", said the superintendent, "but we dare not keep Matthews on that job another hour. His sight is practically gone. A wrong move and he might lose his life!"

"But,", said our official, "is there no other work of a less dangerous character that this man might take up?"

The suggestion bore fruit. Three days later Matthews was back at work in another part of the plant, on a machine which he can operate without danger to himself.

In addition to those workmen whose sight is injured or permanently taken by accidents in industrial institutions, we are also helping to place blinded soldiers in occupations to which they are best suited.

ONE GREATEST NEED AMONG OUR WOMEN

MORE TIME FOR SELF-DEVELOPMENT DECLARES MRS. CRONK.

"One of the greatest needs of the day, among women, is more time. Time—not for gossip; not for idleness; but for self-development and the study of those issues that make for the highest ideals and standards of living," declared Mrs. Cronk at a meeting of the Lindsay and West Ops Women's Institute. "It is the regret of many mothers that they did not give more time to their children; that they were too busy to take an interest in the things in which the children delighted," she said. "Take time to live with the boys and girls, keep close to them in their work and play, and they will not feel that mother is a back number. Leave the dishes if necessary, and read a bedtime story to them. Above all, teach them the value of truth, honesty, courtesy and charity, always remembering that children will not possess these virtues unless the example is set by the parents, in the home. For it is in the home that the foundations are laid for good or evil.

"If any person liable to pay an income tax under this Act pays as any installment less than one-quarter of the tax, as estimated by him, or should he fail to make any payment at the time of filing his return or at the time when any installment should be paid, he shall pay, in addition to the rate of six per centum per annum, provided for by this sub-section, additional interest at the rate of four per centum per annum upon the deficiency from the date of default to the date of payment."

REVIVE RUMORS THAT PRINCE WILL WED INTO DEVONSHIRE HOUSE

The latter are now on the ocean with the retiring Governor-General of the Dominion.

HAVE YOU A TIMID DEMEANOR?

If so, Overcome it! For the World May Construe Your Timidity to Mean That You Have Done Wrong.—Says Fern Howard.

There are people who are afraid of their shadows, and others whom a guilty conscience makes cowardly; there are those who are humble from sheer modesty, those who have stage fright, and still others who are timid from self-knowledge—from the consciousness of sins which they have committed, perhaps, and which they would conceal from the public view. I think that of all forms of timidity, this is the most common.

A year or two ago I met a man who, on being invited to a social function, invariably refused because of the fear of meeting people. This, in the face of the fact that he had been prominent socially, was puzzling to me.

One day I chanced to meet this man on the street and he joined me and walked along with me, a few steps. I noticed that he had the manner of one who thought that all eyes were watching him—who thought that every one in sight was trying to take his measure to see just how much there was in him and if the things they had heard about him, were true.

Later I heard, through a friend, of his almost timid conduct at a meeting of his club. Several men were debating a subject in which he was known to feel an interest, yet he remained silent. "Why are you so quiet?" someone asked him curiously, "Why don't you express your opinion?" "Oh," he said, with an air of great diffidence, "I would be paralyzed if I were to attempt to get on my feet to make a speech. I am afraid of the sound of my own voice!"

This was abnormal—especially from a man who had, at one time, been in the habit f taking an active part in public matters. But, a short time after this incident, people understood this strange actions: for, the world soon learned that this man had been implicated in a crime; and his timidity was no doubt due to the fact that at any moment it might be revealed to the public.

Does this little, true story mean something to YOU? Does it suggest anything to you? I do not mean to imply that my readers are necessarily guilty of crime, as this man was; but, inasmuch as we are all human —and therefore prone to make mistakes—I assume that those who read these words have, at least, committed some unworthy act—some act which they would gladly undo, if it were possible.

And to those whom this "shoe fits," I would say: "Put your mistake behind you. And erase the fear of discovery, from your mind." If the world hears of your little error, then be a man and take that result as a just punishment. You know, we must suffer for our mistakes.

But refuse to be timid! Take your medicine, if you have taken a misstep,—but take it with proudly uplifted head and a "Yes, I did it once, but I'm not going to do it again," spirit.

SUFFERING OF YOUNG WOMEN

This Letter Tells How It May be Overcome—All Mothers Interested.

Toronto, Ont.,—"I have suffered since I was a school girl with pain in my left side and with cramps, growing worse each year until I was all run down. I was so bad at times that I was unfit for work. I tried several doctors and patent medicines, but was only relieved for a short time. Some of the doctors wanted to perform an operation, but my father objected. Finally I learned through my mother of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and how thankful I am that I tried it. I am relieved from pain and cramps, and feel as if it has saved my life. You may use my letter to help other women as I am glad to recommend the medicine."—Mrs. H. A. Goodman, 14 Rockvale Ave., Toronto.

Those who are troubled as Mrs. Goodman was should immediately seek restoration to health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Those who need special advice may write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. These letters will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

DEDICATION OF MEMORIAL ALTAR AND CONFIRMATION SERVICE AT ST. JOHN'S

GENEROUS GIFT FROM MR. T. H G. DENNE IN MEMORY OF HIS LATE WIFE—FORTY-FOUR CANDIDATES CONFIRMED BY THE BISHOP OF TORONTO-

EXCELLENT MUSIC

With simple but impressive Church of England rite, and in the presence of a capacity congregation, a very handsome altar and reredos were solemnly dedicated at 11 o'clock yesterday morning, in St. John's church, by the Rt. Rev. Dr. Sweeney, Lord Bishop of Toronto. This altar and reredos are a gift from Mr. T. H. G. Denne, ex-mayor of Peterborough, in memory of his late wife, Lucy Thornton, who passed away on June 29th, 1920. The altar is of quartered oak, and is beautifully hand-carved in harmony with the other furnishings of this church-like church—one of the oldest landmarks in this city and county. The ancient symbols, Alpha and Omega ,are finely worked in shields at the front, and the letters "I.H.S." are likewise surrounded by a shield in the centre. Around these are drawn lines and angles of exquisite design and workmanship. The reredos is also of oak, but of a lighter shade, to give prominence to the ornate lines of the altar. The design of this reredos is at once elaborate and stately, in keeping, as to dignity, with the imposing architecture of the sacred edifice itself. On the ends there are heavy uprights, with delicate tracery, and deeply-wrought carrying the chapiters of which are embellished with clusters of grapes. The whole conveys an impression of both massiveness and simplicity—a worthy memorial to one whose interest in St. John's Church was so sincere and intense.

The late Mrs. T. H. G. Denne was a charter member of the Chancel Guild, a consistent worker in the Woman's Auxiliary, and a devout member of St. John's until the time of her death.

This new altar and reredos are products of the Valley City Seating Co., Dundas, Ont. A raredos is the screen at the back of the altar.

A Generous Gift.

His Lordship, on behalf of the Vicar ,the wardens, the congregation and for himself, in graceful terms tendered snicere thanks to the donors of these beautiful and costly sanctuary appointments for his exceedingly generous gifts, just dedicated to the glory of God, and in memory of the late Mrs. Denne.

The Bishop also congratulated Rev Dr. Blagrave and congregation for the improvements to the church, interiorally and exteriorally, in evidence, and he hoped that it would not be long before he was called on to come again and re-open a redecorated St. John's.

Quite Appropriate.

Following the dedication ceremony the Vicar presented forty-four candidates for the sacred rite of confirmation, sixteen of whom were adults. In this connection Bishop Sweeney replied in the affirmative to the question recently asked of him, "were it appropriate to make a joint service for dedication and confirmation?" In both rites, he said, there is a common act—the laying on of hands, accompanied by prayer. Of course, in dedication, there lies the fundamental difference to confirmation that the inanimate object has no say or will in the matter; the tree, for instance, which is cut down, cannot determine whether it shall be converted into an altar or not. But in contradistinction, the animate being—the candidate for confirmation—comes forward for the laying on of hands willingly and understandingly, and with a whole heart ready to give himself or herself to God.

Simple Language.

In a twenty minutes address to the candidates for confirmation His Lordship spoke with peculiar fitness from Prov. 4:23: "Keep thy heart with all dilligence, for out of it are the issues of life." This proverb, together with all of Solomon's wise precepts, asserted the Bishop, stands for the men of this day and generation, even as they stood for the people to whom they were issued. And Solomon's words, written and spoken to a simple pastoral people, shut off from communication with the rest of the world, were delivered in that simple elementary language which has found its way out of Holy Writ into the Church of Engalnd's Common Prayer oBok and Church. The fool hath said in his heart there is no God, but the wise man in conformity with the wisdom of Solomon, cries to God "out of my whole heart have I sought thee; let me not wander away from thy commandments." The whole of God's commandments, the distinguished divine continued, are summed up in the phrase, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy soul and with all thy mind," and he exhorted the candidates to trust in the Lord with all their hearts and lean not on their own understanding, but in all their ways to acknowledge Him, and He shall direct their hearts, out of which are in truth the issues of life. Therefore, throw a guard around your hearts, he counselled, for you have to fight against the world, the flesh and the devil—foes within and foes without. In the holy rite of confirmation God says "My son, give me thine heart," and confirmation is a means of grace, and will help those to whom it is administered to continue in God's grace until they come into His everlasting kingdom.

The work of the choir was excellent. Immediately following the act of dedication, Solomon's Prayer at the dedication of the Jewish Temple was sung to its historic setting; and equally in keeping with the whole spirit of the services was the offertory number, "Lord of All Power and Might." (Novello.) As postlude numbers, Mr. R. J. Devey played "Onward Christian Soldiers" "Harmony at the Dome" and "Silver Trumpets."

Blue Monday

By William L. Heffner.
Appliance Distributing Corporation.

Generation after generation our women have toiled at the wash tub, wash day was looked upon as the hardest day of the week and fittingly nick-named "Blue Monday.' These were the days of rub boards, wooden tubs filled with water carried by hand and heated in a wash boiler atop an old-fashioned inefficient wood or coal burning stove.

Times have changed, improvement has followed improvement in laundry appliances and methods until to-day we find in our home laundries labor saving devices which are proving a boon to the users and are a credit to the skill of our engineers. These devices eventually will be used universally by those who wish clean linens with minimum labor, maximum efficiency and minimum wear. The electric washing machine and ironer are the last word of science given in answer to the question, "How to solve the laundry problem."

Things Well to Remember.

In equipping a laundry great care should be exercised to make use of daylight, especilly for ironing. Clothes may be easily scorched and not noticed under artificial light. With this in mind the ironing machine and skirt board are both arranged so that the light from the windows falls upon the work, and preferably from the left of the operator, who stands near enough to the dryer racks when extended to take the pieces for ironing from them, without walking to and fro.

The location of the washtubs and washing machine need not be so carefully planned. Their position relative to the light is not so important. All good washing machines are equipped with motor-operated swinging wringers which transfer clothes from the washing machine to the rinse tub, then into the bluing and out into clothes hamper without moving the machine. The washing machine should be equipped with a gas heater for keeping the water at an even temperature or for boiling the clothes.

The ironing machine is an economical unit, costing little to operate and saving many hours over the ironing board. It is a mistaken idea that only flat work can be done on an ironing machine. The long roll, which is heavily padded, carries the clothes through forcing them against the hot shoe with a weight many times greater than an operator could possibly effect, even with the heaviest flatiron. The skirt board adds much to the completeness of the modern laundry. It is substantially constructed, well balanced and need not be fastened to the floor. The sleeve board swivels on an iron arm, hinged to the base, and the operator irons the sleeves while the body of the garment rests on the main board below. A push button switch controls the electricity and a pilot light indicates when it is on and off.

Cabinet Dryer Great Convenience.

The cabinet dryer, indispensable in the up-to-date laundry, is most appreciated during the winter months, when stormy weather makes it disagreeable and often impossible to hang clothes in the open air. There is always great satisfaction in knowing the clothes can be taken from the dryer clean and free from smoke and dust specks, which are almost certain to accumulate on them when hung out of doors. The method of heating the cabinet has been so thoroughly developed that the clothes will always come out fresh and sweet, free from the well recoguized laundry odor. The dryer can be furnished in various sizes and may be heated by a small gas or coal stove provided as part of the installation or by electricity.

In our most modern homes the laundry, too, often an after consideration, is stuck in an inaccessible dark corner of the basement. Thanks to our enlightened age and to the women who are giving more serious thought to problems of the home, plans evincing such a lack of consideration for the worker usually have for their final resting place the scrapheap, with the old wooden washtubs, the scrubboards and other antiquated household effects.

A Mere Cipher.

"Father," said a budding eight-year-old, "do you know there are 110 in our family?"

"Don't be silly, my boy," replied the father, "There are only three."

"No! there are 110. Mother is one I am one, and you come next."

How to Treat Good Tea When You Get It

When the tea has been grown on the heights of Ceylon, hand picked and journeyed half way round the world, sheltered in aluminum packets, to reach your teacup, blended under conditions of exquisite air-swept cleanliness, it is a shame to spoil it in the making, but this is what is too often done.

The Perfect Brew.

For perfect tea you should have a heavy porcelain or earthenware tea-pot. (Scald it well before using.) Put in a level teaspoonful of tea to the cup; add freshly boiled water; and this means "the third boil when the billows surge wildly in the kettle." Let it steep for from three to four minutes—never more, or you will extract the bitter tannin, which is equally bad for your digestion and the quality of your tea.

The old-fashioned tea cozy has practical value here as well as charming associations. Serve at once and pour off the remaining tea into another pot, or remake for the second cup if you want it perfect. Tea that has stood on the leaves will be bitter and lack fragrance, as you lose the volatile principles that you want. These and the theine that stimulate you are released quickly, while the undesirable tannin dissolves more slowly.

Tea is not a food drink. It is used for its restful and mildly stimulating qualities and for the relaxation that its proper serving brings to the mind and spirit. We are told that "it has not the arrogance of wine, the self-consciousness of coffee nor the simpering innocence of cocoa." Real men like Samuel Johnson, Steele and Addison and Charles Lamb, all beguiled themselves with dishes of tea and stimulated their minds and genius at the same time; indeed, it is the drink of the literary man par excellence.

When You Drink it Cold.

It is only the Englishman who calls for hot tea with milk in the middle of a July day! We have heard them do it, though many other beverages offered. For most of us iced tea makes a stronger appeal in summer time, and besides the plain tea itself with lemon, Russian fashion, it offers a basis for fruit punches of many kinds. Few realize what body and superior character tea gives to any punch—it was used as such even in the days of rum.

The tea should be strong (two teaspoons to a cup), and be poured after three minutes' steeping, hot, over the glass of cracked ice. This insures both fragrance and strength. You may pour the tea off and let it cool partly, thus making less ice necessary; or you may make it as usual, sweeten it while still hot, chill it in the icebox, add lemon juice and serve with only a little ice in the glass, just to get the tinkle, and give a final frosting.

These fine points all count in serving a real glass of iced tea. Even the lemon seeds left in the tea will give a bitter flavor on standing. This punch may be improved by a sprig of mint and be poured from a pitcher. Other fruit juices, fresh or bottled (such as loganberry and grape juice), may be added to the tea basis, adding the lemon and sugar to taste after the fruit juices are in. Orange also combines well with tea.

We may laugh at Mistress Giles, of Haverhill, Mass., who, on receiving a gift of a pound of tea from Boston, in the middle of the eighteenth century, hung her dinner pot, put the whole pound on with water and a good piece of meat and let it stew. A piece of jellied meat and a liquor that was "despot" strong was the result. But people still stew tea, though they have had two centuries in which to learn better, and it is a poor return for the painstaking care and cleanliness expended in bringing the tea to you with its delicate flavors unmarred.

And whatever else you serve with your tea be sure that it is served with serenity!

DOCTOR PRAISED.

BOSTON, (By Mail).—At commencement exercises of the graduating class of the Sargent School for Physical Education, Cambridge diplomas were presented by Dr. Dudley A. Sargent, head of the school, to 75 graduates.

Dr. Woods Hutchinson spoke on "New Freedom." He compared the human constitution to a complicated gas engine and championed the modern style of women's dress, saying that the modern styles furnish freedom of costume to the "more important sex."

He said that short skirts are healthful and give ease and grace to the body. The short skirt movement, he said, is of great value to the race, while the new method of dressing is of as much value as a fight against contagious disease.

In speaking on education in general, Dr. Hutchinson said that the children should be emancipated, that they should spend only about one-third of the time in school that they now spend, and that the remainder of their time should be spent in playing, and learning to be happy.

"Get out of the child's way and let him be happy," concluded Dr. Hutchinson.

Dr. Sargent stated that the draft records of the recent war show that the average stature of the country has decreased by one inch since the Civil War. He said, however, that the stature of both the men and the women who attend college has increased. He urged the members of the graduating class to keep up the energy of themselves, the country and the race.

Carpentier is said to have a forehead like Richard Coeur de Lion. This is probably why his punch is a holy terror.—London Advertiser.

AUTO REFLECTS TRADE CONDITIONS

Car Sales Barometer of Financial Situation.

"It used to be the stock market, but now it's the automobile that is our financial barometer, and a true guide of business and industrial conditions throughout the country," says a well known distributor.

"Those who watch the trend of things financially are learning that the automobile reflects the true opinion of conditions more faithfully than any other guide, while it is not subject to the manipulation which make the old barometers, such as the stock market, wheat, etc., so uncertain to depend upon.

"The fact is that the motor car is an absolutely indispensable feature of the commercial and industrial life of the country, and as soon as the recent depression began to lift, the first thing people began to do was to dig down into their stockings to buy new motor cars.

"The depression did more than anything else to impress the people with their great dependence upon the automobile—something which automobile manufacturers for years had been insisting upon, but an opinion which the general public was slow to appreciate.

"Now that the country is emerging from the near-chaos which engulfed it, every one is keenly watching motor sales, taking their cue from them as to general conditions. They realize that motor car sales are the true barometer and indication of the country's prosperity.

"Great business builder and uplifter as the motor car is, its economy makes it a part of our life which no family can try to do without. It is the beginning and end of Canadian existence, our heritage from alert, vigorous lovers of the great outdoors and the giant crystallizer of Canadian business."

A Surprise Tonight

If you will try this way to prettier teeth

This test will surprise and delight you. The results are so quick, so pleasing, so conspicuous.

Millions have already made it. The glistening teeth seen everywhere now show some benefits it brings.

Go get this free tube from your dealer. Use it and watch the effects. It will open up to you and yours a new era in teeth cleaning.

Why prettier teeth?

This method brings whiter, prettier teeth because it fights the film. Your teeth are now covered with a viscous coat. Feel it with your tongue. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays.

Old brushing methods do not remove it all. Enough remains to make the teeth both dingy and unsafe.

That is why teeth look cloudy. The film-coats absorb stains. Film also causes most tooth troubles. And, under old methods, all those troubles have been constantly increasing.

How film ruins teeth

Film dims the teeth's luster. It also forms the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Many other serious troubles, local and internal, are now traced to them.

Countless people find that teeth brushed daily still discolor and decay. The main reason lies in that film.

Now we daily fight it

Dental science, after long research, has found ways to fight that film. Able authorities have proved their efficiency. Now leading dentists everywhere advise their daily use.

These methods are combined in a modern dentifrice called Pepsodent. Millions now employ it, largely by dental advice. The use is fast spreading the world over among those who know.

That is the tooth paste we ask you to try. Watch its effects on the film. See how your teeth improve. Then let your own good sense decide between old methods and the new.

Three other essentials

Modern science also requires three other effects from a tooth paste. The old methods did not bring them. Pepsodent brings them all.

At your store this week

This 10-Day Tube of Pepsodent. Present the coupon to any dealer named below.

Make this delightful test. Watch the quick effects—see the change in a week. Then you will realize what this new way means to you and yours.

Each use of Pepsodent multiplies the salivary flow. That is Nature's great tooth-protecting agent. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits which may otherwise form acids.

It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is Nature's neutralizer for the acids which cause decay.

Five important effects come from every application. And modern authorities deem all of them essential.

Not for women only

The most conspicuous effect is glistening teeth. Countless women employ it largely on that account. Few things add so much to beauty.

But men also want white teeth. Men who smoke find that teeth discolor quickly, due to stains in the film.

Pepsodent means more than this, however. It means cleaner, safer teeth. Children need it even more than others. Their teeth are easily attacked, and very few escape. Dentists advise that Pepsodent be used every day from the time the first tooth appears.

To all it means a new conception of clean, well-protected teeth.

Present the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. Watch the other good effects.

This test will prove a delightful revelation. To you and yours it may bring life-long benefits. Every day you wait may mean new damage. Cut out the coupon now. Present it this week at your store.

POLLUTION OF WATER SERIOUS

DOSE OF CHLORINE RAISED FRIDAY TO 12 POUNDS TO MILLION GALLONS.

BOIL ALL WATER

Twelve pounds of chlorine per million gallons of water is now being administered at the pumping station and last year's high is now reached. On Friday the close was raised from 11 to 12 pounds when tests showed that the water was about as bad as it could be.

The pollution in the water is very serious this year, and at an earlier date than last year the water tests show the water pollution greater than ever before. This is due to two reasons in the opinion of R. L. Dobbin, waterworks superitendent—the gangs of men polluting the waters farther north; the extreme heat this year. Since Thursday the temperature has been 75 degrees at the intake and downtown the temperature of the water is about 71.

In spite of the warnings to be careful of the water, yesterday was one of the biggest Sundays so far this year. At seven o'clock at night the climax was reached when water was being pumped at the rate of five million gallons per day. However, it is likely that most of the water was going on the lawns and not, 'tis to be hoped, in its present condition, unboiled, into people's interior.

In no case should the water be used without boiling, Mr. Dobbin says. He also warns citizens against using untested well water. Tests show that as great danger lies in drinking from many wells as in the unboiled river water. Some wells have shown a fine grade of water, but others, particularly those that have not been used in years, are extremely polluted. Tests will be made by the waterworks department free of charge providing there is not a bargain day rush on the office.

SAMUEL GOMPERS ELECTED AGAIN

DFFEATED JOHN L. LEWIS FOR PRESIDENCY OF A.F. OF L.

DENVER, Colo., June 26.—Samuel Gompers was elected president of the American Federation of Labor on Saturday.

The election of the "grand old man" of Labor followed one of the biggest fights to control the ranks of American labor that has been waged in years. From the first to the last the battle to head the A. F. of L. was a hard fought one and both groups which constituted the struggle were confident of the ultimate victory.

Contrary to the general forecast of the results made by labor leaders, Gompers defeated his opponent, John J. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers by a heavy majority.

Only two of the largest organizations cast a solid vote for Lewis—the Machinists Union and the United Brotherhood of Carpenters.

The miners' delegation split their vote, giving Gompers 1,596, and Lewis 2,132. President Lewis declining to vote the 533 votes he held.

The railroad organizations, which had been claimed almost solid by Lewis supporters, split their votes, the two largest unions—the electrical workers and the railway carmen—casting their entire vote to Gompers.

The official vote was:
Gompers, 25,022; Lewis, 12,324.

In the morning both presidential candidates — Samuel Gompers and John L. Lewis—went to the convention claiming that they had sufficient votes pledged to win the coveted position. Up to the hour of balloting, at 10 o'clock, the supporters of each candidate kept up a relentless campaign to gain further support for their man. This last-minute rush for the culmination of the week's campaign which had been fought with an almost unprecedented energy and bitterness. It was a noteworthy fact that up to the hour of voting neither candidates had made any public announcement as to the possible support that they had enlisted, nor gave ony definite assurance of an ultimate victory.

THE CHAUTAUQUA

Dr. Frederick Poole was the speaker at the Chautauqua tent on Saturday afternoon and evening. His subject for the afternoon was "China and the Chinese," when the speaker was robed in the attire of a mandarin of the old regime. He gave a very interesting review of the introduction of the opium trade into China by the English government, of the part played by Chinese coolie labor in the Great War, and of the reforms brought about by the Chinese Revolution. "China got rid of her national curse in ten years," said the doctor, referring to the drastic punishments imposed by the government of that country on the growers or users of the poppy. The awakening of the national consciousness of China to higher standards of education and to better treatment of their women was regarded as a portent of future greatness, and Dr. Poole closed his interesting talk with a few examples of the peculiar idioms and picture language of the Chinese, that speech to which he said only Pennsylvania Dutch could compare, but which has been said will be the language spoken in Heaven.

In the evening, Dr. Poole gave a lecture, "With Allenby in Palestine and Lawrence in Arabia," illustrated with moving pictures and colored lantern slides. This was an exceptionally interesting presentation of the campaign in the Far East, about which little is known, that campaign which reclaimed the Holy Land from the hands of the 'unspeakable Turk.' The holy places of the Bible Land, Beersheba, Gaza, where fearful battles raged, Jerusalem and Jaffa, were thrown on the screen, and described in interesting language. The terrible plague of locusts which ravaged the Zionist lands was pictured here, with the enormous, terrible pests which ate the apricots, figs, vines, the horses, even the cactus and the faces of three little children, and when all preventives had failed, the Zionists having recourse to prayer, from the south came an enormous flock of storks that ate up the ravagers.

Mecca and its sacred interior was shown, with the "black stone" of the Prophet, the Mount of Olives, where the former German Kaiser built himself a palace, Captain Fisher's orphanage, where the children are educated and taught useful occupations, and the ancient city of Petra, lost to civilizatzion for 1,500 years, with its rose-red, beautifuly-carved buildings chiseled from the solid rock, and its huge amphitheatre. The most interesting phase of all the lecture was the story of Thomas Lawrence, the soldier of fortune who went to Arabia and recruited the native tribes against the Turk, marched through the Street Called Straight in Damascus as a conquering hero, and now refuses any offifficial recognition of his services for the Empire. Perhaps one of the most romantic figures in all history was shown on the screen in the presentation of this firm-mouthed young Englishman, who has the rank of a Major in the British army but persists in wearing corporal's garb and has refused the V.C. and a knighthood. He has also refused 26 offers of marriage from romantic-minded young ladies, intrigued by his achivements.

Three notable artists from the Toronto Conservatory of Music gave concerts in the afternoon and evening of Saturday, Ferdinand Fillion, a violinist of beautiful, rounded tones, Fern Goltre Filion, a coloratura soprano, and Harvey Robb, a pianist. Their programme was executed with splendid technique, and was encored again and again with great enthusiasm. They are splendid artists, including in their offerings both classical and popular numbers of high-class quality.

The programme for this evening is the play, "It Pays to Advertise," directed by Percival Vivian.

TWO FINE LUNGE CAUGHT IN RIVER

JUST BELOW HUNTER ST. BRIDGE —CENTRE OF CITY REGULAR SUMMER RESORT.

If you were walking up Hunter street to-day from the Bridge you could have seen two young men with the results of their morning's efforts right with them. On a pole carried between them were two hand some 'lunge one would weigh 15 pounds and the other to pounds.

And these fish were caught on the river just below the Hunter street Bridge, within less than five minutes of the Main street. Probably they were just on their way to take a survey of the new bridge and scamper away again. From now on one would expect any fish in this particular part of the river would have a lively time.

Humble Gingham Dresses Take on New Importance When Trimmed with Organdie

It is difficult to realize what a great difference a little Organdie will make to the Gingham Frock. A series of new garments show this innovation of fashion in many pleasing forms.

Some have Overskirts with wide, set-in bands of Organdie, others show girdles, collars, and cuffs of it, and one of plain Blue Check Gingham has little pointed pieces edging panels, finishing the collar and cuffs.

None of these serviceable, yet charming, Dresses are more than $15.00, and there is good choosing at $10.50 and $13.50.

A Distinctive Dress of Lavender Voile expresses some very novel arrangements, especially the girdle, which is White, and fastens at the back and forms a sash, and here is a pretty little Organdie flower of White edged with Lavender. The hem is doubled up to a depth that reaches half-way to the waist line, and is scalloped with hemstitching. The collar is the deep, circular kind, with a Tuxedo front and Vestee. Priced at $19.50.

A Pretty Model of Dotted Swiss Muslin

It is a Brown or Toast shade, with small White dots close together. The round collar, cuffs, patch pockets, girdle, and a deep band half the length of the Skirt, and finished with a deep mitre at the top, are all of White Organdie, and piped with Organdie of Tomato shade. Priced at $27.00.

A New Assortment of Voile Dresses with Embroidery Workings

These are shown in Navy Blue or Lavender, and the workings are White, and about three times the size of those in Dotted Muslins. Most of them are round neck styles without collars, but a few have tiny sailor collars of Organdie. In many instances the girdle passes through rosettes that contribute much to their good appearance. Priced from $17.50 to $19.50.

The Warm Weather Corset That We Recommend Is Quite a Different Affair from Those We Sell for Winter Days

They are soft, flexible things that almost insensibly hold the figure to the prevailing mode.

You can have them in D. & A. or Warner's "Rust-proof." Either are splendid Corsets. The "Rust-proof" are made to be washed the same as any other Underclothing. Washed with soap and water, they turn out pure and clean; the metal parts stay bright; the fabrics, stitching, trimming, and laces are not affected.

There is a great variety of these Summer models—some have elastic tops and others have elastic insets at the top, and some no elastic at all. There is an elastic girdle that many prefer. All have low busts. Priced at $1.50 and upward.

A Great Array of "Stoffel's" Organdies

There is a difference in Organdie, the same as anything else. Stoffel's is the best, because it retains its finish after washing, and is a finer and crisper fabric than others. So far as we know, ours is the only Store selling this quality in Peterborough.

Here is the colour range: Apricot, Sea Foam, Light Copenhagen, Mouse, Pink, Maize, Peach, Rosebud, Old Rose, Cornflower, Cinnamon, Tomato, Navy, and White. Forty-five inches wide.

In the Colours the Price is $1.50 Yard.
THE WHITE IS ONLY $1.25 A YARD.

Silk Shirtings

And some buy them for Blouses. They will do for either. The quality is substantial, not that flimsy sort that gives at the seams with every stretch of the body.

The patterns are wide pencil stripes about half an inch apart. Obtainable in Orchid, Rose, or Black, with Cream ground. Another design has Navy Blue stripes in a broken pattern. Thirty-three inches wide and really worth $2.00 a yard, but we are selling them at $1.69 yard.

A Superior Quality Shantung Silk

It has some of that White filling found in cheaper grades, and has a lustre that is only on the better qualities. The width is 35 inches, and the price should be $1.25, but we are selling it at 89c yard.

Skinner's Taffetas

Here is a Silk that can be had in Black or Navy Blue. It is fully guaranteed, and will be entirely replaced if it does not give satisfaction. When you feel it, you instantly know it has good wearing qualities. Thirty-six inches wide and $3.85 yard.

"Forsyth" Muslin Combinations for Children

Miniatures of these worn by Men, except for the button shoulders and the buttons around the waist band, and a few other minor differences. The Muslin is cross-barred. Obtainable in sizes 4 to 9, and priced at $1.00 and $1.25.

¾ Socks for Children

Of a fine ribbed, good quality, Lisle finish Cotton. Obtainable in White, Brown, Romper Blue, and Black. Turned-down tops. Price 59c pair.

Complete Range of Dotted Swisses

Fine qualiy goods in a series of pretty colours with White dots. Here is the colour range: Light Blue, Saxe Blue, Light Navy, Black, Orchid, and Brown in the new Toast shade. It is a genuine imported Swiss, is 31 inches wide, and sells at $1.95 yard.

At $1.50 you can have White grounds with Pink, Orchid, Light Blue, Navy, and Black dots. Same width as above.

UNITED FARM LADS AND LASSES ENJOY A HAPPY EVENING

STRAWBERRY FESTIVAL AT HOME OF MR. CLIFFORD HANCOCK A BIG SUCCESS—TEMPTING EDIBLES AND GOOD PROGRAM.

The Peterorough Branch of the United Farm Young People held a most successful strawberry festival at the home of Mr. Clifford Hancock, 2nd Line of Smith, on Tuesday evening, 21st June. The lawn and the verandah were gaily decorated with flags and Japanese lanterns. Owing to the proximity to the city, and favourable weather, a large number of Peterborough as well as country people motored to the scene of the festivities. The tables, under the direction of Miss Jean Milburn and her staff of assistants, were bountifully supplied with luscious strawberries, fresh cream, and cookies and sandwiches. Meanwhile the booth-tenders loudly advertised their ice-cream, chocolate, bananas, lemonade, watermelons, etc.

Good Programme.

Promptly at nine o'clock, Mr. J. C. Campbell took the chair, and ably presided for a splendid programme. Miss Mildred Archer's reading, "The Sanitary Farm," was most enthusiastically encored. Master Allen Milburn's song delighted the audience. A reading by Mrs. Fred McNeeley, an elocutionist of exceptional merit, who recently arrived from Scotland, was most heartily appreciated.

Better Education.

Mr. William Morris, secretary-treasurer of the Ontario School Trustees' Association, was the speaker of the evening, and pointed out the need of a better general education for all classes and a change in our present educational system. Rural school trustees were now showing a greater interest in education, he said, for last year, out of 20,000 school trustees in Ontario, only 90 had attended the annual convention, while this year 1,500 had assembled in Convocation Hall, Toronto.

Mr. W. R. Shields, of Peterborough U.F.O., and Mrs. G. Simpson, of the local branch of the U.F.W.O., congratulated the Young People upon the successful social.

Mr. Vivian Milburn, president of the Young People's Club, expressed his thanks to the speakers, to those who had helped with the programme, and to all others who had assisted in making this festival such a complete success.

The programme closed with the National Anthem.

EAT LESS AND TAKE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Take a Glass of Salts if your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog, and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headaches or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

TRENT RIVER HAPPENINGS

TRENT RIVER, June 27.—The greatest crowd ever seen at this place gathered at White Hall Gardens, Friday night. Cars were parked on each side of Bridge street, also up Browning avenue and in every conceivable space. The many hundreds seen on the verandahs and also packed from the sidewalk to the main entrance tried in vain at times to gain admission and enjoy if only one number on the programme. The music consisted of piano, drums, bells and saxaphone and was heartily applauded each time. This popular pavillion is open each night and many would enjoy themselves more by attending other nights of the week as Friday night the crowds are so great many can not get in.

The night being very warm ice cream and ice cold beverages were in great demand. The visitors came from all the surrounding towns and over a dozen carloads coming from Peterborough.

Later guests at 'Cedar Isle" are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Woods, Messrs Olive and Beird all of Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Stevenson, who have been guests at the Sedgewick house the past week motored to their home in Toronto to-day.

Miss Irene Davidson of Campbellford entertained a house party of girl friends over the week end at "Sunnyside".

Mr. Will Christie returned to Toronto yesterday.

Mr. John Sedgewick of the 'Sedgewick House" has purchased all the contents of the refreshment booth of the "Arcadia Pavilion."

Mr. Gene Sauriol, formerly pianist at "Arcadia" is guest at the "Sedgewick House."

Mr. Bygrave, formerly drummer at the "Arcadia" is guest at the "Sedgewick House".

The lawn social under the auspices of the Ladies Aid of the Methodist church held at the residence of Mrs. John Scott's was a great success. A good crowd turned out and the gate receipts were all that could be expected.

Dominion Day.

The prizes for the Dominion Day regatta are on view in the window of the News office and present an imposing array. It is enough to make the old and decrepit long for at least a temporary return to youth to be able to win some of them. There is a fine variety and one sees everything from a pair of silk stockings to a mission clock and from a flash light to a silver cup. A "comfy" looking boat cushion hobnobs with a cosy boat seat. Young men can fancy their canoes equipped thus insuring beyond doubt the comfort of their ladies fair.

The married folks will probably view the fine ham as a splendid way of solving the H. C. L., that bogey of the married man and woman.

Stationery, candy, a cut glass dish, two clocks, two cases of silver, boxes of cigar, a book, a pennant, bill books, manicure sets, paper knives, belts, a safety razor and a deck chair are among the things shown in Mr. Kidpath's window.

Petroleum production in British Guania has reached a stage whereby actual shipment of oil has been begun.

MARY PICKFORD'S DIVORCE STANDS

COURT STOPS STATE PROCEEDINGS TO SET ASIDE DECREE.

RENO, Nev. June 27.—(Canadian Press).—The efforts of the State Attorney-General to have the divorce decree of Mary Pickford from Owen Moore, set aside failed at Minden Saturday when District Judge Langan, granted a motion to quash the summons in the Attorney-General's proceedings. The court held that while it was true the state was party to all divorces, as contended by the Attorney General yet the state was represented by the trial judge and not by the Attorney General. As the decree had been accepted by both the plaintiff and defendant the judge decided the State was stopped from the proceedings to set aside the decree.

NEW YORK, June 27. (Canadian Press. — Miss Amelia Gade, 22 years old, yesterday swam around Manhattan Island, a distance of about 40 miles, in 15 hours and 57 minutes. She was the second woman to perform the feat, Miss Ida Elcensky having been credited with doing it in 1915 in 11 hours and 35 minutes.

POLICE STRIKE WITH FIREMEN WHILE PICKPOCKETS SWOOP IN

QUEBEC, June 27. — (Canadian Press).—The keys of the city were handed over to pickpockets, who swooped on the city for the Quebec Hunt Club race meet by the leaders of the Policemen's Union here at midnight Saturday night, when they called an immediate strike of the city police in concert with the firemen to force the city to grant an all-round increase in pay of $1.50 per week.

A detachment of 125 officers and men of the 22nd Royal Regiment, under the command of Colonel Henri Chasse, D.S.O., M.C., guarded the City Hall until 11.45 last night, when they left for their barracks. All was quiet at that hour.

The damage so far, however, has been confined to the breaking of some hundreds of street lamps, two of them in front of the Mayor's residence.

RE-CAPTURE MAN WHO JUMPED FROM TRAIN

ESCAPED FROM DETECTIVE BY WINDOW ROUTE AT NIAGARA FALLS.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., June 27. Canadian Press. Police Superintendent John A. Curry and two detectives from Niagara Falls, N.Y., left for Grimsby to bring back hereJack Vincent, who is wanted on a larceny charge. Vincent was arrested several weeks ago in Hamilton but escaped from Detective Keenan when being brought here on a Michigan Central train.

He jumped from an open window of the train while it was travelling 25 miles an hour between the north and south sections of the city.

He was re-arested while working on a farm near Grimsby.

COL. MULLOY QUEERS THE TOWN'S SCHEME.

Entered Action Against Assessment Increase and Won Out.

Lieut.-Col. Lorne Mulloy, well known in Peterborough as Blind Trooper Mulloy, who addressed several audiences in this city and district during the last bye-election, in the Conservative interests, has successfully appealed to the Courts against the more than doubling of his property value by a newly appointed assessor for Iroquois town.

For the past five years the town of Iroquois, in Dundas County, struck too low a rate, so that a debt of $15,000 was accumulated. Last April, when he had completed his assessment roll, S. W. Wood was asked by the town to prepare a new roll advancing propety values sufficiently to provide funds to pay off the $15,000 as well as the current expenditure. He refused, and the town appointed J. M. Fisher assessor in his place.

Fisher made a new roll, and values were greatly enhanced.

Lieut.-Col. Lorne Mulloy found his property assessed at $6,055.00, instead of $2,800.00 as in the old roll. He entered action.

Chief Justice Mulock has given judgment, declaring that in his opinion the by-law appointing a new assessor is invalid and the new roll is a nullity. The town is restrained from acting on it till the trial of the action.

THE REFRIGERATOR.

The refrigerator is a popular kitchen utensil which holds everything successfully but ice. For some reason or other, as soon as ice is placed in a refrigerator it begins to shrink and finally evaporates in the form of sawdust and water, which is later deposited in a neat puddle on the kitchen floor by the law of gravity.

Refrigerators are filled with mournful regularity by an independent citizen who owns the only ice house in town and is extremely deliberate in his movements. Nobody ever saw an iceman who was in a hurry to reach an empty refrigerator before last night's milk was turned into a cottage cheese. One of the saddest epochs in the life of woman is to place a large pan of undiluted milk in the refrigerator, wearing a thick coating of cream on its bosom, and then discover that during the night it has turned sour from the ankles up, owing to the ice having gone out the back way. If there were some way to pen up a fifty pound chunk of ice in a refrigerator so it could not escape on the instalment plan there would be more happy and contented housewives.

All kinds of food can be placed in a first-class refrigerator without fear of infecting any of its neighbors. This is proven by setting a mammoth white onion alongside of a fresh brick cheese, neither of which will affect the taste of widely used for demonstrating purposes, ought to satisfy the most hardened skeptic.

Before the refrigerator was invented people had to keep food that was subject to sunstroke in the cellar, which required the housewife to chase up and down stairs at a depressing canter. As this wore out the cellar stairs and also the lower limbs of thousands of estimable wives, the keen, analytical mind of man brought out the refrigerator with an overflowing drain pipe which is filled with ice weighted by the calculating eye of the iceman. Some icemen have excellent eyesight and can measure one hundred pounds of ice to a thousandth of an inch, but others are troubled with chronic, double-barreled astigmatism, and should have their vision operated on by the grand jury.

The refrigerator does not cost so much to run as a hard-coal furnace, but it needs more watching than a married man of gay and festive instincts.

ARTICLES NEEDED WHEN GOING ON A MOTOR TOUR.

Set of ignition brushes, boxed and labeled.
A compact tow rope.
Jack and handle and two blocks of wood to rest jack on.
Box of plungers for tube valves.
Wrench for interrupter points.
File for cleaning the points.
Hydrometer or volmeter for testing storage batteries.
Box of assorted nuts, assorted cap screws, lock washers and cotter pins.
Spool of copper and one of soft iron wire.
Extra set of electric light bulbs.
Clean rags and waste.
Set of fuses, if used on car.
Folding canvas pail.
Full set of tire chains and chain tool, extra cross links.

All of these things should be put into as small boxes as possible and all of them labeled as they will be seldom used

While the tour planned along good state roads may read very nice from the guide book, you must take it with a grain of salt. This year there will be many detours, where roads are being repaired and soft dirt roads on a wet day are so slippery that three or even four tire chains are needed. that the front wheels may be kept on the road as well as the rear ones (I made the cross country trip last year, so be warned). Always carry an extra gallon of oil and unless there is a reserve gasoline tank on the car take a gallon of gasoline. There is usually sufficient to get you to a gas station.

Remember that morning and evening, in high altitudes especially, or stormy days, call for added wraps. Carry sweaters, raincoats, and rubbers. It might be necessary to change tires in the mud. And watch out for speed cops along the way. They're mean to tourists.

Since the war Danish railroads have placed large orders for locomotives in the United States.

THIS TALK ABOUT GERMS

"All this talk about germs," I heard an elderly woman say, "makes me tired. And all this business of sterilizing bottles and spoons and what not. And never taking a baby on he cars. Why, I've got a granson who's never been brought to see me! And he's two years old."

As you may have suspected, the sort of grandmother who thinks the modern ways of safeguarding babies' health are all nonsense, was talking.

"We never had any such notional ideas about children when I was bringing up mine," she said; "and I don't see but what they were just as healthy. I used to take my babies to see my mother-in-law from the time they were a month old. She'd have had something to say if I hadn't. All popycock, I call it! They'd be better off if they weren't fussed over so much. And another thing I haven't any use for is all this antitoxin and vaccination and fresh-air business when they're sick."

The Picture I Saw.

As I listened to the above tirade, a queer picture lesson rose in my mind: I saw a little old-fashioned burying-ground in a small New England town which I visited last summer.

Having a deep interest in reading the history of a community from all such documents, I had stooped and brushed away the tall grasses from some of those little stones, read some of the inscriptions, and guessed at some of the stories behind them. And the most pathetic of all the tales was the tale of the dead babies. In one place there were five small stones in a row. The dates on them are only three years apart. The ages of the children range from a year to four years.

An Epidemic, Doubtless.

In another place there were four deaths in one family in one month, all of children between the ages of one month and seven years (very likely an epidemic of small-pox or diptheria in the days before anti-toxins and vaccines).

These are striking examples, but there were many families where the deaths of three or four children were recorded. Doubtless the children who lived were as healthy as those today; but don't forget—you who laugh at the care we take today—the many, many babies who didn't live.

If Figures Can Tell the Truth.

And let you think that statistics casually taken in a New England graveyard are not sufficiently reliable, let me offer other figures which certainly speak truth if figures ever can.

According to figures based on life insurance statistics, the number of deaths for children under five has been decreased twenty-six per cent in the ten years between nineteen hundred and nineteen eleven, to say nothing of the great gains made before that date.

Doesn't that make "all this talk about germs" seem a li ttle more than nonsense

INCREASED RATES ON PARCEL POST NOW.

A cable received from the United Kingdom postal authorities advises that the heavy increase of cost of handling and conveyance makes it imperative to raise the postal rates on parcels exchanged with Canada.

As a consequence, parcel post rates to the United Kingdom on and after 1st July next will be 20 cents for the first pound, and 16 cents for each succeeding pound or fraction thereof.

MARY PICKFORD'S DIVORCE STANDS

COURT STOPS STATE PROCEEDINGS TO SET ASIDE DECREE.

RENO, Nev. June 27.—(Canadian Press).—The efforts of the State Attorney-General to have the divorce decree of Mary Pickford from Owen Moore, set aside failed at Minden Saturday when District Judge Langan, granted a motion to quash the summons in the Attorney-General's proceedings. The court held that while it was true the state was party to all divorces, as contended by the Attorney General yet the state was represented by the trial judge and not by the Attorney General. As the decree had been accepted by both the plaintiff and defendant the judge decided the State was stopped from the proceedings to set aside the decree.

POLICE STRIKE WITH FIREMEN WHILE PICKPOCKETS SWOOP IN

QUEBEC, June 27. — (Canadian Press).—The keys of the city were handed over to pickpockets, who swooped on the city for the Quebec Hunt Club race meet by the leaders of the Policemen's Union here at midnight Saturday night, when they called an immediate strike of the city police in concert with the firemen to force the city to grant an all-round increase in pay of $1.50 per week.

A detachment of 125 officers and men of the 22nd Royal Regiment, under the command of Colonel Henri Ghasse, D.S.O., M.C., guarded the City Hall until 11.45 last night, when they left for their barracks. All was quiet at that hour.

The damage so far, however, has been confined to the breaking of some hundreds of street lamps, two of them in front of the Mayor's residence.

He was re-arested while working on a farm near Grimsby.

COL. MULLOY QUEERS THE TOWN'S SCHEME.

Entered Action Against Assessment Increase and Won Out.

Lieut.-Col. Lorne Mulloy, well known in Peterborough as Blind Trooper Mulloy, who addressed several audiences in this city and district during the last bye-election, in the Conservative interests, has successfully appealed to the Courts against the more than doubling of his property value by a newly appointed assessor for Iroquois town.

For the past five years the town of Iroquois, in Dundas County, struck too low a rate, so that a debt of $15,000 was accumulated. Last April, when he had completed his assessment roll, S. W. Wood was asked by the town to prepare a new roll advancing propety values sufficiently to provide funds to pay off the $15,000 as well as the current expenditure. He refused, and the town appointed J. M. Fisher assessor in his place.

Fisher made a new roll, and values were greatly enhanced.

Lieut.-Col. Lorne Mulloy found his property assessed at $6,055.00. instead of $2,800.00 as in the old roll. He entered action.

Chief Justice Mulock has given judgment, declaring that in his opinion the by-law appointing a new assessor is invalid and the new roll is a nullity. The town is restrained from acting on it till the trial of the action.

THE REFRIGERATOR.

The refrigerator is a popular kitchen utensil which holds everything successfully but ice. For some reason or other, as soon as ice is placed in a refrigerator it begins to shrink and finally evaporates in the form of sawdust and water, which is later deposited in a neat puddle on the kitchen floor by the law of gravity.

Refrigerators are filled with mournful regularity by an independent citizen who owns the only ice house in town and is extremely deliberate in his movements. Nobody ever saw an iceman who was in a hurry to reach an empty refrigerator before last night's milk was turned into a cottage cheese. One of the saddest epochs in the life of woman is to place a large pan of undiluted milk in the refrigerator, wearing a thick coating of cream on its bosom, and then discover that during the night it has turned sour from the ankles up, owing to the ice having gone out the back way. If there were some way to pen up a fifty pound chunk of ice in a refrigerator so it could not escape on the instalment plan there would be more happy and contented housewives.

All kinds of food can be placed in a first-class refrigerator without fear of infecting any of its neighbors. This is proven by setting a mammoth white onion alongside of a fresh brick cheese, neither of which will affect the taste of widely used for demonstrating purposes, ought to satisfy the most hardened skeptic.

Before the refrigerator was invented people had to keep food that was subject to sunstroke in the cellar, which required the housewife to chase up and down stairs at a depressing canter. As this wore out the cellar stairs and also the lower limbs of thousands of estimable wives, the keen, analytical mind of man brought out the refrigerator with an overflowing drain pipe which is filled with ice weighted by the calculating eye of the iceman. Some icemen have excellent eyesight and can measure one hundred pounds of ice to a thousandth of an inch, but others are troubled with chronic, double-barreled astigmatism, and should have their vision operated on by the grand jury.

The refrigerator does not cost so much to run as a hard-coal furnace, but it needs more watching than a married man of gay and festive instincts.

ARTICLES NEEDED WHEN GOING ON A MOTOR TOUR.

Set of ignition brushes, boxed and labeled.
A compact tow rope.
Jack and handle and two blocks of wood to rest jack on.
Box of plungers for tube valves.
Wrench for interrupter points.
File for cleaning the points.
Hydrometer or volmeter for testing storage batteries.
Box of assorted nuts, assorted cap screws, lock washers and cotter pins.
Spool of copper and one of soft iron wire.
Extra set of electric light bulbs.
Clean rags and waste.
Set of fuses, if used on car.
Folding canvas pail.
Full set of tire chains and chain tool, extra cross links.

All of these things should be put into as small boxes as possible and all of them labeled as they will be seldom used

While the tour planned along good state roads may read very nice from the guide book, you must take it with a grain of salt. This year there will be many detours, where roads are being repaired and soft dirt roads on a wet day are so slippery that three or even four tire chains are needed. that the front wheels may be kept on the road as well as the rear ones (I made the cross country trip last year, so be warned). Always carry an extra gallon of oil and unless there is a reserve gasoline tank on the car take a gallon of gasoline. There is usually sufficient to get you to a gas station.

Remember that morning and evening, in high altitudes especially, or stormy days, call for added wraps. Carry sweaters, raincoats, and rubbers. It might be necessary to change tires in the mud. And watch out for speed cops along the way. They're mean to tourists.

Since the war Danish railroads have placed large orders for locomotives in the United States.

THIS TALK ABOUT GERMS

"All this talk about germs," I heard an elderly woman say, "makes me tired. And all this business of sterilizing bottles and spoons and what not. And never taking a baby on he cars. Why, I've got a granson who's never been brought to see me! And he's two years old."

As you may have suspected, the sort of grandmother who thinks the modern ways of safeguarding babies' health are all nonsense, was talking.

"We never had any such notional ideas about children when I was bringing up mine," she said; "and I don't see but what they were just as healthy. I used to take my babies to see my mother-in-law from the time they were a month old. She'd have had something to say if I hadn't. All popycock, I call it! They'd be better off if they weren't fussed over so much. And another thing I haven't any use for is all this antitoxin and vaccination and fresh-air business when they're sick."

The Picture I Saw.

As I listened to the above tirade, a queer picture lesson rose in my mind: I saw a little old-fashioned burying-ground in a small New England town which I visited last summer.

Having a deep interest in reading the history of a community from all such documents, I had stooped and brushed away the tall grasses from some of those little stones, read some of the inscriptions, and guessed at some of the stories behind them. And the most pathetic of all the tales was the tale of the dead babies. In one place there were five small stones in a row. The dates on them are only three years apart. The ages of the children range from a year to four years.

An Epidemic, Doubtless.

In another place there were four deaths in one family in one month, all of children between the ages of one month and seven years (very likely an epidemic of small-pox or diptheria in the days before anti-toxins and vaccines).

These are striking examples, but there were many families where the deaths of three or four children were recorded. Doubtless the children who lived were as healthy as those today; but don't forget—you who laugh at the care we take today—the many, many babies who didn't live.

If Figures Can Tell the Truth.

And let you think that statistics casually taken in a New England graveyard are not sufficiently reliable, let me offer other figures which certainly speak truth if figures ever can.

According to figures based on life insurance statistics, the number of deaths for children under five has been decreased twenty-six per cent in the ten years between nineteen hundred and nineteen eleven, to say nothing of the great gains made before that date.

Doesn't that make "all this talk about germs" seem a li ttle more than nonsense

INCREASED RATES ON PARCEL POST NOW.

A cable received from the United Kingdom postal authorities advises that the heavy increase of cost of handling and conveyance makes it imperative to raise the postal rates on parcels exchanged with Canada.

As a consequence, parcel post rates to the United Kingdom on and after 1st July next will be 20 cents for the first pound, and 16 cents for each succeeding pound or fraction thereof.

OVER TWO HUNDRED ODD FELLOWS PAY TRIBUTE TO DEAD ON MEMORIAL DAY

DECORATION DAY CEREMONIES AT LITTLE LAKE CEMETERY IN HONOR OF SEVERAL HUNDRED BURIED THERE.

Over two hundred members of the I. O. O. F., paid tribute to the memory of several hundred Oddfellows who are buried in the Little Lake Cemetery, yesterday afternoon, in their annual decoration day.

Headed by the Salvation Army Band annd marshalled by Bro. Col. J. W. Miller, who for over thirty years has performed this duty, the order marched to the cemetery from their rooms.

The two lodges, Otoabee, No. 13, and Peterboro, No. 11, left the Oddfellows' Hall at 2 p.m. Each member carried a bouquet and when the Oddfellows had placed the flowers on the graves, the last resting place of the respected members were a mass of bloom for pots of flowers had previously been placed on the graves by the cemetery officials and friends also told with flowers how warm their memories were of loved ones. Hundreds of other citizens attended the decoration and practically every grave in the cemetery was flower-covered.

The ceremony at the cemetery was brief. Forming a circle by the Chapel with the band and ministers in the centre a short service was held. With the singing of "Rock of Ages" the service was opened. Bro. H. Turner, Noble Gand, spoke of the pupose of the Order and paid tribute to the memory of departed brothers. Chaplain R. J. Martin read the prayer of the Order, following which Rev. R. C. Young, spoke to the Oddfellows on the beauty of fellowship, and the purpose of the Order in annually decorating the graves of departed members.

The Oddfellows in different sections, then visited all parts of the cemetery, placing the flowers after a short ritual on each grave.

Several veteran members of the Order, and those who were unable to work, were taken to the cemetery in motor cars.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

Stocks opened with an extension of last week's rally, but fell back when buying subsided and shorts extended their committments. Sales approximated 457,000 sares.

NEW YORK, June 27.— (Canadian Press.)— Stock market opened with many additions to last Saturday's rally. Metals, Oils and Tobaccos led a further advance with many miscellaneous shares. American Smelting, National Lead, General Asphalt, California Petroleum, Royal Dutch and Sumatra Tobacco scored early gains of 1 to 3 points. Bethlehem, Crucible and Midvale Steels, also Harvest and related shares were strong, with many Departmen Stores, Corn Products, Endicott Johnson and Famous Players. Reverse tendencies were shown by Mexican Petroleum, Baldwin Locomotive, Chandler Motor, American Sugar and U. S. Rubber, in which moderate losses were sustained.

Ony a moderate volume of business was transacted on the higher range of prices. Much of this represented buying order prompted by last week's rally but the greater part probably consisted of short covering. An uneven trend developed before noon when Mexican Petroleum Baldwin Locomotive, U. S. Rubber, Gooderich, American Woollen, Sears Roebuck, International Paper and Union Bag became heavy. Canadian Pacific also showed recurrent pressure but the minor rails, notably the coalers, were firm. Call money opened at 5 per cent and exchange

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, June 27.— (Canadian Press.)— The local stock exchange opened for the week, starting with several advances from Saturday's closing levels. Abitibi rose 1 1-4 points to 25 3-4. Atlantic Sugar remained unchanged at 25. Brompton was down a half point at 23. Laurentide advanced a point to 77. National Breweries was up 5-8 at 48 and Spanish River strengthened a point to 50 1-2.

Prices were steady at the local market's close this morning. Abittibi closed a half point down at 25 1-4 and Atlantinc Sugar was stronger by 5-8 per cent.

Brazilian lost a point during the morning and closed at 26. Brompton remained unchanged. Dominion Steel lost a half and closed at 24 as did also Laurentide, which closed at 76 1-2. National Breweries did not change, but Spanish River went down a half to 50.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, June 27.—(Canadian Dollars 11 5-8 per cent discount.

TORONTO

TORONTO, June 27.—(Canadian Press).— The volume of business transacted on the local stock exchange this morning was small with only four issues exceeding 100 shares. Of these four, Brazilion was the leader in activity and also the weakest, losing all of the gain made at the week end. The close on Brazilian 25 3-4, was the low point for the morning. Canada Cement, Steel of Canada, common and preferred, were other active stocks, cement at 49 scored a gain of 1 point from Saturday's close, with Steel Common losing 1-2, Steel preferred was unchanged. Canadian Pacific on sales of only 38 shares advanced to 124. Unlisted paper stocks were steady to higher.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHIAGO, July 27.—(Canadian Press).—Bearish sentiment sentiment predominated in the wheat market to-day owing more or less to expectations of a free movement of the new crop. It was generally believed also that the visible supply total would show a liberal increase as compared with a week ago. Continued rise in the south west and further dry weather in the north west, failed to have more than a transient effect on prices. Opening quotations, which ranged from a 3-4 decline to 1-4 cent advance with July 130 to 130 1-4 and September 125 1-2 to 126, were followed by a material set back all around.

Big receipts weakened corn. After opening 1-2 cents off to 1-4 up, including September at 63 1-2, the market underwent a general sag.

Oats were depressed with other cereals, starting 1-8 to 1-4 lower to a 1-4 advance, September 40 4-8 to 40 1-2, and then receeding for all deliveries.

Lower quotations on hogs and grain weakened provisions.

LIVE STOCK MARKET.

TORONTO, June 27.— (Canadian Press.)—Cattle market receipts 3,791 ,trade good. Quotations: Heavy beef steers, $7.50 to $8; butcher steers, choice, $7.50 to $8; butcher cows, medium, $3 to $5; calves $8 to $10; lamb, $13 to $14.50; hogs, selects, $13.75 to $14.25.

Both churches were beautifully decorated with flowers for the occasion, and surmounted by flags in honor of the Bishop's visit.

NEW MASONS' HALL AT KIRKFIELD DEDICATED.

KIRKFIELD, June 27.—In the presence of some 200 Masons, the new hall recently purchased by Victoria Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 398, Kirkfield, was dedicated by the Deputy District Grand Master of District No. 20 Bro,. H. J. Townley, of Fenelon Falls.

Yesterday R. H. Wimmer, a merchant, said the body was the mummy of a cliff dweller which had been in his store 15 years. The mummy floated into the alley during the flood.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE ALLEN.

Action is the keynote of the second Katherine Newlin Burt photoplay, "Snowblind," which is being shown this week at the Allen Theatre. Like the author's previous picture, "The Branding Iron," "Snowblind" deals with people who live close to the soil, this time in the Canadian North-West, and know none of the softer sentiments with which city folk regulate their lives.

From this story Reginald Barker has made a powerful photoplay at the Goldwyn studios. With a picked cast that includes such sterling actors as Russell Simpson, Pauline Starke, Marv Alden and Cullen Landis, "Snowblind" is one of the best acted photoplays that Goldwyn has yet made.

"Snowblind" is, in substance, a story of first love in the wilderness which leads to the regeneration of a man whose entire life has been spent in evading the law. How the fugitive, who previously had recognized no authority but that of his own strength, is made to realize the power of a great love, makes a beautiful and stirring story. It has been splendidly directed by Reginald Barker and lavishly produced by Goldwyn.

JIMMIE ADAMS ADMITS FISH AND RESTAURANT DON'T AGREE.

One of the scenes in "High and Dry," latest of the Mermaid Comedies, which comes to the Allen Theatre to-day, calls for a seine full of fish to be dumped on Jimmie Adams, the featured player. There was a morning of hard work and the company being away from its regular studios, Adams did not take the trouble to change his costume—that of a rather high-class "down and out"—before entering a restaurant at the seaside resort. He sat down at one of the long tables, crowded when he entered, but which soon emptied itself with anything but complimentary expressions from the men and women. Adams did not sense the trouble, though he was worried by the hasty departure of the customers, until one kindly-faced and rotund old man put his hand on his shoulder and observed:

"Don't let 'em get your goat, kid. I was a fisherman myself once."

But the worst joke of it all was that Adams had himself ordered—fish, and when the waitress served them she said out of the corner of her mouth: "THESE fish are fresh."

AT THE CAPITOL.

To-night the Capitol offers a great show, Wallace Reid in "The Love Special," Harold Lloyd in "Now or Never," and many other splendid film attractions.

To-night, also Tuesday and Wednesday and the usual Wednesday matinee, the pretty and cozy Capitol offers its many regular patrons a remarkable picture programme. Wallace Reid, the popular matinee idol and athletic star, will be seen in his new mile-a-minute comedy of fire thrills, love and laughter, entitled "The Love Special." Wallace Reid pictures always please because they never lag or drag. The story is written with the word speed spelled in large letters. The fire frolic and adventure is also always found at the proper point in these productions. The result is good entertainment every time in a really Reid picture, and "The Love Special" is up to this popular star's standard, and speaking about fun and laughter, the very name of Harold Lloyd suggests a bunch of fun for the movie fan. Harold Lloyd has produced many good single reel comedies. He has also produced the best two-reel comedies ever seen on a picture screen. Now he comes before the public in his first big 3-reel comedy, "Now or Never," and it's one of the funniest and cleanest laugh producers ever thrown on the silver sheet. The name of this riot is "Now or Never." The balance of the big programme includes, as usual, Paths News, Topics of the Day, 8th episode of "The Avenging Arrow," also a funny Roland comedy. The splendid seats, attentive service and wonderfully cool atmosphere at the Capitol makes this the ideal spot in Peterborough to enjoy the best in pictures and music. The orchestra has vastly improved, and now plays the pictures properly at all times. A splendid programme at usual Capitol prices.

Nazimova, again on the Coast, announces she will make a picture with an all-woman cast.

In addition, none but women will direct, edit, cut and produce the picture.

What chance will a mere man have in this outfit?

VEN. NORTON RESIGNS MONTREAL RECTORSHIP

MONTREAL, June 27.— (Canadian Press.) — The resignation of Venerable John George Norton, D.D., as Rector of Montreal and of Christ Church Cathedral, was announced at yesterday's services at the Cathedral. The great age of the rector, who is 80, and an infirmity as to hearing, have made it impossible for him to continue active work. He has held the rectorship of the parish for the past thirty-nine years.

LAST INNINGS RALLY SATURDAY FAILS TO SAVE THE GAME FOR THE PETES

SOLOMON OUTFIT BEATEN 3 TO 2 SATURDAY BY THEIR OLD RIVALS FROM BELLEVILLE—WEAKNESS WITH WILLOW AGAIN MARS PETES' PLAY.

After being held scoreless for eight frames, while Belleville were picking up three counters, the Petes made a ninth innings stand in the Central League game at Riverside Park on Saturday, hammered two markers in and had the tieing and winning runs on the bases when Holyman was thrown out at first for the final out, the Belleville crew winning by 3 runs to 2, their fifth victory in a row.

All the joy that the Peterborough fans got out of the game was crowded into that last session. Up to that innings the Solomon gang were tied in a knot by Freddy Goyer's cunning, two safe bunts being the only hits registered against the veteran southpaw. Belleville had not done much heavy hitting themselves, but what they did was timed to accompany the Petes' errors and turn the slips in the local defence into runs. None of the winner's counters were earned. Lornie Rose presented them with the first by dropping a fly back of the box in the second innings and the two runs in the sixth were due to a couple of mussed-up plays and a misjudged fly which went for a two-base hit.

The Petes missed two good chances to score before the ninth. Bad base running in the first innings robbed them of one opening, and bad luck in the eighth when Cherrett bunted a fly to Fred Goyer for a double play, cost them another. It was just as well, however, that they did not score in the first, for Umpire Butler pulled a wrong decision that would have given Belleville good grounds for a protest. With Cherrett on first Murray fanned, but the third one got away from Mills. Under Sec. 6 of Rule 51 Murray should have been called out, for the batter is out "if while first base be occupied by a base runner, the third strike be called on him by the umpire unless two men are already out." Butler forgot the rule and allowed Murray to stay on first base.

When the Petes went to bat in the ninth they were 3 to 0 behind, and the fans started to move out of the stands. And then the break came and for a few minutes there was the wildest excitement of the season. Murray started it by slamming a hit off Frank Goyer's glove. Ross hit to Harry Mills and the first baseman's throw to second was too late to get Murray. That was two on and nobody out and the crowd woke up with a roar. Swanston tried hard for a hit, but Fred Goyer snapped up his roller and tossed Murray out at third. Then Ray Rose came to the rescue and exploded a screaming liner over second, the ball bouncing over Ross's head, and before it came back to the infield Bob Ross and Swanston were across the rubber and Rose was on second. With one out and the tieing run half way home, visions of victory for the Petes grew bright. Pinnette tapped a slow roller down the third base line and was out at first. Rose should have gone to third on this play, and his failure to do so prevented a sewed up game for Lowe was sent in to bat for Kirn and beat out a roller to short that would have sent in the tieing run had it been on third instead of second. Lowe stole second, and a clean single to the outfield would have meant two runs and the ball game, but Holyman couldn't come through. His slow tap past the box was fielded cleanly by Fred Goyer, and the pitcher's throw beat him to first, winding up the rally.

Goyer won his sixth victory over the Petes by showing his old-time ability to baffle them in the pinches. Eleven strike-outs were credited to the lanky southpaw, and until the ninth the only hits registered against him were bunts by Cherrett in the first and Jackson in the fifth. He was weakening on end, however, and the Petes came very close to taking his scalp in that last minute rally.

Lornie Rose drew the pitching assignment for the home crew, Rose has been troubled with a sore arm all season and he failed to go the route on Saturday, McElroy going to the rescue and pitching the last three innings. The visitors collected six hits and three runs off Rose during his six sessions on the mound, although none of the counters were earned, while McElroy held them to two hits and no runs for the balance of the game.

One of the brightest features of the game from a Peterborough viewpoint was the work of Pinnette in centre field for the Petes. He ranged over a large section of the landscape and snared no fewer than six flies in sparkling style. Walter Jackson also distinguished himself with a spectacular running catch of Casey's drive in the sixth, and Cherrett tore off another fine catch of a high fly back of second.

First Innings.

Belleville—Ross fanned. Meagher hoisted to Cherrett. Weir was thrown out by Ray Rose. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough — Cherrett bunted safely. Murray missed three, but the third one was a wild pitch which got away from Mills, Cherrett going to third on the play. Murray should have been called out, but Umpire Butler allowed him to remain on first. He started to steal second and Mills' throw beat him by yards. Cherrett was caught trying to score on the play, Weir making a quick return. Murray reached second while Cherrett was being run down and went to third on a wild pitch. Ross was called out on strikes, the third one a foot over his head. Swanston flied to Casey in right. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Second Innings.

Belleville— Lornie Rose dropped W. Mills' fly to the box. Frank Goyer grounded to Ross, Mills going to second. Casey hoisted to Murray. H. Mills singled down the right field foul line, scoring his brother. Williamse flied to Pinnette. One run, one hit, one error.

Peterborough—R. Rose and Pinnette fanned. Weir captured Jackson's fly to short left. No runs, hits or errors.

Third Innings.

Belleville —Fred Goyer whiffed. Ross lined to Pinnette in right centre. Meagher singled to centre. Weir was safe when Ray Rose let his roller get away. Pinnette was under W. Mills' fly to left centre. No runs, one hit, one error.

Peterborough —Holyman walked. Rose sacrificed, Fred Goyer to H. Mills. Cherrett struck out and Murray also missed three. No runs, hits or errors.

Fourth Innings.

Belleville— Frank Goyer lined to Pinnette. Murray threw out Casey. H. Mills rolled to Ross. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough — Ross walked. Swanston fanned and Ross was caught off first and was out W. Mills to H. Mills to Weir. R. Rose died, Frank Goyer to H. Mills. No runs, hits or errors.

Fifth Innings.:

Belleville— Williams doubled to left. Fred Goyer sacrificed, Rose to Ross. W. Ross bunted to Lornie Rose, who held Williams at third and threw out the batter. Meagher grounded to Ray Rose. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Peterborough — Pinnette flied to Meagher. Jackson bunted safely, the second hit off Goyer. Hoyman fanned. L. Rose forced Jackson at second, Williams to Weir. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Sixth Innings.

Belleville—Weir singled through short. W. Mills flied to Holyman in deep right. Frank Goyer singled past first and when Ross let Ray Rose's toss get away Weir went to third. Casey flied to Jackson in left, a beautiful catch. Weir scored on the sacrifice fly. H. Mills got a lucky two bagger when Holyman misjudged his fly to deep right, Goyer scoring when the throw to the infield got away from L. Rose. Williams flied to Pinnette. Two runs, three hits, two errors.

Peterborough — Cherrett died, Frank Goyer to H. Mills. Murray struckout. Bob Ross flied to his namesake. No runs, hits or errors.

Seventh Innings.

Belleville— With McElroy pitching for the Petes, Fred Goyer struck out. Ross scratched a hit past the box. Meagher hit to Bob Ross, who threw low to second to force W. Ross and both runners were safe. Weir flied to Cherrett. W. Mills hoisted one back of second on which Cherrett made a fine catch. No runs, one hit, one error.

Peterborough — Swanston was thrown out by Fred Goyer, R. Rose flied to Ross. Pinnette fanned. No runs, hits or errors.

Eighth Innings.

Belleville— Frank Goyer rolled to Ross. Casey walked. H. Mills fouled to Swanston. Williams singled over Cherrett's head. Fred Goyer was hit, filling the bases. Ross died on a tap to Ray Rose. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Peterborough— Kirn, batting for Jackson, was called out on strikes. Holyman was hit. McElroy got a life on Fred Goyer's fumble, Holyman going to second, Cherrett bunted a fly which Fred Goyer nailed and doubled Holyman off second. No runs or hits, one error.

Ninth Innings.

Belleville — Meagher rolled to Murray. Weir flied to Pinnette, the sixth put out for the centre fielder. Murray tossed out W. Mills. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough—Murray bounced a hit off Frank Goyer's glove. Ross hit to H. Mills, who tried for Murray at second, but the runner beat the throw. Swanston forced Murray at third on a roller to Fred Goyer. Ray Rose doubled to centre, the ball bouncing over Ross's head, and Bob Ross and Swanston scored. Pinnette rolled to Frank Goyer and was out at first, Rose being held at second. Lowe batted for Kirn and beat out a single to short, Rose going to third. Lowe stole second, Holyman rolled a grounder to Freddy Goyer, who threw him out at first and the game was over. Two runs, three hits, no errors.

CARPENTIER SMALL FOR A CHALLENGER

ONE OF THE SMALLEST CHALLENGERS IN RECENT YEARS.

NEW YORK, June 27. — (Associated Press).—Georges Carpentier, challenger of Jack Dempsey, will be smaller in several respects than any boxes who has fought for the title in recent years. Tommy Burns, from whom Jack Johnson wrested the crown, was shorter but heavier and more compactly built. Bob Fitzsimmons, on the day he lost the championship to Jim Jeffries at Coney Island, weighed 172 pounds, almost exactly what Carpentier will weigh when he climbs into the ring.

Dempsey will be larger than Carpentier in all save two important measurements. Carpentier's advantages will be in his wonderfully developed lower limbs and his neck. The Frenchman's calf measurement is 16 3-4 inches, as compared with Dempsey's 15¼. Carpentier's neck measures 16 3-4 inches, with Dempsey's one-quarter inch smaller.

Dempsey will outweigh Carpentier by about 20 pounds. He will stand one and one-half inches taller. He will outreach his rival by one inch, 74 inches to 73. In wrist and ankle development they are nearly equal, only a fraction of an inch giving Dempsey the advantage in each case. Dempsey's biceps measure 16¼ inches, as compared with Carpentier's 14½. Carpentier's back muscles, however, are a magnificent part of his development, and from these he will draw most of his hitting power.

In several respects, Jess Willard, the Kansas giant, whom Dempsey knocked out in three rounds, was the largest champion. In several other respects, the more compact Jim Jeffries outstripped Willard easily. Willard, for his size, was not developed as highly, in a physical way, as several others who have held the title.

Willard, at fighting weight, scaled 240 pounds, and towered 6 feet 6 inches in the air. His reach of 83½ inches was far greater than that of other title holders. His chest measurement of 39 inches, normal, was seven inches less than that of "Jeff." Jeffries' wrist, neck, biceps and ankle development was greater than that of Willard, and Willard's calf measurements were only a fraction of an inch larger than Jeffries'.

TWO BIG GAMES TO TAKE PLACE HERE DOMINION DAY

Dominion Day will be baseball day in Peterborough for Cobourg and the Petes will play a Central Ontario League game at Riverside Park on Friday morning at 10 o'clock, while in the afternoon the Hillcrests of Toronto will be here for an exhibition game with the Solomon crew. The two games should provide an attractive holiday bill of fare. The Petes expect to have Hap Harrison back in the game on Dominion Day and to put an end to their losing streak. They have been having all the bad luck that usually accompanies a slump, but are hopeful of getting a better break from now on.

Saturday's game followed the traditions of all the Belleville-Peterborough fixtures as far as a close score was concerned. The Central League records of the two teams is as follows:

1919.

At Belleville—Belleville 5, Peterborough 4 (10 innings).

At Port Hope (replayed game) — Belleville 6, Peterborough 3.

At Peterborough—Peterborough 3, Belleville 2.

At Peterborough — Belleville 5, Peterborough 4 (10 innings).

At Belleville—Belleville 3, Peterborough 1.

1920.

At Belleville—Belleville 5, Peterborough 2.

At Peterborough—Peterborough 6, Belleville 5 (12 innings).

1921.

At Peterborough — Belleville 3, Peterborough 2.

Freddy Goyer pitched all eight of these games, so that his record against the Petes is six wins and two losses. Howard Kirn was on the rubber for the Petes in six of the fixtures, winning one and losing five, while Lornie Rose broke even on the other two. That five out of the eight games were won by one run, and that three went extra innings, are further proofs of the evenness of the series between the two teams.

The Petes are not yet out of the running in the first half of the Central Ontario race, although of course the loss materially lessened their chances. To have a look in, the Solomon gang must win their four remaining games, one with Cobourg here, two with Port Hope, and one in Belleville, while Lindsay and Oshawa would have to break even and Belleville win from Oshawa on Dominion Day—provided Port Hope or Cobourg don't spill the beans for somebody. The League standing is as follows:

	Won	Lost	P.C.
Oshawa	4	1	.800
Belleville	5	2	.714
Lindsay	4	2	.667
Peterborough	3	3	.500
Cobourg	1	4	.200
Port Hope	0	5	.000

The general query, what is the matter with the ball team, seems to be fairly well answered by the fact that in their last four games the Petes have made but seven runs, and have averaged a little better than five hits in a game. An attack as weak as that can't expect to win many ball games, especially when the other fellows refuse to make errors when such misplays would mean runs.

The Petes' weakness with the willow is shown by the fact that the two runs scored in the ninth on Saturday were the first counters last year's champs had put over in nineteen innings. They were blanked the last two innings in Port Hope, did not score in nine frames at Oshawa, and went without a marker for eight innings on Saturday.

Following are the physical measurements of the champion and challenger as well as those of the former holders of the heavyweight title since Corbett won it in 1892:

FEEDING AN EMPRESS OF THE SEA

THE EMPRESS OF FRANCE.

When a great liner like the Empress of France comes to port few realize the immensity of her requirements.

Many have seen the activity which goes on just after a vessel has docked and passengers commence disembarking with their baggage. Subsequently large gangs commence discharging the ship's cargo, which is despatched by rail to various destinations, after which the outgoing freight is properly placed in the various holds.

There is considerable activity going on behind the scenes, so to speak, which is not apparent to the casual observer, viz., the preparation of lists of supplies for the homeward voyage by the heads of various departments on board.

First of all, about 4,500 tons of coal are needed, in addition to large quantities of lubricating oils, etc., together with various miscellaneous supplies which come under the head of Deck and Engine Room Stores.

If the average layman were asked whether this vessel or the Chateau Frontenac at Quebec could house the most people, his reply would naturally be in favor of the hotel, but this would not be correct, as the Empress of France can accommodate relatively speaking, about four times as many people as the Chateau.

Owing to the limited time the ship remains in Quebec port it is necessary to make exact calculations as to the time for delivery of her food supplies, so as not to conflict with either coaling or cargo operations.

It takes a large gang of men a whole day in order to handle and stow these supplies.

The ship is equipped with an up-to-date cold storage plant of enormous capacity, where meats, fish, poultry, fruits and vegetables are kept in perfect condition in the required temperatures. Apart from the refrigerator rooms there are large spaces where the cold storage system is unnecessary, but where forced draft ventilation is arranged.

Use Tons of Food.

The meats are first put on board, and when the ship has a full passenger list she takes about 20,000 lbs. of beef, 9,000 lbs. of mutton, 6,000 lbs. of pork, 1,500 lbs. of veal, 1,000 lbs. of lamb, 4½ tons of ham and bacon, two tons of sausages, liver, etc., in addition to sundry other items too numerous to mention, making a grand total of over 25 tons.

The above meats, as well as all other supplies, are specially selected and are the choicest procurable in Canada.

Next comes the fish, as follows: 2,000 lbs. fresh cod, 1,500 lbs. fresh haddock, 200 lbs. dore, 400 lbs. of finnan haddie, 500 lbs. flounders, 1,000 lbs. halibut, 500 lbs. herring, 400 lbs. mackerel, 600 lbs. salmon, 400 lbs. lake trout, 200 lbs. live lobsters, 300 lbs. smelts, 250 lbs. weak fish, 300 lbs. white fish; besides the above a number of other kinds are secured when in season, such as black and striped bass, blue fish, brook trout, and shad; in fact, approximately 10,000 lbs. of fish are required at Quebec, comprising over twenty varieties.

Poultry follows, and generally consists of over 1,000 lbs. milk-fed chickens, 500 lbs. broilers, 1,500 lbs. capons, 1,500 lbs. fowl, 1,000 lbs. geese, 1,000 lbs. turkey, as well as smaller quantities of ducklings, goslings and different kinds of game.

Under the head of dairy produce, 3,000 lbs. of butter are required, 1,000 lbs. of cheese and over 30,000 eggs.

GEORGE ST. S.S. FLOWER SUNDAY A SUCCESS

MANY COMPLIMENTS ON DECORATIONS AND SERVICE.

On Sunday, June 26th George street Sunday School held their annual flower service, which was as usual a great success. The flowers were shown to good advantage on four large pillars, which were covered with fowers and topped by grace ful baskets of flowers and ferns, and connected with loops of flowers, with smaller baskets suspended from the loops. The pulpit was also banked with many of the large and beautiful baskets contributed by the Bible Classes.

The Classes met in the Sunday School at 10.30 a.m. and the primary tots led them up into the Church, where the large Sunday School Orchestra, directed by Mr. W. H. Cunningham, played music which was much enjoyed then and dur- the service. The school sang sev- era choruses under the leadersh p of Choirmaster Renwick, and gave evidence of their excellent training.

Mrs. F. E. Ellis gave a delightful solo, and the Pastor, Rev. W. Harold Young, gave an interesting and appropriate talk on flowers which was appreciated by both the school and congregation, altho meant espec ially for the former.

Many compliments on both the service and decorations were given to those responsible for them.

WANT NEW BRIDGE AT PIGEON CREEK

LOCAL MUNICIPALITIES JOIN FORCES IN A FRESH ATTEMPT TO MOVE THE GOVERNMENT.

Renewed efforts will be made by the combined municipal forces of Peterborough and Victoria Counties and the city of Peterborough in an appeal to the Dominion Government to rebuild the Pigeon Creek Bridge.

Deputations from these municipalities met during the session of the County Council, visited the locality and decided to again endeavour to impress the Government with the need for a crossing over Pigeon Creek.

A committee, composed of City Clrek Armstrong, J. R. McNeilie, of Victoria County, and E. A. Peck, was appointed to prepare data to be presented to the Government by an influential deputation which will go to Ottawa as soon as the information is obtained and the case for a new bridge completed.

Ald. Whitehouse, Reeve Holland of Ennismore, and Reeve Carew, representing Victoria, were authorised to dispose of the old bridge, which has broken up, and is scattered about the nearby waters.

BOTH THE CLAIMS WERE DISMISSED

CASE OF PATTERSON VS. BURNHAM DISPOSED OF.

Saturday morning Judge Huycke rendered judgment in the case of Patterson vs. Burnham that occupied the county court on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of last week.

In this case William Patterson, a farmer formerly residing in Douro, alleged that on April 1, 1920, he agreed with Mark S. Burnham to work the defendant's farm on shares, that he did work the farm but received no accounting of the money which the produce brought. He claimed a share of the assets under this partnership and costs. Mr. Burnham asked by way of counter-claim $500 for non-performance and negligent performance of duties.

Judge Huycke found that both plaintiff and defendant had received their proper shares of farm returns and therefore dismissed plaintiff's claim. The trial judge also dismissed the counter-claim, allowing no costs either of claim or counter-claim to either party.

G. N. Gordon appeared for the laintiff in this action and F. D. Kerr represented defendant.

WEDDING BELLS

PIMMETT—STEELE

On the evening of June 22nd, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Steele Villiers, was the scene of one of the prettiest weddings of the season, when their daughter, Mabel Elizabeth, was united in marriage to Mr. Melville H. Pimmett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Pimmett, Keene. On the lawn, under an arch of evergreens, ferns, and roses, the nuptial vows were taken in the presence of a gath ering of friends and relatives Rev. McEachern of Keene officiating.

The bride, beautifully attired in a gown of white crepe de chine and satin, trimmed with seed pearls with veil of tulle banded with orange blossoms, wearing the groom's gift, a handsome pendant set with pearls and amethysts, and carrying a show er bouquet of Ophelia roses, entered the arch to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding march, and was giv en away by her father. The little flower-girl, Florence Steele, niece of the bride, wearing a dainty dress of white silk trimmed with shadow lace and pink ribbon, carried a basket of sweet peas and roses, in which the ring was concealed. The groom's gift to the flower-girl and to the bride's sister, Ethyl Steele, who furnished the wedding music was a beautiful string of pearls.

After the ceremony a dainty luncheon was served in the dining room which was prettily decorated with evergreens, and pink and white streamers.

Following the luncheon a very pleasant hour passed, after which the happy couple departed amid showers of confetti and good wishes for a Honeymoon trip to Toronto and Niagara, the bride travelling in a navy serge suit with hat to match. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Pimmitt will reside in Otonabee.

ENID BENNET LEAVES MOVIES

Enid Bennett, Rockett star, and her husband, Mr. Fred Niblo, now directing Douglas Fairbanks, have planned a trip abroad that will take them into some of the out-of-the-way places of the earth.

Mr. Niblo is a globe-trotter by nature and was famous as a traveller-lecturer before he won greater fame as a director of motion pictures, while his wife loves travel more than anything save acting in pictures.

Miss Bennett's last picture, "Keeping Up With Lizzie," has just been released through the Hodkinson organization and she will not again appear on the screen until after the proposed globe trot when the pictures made on the trip will be released.

The Niblo-Bennett expedition will first explore the Fly River on the Island of Java, the upper waters of which have never yet been explored. They will then go to Thibet and the Gobi desert and have a try at locating the ancient City of the Bridge, the capital of the Fifth Root Race, or the first Aryan race, and said to have been founded nearly 75 000 years ago. The expect to return home by caravan via Bagdad Whether Miss Bennett will return and Damascus, her globe trot has not yet been de- to the screen as a Rockett star after termined.

WHAT IS PETERBORO'S GREATEST NEED?

V. EASTWOOD: In view of the ordinarily imperceptible or unexpressed demand for technical education, or, in more homely words, industrial day schools where our boys and girls may have opportunity to choose and prepare for their life work, it is urgently necessary that our educational authorities should very promptly take actionso that we may benefit from the grants made by our Federal and Provincial Governments.

The youth with high technical training has splendid possibilities of success.

In Canada he starts out with an enviable equipment where opportunity for development is found on every hand. Many interesting facts could be cited on the subject.

Technical schools provide a most powerful weapon in the industrial warfare in which Canada will expect to hold her own at all times.

The sooner this is a recognized course in the daily toilion of our schools the better it will be for us. This work will involve cost, but it will be a very small part of our reward.

"Get in early and avoid the rush." This is Tax Collector W. J. Green's advice to the hundreds of tax-payers who have to make their first payment on or before Saturday, July 2nd. The Tax Collector has several assistants and is at the office at 8 a.m. every morning, and in order to be dealt with expeditiously and confusion avoided, as many ratepayers as possible are urged to make early payments—early in the morning and early in the week.

Saturday Mr. Green expects the usual last minute rush on the office and those who have ever stood in the long line at the eleventh hour will not want to have this experience again.

A great many have paid their taxes already and there was a steady stream of bills, cheques and silver pouring into the tax collector's safe to-day, and receipts going the other way.

In view of the unemployment and the general tightness of money it is hardly expected that taxes will be paid with such celerity as in other years. The next instalment falls due on September 1st.

MEN ACCEPTED GOV'T TERMS

MINERS UNDERSTOOD TO HAVE ABANDONED DEMAND FOR NATIONALIZATION OF COAL INDUSTRY.

HODGENS PROMISED MEN WOULD RETURN TO PITS

LONDON, June 28. — (Canadian Press). — In the settlement of the British coal strike, the miners accepted the Government's terms, it was announced here to-day. Work in the coal pits, idle almost three months, will be resumed immediately. It was stated unofficially that the miners abandoned their demand for nationalization of the mining industry. That demand was the principal obstacle in the way of settlement at the previous conference. Secretary Frank Hodgens, of the Miners' Union, promised that the men will accept the settlement reached in conference here.

REPUBLICANS AGREE TO COMPROMISE DRAFT OF KNOX RESOLUTION

SAYS VETERANS CAN STOP WARS

Men Who Fight Must Know What They are Fighting For.

OTTAWA, June 28.— That the formation of the British Empire Service League as a result of the all-Empire conference of great war veterans in Capt Town, South Africa, would prove one of the greatest moral forces the world ever knew, was the opinion expressed here yesterday by R. B. Maxwell, President of the Great War Veterans' Association, and one of the Canadian delegates to the convention.

Can Prevent

"The British Empire Service League will work for the good of the World," Mr. Maxwell said, "and against all disturbing influences." Mr. Maxwell pointed out that it would be impossible to start a war unless the league approved. "The men who are going to do the fighting will want to know what they are going to fight about," he emphasized.

RUMORED LINDSAY YOUNG MAN AND MONEY ARE MISSING

Lindsay Post: "A story was heard on the street this morning to the effect that a young son of a family living across the river had mysteriously disappeared from his place of employment. A large amount of money is said to have disappeared simultaneously. Gossips claim that the youth went West, where he has been heard from. Cupid is also reported to have had a finger in the affair, the young man being engaged to be married."

CRAIG ACCEPTS INVITATION OF LLOYD GEORGE

ULSTER WILL SEND REPRESENTATIVES TO IRISH CONFERENCE IN LONDON, CABINET DECIDES.

WAS MINORITY'S PLAN WEEK AGO, BELIEVED

BELFAST, June 28.— (Canadian Press.) — Sir James Craig, Ulster Premier, announced to-day that the Ulster Cabinet had accepted the invitation of Mr. Lloyd George for the proposed conference between representaives of Northern and Southern Ireland and the British Prime Miniser.

LONDON, June 28.— (Canadian Press.)—The Parliamentary correspondent of the London Times, discussing Prime Miniser Lloyd George's invitation to Sir James Craig and Eamonn De Valera, declares that in judging the situation, it is important to bear in mind that although the letter was signed by Mr. Lloyd Georfge, it represents the policyof the Cabinet.

"A very strong minority of the Cabinet, including, it is believed, Austin Chamberlain, Winston Churchill and the Lord Chancellor, favored a similar policy a week ago." The correspondent continues: "Their views then were overborne by the Prime Minister and the Lord Chancellor's speech in the House of Lords last Tuesday represented the standpoint the Prime Minister and his more militant colleagues had adopted.

Unofficial Irish Envoy.

LONDON, June 28.— (Canadian Press.)—Mrs. F. S. Sheehy Skeffington, widow of an Irish Nationalist leader who was executed following the Easter Monday riots in 1916, has played a prominent part in bringing about recent developments relative to peace in Ireland, it is said in statements printed in the Graphic and Sketch. Mrs. Skeffington is now in London and two newspapers say she is an unofficial ambassador of Eamonn De Valera and has acted as an intermediary between him and Prime Minister Lloyd George.

ADDITIONS TO PORT HOPE'S PROGRAMME

LIST OF ANNOUNCEMENTS IS THE BEST ON RECORD — HUGE CROWD EXPECTED.

In addition to the big programme already announced in these columns for the celebration at Port Hope on 1st July, the committees have been fortunate in securing another very sensational act. This act is full of pep, speed and good comedy. Three beautiful girls using a hefty looking aeroplane mounted on a tower with a girl strapped to a whirling propeller which revolves sixty revolutions per minute, using aerial torpedoes. From each wing of the plane, while revolving at terrific speed the torpedoes are shot away while the girl does a drop in mid-air and is caught by a strap by one foot. On the other wing the comedy man has the people roaring with laughter while doing daring work on the traps. The act also consists of fast ground tumbling, bicycle juggling, and even juggling a rubber-tired waggon. The horse race will be a big feature. 2d-28-30-1w

THINK QUEBEC CIVIC STRIKE MOST BROKEN

SEVERAL LEADERS UNDER DETENTION AND NUMBER OF POLICE READY TO RETURN AT CITY'S TERMS.

VOLUNTEERS GUARD CITY ALONG WITH MILITARY

QUEBEC, June 28. — (Canadian Press).—With several leaders of the Union of Civic Firemen and Policemen under detention and with a number of constables ready to return to duty on the terms offered by the City Council, it was considered in municipal circles here this morning that the back of the strike which began Saturday night had been broken. There were enough volunteers on duty at the police and fire stations, it was announced, to take care of any ordinary cases, while the Twenty-Second Regiment is being held in readiness to check disorders.

ENRICHING RAIN GREATLY NEEDED

WILL HELP CROPS IN GENERAL AND IMPROVE PASTURAGE.

Last night's and to-day's warm and continuous showers arrived just in the nick of time, farmers stated to-day. The protracted dry spell had a devastating effect on the crops, they say, but generally are confident of the rain resuscitating the parched grains, fruit and vegetables.

The clover was severely hit, and short and sparce as it was, it will be even a poorer crop as a result of the drought. The clover is mature and ready to cut, what there is of it, they say, but the timothy will not be ready for the reaper till next week. The dry weather headed up the grains, and unless there is considerable rain the straw will be extremely short, it is stated.

Farmers with apple trees say that the effect of the drought was to wither up the crop and the apples dropped from the trees in prodigious quantities. Fruit growers declare that the strawberry fields were dried up by the strong sun, and the raspberry bushes, which are coming along, heavily laden with berries, were threatened with destruction, but will be saved by the propitious downpour.

Altogether Jupiter Pluvius has saved the day for farmers, fruit and vegetable growers, and there is still hope that no great material damage will have been done the crops.

THE STRAWBERRY SEASON NEAR END

PRICES RISING IN CONSEQUENCE AND NATIVE FRUIT TOUCHES 35 CENTS.

The fruit dealers have all received word from the wholesale fruit men, that no shipments of strawberries will be made after this week, and the local growers say that their beries are practically done.

Toronto wholesalers are quoting berries as high as 19c and so most of the stuff from the fruit belt is bringing 25 and 30c. Native berries are selling as high as 35c, for the growers say they are making their last picking.

Advices that the cherries are at their best now is contained in the wholesalers' missives to the retail fruit men. Cherries they say, are scarce this year, and urge on the householders the necessity for buying early.

In the stores to-day the sour red variety were going at $1 and $1.25 a 6 quart basket, while the black sweets were selling at $2 and $2.50, or by the pound 30 or 40c.

Watermelons have receded a trifle and are now selling at $1.50 to $1.75. Even at that the railways have had no trouble in handling the shipments into Peterboro.

Sugar pears from California are a new entrant into the shops. The tiny pears are selling at 30c a dozen. Oranges and lemons are very firm. The tomato market is stiffening, a dealer said to-day, and it seems likely tomatoes will go a little higher.

There is much native stuff coming on the market. New potatoes are expected in this week. Cauliflowers and cabbake have been in for some time. New beets and new carrots and cabbage have been in for some on sale in abundance in a day or two. Green peas are noticeable in every shop at 10c and 15c a qt.

Red and green currants are ripe and ripening and gooseberries should be plentiful on Saturday's market.

ATTEMPT TO BLOCK BIG FIGHT SATURDAY

DISMISS PLEA OF ROY HOTRUM

APPEAL FOR STATED CASE OR NEW TRIAL REFUSED---ARGUMENT STILL TO BE HEARD FOR M'FADDEN.

UNDER DEATH SENTENCE FOR MURDER OF SABINE

TORONTO, June 28. Canadian Press. The Divisional Court to-day dismissed the appeal for a stated case or new trial for Roy Hotrum, who is under a sentence of death, with William McFadden, for the murder of Leonard Sabine, druggist, on March 5 last.

Argument by counsel for William McFadden, who is now making a similar appeal, is still to be heard.

NEWS OF THE OIL COMPANY

The solicitors for The Central Ontario Oil Company have been notified by the Government that the above name would likely be approved of, and we expect the charter along any day now. In the meantime circumstances are occurring that knocks Mr. F. H. Dobin's story into the shade from the point of view of actually finding the oil if you go deep enough. We hear many stories of oil seeping into wells spoiling the water, of oil being seen on pools of water, of gas being encountered which would burn for hours, but last week, in the vicinity of the Central Ontario field, a well being drilled for water was suddenly heard performing stunts, when it began to roar or rumble somewhat resembling the poise of a train as gas rushed out. Someone set this gas on fire, and from Thursday till Saturday it kept burnig, and so far as we know, is still burning. This should remove all doubt as to the oil being there, deeper down, of course. This is land that Mr. E. J. Cowain figures out there is oil upon from his system of working. If ever Peterborough people who subscribe get a run for their money, this company is going to give it to them now.

FOREIGN POLICY IDEAS OUTLINED BY MR. MEIGHEN

ADVICE OF DOMINION, HE SAID, SHOULD BE ACCEPTED IN U. S.---CANADIAN MATTERS AND SHOULD ALWAYS BE CONSULTED.

ENTER INTO NO TREATIES WITHOUT OUR APPROVAL

(By Grattan O'Leary—Staff Correspondent of the Canadian Press).

LONDON, June 28.—A declaration of Dominion rights by Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, Premier of Canada, setting out what, in his judgment, should constitute an adequate voice for the Dominions in the foreign affairs of the Empire, was debated at length by the conference of Prime Ministers.

Premier Meighen, whose address was by way of being a review of Lord Curzon's outline of the world policy of the British Foreign Office, laid down four cardinal principles which, he declared, were essential to the heightened status of the Dominions. Although the speech and the discussion which ensued have not yet been made public, and may for the time being be regarded as confidential, it is understood his four points were as follows:

First — That on all questions of foreign policy which more directly concern the British Government, such as matters arising in connection with Palestine, Mesopotamia and the Middle East, the Governments of the Dominions should be kept thoroughly and constantly informed.

Second—That upon all questions of foreign policy affecting the Empire as a whole the Dominion Governments must be consulted.

Third — That the British Government should enter into no treaties or special alliances without consultation with and the advice of the Dominions, and that all such treaties, even when entered into, be subject to the approval of the Dominion Parliaments.

Fourth—That upon all questions arising as between the United States and Canada the advice of the Dominion Government must be accepted as final.

FISHY FLAVOR TO THIS FISH STORY.

The fishing at Pigeon Lake has been unusually good this year, reports from the lake say. The largest fish caught to date was captured on June 21 by R. F. Dennis, manager of the Kawartha Inn. The lunge weighed 24 pounds, and was measured before several witnesses in Bobcaygeon and found to be 49 inches long.

VILLAGES ESCAPE HIGHWAYS TAX; COUNTY COUNCIL FIXES RATE

TOWNSHIPS IN GOOD ROADS GROUP BEAR RATE OF 11.34 MILLS, OTHERS ESCAPE THREE MILLS FOR ROAD WORK.

The county tax rate as fixed by the County Council at their concluding session was 11.34 mills. This levy applies to the eight southern townshis in the good roads area. The rate for the rest of the county this year will be 8.34 mills, the difference of three mills representing the tax for county road work.

The items are as follows:

General rate	6 mills
House of Refuge	.7 mills
Highways	3 mills
Schools	.14 mills
Bridge work	1.5 mills
Total	11.34 mills

The expenditures included in the general rate amount to $66,210.78 against which there are estimated resources of $10,200.00, leaving the amount to be raised by general levy $56,010.78. This covers the cost of administration of justice, liquidation of debentures, mothers' allowances and other items.

The House of Refuge expenditures are estimated at $7,738.30, with receipts of approximately $1,204.70, leaving $6,533.60 to be raised by taxation.

The Highways Levy.

The amount required for county roads is $26,661.50. This sum must be provided by the townships of Otonabee, North Monaghan, Asphodel, Belmont, Ennismore, Smith, Dummer and Douro.

According to the opinion of Mr. E. A. Peck, county solicitor, the villages of Lakefield, Norwood and Havelock, escape the highways tax of three mills. This is Mr. Peck's interpretation of the Act. It coincides with the understanding of the Act which some of its local opponents held during the years when Peterborough county held aloof from the Provincial Highways Act.

The tax for schools is to raise an amount equivalent to the government grant for accommodation and equipment. The county's share is $1,154.39. And the sum required for current bridge building is $14,002 which will be provided by 1 1-2 mills. The total sum to be raised by the county is $104,362.27.

LONDON, June 28. Canadian Press —The British coal strike, which has been in progress since April 1st, has been settled, it was officially announced this afternoon.

A provisional agreement was reached by the miners and owners in conference with the government's representatives last evening, under which the men will return to the pits next week.

LANTERN IGNITES GASOLINE; MAN IS SERIOUSLY BURNED

MOTOR ACCIDENT ALSO OCCURS NEAR HASTINGS.

HASTINGS, June 28.—A serious accident occurred last night at the home of John Fleming, in which the unfortunate man suffered terribly from burns. It appears that Mr. Fleming was aroused from his sleep about midnight by motorists, who wanted gasoline. He lit his lantern, and proceeded to the garage to supply their needs, when some of the gasoline escaped, and running into the lantern became ignited, and ran up his arms, causing terrible burns on his hands and arms, and also burning his coat.

Mr. Fleming, with presence of mind, threw himself upon the ground and rolled around repeatedly, smothering the flames. A doctor was hastily summoned, and did his utmost to relieve the pain, but Mr. Fleming will be laid up for some time in consequence.

Motor Accident.

A motor accident occurred yesterday on the Norwood Road, just outside of the town, when a party from Norwood were thrown into the ditch. The chauffeur, who had but recently purchased the car, in attempting to climb a hill, lost control of the machine, and backed down the embankment. None of the party were seriously injured; Mrs. Brimmacombe of Norwood was terribly cut about the face and head.

One of the party rushed for medical aid, and her wounds were dressed. Later she was taken to the hospital for treatment. Her many friends are hoping that she may soon recover from the shock.

Personals.

Mr. Adams, of Norwood, is holidaying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Laing, of Norwood, spent Sunday with their son, Mr Earl Laing.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Watson and family spent Sunday with Dr. J. H. and Mrs. Hess.

Mr. Walter Burkholder is in Omemee relieving at the G. T. R. Station.

QUEBEC, June 28. Canadian Press. Georges Patry, a grocer of this city, his daughter, Georgette, and his son, Henri, were drowned in the Jacques River at Tewkesbuy, about 25 miles north of the city, yesterday afternoon. While the girl was standing on the bank of the river she sliped and fell into the water. The father endeavored to reach out nad rescue her, and was held by his young son, but he also slipped and dragged the boy in with him. None of the bodies has as yet been recovered.

BEER AND WINES ARE NOT MEDICINE

WASHINGTON, June 28. — Canadian Press. — The House last night by a vote of 250 to 93 voted that beer and light wines shall not be used as medicine in the United States. The bill has not yet parsed the Senate but is expected to be considered by that body in the near future.

DES MOINES, Ia., June 28. — Canadian Press. A demand of $5,000 in gold on pain of death by poison gas as they sleep, has bene sent to Robert and Stanhope Fleming, two prominent local capitalists. The demand was sent by mail on June 17, and signed by name "RHAD."

NEWFOUNDLAND RAILWAYS MAY ALL TIE UP.

Owners Say System Cannot Be Operated Without Government Aid. May Be Negotiations.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., June 28. — Unless negotiations between the Newfoundland Government and the Reid-Newfoundland Railway officials result in an agreement, operation of the system will cease at midnight next Thursday. The system, comprising all the railroad lines in the colony, has a trackage of nearly one thousand miles.

During the war the railroad was taken over by the Government. Recently it was returned to its owners, who asserted that expenses so greatly exceeded income that it would be impossible to continue operation without Government aid. As this was not forthcoming, the decision to cease operation this week was announced.

The Government has proposed to the railway officials the appointment of a commission to study the whole problem, and is negotiating with them in the hope of bringing about temporary operation by the company until the commission is able to make its report. Under the plan the commission would be headed by Sir George Bury, who arrived here from England on Friday last.

FORD INCREASING OUTPUT.

Company to Turn Out 4,000 Cars a Day in July.

DETROIT, Mich., June 28.—Definite answer to the rumor that the Ford Motor Company would curtail production July 1 was made to-day in the official announcement that 4,000 cars a day have been scheduled for July.

The production of cars for June, it is predicted by Ford officials, will break all records of the Ford company for any one month in its history. At the present rate, approximately 105,000 cars will be built this month at the Detroit plant alone. More than 7,000 cars are scheduled at the Canadian plant in Windsor, and at other foreign Ford factories 4,000 are to be built, making a grand total of 116,000 cars for June.

The previous high mark was for May, when 111,308 cars were built. Previous to May the record number was built in October, 1920, when 90,960 were turned out.

Ford officials say plans are being made for the manufacture of steam locomotives for the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Railroad, owned by Henry Ford. A large railway repair shop has been established at the River Rouge blast furnaces of the Ford company, where locomotives are to be repaired.

A special locomotive is being rebuilt according to Mr. Ford's ideas, and it is said a new type of gasoline or crude oil locomotive, driven by a Diesel engine, is included in the experimental plans.

Work is also going forward on the construction of gasoline-driven street cars similar to one built last year by Henry Ford, which his engineers assert proved successful in recent tryouts.

These gasoline-driven coaches are to be used in commuter service between Detroit, Wyandotte and other suburban towns.

DROUGHT CUTS N. B. HAY CROP IN HALF.

FREDERICTON, N.B., June 28. —(Canadian Press).—The drought, which has caused serious conditions in many farming sections of New Brunswick, was broken in Fredericton and vicinity by an electrical storm accompanied by considerable rainfall. The storm was general in the central portion of the Province. The prolonged dry weather has set the upland hay back to such an extent that it will be little more than half a crop. A reduction in the number of cattle carried on many farms already has been undertaken on account of the failure of the hay crop.

LICENSE BOARD AND QUEBEC IN ROW OVER RUM

ONTARIO COMMISSION CLAIMS LIQUOR SEIZED BY QUEBEC AT HULL IS ITS PROPERTY —QUEBEC DENIES THIS.

MONTREAL, June 28. — Canadian Press. — The Ontario Board of License Commisioners, yesterday communicated with the Quebec Liquor Commission, in an endeavor to get the latter not to dispose of forty-five thousand dollars' worth of liquor, which was seized recently in Hull. The liquor is the property of the Ontario Board, it contends.

The Quebec Commission repleis that when it was transferred to Quebec and was confiscated Ontario lost its right to it.

PUBLIC FAREWELL TO FATHER PHELAN

VARIOUS ORGANIZATIONS CO-OPERATING FOR PARTING TRIBUTE,

That the public farewell to Rev. C. J. Phelan, who leaves as Rector of St. Peter's Cathedral on July 17 to have charge of the parish of Campbellford shall take the form of a dinner, was decided at a meeting of the Reception Committee of the Council with representatives of different organizations to which Rev. Phelan has lent his whole-spirited support, at City Hall last night.

Ald. Joseph Crowe presided. Ald. J. Turner, Ald. H. Gainey, and Mayor McIntyre were present, with representatives of other bodies, as follows: E. F. Mason and E. J. H. Vanston, Peterborough Health Association: R. Denne, president Peterborough Exhibition Board; J. J. Duffus, president Chamber of Commerce; H. R. H. Kenner, vice-president Chamber of Commerce; H. A. Cranfield, vice-president Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association, and Frank Convery, P. A. A. A.

The result of a brief discussion as the most suitable form of farewell settled on a public dinner. Ald. Turner, who proposed a farewell of some kind to Rev. Phelan in Council spoke of a public dinner or public meeting last night, and the choice settled on a public dinner to be held probably on Friday, the 15th, the day prior to Rev. Phelan's leaving, but not definitely decided on as yet.

Ald. Turner, Mr. Denne, Mr. Mason and others last night referred in a complimentary way to all of Rev. Phelan's activities. Outside of his ecclesiastical duties, he had been a moving spirit in sports, an active and enthusiastic worker for a more healthy Peterborough, and an indomitable leader or helper in any charitable purpose. In his removal from Peterborough, they said this city suffered a distinct loss.

Committees as follows were appointed last night: Dinner (programme, etc.), J. J. Duffus, Frank Convery, E. F. Mason, Ald. J. Turner. Printing—E. J. H. Vanston, R. Denne, H. A. Cranfield. Special Committee—H. R. H. Kenner, Mayor McIntyre, Ald. Gainey and R. H. Turner.

Voice of the People

To the Citizens of Peterboro:

I am very desirous that Peterboro should take advantage of the offer to sell to the city the 33 acres of hill land known as Armour's Hill. It can be made into a desirable park, and if planted thickly with native trees, it can be turned into a forest. Lay out winding roads, grade the roads and protect, and ten years wil cover that now bare hill with a splendid growth, and the city will ever after be thankful that they did not let the opportunity pass by to get this fine piece of land right at our doors.

I will be one of 40 to put up $100. Of the $4,000, the purchase will take $3,000, and $1,000 may be used to grade roads and plant trees.

Make Mr. Henry Rush custodian of the money and agent to buy the land, then put the park under the control of a Park Commissioner, who will arange for management, etc.

Come on now, fellow citizens. Let us do promptly what will keep our names alive after we are gone.

(Signed). D. W. DUMBLE

FARMERS CO-OPERATE IN WOOLLEN INDUSTRY

BELLEVILLE, June 28. — For some time past members of the various U.F.O. Club in North Hastings have been advocating the co-operative manufacture of wool. With this end in view a number of farmers gathered at Bancroft recently and organized a company to be known as "The Hastings County Co-Operative Wool Co., Ltd.' The company is capitalized at $10,000, divided into 1,000 shares at $10 each, with a limit of ten shares to each individual.

The company have purchased the old saw mill site and water power at L'Amable and will be all ready to operate as soon as the machinery is installed in the building already on the ground.

IS PARALIZED, BARKS AS DOG AFTER ACTION

YOUTH RUBBED DOG'S NOZZLE AGAINST SACRED STATUE, IMMEDIATELY BECAME PARALIZED — DOCTORS VERIFY STORY.

PARIS, June 28. — (Canadian Press).—A remarkable story of how a sacrilegious Italian was punished for his sins, an account which, it is said, has been verified by both French and Italian doctors and priests, has just reached Paris from the frontier. While walking near Grespiana, Italy, with a friend and his dog recently, a youth, 19 years old, passed a statute of the Virgin in a roadside shrine. His friend saluted respectfully, but the youth took his dog by the collar and rubbed the animal's nozzle against the statue.

Instantly he became paralyzed in both extremities. The youth was taken to his home and physicians were called in. After working over him for three days they succeeded in restoring his movements, but then a new phenomenon appeared, and the boy began to bark like a dog day and night.

Whether this is a peculiar type of auto-suggestion or a divine punishment, as is asserted by priests, is not known, but physicians have been unable to cure the youth, and have recommended he be taken to a hospital for the insane for treatment. The villagers are more reverent now than before when passing the shrine, but they scrupulously avoid passing the victim's cottage without crossing themselves devoutly.

A Car as Fine As Its Wonderful Motor

Everywhere you hear the Chalmers motor spoken of with real enthusiasm by its owners.

It is due the Chalmers motor that it should be praised. For it is truly a wonderful car.

Its Great Performance

It is wonderful in the efficiency it gets from to-day's poor gasoline. In the added miles it returns. In the way it performs and stands up.

These things are largely due to preheating the fuel by the hot-spot before it enters the cylinders.

As a direct result of this fine performance, upkeep and replacement costs on the Chalmers are surprisingly low.

Motor Not Only Feature

But Chalmers excellence is far from beginning and ending with its motor. It is a car that is finely built in every detail.

It affords consummate riding comfort, drives with a minimum of effort, and is beautiful in design and finish. We invite you to look into Chalmers records and Chalmers standing without delay.

A DEFEAT FOR HEARST.

Besides the natural admiration they have for the "grand old man" of Labour as a fighter, and because of his long record in the office, most Canadians were glad to hear that Sam Gompers had once more been re-elected as president of the American Federation of Labour, because they realized that his victory was a defeat for W. R. Hearst and all that that arch-hater of the British Empire stands for. The Lewis campaign to oust Gompers from the head of the Federation was supported by Hearst, who threw all his influence behind Gomers' opponent. The decisive majority piled up against Lewis was an intimation to the mischief making Hearts that organized labour in the United States is not to be deceived or bullied either by him. The lesson should do him some good by reason of the revelation it affords of the opinion of the members of the Federation in regard to Hearst and his schemes.

THE QUEBEC STRIKE.

The folly of allowing public servants to organize into unions is effectively illustrated by the situation in the city of Quebec, where the members of the police and fire departments have gone on strike for higher wages, deserted their posts and left their fellow citizens without protection. A non-strike clause should form part of every contract between a municipality and its employees, and a crisis such as has arisen in Quebec should be an impossibility. Firemen and policemen should be well paid and given comfortable working conditions and a fair opportunity to ventilate any grievances that they may have, but to allow the safety of a city to be menaced by a wholesale desertion on the part of men who have been sworn in to protect that safety is to countenance what is nothing more or less than mutiny. Quebec would be well advised to replace her faithless firemen and police with others who would have a deeper sense of loyalty and a keener appreciation of their duty.

HELP THE BLIND TO READ.

If you were blind, and unable to read—imagine the prospect!

Only a few years ago the blind of Canada had to ask kind-hearted relatives and friends to read to them. At other times they sat in their darkness, brooding over their helplessness.

To-day the blind can read! There are books with raised letters to make this possible. From reading these books they obtain pleasure that is simply immeasurable.

The Library and Publishing Department of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind has collected a library of about 9,000 volumes, all printed in the Braille embossed type, which the blind people have been taught to read with their fingers. From this library blind Canadians from all parts of Canada and Newfoundland get books. They await the arrival of these volumes with an eagerness that would be an inspiration to you to behold.

To date this invaluable library has cost $8,000 per year. The books are expensive to purchase in the first place and there is no income from the subscribers.

Contribute liberally to the Fund being raised by the Examiner and help the Institute to buy new books for the blind.

THE WATER SUPPLY.

The absolute necessity of boiling water from the city's main, if it is to be used for drinking purposes, cannot be too strongly emphasized. Already at this comparatively early date twelve pounds of chlorine per million gallons of water are being used in an effort to protect the citizens, and this quantity is not large enough to purify the water sufficiently to render it safe in an unboiled condition. The pollution of the civic water supply is shown by the official tests to be worse now than ever before and in the face of that warning the citizens cannot afford to take chances. Boiling the water is a perfect protection and this simple precaution should be generally adopted—and must be unless the community is prepared as an alternative to accept an epidemic. The prospects are that the pollution of the civic water will grow worse during the next few weeks, but even in its present condition the water is absolutely unfit to drink unless it is boiled. And it is equally dangerous to depend upon well water unless the latter has been tested, for many of the wells are in bad condition. The city waterworks department has offered to test free of charge any samples of well water that may be submitted, and citizens who have decided to depend upon wells rather than on the civic system for thier supply of drinking water should avail themselves of this opportunity of making sure that the water they propose to use is in a pure condition.

FAYOLLE EARNS OUR FULLEST THANKS.

Montreal is douly honoured to-day in the presence within her gates of the distinguished visitors who come with the sanction of the Government of France and bearing a message of thanks from our great Ally for the aid rendered by Canada during the World War.

The two-fold nature of this honour lies in the fact that not only has France, with that native courtesy that sits so well upon her, thought fit to send a message of cordial thanks for services rendered freely and with a willing heart, but she has also chosen men of marked distinction and brilliant achievements to be her messengers.

General Fayolle, who heads the mission, is a Marshal of France, and the records of military accomplishment know no prouder title than this. Associated with Marshal Fayolle is Admiral Charleir, who holds an important naval command in the Mediterranean. The blessing of the Church on the work of the Mission is invoked by the presence of the Bishop of Dijon, who in addition has an especial claim on our interest and sympathies by the fact that he was Archdeacon of Rheims during the days of war which were days of suffering and cruel devastation. To catalogue the achievements and the honours of all the members would be to record the names and life history of men who stand in the premier place in the civil, military, social, and industrial life of the Republic.

Apart from the delivery of its message of thanks the Mission has another task to perform. It comes to inaugurate and to set the official seal of approval on the train that will travel from coast to coast, bearing and displaying samples of the riches of France in natural resources and in manufactured products. Such an object cannot fail to give Canadians a fuller appreciation of French industry which has become a household word in the great market centres of the world and at the same time, by stimulating trade between the two countries, to cement the foundations of amity and good feeling.

Marshal Foch, the Generalissimo of the Allied Armies, in a famous oration, eulogised the accomplishments of General Fayolle during the Great War. In that address he said: "When in March, 1918, the Germans in an unexpected effort sought to make a breach between the French and British Armies, in that bloody week when the rupture of the two forces seemed imminent in that the two Armies which were keeping the gate were for a moment sundered, Marshal Fayolle closed the door once more and thrust back the bolt."

For this victory alone we delight to honour our brave and distinguished guest. If by this coming he can once more throw a strong bolt of friendship across the gap which hidden enemies of the two countries are unceasingly seeking to pry open, he will have performed another inestimable service and have deserved a double meed of our thanks.—Montreal Star.

UNDER THE ARMY FLAG.

A well-known professor of theology was consulted by a gentleman who had dreamed he had died, and because he had not made his peace with God was sent to hell. Convinced of his need of a saviour, he thought the professor would surely be able to help him. But to his dismay the learned man, who denied the divinity of Christ, could not do so. At last he said: "My dear sir, I am sorry I cannot assist you, but not far from here lives Commissioner Oliphant of the Salvation Army. He can certainly help you, as this is his speciality." The gentleman came to the "soul specialist," who prayed with him and led him to Christ. Best of all, the professor later on also became convinced of the living Christ, found salvation, and wrote a pamphlet describing his experience.

QUEER CASE OF MARIE CELESTE.

What Became of Crew of Derelict—Mystery of 50 Years Ago Unsolved.

No mystery of the sea ever caused so much wonder, discussion and argument as the case of the Marie Celeste, which has defied solution for nearly fifty years.

The Marie Celeste was found in the Atlantic, in 1872, with scarcely a rope, spar or sail out of place, with no boat missing, and yet abandoned by the captain, his crew of ten, and his wife and child, of none of whom any trace could be found.

Today we are no nearer the solution of the mystery, unless we accept an extraordinary story told by one Abel Fosdyk, who left a dairy in which he stated that he was the sole survivor.

A small brig of 500 tons, the Marie Celeste left New York in the autumn of 1872, bound for Genoa. Then came this terse message from the United States consul at Gibraltar on January 2, 1873:

"The American brig Marie Celeste, of New York, was wrought into this port by the British barque Dei Gratia. Marie Celeste picked up on high seas on December 5, abandoned. Brig in perfect condition, but was taken possession of by admiralty court as a derelict. Fate of crew unknown."

Captain Boyce, of the Dei Gratia, had an amazing story to tell. At noon on December 5 he came in sight of the Marie Celeste. To his amazement, as they approached, they could not see a soul on board. A boat was lowered and the captain and mate boarded the brig.

Not a sound greeted them. The uncanny silence was awesome. The brig seemed a floating graveyard, a ghost-ship, the kind of phantom craft they had read about. Not a human being, dead, or alive, could they find.

A Tragedy of Thirteen.

Nothing was wanting that would be needed by such a vessel at sea except the captain and the crew. There had obviously been no mutiny for there were no signs of a struggle; nor was it piracy, as the money-box had not been disturbed and the valuable cargo was untouched.

A thorough search revealed some startling disclosures. In the cabin a sewing machine was found with a thimble lying on its side on a corner of the machine, which proved that there could have been no recent storm. The article the woman had been sewing appeared to be a child's pinafore. The woman had stopped sewing in the middle of a sleeve.

The appearance of the table showed that four persons had risen from a half-eaten meal to leave the cabin for ever. The child had almost finished her porridge. In the mate's cabin were found two watches on the table.

In the forecastle, too, pans on the stove contained a breakfast ready cooked, showing that the sailors had been about to gather for the morning meal when they had gone over the side instead.

Representatives of the United States in all parts of the world were instructed to watch for the missing crew, but not a single vessel reported having picked up the Marie Celeste's ill-fated thirteen. What had happened to them? Many theories were advanced, but it was not until 1913 that a clue to the mystery was discovered.

Having read the story of the mystery in the Strand magazine, A. Howard Linford, headmaster of Peterborough lodge—Hampstead's largest preparatory school—recalled the fact that an old servant, Abel Fosdyk, had, on his deathbed, committed to his charge a quantity of papers, amongst which he had said would be found the story of the Marie Celeste.

An investigation of Fosdyk's papers and diary showed that the facts he gave coincided with the official ones, some of which had not up to then been made public.

Fosdyk related how he had shipped on board the Marie Celeste, intending that it should be his last voyage. For a few days everything went well. Then terrible storms were encountered. The captain did not spare himself, and seemed to be constantly on deck. His wife and the mate implored him to take more rest, but he would not listen to them.

Is This The Solution?

The strain began to affect his nerves, and to add to his troubles his wife fell ill and became but a shadow of her former self. The climax was reached when his little girl, who was about seven years of age, walked along the bowsprit one day without holding on to anything, and was in peril of falling into the sea.

Luckily, Fosdyk was able to grasp her in the nick of time. The incident led to a barricade and small platform being erected, on which it would be quite safe for the little one to sit in fine weather.

Constant worry seemed to affect the captain's mind. To make matters worse, he sought a quarrel with the mate, accusing him of cowardice for not saving a comrade who had fallen into the sea.

One day the entire crew was gathered on the platform by accident.

The platform tipped up, tore away from its fastenings, and precipitated them all into the water. When Fosdyk came to the surface, he managed to struggle onto the broken platform. He could see no signs of the others alive They had been drowned or devoured by the sharks. To his horror he found it impossible to get on board the brig again, for no rope or chain hung down. Ultimately he was rescued.

Abel Fosdyk's amazing story seems to provide the most probable solution of the mystery.—Tit-Bits.

IN WORLD OF MAKE BELIEVE.

I live in a world of make believe
And I find it a good world, too;
Where the days are always bright and fair,
And the skies are a cloudless blue,
And the trials and the cares of the real world,
I make believe are dreams
That will fade away when the night is past,
Erased by the sun's bright beams.

And if trouble or worry knocks at my door
I make believe 'tis a friend
Who has come to teach me in life's great school,
That joy with sorrow must blend.
For a perfect joy would callous the heart,
Or an endless woe, the brain;
So God in His wisdom arranged it so
One, the other could restrain.

And if my share of joy sometimes
Seems small, I'm not surprised,
But make believe some of my cares
Are only joys disguised.
And when trouble tries to weigh me down,
To see how I bear the test,
Then with brave heart, I make believe
"Whatever is, is best."

In no country is it more important to have good manners than in our own, and yet here there is a great deficiency and care and instruction in this particular. Sometimes we censure girls for laughing loudly in public, yet if they have never been taught otherwise, how can we blame them? Sometimes a girl will get on a crowded street car and make such caustic remarks that some man will finally feel compelled to give her his seat. We are not excusing him. Perhaps he should have done so in the first place, but the girl certainly cheapened herself and gave an unpleasant display of her disposition.

Good manners are not in the least difficult to cultivate. They mean nothing more than thoughtfulness for others. Contending too much for your rights stirs up the selfish feeling of others, while a readiness to yield them awakens generous sentiments and leads to mutual accomodations. The greater your advantages have been, the more polite and considerate you should be to others who are not so fortunate as to possess the opportunities you have had. If you wish to be well bred, you must carry your manners with you. Good breeding is not a thing that can be laid aside and put on at pleasure. True politeness is accompanied by the calm self possession which belongs to a noble simplicity of purpose, and unless you cultivate it and exercise it upon all occasions and toward all persons it will never be a part of yourself.

CORRECT SPEAKING.

One of the most pleasing things in young people is the habit of correct speaking. Let us advise all our young readers to acquire it in early life. The longer you live the more difficult the acquirement of correct language is; and if the golden age of youth, the proper season for the acquisition of language is passed in slang, the unfortunate victim, is very properly doomed to talk slang all his life. Money is not necessary to procure this education. Every one has it in his power. He has merely to use the language which he reads, instead of the slang which he hears, to form his tastes from the best poets and authors of the country, to treasure up choice phrases in his memory, and habituate himself to their use, avoiding at the same time, that pedantic precision and bombast which show the weakness of vain ambition rather than the polish of an educated mind.

Stardom Through Our Telescope

Rudolph Bergquist, who has when Rogers uttered this pronuncia six most recent Metro productions, is doing the camera work for George D. Baker's S-L picture for Metro, "The Hunch," in which Gareth Hughes is starred.

Alice Lake is Hollywood's newest motor enthusiast. The little star has purchased a coupe and is learning to drive it. Miss Lake has nicknamed her car 'The leaping tuna," because of her eccentric manner of starting it.

June Mathis, who prepared the screen version of the Metro production of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," is personally supervising the writing of the Spanish and French titles for the Rex Ingram production of the Ibanez novel.

A screen story may be expected soon from the pen of Samuel Hopkins Adams, the magazine writer. To obtain atmosphere for this, which is a tale of film folk, the author went on location with Charles J. Brabin, one of the William Fox directors, and spent a day at Throg's Neck, New York City, where the exteriors for "Footballs" is being made.

Vola Vale has been engaged by William Fox to appear in a new William Russell picture that is being made on the Coast. Miss Vale has appeared in several large productions at Hollywood.

Carl Harbaugh, director for Eileen Percy, William Fox star, is also responsible for the story and scenario of a picture she is now making at Hollywood under the working title "Main Street to Broadway." William Scott is Miss Percy's new leading man.

Will Rogers, the Mark Twain of the screen, paused between scenes of "A Poor Relation," his latest Goldwyn picture, to volunteer the earth-shattering theory that an Englishman can see a joke. None of the lighting apparatus went out when Rogers utter this pronunciamento, although several of the Kliegr sputtered and one, hidden by a trees shade, hissed.

Rogers admitted, however, that at least one of his jokes has passed the imagination of Sir Alfred Butt, the famous London theatrical manager, when the Goldwyn star was playing in England. When Sir Alfred would hand Rogers his weekly pay check, the comedian would say: "Just give it to the stage hands; I haven't any use for it." The manager would insist on Rogers accepting the envelope, and after a little coaxing, he would do so.

"I can't understand him; he doesn't want to take the money," Sir Alfred told several people.

But an English journalist who recently visited the Goldwyn studios laughed heartily when Rogers told him that he had to leave London in order to avoid being knighted.

FREE MILK IN SCHOOLS MAKE FOR HEALTH AND MENTAL EFFICIENCY

CHILDREN OF TO-DAY ARE THE HOPE OF THE FUTURE, AND SHOULD BE DIETED IN KEEPING WITH NATURE'S REQUIREMENTS—PLENTY OF MILK GIVES BODILY VIGOR AND BRIGHTENS THE INTELLECT.

The report of Dr. A. W. McPherson, Medical Inspector of Schools, to the Board of Education at their June session embodied revelations as to the health of children in Peterborough's public schools, which offer food for serious reflection by parents and others responsible for the well-being of little folk. In telling us that a large number of children in this city are below par in nutrition, a startling feature of such disclosure is his addendum that this is not by any means 'more common' among the poorer families. That is tantamount to saying too many youngsters are poorly nourished in the midst of plenty for want of knowledge by indulgent parents of the proper diet nature demands for bodily and mental development in growing boys and girls. The school children of to-day are the hope of our coming race and nation, and too much heed cannot be paid to Dr. McPherson's warning against the danger of physical degeneration in those little ones. For years physicians have been concentrating on scientific means for healing disease, of late many of them have been advocating more attention to the science of guarding against disease by inculcating into the people of this day and generation a knowledge of human nature, that they may understand what to eat and what to wear and how to live — in other words, how to generate a super-human manhood and womanhood.

Nutritious Diet.

And, perhaps, nothing will make for this super-human ideal and foster a perfect physical race more generously than correct diet — the eating and drinking of those substances and fluids in conformity with the laws of Mother Nature herself, who frowns on epicurean habits and indulgence in foods foreign to the assimilating functioning of the human anatomy. There is far too much unnatural dieting these days, at which Dr. McPherson probably hints when he asserts that under par nutrition is not "more common" among our poorer families.

Nature's Own Food.

But, in this great agricultural and pastoral Dominion there should not be found much excuse for malnutrition, even among those people designated as poor, were they but educated in a knowledge of food values—food that is cheap, nutritious and health-giving. In this class let us for a moment consider milk, characterized by some medical experts as nature's own food. Comparatively speaking, it is cheap, even at its peak price, and in its re-action on the body the most healthful nation is one whose children absorb a good deal of milk, which is now classed as both a meat and drink indeed. Of course, there are many kinds of milk, but the ordinary cow's fluid to which this article refers, contains 45 of fatty matters to 100 parts—nearly 50 per cent. of the greatest body-building ingredients of all food.

For Brawn, Brain and Muscle.

And it is, perhaps, interesting to note that milk, too generally ignored as a food by this race of supposedly super-intelligent civilized beings, contains water, solid substances, caseine and extractive matters, sugar, butter-fat and salts—constituents which combine in creating abundance of brawn, and brain, and muscle, without which we Canadians cannot hope to develop into that coming leading people amongst world-nations so freely predicted as one outcome of the late great war. Milk contains in semi-concentrated form, all the elements of meat, but more readily digestible, and it is a food of such a nature as compensates for the wear and tear of the tissues which is perpetually going on and at the same time keeps up the animal heat at its proper standard. Above all, it is cheap, as asserted before—so comparatively cheap, perhaps, that most people underate its true value for physical growth and mental efficiency.

Milk and Crackers.

But to revert to Dr. McPherson's practically adverse report on the health of Peterborough's school children, why not follow in the footsteps of some American communities in this regard. The School Board of Columbus, Indiana, for instance, about a year ago, became alarmed at the health condition of their school children and at their consequent slow progress and lack of interest. The teachers were exceptionally good, so expert medical advice was called in. The little ones were weighed and measured, when the astonishing fact was gleaned that 73 per cent. of the children were under weight.

It was, therefore, decided to give the children a glass of milk and a cracker in mid-forenoon and again in the afternoon. The response was phenomenal, and the change began almost immediately. The children, once so listless and dull, began to brighten up and show a real interest in school work. They gained in weight and also in efficiency.

The result was so striking that when given publicity, other schools followed, and to-day hundreds of schools are serving milk to their children.

Then the commercial institutions got started. The Fletchmann Yeast Co. at Chicago served a glass of milk and a cookie to every person at his or her desk at 2.30. They began about nine months ago, and Mr. Wilshire, vice-president of the company, reported in the National Dairy Council as follows:

"The plan of allowing ten minutes' relaxation and serving bread and milk lunches (consisting of a glass of milk and a cookie) to employees in our Chicago office was put into operation some months ago. We believe that the resulting increased health and efficiency among our employees is as high as 50 per cent."

Is the foregoing experience not worthy of emulation here in Peterborough and in Canada, that we adults may increase in efficiency and our children develop into that perfect physical and mental man and womanhood, without which our aspirations for prominence in world-progress will come to naught.

(This is the first of a series of articles on milk by Paterfamilias).

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Peterboro, June 27, 1921.

To Ed tor of The Examiner.—

Dear Sir,—I see in your issue of 25th of the Examiner, you have a statement of our old and new water rates put in by Utilities Commission of a seven roomed house. There is a difference of $1.94 in the rates, but they don't mention the use of a wash'ng machine which they intend to charge $6.00 more for per annum Now we had the use of the washing machine in the old rates without extra charge.

They took the same method when arranging for our lights. After the people had signed up for lights, they came around and measured their house and charged them floor space extra. Now I think their books had better be looked over.

A HEAVY RATEPAYER.

P. S.—They also want us to pay for filtered water, months before we get it.

CURB MARKET NOW HOUSED INDOORS.

Famous "Outside" Market Moves Into Spacious Quarters.

NEW YORK, June 28.—After several decades of nomadic existence along the main highway of the financial district, the "outside market," corporately known as the New York Curb Association, yesterday moved into its own spacious quarters on the western fringe of Wall street.

For the first time in its long and picturesque history "the curb," to quote one of its chief officials, "will cease to have the sky as its roof and will find shelter within its own four walls."

The new building of the New York Curb Market, now virtually completed at a cost of about $2,250,000, including the ground, is an impressive structure located on Trinity Place, directly back of the famous Trinity graveyard and extending westward to Greenwich street.

Already the executive offices of the association have been installed and although the financial district is passing through a period of post-war depression the guiding spirits of the curb believe the new headqaurters will mark the beginning of a new and prosperous career.

Of the entire membership as now constituted— variously estimated at 400 to 600—almost 25 per cent of the old guard of veteran members have threatened to hold aloof and continue their operations in the roadway of Broad street.

This faction may find itself balked, however, by the attitude of the city authorities. The police long ago found it necessary to "corral" the members within an irregular square because their increasing numbers obstructed street traffic.

Among the members of the Curb Association are a number of men more or less directly connected with the "Big Board," as the Stock Exchange is known in the Wall Street vernacular. Some Stock Exchange firms have voiced their opposition to the idea of a regular home or headquarters for the "curb.' Others believe it will add to the strength and respousibility of that organization.

One of the arguments advanced in favor of a fixed habitat for the curb brokers has been that it would eliminate an undesirable element.

INDIAN BOYS AGAIN MAKE GOOD SHOWING.

Premier Rural Cadet Corps Field Day and Sports—Major Miller of Calgary the Inspecting Officer.

Marked Improvement.

(For The Peterborough Examiner.)

The 9th annual field day of the St. Paul's (Blood Reserve) and St. Peter's (Peigan Reserve) Cadet Corps, 338, was held at the former school on Monday, June 20th.

Last year at the Peigan School, so good work was done that the boys were awarded the R. B. Bennett, Esq., Silver Shield, which proclaimed the corps the best trained and most efficient in all Alberta.

The showing made this year indicated a great improvement in every respect, despite the fact that the Instructor-Sergeant, Major Heron, was handicapped by having to drill one company at the Peigan School and another at the Blood School, and the companies were not accustomed to working together.

Brilliant Spectacle.

When the bugles sounded the officers' call at 9.30 on Monday morning the parade afforded a brilliant spectacle. Every piece of brass on the uniform and equipment flashed in the morning sun. In the centre, guarded by stalwart Sergeants, was carried the King's Color, presented to the corps by the Duke of Connaught when Governor-General. In rear of the cadet companies were the girls dressed in navy skirts, white middies and Girl Guide hats. Behind all was the school chapel, and clearly to be seen was the window erected in memory of Albert Mountain Horse, a cadet who made the supreme sacrifice in the Great War.

As the last note filled the school campus the Inspecting Officer, Major Miller of Calgary, appeared in company with Rev. (Capt.) Middleton, Principal of the school; Major Metge of the 93rd Battery, C.F.A., and other officers. The Instructor stepped forward, his sword flashed to the salute, the cadet brought their rifles to the present and the beautiful notes of the "General Salute" swelled forth.

Excellent Drilling.

The uniforms and rifles having been inspected and favourable comment passed, the cadets marched to the playing fields. Here a complete programme of all branches of military training was exceedingly well done. The platoon leaders drilled their platoons in squad drill and musketry and Sergt.-Major Heron drilled the two companies in company drill, extended order drill, physical training, musketry and signalling.

After the march past, which was excellently executed, the officers and cadets were addressed by Major Miller. The display last year was so good, Major Miller said, he had come this year expecting great things, and he had not been disappointed. Good advancement had been made in the different subjects, and some new subjects had been introduced. The idea of the Cadet Corps was not to make soldiers of the boys, but to train them physically so as to make good bodies, and morally so as to make good Canadian citizens. The efficient way in which the drills were performed reflected great credit on the cadets, for it showed an intelligent interest. It also reflected the painstaking and thorough training given by the Instructor.

With the Battery.

Major Metge, in a few words, expressed his gratification at the affiliation of the Cadet Corps with the 93rd Battery, C.F.A. After the pleasing and thoroughly masterful display of the morning he was certain the battery would profit by having the cadets with them.

Three cheers were called for and given for H. M. the King and for the Inspecting Officer. Major Miller then led cheers for the Instructor.

In the afternoon about one hundred spectators gathered to witness the sports and were treated to a very good programme of jumping, racing and novelty racing. At 3.30 the Instructor had the cadets on parade in full dress—a new blue and red uniform—presented to the corps by the Indian Commissioner, Regina.

A display was given for the visitors, ncluding musketry exercises by the Sergeants and physical drill with rifles. The march past in review order was as precise as any seen by the writer in any country. In perfect alignment the cadets approached the saluting base, and as the Instructor's sword traced a graceful circle of fire in the rays of the setting sun they turned their eyes in the direction of the royal color, where Major Miller received the salute, and they saw behind him the window commemorating the sterling example of their old school-fellow who had trained as they trained and who was ready when his country called.

Prizes and Trophies.

The prizes and trophies won were presented by Mrs. Swainson, supported by the Ven. Archdeacon Tims. Mrs. Swainson labored among the Indians some twenty-five years ago, and with her husband laid the foundation of St. Paul's School. Great, indeed, was the improvement since then.

The Mrs. Middleton Silver Cup, won last year by Nelson Rabbit, went this year to Puss Healy, who won most first prizes. The Petersen Scholarship, given yearly to the best monitors, was won this year by Julia Bad Arm and Michael Eagle Speaker.

During the day the many visitors were interested in the display of drawing, painting, sewing, etc., done in the schools for exhibition in Calgary. Many prizes were won last year, and the work this year is of a very high order. The sewing done by the St. Paul's girls under the able tutorage of Mrs. Baker and Miss Smith is very excellent and called forth many envious remarks from the lady visitors. The range of basketry and weaving done by the Peigan pupils was greatly admired. All of these will be on display at the Calgary Exhibition.

The cadets expect to go to camp about July 13th, and they at least have no doubt thatv the will return with several trophies.

The field day was terminated very pleasantly with tea served by the ladies of the staff.

COUNTY WON'T PAY ONTARIO ROAD LEVY.

Claim Extravagant Policy—U. F. O. Frontenac Councillors Are Worried.

KINGSTON, June 28.—After the Frontenac County Council had passed a resolution informing the Department of Highways of the Ontario Government that it refused to accede to its request for payment of $101,000 for Frontenac's share of the Provincial highway built through here in 1919 and 1920, some of the U. F. O. members began to think it over. They saw they were giving the Drury Government a hard knock when they put themselves on record as opposing payment on the ground that the Provincial road policy was extravagant. They attempted on Saturday morning to have the resolution rescinded, but the Council took a division and the result was 10 to 4 in favor of refusing to pay. As the money is due October 1, and as the Council does not meet again until November 22, the politicians are wondering what the result is going to be.

HOW THE HANGING WAS CAMOUFLAGED.

"Apparently in Good Health, His Death Was Looked For."

Some years ago, having been requested by a friend to insert a notice of the death of his uncle, who had just been hanged at the Fort Saskatchewan Mounted Police Barracks for an atrocious murder, we hastened to oblige. Deceased had relatives in Belfast, Ireland, who had to be notified somehow, though there was no sense of kindness in letting them know that the poor devil had been hanged in Canada.

Our friend wanted something inserted in an Alberta newspaper which he could cut out and send over, and he accordingly sought our aid. This is what appeared in the "Eye-Opener," and we learned afterwards, was a few weeks later reproduced in the "Belfast Times":

"It is with sincere regret that we learn of the untimely death of James B. Clancy, who passed away suddenly at Fort Saskatchewan a few weeks ago. Though in apparently good health, his death was not unlooked for. Many of his friends had for years predicted that he would drop dead some day, in much the same manner as he did on this occasion. Indeed, one good judge gave him but two months to live.

"Up until the moment of Mr. Clancy's taking off, he was in the enjoyment of the best of health. That very morning he had partaken of a hearty breakfast of ham and eggs, and had even taken a leading part in an interesting procession. It seems that at the close of the procession, and while standing on a raised platform, from which he had just finished delivering a brief address to young men on the evils of intemperance and bad company, a portion of the flooring suddenly gave way, and Mr. Clancy was precipitated into a hole beneath the structure. In some way his neck was injured in the fall, and his recovery was pronounced hopeless by a physician who happened to be present.

"The late Mr. Clancy was one of the most highly esteemed citizens of Edmonton, having excavated some of the finest cellars and given personal attention to the sewers and drain pipes of that quaint city for years. His loss is widely mourned.

"The funeral was a quiet one, a wreath of immortelles from the landlady of his boarding-house, bearing the affecting legend, 'Hurrah for Ireland,' was placed on the coffin as it was lowered to its final resting-place.

"In the midst of life we are in death. Belfast papers please copy."

GOTHAM PORT OF MISSING GIRLS.

Many Runaways Attracted to New York.

NEW YORK, June 27.—This is the "port of missing girls."

In addition to its own quota of annual disappearances among girls under 21, the lure of the "big city" acts as a magnet to the adventurous misses of other towns, according to Capt. John H. Ayres, head of the Police Bureau of Missing Persons.

While the number of missing New York girls is decreasing each year, those from other cities who come here show a proportionate increase. Ayres said in an interview to-day.

New York attracts girls from as far as the Pacific Coast, but the majority of them comes from the territory east of Chicago. Eastern cities added to the missing girl quota in New York in ratio to their population—Philadelphia, Boston, Baltimore and so on.

Majority Found.

Little more than one per cent. of these girls, however, remain "lost," Ayres said. Since 1918 the number of these cases has averaged slightly under 2,000 a year. The number of runaway boys and of adults of both sexes is about the same.

'The principal' cause for girls running away is unattractive home life," Ayres said. "The usual explanation is: 'Father (or mother) hates me.' My advice to all parents is: Don't be ashamed to let your children know you love them.

Manhattan Slow.

"Girls come to New York because they believe they will find adventure here, when in fact this is the 'slowest' town in the country. Men figure directly in less than 25 per cent. of the missing girl cases.

"The 'fool age' for girls—the age when they yield to their impulses—is from 14 to 16. In boys it's from 10 to 17. Running away becomes a habit with some youngsters. We have 'repeaters' who have done it as many as half a dozen times. The longest any one person was missing and later found—since the bureau was established four years ago—was a boy who was found in Mexico after 18 months."

The Dreadful Royal Row Caused by the Latest American Princess

And It's Just Because the Former "Nonny" Steward of Cleveland, O., Has Wedded Prince Christopher of Greece, and Because She Declines to Pour Her Multi-Millions of American Dollars Into the Deposed Royal Family's Empty Treasure Chest.

By Phoebe Hart

"Ex-King Constantine's fury knows no bounds, for has not the sacred 'dead line' of Royalty been crossed by the sacrilegious feet of a commoner, and American feet at that? It is too much."

WHEN that American girl stepped blithely into the exalted ranks of Europe's Royalty she surely did pull a hornet's nest down over her ears.

Now, the Royal families are as intermarried as a string of interlocking directorates of Big Business in America. So that when Her Royal Highness, the Princess Anastasie, was pronounced the bride of His Royal Highness, Prince Christopher of Greece, she not only married the son of a King, the brother of a deposed King, and uncle to the reigning King of Greece, but she married nearly all of the Royalties in Europe as well.

And Princess Anastasie, newly created princess of the blood, is none other than our American Mrs. Leeds, just as lovely under her newly baptized name, and just as rich. So through this alliance of the far-famed lady-of-millions, whose marital possibilities have captivated the imagination of two continents for the past decade, gossip on the subject is at last set at rest.

For so august an event the wedding passed simply enough, and seemingly without a hitch, in a lovely little old-world church nestling under the hills of Vevay, Switzerland.

But surging under the surface are all sorts of cross currents that threaten the promised happiness of the American Princess, that lie in wait to drag her down to the very bottom of her matrimonial sea, and she will have to fight and fight hard to keep above water.

For the Royal House of Greece is once more divided against itself, and not only Greece, but the whole European Royalty is up in arms, to do battle to the teeth, for has not the sacred "dead line" of Royalty been crossed by the sacrilegious feet of a commoner, and American feet at that? It is too much!

Princess Christopher of Greece, Formerly Mrs. Wm. B. Leeds, Who Is Now Related by Marriage to All the Crowned and Uncrowned Royal Heads of Europe.

Constantine, the deposed King of Greece, and brother to Christopher, the new husband, is reported to have raged himself into a positive fever, and is confined to his rooms at St. Moritz where he and his "Queen" are consoling themselves "temporarily." It is said he threatens to break off relations with his brother Christopher and any other members of his family who countenance him from now on.

Now heretofore when social complications have arisen between Europe and America, the gossip and excitement passed well over the heads of royalty who were of course serenely aloof.

But this invasion of the sacrosanct! violating intimately the reigning families of seven great European states! Society with a capital "S" is breathless. But this time royalty is not!

And you may take it as a fact that royalty has no separate dictionary apart from the "common herd." But when they rage and fume they use the same "Webster Unabridged" that makes your and my anger so picturesque. And the storm clouds are gathering thick and fast to the breaking point over the heads of our lovers.

Constantine's fury knows no bounds, and he is egged on by his dutiful spouse Sophie, sister to the ex-Kaiser of Germany. Imagine those two, chafing and raging in their exile!—never giving up hope of going back once more on the throne of the country they were obliged to flee.

And now their royal brother takes a bride from one of the allied nations responsible for their downfall, and in the case of Sophie, for the loss not only of the Greek crown, but for the shocking disaster to her "Kaiserlich" brother.

The courtship of Christopher and the fascinating Mrs. Leeds dates back before the war, when of course Constantine was seated securely on his throne. He refused to sanction even the thought of such a marriage, and his word was then law.

With his dethronement, aided by the prompting of Sophie, came a shrewder idea. Yes, he would permit the marriage if the lady's millions were deposited in escrow in the Greek treasure chest, to buy back soldiers and officers at the head of whom Constantine would make a triumphant re-entry into Greece.

But Christopher's status was now quite changed, no better, perhaps, but no worse than his kingly brother. So why should he divert the millions of his bride to purchase back a throne for his brother, which could mean nothing to him since he is not even prospective heir?

Prince Christopher, Who Raised the Regal Ire of His German Sister-in-Law by Marrying an Enemy Alien.

Not exactly! A brilliant idea for Constantine, no doubt, but Christopher who, between us, always found the court of Greece a bit stodgy and tedious, has other plans for disposing of his wife's money, and is now for the first time in a position really to indulge his fondness for the British and Continental courts, his only previous obstacle, lack of funds, being removed by his happy marriage.

Together, he and his bride, with their fortune, their clothes—they are the best dressed couple in Europe—and her sumptuous jewels, whose value runs way into the millions, may well add lustre to any court.

But Christopher counted without his host—his host of royal relatives. They also have something to say about this "open door policy," and they are saying it in no suppressed terms.

True, this is not a morganatic marriage. Mrs. Leeds saw to that. But if England, Russia, Denmark, Norway, Greece, Spain, and finally Germany, all closely concerned, choose to present a cold shoulder, how can they force a warmer welcome?

Will the new princess add but another triumph to the long list of astonishing successes of her extraordinary career, or will she at this moment, with her foot on the peak, with more at stake than she has ever had in her life, lose grip and let go?

Just as the trifling deterrents of a husband of her own, and Mr. Leeds's first wife and son, were not allowed to intervene between her marriage with that American multi-millionaire and steel magnate, neither did his death a short time after, leaving the little western girl a fortune of some forty odd millions, and a son, interrupt her extraordinary and progressive career.

Sumptuous palaces in town, fabulous mansions in the country, yachts outrivalling the royal vessels in splendor, exquisite gowns, and jewels of Maharajah glory, flamed a trail from New York to Newport, from London with its Goodwood and Ascot races to the Cowes regatta.

And everywhere the same triumphal march, like that of a conqueror with willing slaves at the chariot wheels.

Twice before this marriage the present princess has had her little tilts with royalty and twice come out victorious.

King Edward, then still gracing the British throne, was making one of his periodic visits to Paris. While there he paid daily visits to his favorite jewelry shop, rendering silent homage to a wonderful black pearl valued at $100,000. He wanted it badly, but hated to pay the price—it seems kings have to pay for things, too—and while he hesitated and went to the Riviera to think it over, he lost.

For when he returned, the pearl was gone.

"What monarch took it from me?" demanded the King.

"No monarch, Your Majesty," replied the jeweller, "a lady, Mrs. Leeds, an American lady."

This led to a visit from the King, an exchange of gifts, and kingly recognition that set the cap on the climax of the American lady's social career.

The other royal protagonist is less susceptible to feminine American beauty and charm. The gentle Dowager Queen Alexandra, mother to the King of England, over the tea cups, pleaded and wept and cajoled, but all to no purpose, in her endeavor to get her hostess, the then Mrs. Leeds, to relinquish the marvellous Kenwood Palace she had just succeeded in leasing, back to its former holder, the worshipful Grand Duke Michael of Russia, who, with the advent of the wealthiest son-in-law in England, was eager for family reasons to take back the fabulously expensive property he had been glad to get rid of the week before.

But unhappily the triumphs of yesterday often prove extremely embarrassing today.

For Queen Alexandra is aunt of Prince Christopher, and still smarting under the humiliation of being refused so "simple" a request, finds an unexpected opportunity of driving home her displeasure.

Then the august Queen Mary, first cousin to Christopher, has never shared her royal father-in-law, King Edward's, fondness for American ladies, and she and Alexandra, who get along together about as well as most daughters and mothers-in-law, are for once in complete accord.

And Denmark and Norway, over whose destinies the Royal House of Schleswig-Holstein-Sonderborg-Lyksborg are in the habit of presiding, very much resent the infusion of "common" blood into the blue veins of their royal cousins' strain, the Greek dynasty belonging to their branch of the family.

Of course the Romanoff family, former rulers of Russia, of whom Christopher's mother is a grand duchess, have always looked upon commoners as "canaille" and "vermin," and though the revolution has considerably depressed their fortunes, their disdain is still high.

Then there is Queen Victoria of Spain, another first cousin of our princess, who for the moment holds back. Being English, of the Royal House of Battenberg, she naturally inclines toward the views of her English family.

The Queen mother of Christopher, a Russian grand duchess herself, is torn between her love for her son Constantine, whose wishes she has always followed, and her eager desire to utilize a part of her new daughter's vast fortune, to travel through America and around the world.

And through it all, the American princess smilingly holds her ground, for she knows that her fortune and her charm rest on good, solid, American foundations, whereas crowns? Well, thrones are not so certain these days.

And besides, she thinks back to the golden days of their courtship in one of the loveliest parts of the French Riviera, Cap d' Ail.

Will the kind fairies who have guided and watched over her destinies so far forsake her in the times to come?

She thinks not.

What do you think?

A PROPHET ON STRIKE

SERMON BY REV. G. E. ROSS

Notwithstanding the great heat of Sabbath, the services were very well attended and deeply spiritual.

"A Prophet on Strike," was the subject of the morning sermon, and was founded on Jonah I, 12, "And Jonah rose up to flee unto Tarshish fro mthe presence of the Lord." The following is an outline of the sermon.

Jonah a Real Character in Concrete Hi6story.

The story of the book of Jonah is too simple to require any analysis. His act in fleeing from God's presence, when commissioned to go to Mineveh with a threatening message, is very extraordinary; but such is the inconsistency and folly of human passion. The conduct of the mariners when overtaken by a tempest is not wonderful, but is quite in harmony with all that we know of ancient habits of thought and action. But what befell Jonah, when cast into the sea, is more than wonderful; it is miraculous. For the benefit of the "Critic," who finds the throat of the whale too small to admit an ordinary sized man, we may remind him that there exist in the Mediterranean, fish capable of swallowing a man entire, and this is a well attested fact. The original Hebrew mentions only "a great fish." The Alexanderine version, and after that the New Testament, use the word whale apparently in the sense of any great sea monster. But whatever the fish may have been, his preservation alive in its body for the spae of three days, and his subsequent ejection upon dry land can be accounted for only by reference to the immediate power of God, with whom nothing is impossible.

A Burning Message to a Terrible People.

Jonah's task was not an easy one. It was winged with the threatening destruction of the city within forty days. The journey is long and hazardous, jungles, wild beasts, desert wastes and wild men at the end of the way. He is backed up by no Mission Board. He can make appeal to no consul in Nineveh for protection. His sermon is truly a hot-weather discourse, very short and to the point, just eight words, "Yet forty days and Nineveh shall be destroyed,' but it will call down on his head the blazing anathemas of every old society dame, bootlegger, grafter, hypocrite and red-handed sinner in that centre of iniquity. Jonah, that sermon's too long for Nineveh. So Jonah, instead of going on the way of duty, commissioned and accompanied by his God, he loses his nerve, rises up and runs seventy miles to Joppa, buys a ticket for Tarshsih to get away from duty.

Jonah Pays His Fare on the Devil's Ship.

Every man pays his fare who travels by this line. But while Jonah paid his fare the company did not deliver the goods. When I bought my passage to Europe on a certain occasion, the steamship company's contract was as sure as the safety of the ship. But while the ship reached Tashrish in safety, Jonah found a watery grave, as far as the company knew or cared. What a sight for angels, men and satan himself to see a prophet of the Lord on the devil's ship with God's commission to the Ninevites in his pocket. But while he might have gone to Nineveh as the ambassador of the king of eternity and moved the whole city to repentance, which he afterwards did, he hides in the enemy's boat, and sails away like a criminal. Yes, every man who goes wrong pays his fare.

Jonah Lands Within the Jaws of White Shark.

Buying a ticket for Tarshish and trying to sail away from God and conscience was the prophet's mighty blunder and it is ours. Many a man chokes his conscience to death before he gets on board the ship bound for Tarshish, but Jonah took that mighty inward monitor with him, and it proved his salvation. Somehow he could not shake off his conscience at Joppa. It required an honest man to take God's message to Nineveh, and no dishonest man can hope for ultimate success to-day in any walk of life. There are men in this city so magnificently upright in all their dealings that it becomes a delight to do business with them. An enlightened Christian conscience is a fine quality in the business, social, educational, moral, political and religious world about us.

The White Shark Hovering Round the Ship.

Have you bought a ticket for Tarshish to dodge God and duty? Then you will never land. The shark is moving with the vessel. Has the man of wealth and fashion, passion and power, greed and graft, lust and libertinism, hate and dishonor, bought his ticket for his coveted post? Then he has paid his fare for a safe passage, but is doomed to the relentless jaws of the monster. Young lady, young gentleman, take passage in no ship that would bear you away from God, conscience, duty and right. Jonah went down, down, down to Joppa.

Jonah Compelled to Show His Colors.

What a spectacle for the sailors of that ship, to find a prophet of the Holy God of the Hebrews lurking and hiding on an enemy ship? What is the difference between your life and that of the worldling? You are a Christian? Yes! A Sunday school teacher? Yes! How are you to be distinguished from the person who makes no profession of religion? He dances on the "moonlight," you dance on the boat, too; he plays cards and you play; he keeps questionable hours and company, and so do you; he has ear-marks, you have the same; she dresses to murder morality, and so do you. Oh my dear young people I thank God for your loyalty to Jesus Christ and God's church. The violet was at one time the badge worn by the friends of the great Napoleon; let us "put on Christ' as our badge of service.

CHAUTAUQUA SERIES CONCLUDES TO-NIGHT

LARGE AUDIENCE AT PRESENTATION OF BROADWAY COMEDY SUCCESS, "IT PAYS TO ADVERTIZE."

A large crowd assembled at the Chautauqua tent last night for the presentation of th humorous little comedy, "It Pays to Advertise."

The stage settings were carried out just as cleverly as for a performance in the Grand Opera House, with lighting effects and numerous exits and entrances.

This little comedy, which held the boards for five years in large city theatres, is as interesting as ever. The hard-hearted parent who enters into a conspiracy with his private secretary to make a man out of his spineless son, the youth himself who isn't really so brainless after all, the French countess with flirtatious ways, the theatrical manager who makes such a good press agent, all combine in a well-balanced cast to produce one of the most entertaining evenings of the Chautauqua programme.

The son, Rodney Martin, ordered by his gout-smitten father to get to work and do something, decided to go into the soap business in opposition to his parent. His volatile friend, Ambrose Peel, played by Mr. Percival Vivian, gives him some pointers on the powers of advertising, and between them they concoct a scheme to manufacture the "13th soap, unlucky for drt, the most expensive soap in the world," which sells for $1.00 a cake. In their enthusiasm over an extensive advertising campaign, they neglect to manufacture any of the article advertised, which leads them into difficulties later on, when orders pile in thick and fast. By shrewd manipulation, however, they are enabled to dispose of their trade mark and orders to their competitors and everything runs along smoothly.

The power of suggestion and the influence of the printed word are emphasied throughout the entire production. As Ambrose Peel says: "Give me a little money and a few pages of advertising and I will guarantee to sell shares in the Atlantic Ocean."

The closing programme for tonight includes the Old Song Singers, with Miss Ruby Gall, and a lecture on "The Dominion and Its Destiny," by Dr. Robert Norwood.

A body has been designed for physicians' light automobiles by which they can be quickly converted into ambulances.

GRANDMA NEVER LET HER HAIR GET GRAY

She Kept Her Locks Dark and Glossy, with Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. At little cost you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger.

CARE OF THE TEETH

(By DR. C. E. BEECH)

FILLINGS.

A filling is a repair in a tooth. There are many kinds of filling materials; each one has some especial quality that causes it to be selected for a certain cavity.

A cavity is a hole in a tooth usually caused by caries, which is a decay of the teeth. To prepare a cavity for filling, the dentist must remove all decay of the tooth structure that had been invaded by decay. If a tooth could successfully be filled by simply removing the actual decayed portion, and then placing the filling, the job would be a very easy one, both for the patient and the dentist.

The hard part of a tooth, you know, is composed of enamel and dentine.

The dentine is similar to bone and has a great many little tubes called tubuli, running from the pulp canal in the centre of the tooth to the outer surface of the dentine just inside the enamel. The bacteria of decay work along these tubuli and go far ahead of the actually destroyed portion of the tooth. To receive a filling that will stay, this infected dentine must be cut away. Then the cavity must be given shape that will give the filling as much support as possible, that will allow the filling to protect the margins of the enamel, and that will retain the filling in the tooth.

Even a small cavity will have a much larger area of infected dentine than you would imagine. If you allow your teeth to decay until you can find the cavities yourself, the chances are that the pulp, or nerve, as it is incorrectly called, will become inflamed.

Then there is real trouble.

The best filling is a small one because if there has been very little destruction of the tooth there has been very little loss of contour and of strength, and, most important of all, where the cavity is small the pulp is safe.

Do not neglect your teeth until large fillings are necessary.

COUNTY'S GRANT TO WAR MEMORIAL IS $1,000.00.

The County Council's grant to the Peterborough War Memorial Fund was 1,000, and not $2,000 as published in yesterday's Examiner.

Some of the committee in charge of the Fund understood that the County's contribution was even larger. Through a typographical slip, the amount was quoted as $2,000, although in the heading of the article the correct sum, $1,000, was mentioned.

PLANS MEMORIAL TO LAKEFIELD'S SOLDIER DEAD

SUGGESTS LARGE CROSS HEWN OUT OF GRANITE OF THE COUNTY—POPULAR YOUNG BRIDE-TO-BE GETS MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER.

LAKEFIELD, June 28.—One of our local men suggests a unique but suitable war memorial for the village to be placed on the grounds of the Town Hall, where all men may read that Lakefield honors her brave dead. He suggests a memorial made from the granite of the county in the form of rough hewn cross on a large base which would contain the names we would honor ourselves in honoring. The idea has been well received among the citizens.

Miscellaneous Shower.

A number of ladies gathered at the home of Mr. W. J. Little on Thursday evening and gave Miss Mabel Little, (who will be a bride of this week), a miscellaneous shower. There were about forty friends and neighbours present, and all spent a pleasant evening. Miss Little is one of the most popular young ladies in the village and many good wishes accompanied the generous gifts.

Street Decorations

The business men of the village have on their own initiative raised money and purchased a fine set of street decorations for the Dominion Day celebration. These will be of use for all "big days" in the future history of the village. This enterprise is to be commended, as at the east it shows a real community spirit among those who rank as leading citizens.

Prizes will be awarded for house decorations on that day.

Strawberry Festival

The Ladies Guild of the Presbyterian Church held a strawberry festival on the grounds of the Town Hall on Saturday night. The grounds were decorated with Chinese lantern and presented a festive appearance. Tables were arranged around a marquee which was used by the busy band of workers. A large crowd attended and the financial returns were such that the ladies felt their efforts were worth while.

Revival in Building.

There has been rather a revival of building this summer in the village and Mr. John Sanderson is building a pretty bungalow off Regent street and Mr. John Sanderson is building one on the corner of Strickland street and Chippeawa avenue.

The foundation is laid for Mr. G. J. Elmsley's new home on Queen street north.

Mr. Abel Hendren's new home on Ennitinges street, is progressing rapidly. Work on the new rink will be commenced in the near future.

Another League

A branch of the Catholic Woman's League has been formed in the village and the following officers have been elected.

President—Msr. G. J. Elmsley, 1st Vice Pres.—Mrs .S. J. Gibson, 2nd Vice Pres.—Miss E. Kennedy, 3rd Vice Pres.—Miss L. Garvey, Secretary— Miss Margaret Kennedy, Treasurer—Miss Mona Fortier.

The ladies are planning a good season's activity and great enthusiasm has been shown.

Another Attraction

The Bingville Fire Fighters, who have won Gold Medals at the Toronto Exhibition and the St. Louis World's Fair and Panama Pacific Fair, have been engaged at great expense to come to the village on July 1st and to compete with the local fire brigade. The announcement is made later than was intended, as the committee felt that the expense was large, but the attraction is worth while and will repay the special effort that has been made.

Social Doings.

Mr. Arthur J. Burrows arrived in the village on Saturday with his bride. They have rented 'Minicona' for the summer.

Mr. Bruce Ridpath of Toronto, is visiting his mother in the village.

Miss Ethel Sanderson of Peterborough, is visiting Miss Aggie Miller.

Miss Verna Burgess, of Peterborough, is spending the summer vacation in the village.

Miss Mitchell of Toronto, who has won distinction as a Scotch dancer, will be in the village for July 1st, and will assist at the concert.

Miss Beatrice Campbell has returned from a visit to friends in Belleville.

Mrs T. L. White and children are visiting Mrs. White's mother, Mrs. McLennan in Lefroy.

MUCH BRITISH CAPITAL

Being Invested in Australian Industries.

MELBOURNE, June 28. — The movement of British capital into Australian manufacturing industries continues. Speaking in Sydney recently, the Federal treasurer stated that not less than 10,000,000 pounds sterling of new capital, Australian and British, is proposed to be spent in new enterprises in Australia. From March 22, 1920, to February 22, 1921, he said that 22 new enterprises or extensions of old ones had been registered with a capital of 3,500,000 pounds sterling, half of this amount being for woollen and knitting factories.

A large number of foreign (not British) companies are awaiting action on their application for permission to register, which had been held up under the War Precautions Act. The aggregate capital of these applicants, according to the Federal treasurer, is 20,000,000 pounds sterling. Regulations have now been issued under the amended war precautions act, and several applicants have been permitted to register.

SCATTERED BY HAT PIN

CROWD GIVES WAY AS WIFE BATTLES TO AID HUSBAND

DETROIT, June 27. — Edward Kunath, detective lieutenant, insists his wife is the best policeman in the family. Mrs. Kunath says the strange bulldog deserves some of the credit.

Mrs. Kunath demonstrated her ability to the satisfaction of the lieutenant by aiding in an arrest and saving him from what looked much like a serious assault by a gang of rowdies.

The Kunaths were returning home from an automobile trip when they heard shooting in the vicinity of 566 Monroe Avenue. Lieut. Kunath drove to where a general fight was in progress. One man lay across the threshold of a restaurant at 566 Monroe Avenue, with a bullet wound in his cheek. A couple of dozen others were struggling and milling on the walk, and in the doorway. Revolvers flashed here and there.

Officer is Threatened.

Lieut. Kunath leaped from his car and grappled with a man who was flourishing a weapon. And then the crowd grew ugly. They surrounded the officer and tried to pull his prisoner away from him. Threats were made. It seemed Lieut. Kunath was in for a lively session. Several men struck at him.

Mrs. Kunath realised the danger of the situation. She followed her husband from the automobile and ran toward the restaurant to telephone the police. Three men tried to block her way. She scattered them with a hatpin and darted into the building.

Another section of the gang attempted to drag her away from the instrument. It was by no means a soothing state of affairs, but Mrs. Kunath could see her tow-headed husband through the window, swaying and fighting to retain his prisoner.

With the hatpin as her only weapon, she managed to keep her assailants back until she had called the police headquarters and summoned assistance. Leaving the restaurant, several men tried to prevent her getting back to the car, and for a moment it seemed that she would be roughly handled. At this juncture, the bulldog appeared, a large and savage animal, but with a chivalrous disposition towards Mrs. Kunath. It began to snap and bark about her, clearing her way to the car. The dog leaped into the front seat with Mrs. Kunath just as her husband was fighting his way toward her. The crowd, demoralised by the dog, gave but small battle, and before any more trouble materialised, the detective flier arrived.

Makes His Arrests.

Then Lieut. Kunath tried to get the dog to leave the car, but was unsuccessful. The animal stuck by Mrs. Kunath's side till a stranger stepped from th crowd and called him. Then he jumped down and ran away.

Kunath arrested his man, Mike Malevelac, 37 years old, and the restaurant keeper, Gust Ragakas, 36 years old.

In the Police Court, Malevelac paid $45.00 for carrying concealed weapons. The restaurant keeper is bein gheld for investigation.

Anthony Karalous, 25 years old, the man who was shot, swore to a warrant against him, charging felonious assault.

On the police records, Lieutenant Kunath is credited with the two arrests. He says that is an error. Mrs. Kunath should be given the credit, he holds.

Cameramen Risk Lives to Get First Pictures of Big Flood

The speed and dispatch with which motion pictures of news events can be taken and handled was clearly shown in the case of the disastrous floods in Colorado. Taken under extraordinary difficulties at repeated risks to the cameramen's lives, they braved the dangerous task without fear, and succeeded in getting the best pictures, now being shown in the leading theatres throughout the country.

The films were rushed by aeroplane to Chicago from the devasted city of Pueblo, wrecked by a cloudburst, which caused the sudden overflow of the banks of the Arkansas and Fountain Rivers, and overwhelmed the city, causing the greatest disaster since the days of the Johnstown flood, thirty years ago.

Reaching Chicago, the negatives were immediately developed and printed and rushed via express to Montreal, where they arrived last Saturday, within three days of the receipt of the first definite news of the disaster.

On reaching Montreal, six other prints were immediately made from the one shipped, and dispatched via express to St. John, Toronto, Calgary, Winnipeg and Vancouver, covering every district in Canada, and informing motion picture patrons of what had taken place.

The pictures shipped to Chicago were accompanied by a brief note from the cameraman, who wrote:

"Had to go through h— to get there and back. Took troop train as soon as the decided to send one, but had to build bridges, hike and wade rivers."

The Allen, Capitol and Imperial Theatres of Montreal showed the first pictures of the floods to their patrons on Sunday, June 11th, hardly three days after the first news of the floods had come over the news wires.

MT. JULIAN WOMEN'S INSTITUTE MEETING

ADDRESSED BY MRS. R. H. CRONK OF PICKERING.

The meeting of the Mount Julian Branch of the Ontario Women's institute, was held at the home of Mrs. Wm. Thompson, Mount Julian.

The members were fortunate in having for their lecturer this year, June 16th, Mrs. R. H. Cronk of Pickering, who is well fitted after five years experience, to give information of interest and value to the members. Her excellent address on "The Needs of the Rural Communities" and "The Home," was much apreciated by all.

Mrs. Cronk could not fail to be gratified by the number present and the attention paid to her lecture, and also by the programme given by the members, namely:

EJECT RELIGIOUS SECT WITH FORCE.

CAPETOWN, June 28. — A native religious sect which calls itself the "Israelites" under a 'prophet" named Enoch, who refused to evacuate government lands at Bulhoek, near Queenstown, Cape Colony, has been forcibly ejected, losing 171 killed and 126 wounded in a fight with mounted Cape police.

For some years past the government had permitted the "Israelites" to celebrate "Passover" on a common but each year a growing number of the pilgrims remained behind on what they called "holy ground" until a vilage of some 350 huts had sprung up. The sect forbid anyone to enter the village or to recognze any authority except orders from "Jevohah, the God of Israel,' as interpreted by Enoch the prophet.

The government some time ago endeavoured to register the settlement but the police were obliged to withdraw to avoid bloodshed.

Peaceful efforts by the Secretary for Native Affairs and others to induce the "Israelites" to withdraw failed. They steadfastly refused to go.

Finaly a force of 800 mounted police moved from Queenstown to demand the surrender of the village. With shouts of "Jehovah says we must fight," 4,000 natives charged the police with swords and assegais, the women urging on the men with wild religious chants. The police let them come on until within 30 yards, and then fired, with the result stated. Thereupon the prophet Enoch surrendered and the village is to be demolished.

The affair has caused some stir in the Cape House of Assembly. Premier Smuts declared that in view of the natives' obstinacy, there was no other way to make them understand that they must obey the law.

Ina Claire is in the hospital for a minor operation.

Justine Johnson is a riot in London and Paris.

Marie Prevost will star in pictures of the Connie Talmadge type.

Frank Keenan is to play "Rip Van Winkle" on the stage.

Herbert Rawlinson will play the lead with Priscilla Dean in "Conflict."

Marguerite de la Motte, Fairbanks' leading lady, was severely burned recently while making "The Three Musketeers."

Lillian and Dorothy Gish are again playing for D. W. Griffith, who made them.

Both of them are living in New York, but motor to the Griffin studios at Mamaroneck every day for work on "The Two Little Orphans." Griffith is planning to make this the picture of his career.

Cullen Landis has a racing car which is almost entirely of his own construction. He assembled the engine alone.

Would You Help a Blind Woman?

(1)

CAN you think of anything quite so pathetic as a blind woman? She cannot see the flowers or the trees, the fields or the sky,—!

You can help these women carry their burden of eternal darkness more easily.

There is a comfortable house at 331 Sherbourne Street in Toronto, where homeless Canadian blind women find a home. It is called "Clarkewood", and was purchased about a year ago by our organization—the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

During the day, the blind girls and women who live there make aprons, kimonas and nightdresses in our Blind Women's Workshops. They pay a part of the money they earn to help pay for their board and lodging. In the evenings they play games, read their specially printed books, knit, sew, sing, and listen to music.

Since "Clarkewood" became a realized fact, happiness and joy have come into the lives of these homeless girls and women who will never see again.

But "Clarkewood" must be maintained. We turn to you, in good hope, to-day to ask for your generous help. Subscribe liberally to the Institute and enable us to still further lighten the darkness of those girls and women whose only fault is their handicap.

LOADING MACHINE.

It's quick work that's needed when the sub does come up. Sudden work; immediate, active, accurate work; and work that's swiftly sure. Or else down goes another victim just like a big tin McGinty.

To attain this suddenness is the loading machine's raison d'etre, which is French for, "Eventually, why not now".

A five-inch breech, lever, plug and all, is taken from an old gun and mounted on legs. With dummy shell and sand bar a green crew can be hammered into shape for the real thing. The real thing is about 25 shots per minute on a dark night with the ship rolling 20 degrees on each side of the vertical. It's about the realest thing there is, up to and including cold steel itself.

This drill game gets monotonous. After the two-millionth load the fun of competition shades off into a rivalry between one plugman and the next to see who can come the nearest to smashing the whole mechanism by slamming his steel cork home hardest. Since a half dozen men couldn't much more than burr the tough metal, even this little pastime loses its punch.

One day aboard the U. S. S. ——— things brightened up a bit. A college highbrow had come in as a seaman. He at once doped out a psychological method of trimming two seconds off the loading time, and thereby cleaning up a few side bets for his crew.

His idea was based on the expectancy of vision, or persistence of it, or some such wrinkle. He figured that if on the third load the men went through all the motions of putting shell and powder into the gun, but really didn't, anyone not in on the game would fail to notice the omission and that much time would be saved. In the crash and bang and wild antics of loads in 20 seconds one's senses can scarcely grasp small details.

The scheme worked smooth as Albany grease. "Holy Trunnels!" exclaimed the bosun's mate, studying his stop-watch. "You ginks are sure getting good. A whole second off that time. Next crew up!"

The next crew had always been hummers. It got their goat to have anyone else even equal their score. Took it as a kind of insult. And Short, the gun captain, always made it plain that there was something crooked if he and his bunch were beaten. This time he whipped out a whizz of a load that lopped the High-second.

A couple of more rounds went off, each time the Highbrow's skipping the third shell but opening the breech and going through the motions. And each time old Short pretty near missed stays in the way he took on with his own crowd before they'd keep up to time.

Finally he let go and hailed taut: "You text-book tadpoles!" he roared, aiming at the Highbrow, "we'll take you on for a floater a load." (Floater is a dollar, which of course doesn't float if dropped overboard—and is therefore called so.)

"Alright," says the Highbrow, squinting as if he still had off his specs. Then to his crew: "Stand close, fellows," he winked, "and make it s rong!"

That time a whole two seconds came off the best previous. Shorty was the only one who didn't seem profanely interested. He stood off and grinned.

"Don't forget them floaters!" he reminded everybody as his men stood up to the dummy. "Load!" he flung through his teeth, and the sailors jumped like monkeys.

As the sixth shell clanked home and the breech smacked the bosun's mate clicked his watch. To the murmur of protest he answered: "Short said to—it beats the others, but of course it's only for six loads. So the money—"

"So the money's ours," yelled Short into the Highbrow's face. "Ain't it?"

He had discovered the artifice and had traded upon it before he told he knew. The Highbrow paid the bets. Brains are not always worth money even with loading machines.

Not when Short is there, at any rate. . . . .

That Corn
ends tonight

Make that resolve and watch what Blue-jay does.

Apply it with a touch—the liquid or the plaster. The corn pain will cease at once. In a little while the whole corn will loosen and come out.

This is the scientific method and is right. A famous chemist perfected it. This world-famed laboratory stakes its reputation on it.

It is gentle, yet sure. The old, harsh methods are not in favor now.

Over 100 million corns

Blue-jay has ended at least a hundred million corns. Now it is ending, probably, 20 million corns a year.

It has brought to multitudes freedom from corn aches.

Such a relief—easy, quick and simple—deserves your test. Try it on one corn tonight.

FASHIONS IN BRIEF.

Peach is a popular shade for organdies and lingerie.

The sash tying in a huge bow on the hip is still a favorite.

Rickrack braid edges some of the smart gingham morning frocks.

Jumper dresses of wool jerseys are designed to wear over shirtwaists.

However much your new gown is draped, there is a way of showing the slim uncorseted line—and it is smart.

Cut outs of leather form the trimming for many of the new hats. They are found most often in white or blue hats.

Long loose coats of taffeta are to be worn much this summer. Many of them have thin muslin linings usually quite bright in color.

The newest thing in petal effects is to have each irregular row of petals shade into a darker one. The heaviest tone is always at the bottom of the gown or wrap.

Vivid colored fabrics are by no means confined to sports garments. Sheer organdy dresses, made on decidedly dressy lines, feature bright red or bright green, sometimes embroidered or otherwise trimmed in touches of white.

WHEN SMARTLY DRESSED

To be smartly dressed, one must have a certain air of elegance, says Vogue; and to have style, one must select one's clothes with common-sense and a little daring and add to them the personal touch of one's own particular invididuality.

Experience begets wisdom — but usually too late in the ame to be of any value.

Story of Wanderings of a Woman Explorer.

Loves to Seek Wild Places With Husband.

Treed By Trumpeting Elephants For Two Days.

(By Jane Dixon in the New York Herald.)

Adventure is no longer an exclusive privilege of the trousered tribe. The wide world calls—and to women. In a city smart apartment, on the edge of the once hidebound and conventional encrusted Washington square district, a woman lounged in a deep-armed tapestry chair and related experiences as thrilling as ever illumined the pages of a three-ply thriller.

Mrs. Osa Johnson, wife of Martin Johnson, co-worker and fellow-en-thusiast in her husband's voyages of exploration into unchartered corners of the earth, is blazing a trail where many a future feminine foot may tread.

"It's considerable of a hop from Independence, Kan., to Ceylon, India, and to Thibet," remarked Mrs. Johnson, her brown, close-cropped curls shaking amused accompaniment to meditation. "Seems even longer when you leap by way of Solomon Islands, the Cocoanut Islands, the Hebrides and Borneo. But I love every mile of it."

"Then you are really going with your husband into the elephant lands of India?" was the interviewer's query.

"Indeed I am," came the decisive reply. "Martin isn't going to have all the fun in this family. I have proved to him I can go any place he can go and that my presence is a help instead of a hindrance. I believe the sentiment of that old-time song, The Girl I Left Behind Me, is all wrong. Much rather have my husband hum, She's My Pal."

Mrs. Johnson smoothed out the folds of her fashionable Fifth avenue lace frock and glanced up mischievously through lashes only a shade darker brown than her eyes.

Two Days And a Night in a Tree.

"Ever hear of the time we were treed by elephants in Borneo? No? Talk about excitement—why, an army-navy game isn't in it. We had been following this herd of elephants for weeks. Every time they pitched camp in some verdant spot for a while we did the same. Regular game of tag, only, unfortunately, we were tagged.

"One morning early we had started stalking the big grey fellows. Things were getting pretty tight. We knew there would be a show-down before many hours. Suddenly, without warning, we came upon the herd. There was no time for prepared defense. The only thing we could do was to make for the trees and climb.

"The British government had sent a representative with us into the interior. Lucky for us they did. When the elephants charged Martin beat all monkey records for tree altitude. He pulled me after him, the British guide pushed and together they hoisted me out of danger. I thought surely the poor British chap was going to lose a foot.

"We stayed up in our tree two days and a night while the elephants trumpeted their chagrin from below. Just to show us how angry they were, they pulled up small trees and undergrowths by the roots and tossed them at us.

"We might have been there yet if those great beasts had not lost patience and given us up as a bad job. The minute we were assured they had departed to a safe distance we slid down that tree and evaporated. I don't suppose the stupid elephants realize they lost their one opportunity to break into the movies why, dozens of boys and girls here at home would give almost anything to be starred in a film story, which was exactly what we intended to do with the elephants."

"Did you enjoy the experience?"

"Immensely—afterward. Of course, I might have stayed on out in the Independence and spent those days in the tree embroidering lunch cloths at the Tuesday Afternoon Sewing society. Or I might have been here in New York playing bridge or taking in a matinee.

"Only, as I see it, angry elephants are a heap more exciting than 'no trumps' or the latest musical comedy or even the most recent drama.

"Then, too, I prefer to do my share toward the family fun and fortune. Being a silent partner in my husband's success does not appeal to me. Martin has made a business of adventure. My ambition is to share fifty-fifty in his accomplishments."

At this point in the chat a persistent knocking sounded down the hall.

"My little girl, Bessie," explained Mrs. Johnson. "If you will pardon me I will see what she wants. Or perhaps you would like to meet her. She is getting dreadfully spoiled. She has formed a tremendous appetite for mashed potatoes. If she does not get them when she thinks they are due she raises an awful rumpus."

At the end of the hall passage Mrs. Johnson threw open the door. There, in the middle of the room, stood a large, brown, hairy creature with beady bright eyes, wide grinning lips drawn tight across a set of great ivory teeth and long arms swinging loosely to within a few inches of the floor.

"Now, Bessie," protested my hostess, "how can you forget your company manners so? Haven't I told you not to hammer on the door when we have guests?"

Bessie came forward, thrust out one great paw, curled her arm affectionately about the neck of the dainty little woman with the soft voice. She hung her head. She rubbed the other great paw lightly across the folds of lace.

"Bessie," esplained the lady from Independence, "is our most precious possession. She is a young orang-outang. We met her first away out in Borneo. She was swinging from a rotan vine in the top of a tropical tree. She didn't want to come with us at first, but we caught her and dragged her into camp. Poor baby! She was only two years old, and didn't know there were such goodies as mashed potatoes in the world.

"All Bessie needed was a bit of kind treatment. We made her one of the family there in the wilds. She took to civilization like a fuzzy duck to a pond. At first Mr. Johnson carried her around on his arm, but she has grown so fast and so large she has to do her own walking nowadays. Bessie speaks English, too, with a jungle accent. Most persons cannot understand her, but we can. Such an affectionate youngster. You couldn't help being attached to her."

Wah-Wah and Cuss-Cuss.

Bessie looked up from her dish of mashed potatoes, paused in the transfer of a job of her favorite fruit to her mouth by way of her giant forefinger, and chattered a guttural appreciation.

Bessie's thanks brought strange answering chatters from an adjoining room.

"There are more members of our family," said Mrs. Johnson, beckoning me toward another door. "Meet our little friend, Morty, the wah-wah, and his buddie Howard, the cuss-cuss. Howard is a regular screen actor. When we discovered him in the jungle he ambled out in front of the camera and pulled all his cute bear tricks. The click of the machine didn't bother him a bit. He is a born performer. He was so cunning we brought him along Morty, on the contrary, was camera shy. He had to be shooed into the set, but he had recovered mighty fast. Now you simply can't keep him off the screen."

What is a wah-wah? A tabloid edition of an ape, funny little fellow, so human he startles you. And a cuss-cuss? Borneo's contribution to the teddy bear collection, furry little brown puffball with a million dollars' worth of cub comedy in his system.

Back in the cosy library with its trophies of the hunt picturing the walls and the lady of strange adventure performing feminine rites of the tea table with all the grace of an accomplished daughter of drawing rooms, Mrs. Johnson drifted into reminiscence.

"When Rufus S. Cole, of the Robertson-Cole company, asked Mr. Johnson to undertake an expedition into Borneo in behalf of the R.-C. firm, my husband hesitated. We were just back from the Solomon islands, where a cannibal tribe had held us prisoners until we were rescued by a British man-of-war.

"I suspect Mr. Johnson was a trifle nervous about taking another such chance of having me centered as the piece de resistance of some tribal festive board or of occupying that place himself while I reigned as the favorite of a native chief.

"When I heard of the offer I urged my husband to accept. My toes were itching for the feel of the coral sands. Civilization had begun to pall. Reluctantly he agreed to undertake the journey and permit me to accompany him.

"No hat boxes or warbrode trunks cluttered our baggage. I had learned long ago to adopt the native costume of whatever country we happened to explore. What a glorious feeling! No worry about whether your gown sets right in the back or if the ostrich feathers on your chapeau need curling.

"Our permanent headquarters in Borneo was a tiny two-roomed hut built of bamboo and palm leaves. I washed, ironed and did most of the cooking. The native chef's idea of a meal is confined to fish and rice. He can do more things with these two bases than the king of the Ritz-Carlton kitchen can achieve with a cartload of personally conducted edibles. Rice, for an appetizer, rice soup, rice entree, rice roast, rice dessert and wind up with a tray of rice sweetmeats. A grain of rice is to the South Sea Islanders what a bean is to Mexico.

"My costume consisted of an upper garment of linen or cotton cloth, nothing more than a sack with a top hole in it for the head and two side holes for the arms. This garment, reaching slightly above the knees, was the sole covering worn by most of the natives. I added a pair of khaki breeches and light cotton or linen one-piece undergarments.

"There was no necessity of mending my silk stockings, because there were no silk stockings to mend. I wore the nether garments of the current Broadway chorus, flesh colored, au naturel, and a pair of native sandals. Much of the time I went barcheaded, allowing my hair to hang straight out, or braiding it, until I discovered the desirability of clipping it short. In the blazing sun I protected my head with a broad cool, native hat woven of palm leaves.

"Once, for a period of seven months, Mr. Johnson and myself were on an island with 4,000 blacks, and not a white man or a word of English except as spoken to each other, in all that time. Lonely? Never. Any time I felt the call of home I took my camera, went out and found a hundred fascinating reasons why I should be where I was.

"We've hacked our way through the jungle for days. We've forded swift running streams and others whose slumberous depths held who knows what sharp or poisonous fate. We've pushed aside clinging tropical growth to see the python dozing in glistening coiled repose along the giant branches o the banyans. We've marveled at a myriad orchids purpling the walls of some hidden grove or drifting through the tangled trees like winter snows. We've watched the flashes of scarlet and green and blue and gold ird creatures parroting the news of our invasion to their forest comrades. We have known the shudder of fear, the sigh of relief, the thrill of accomplishment. The thought that I should never again partake of the adventure of life in strange lands among strange peoples would make me miserable. I love my explorings as a musician does his music or a painter his pictures. Every man to his game, and every woman, too."

Was Always a Tomboy.

Mrs. Johnson was asked if she had any special preparation for her work in the femininely rare field of exploration.

"No," said she. "Mother tells me certain of her friends out in Independence used to remonstrate with her over what they believed was my inclination to be a tomboy. I found it lots of fun to chase jack rabbits through the fields, and I had a speaking acquaintance with all the birds and horses and dogs and cats in the neighborhood.

"When I reached the ripe age of fifteen I met Mr. Johnson. He had lately returned from his voyage around the world with Jack London on the forty-three foot schooner the Snark. Naturally he was a great hero in my mind.

"We married and settled down in a little home. I was so young I couldn't understand why it was not quite fair for me to spend most of the time with mother. My husband decided the proper way to make me grow up was to take me on a long trip. So I donned long dresses and high hair and away we skipped to the South Sea Islands. They haven't decided yet out in Independence whether I am a world beater or just plain crazy. I thought of taking Bessie with me for a visit to mother, but Martin advised me to use discretion. No doubt he was right. Bessie would have been a bit more than Independence could understand."

A few weeks and the Martin Johnsons will be on their way to the elephant regions of India. Their purpose is to film the beasts in their native haunts. Mr. Johnson will be head camera man. Mrs. Johnson will be first assistant. They will share, Osa and Martin Johnson, alike in the fruits of their adventure.

WOMEN MERCILESS? NOT WANTED ON JURY

Trial of Women of Three Generations Charged With Murder Is Started.

CLEVELAND, June 27.—Trial of Mrs. Eva Katherine Kaber for the murder of her husband, Daniel F. Kaber, wealthy Lakewood, Ohio, publisher, promised to be a battle of medical experts.

County Prosecutor Edward C. Stanton said to-day he would be prepared to show by expert testimony that Mrs. Kaber was not insane at the time she is charged with having plotted against the invalid publisher's life. A plea of temporary insanity is the main reliance of the defense, according to Attorney Francis W. Poulson.

Mrs. Kaber's attorneys have indicated that they will make a determined effort to keep women off the jury. "The history of the world shows that whenever one woman has sat in judgment against another of her sex, she has been hard on that woman," Poulson said to-day. "My experience has been that women jurors are more merciless and cold-blooded than men." About one-third of the names on the court jury list are women.

Besides Mrs. Kaber, those under indictment for the alleged murder include her daughter by a former marriage, Miss Marian McArdis, Mrs. Kaber, mother, Mrs. Mary Brickel; Mrs. Emma Colavito, fortune teller, who, it is charged, hired the two male assassins; Sam Cala, one of the hired assassins, and Vitore Piselli, the other assassin. Pisselli has not yet been apprehended.

UNCLE SAM MAY TRY GET PAYMENT IN GOODS.

Washington Officials Believe It Would Solve War-Debt Problem.

WASHINGTON, June 27. — Payment in commodities instead of coin may solve the problem of getting from the Allies the 10,000,000,000 war debt owed to the United States.

Treasury Department officials, it was learned to-day, have considered such a solution. Secretary Mellon, in appearing before the Senate Finance Committee on the debt situation this week probably may be questioned on the possibility of obtaining payment in goods.

Payment of world debts in coin is creating havoc in the international exchange markets. Settlement of the foreign debt to the United States was deferred three years by the Wilson administration, because of the danger of throwing the exchange market into confusion.

The United States needs millions of dollars worth of goods annually from Great Britain, France, Italy, Greece, and other nations which owe money to the United States.

DEVIDALIZED BROADWAY SUCCUMBS TO DELUGE OF ORANGE JUICE AND SODA

FAMOUS BARS, RESTAURANTS AND HOTELS OF A FEW YEARS AGO GIVE WAY TO ICE CREAM AND SOFT DRINK PARLORS; STREET "DEAD" AND JUST REALIZING IT.

NEW YORK, June 28.—W. W. Stout writes as follows in The Globe: Macaulay's New Zealander, who has a date to sit on the ruins of London Bridge in the year 3,000 and contemplate the corpus delicti of the British capital, needn't wait that long. The ruins of Broadway invite his immediate attention.

Broadway still meanders from Bowling Green to Yonkers and no jimpson weed grows in the pavement. A stranger might even suppose that, like the circus, it is bigger and better than ever. Only a stranger would suppose so.

As a street it persists and thrives, but as an institution it has gone where the woodbine twineth. The hard drinking, high living highway that thought buttermilk one of the funniest words in the language, the Broadway that was another name for New York to the outside world, is dead and beginning to realize it. All the Brewers' Big Horses and the wine agent men can't put Humpty Dumpty together again.

Old Crow Reformed.

Relatives and friends, who wish to view the remains are advised to start at Twenty-seventh street. There is the head office of Nedick, the orange juice man, who inherited Broadway. Across the street is the Old Crow bar attempting to lead a reformed life as a white front restaurant under the old name. Old Crow was an inspiring name for a bar. For a restaurant it is not so happy.

At Twenty-eighth street the De Marini nude, the stuffed muskellunge, and the two Moose heads stare reproachfully down from the wall of what once was the Breslin bar. They belong to a guest who put them there years back for lack of a better place and now must pay storage on them. The bar, which has been kidding itself along as a lunch room, has been rented. The stories those bull moose and that muskellunge used to listen to! The life they used to lead!

Across the street is the old Gilsey House, once a hotel of the first rank, whose history runs back almost to the time when good corn whiskey, tax free, sold for 25 cents a gallon, and liberty had not perished from the earth. The Gilsey House seems to have seen it coming. It quit business years ago. The bar to which Weber and Fields refreshed themselves between acts is piled high with trunks and leather goods.

Small Town Lumber Yard.

A hundred yards off Broadway in Twenty-eighth street, across from what is left of the Weber Theatre, is a lumber yard. It is just an ordinary lmber yard with a board fence and stacks of white pine behind it such as would be in character on Main street in Gopher Prairie.

"That's what Broadway has come to," mourned the man who could take it or leave it alone. "A dinky, little, small town lumber yard.

It's all very true, but the lumber yard has been there since the Bronx cocktail was a novelty. Only it was not so noticeable then. When our rollicking fathers rolled out of the Gilsey House bar they could afford to overlook a lumber yard, even a dinky one.

"What do you expect us to do; put in a marble front with plate glass windows?" the manager complained. "It's a good central location for a lumber yard and that's all there is to it. No, prohibition hasn't affected our business."

Seltzer and Vinegar.

At Thirtieth street stools have been installed at the bar at the Hotel Imperial and a vinegar cruet stands where the seltzer bottle once did. Another block up is the old Martinique. The rear half of the bar-room has been dismantled, the front rented to a furnishing goods shop where no customer invites another to have a 15½ collar on him or insists on just one more suit of athletic underwear before the party breaks up.

It is in this block that the Anti-Prohibition Parade Committee has set up its headquarters. The committee picked the right street. If its good judgment holds out, it will send the Fourth of July parade down Broadway and not Fifth avenue.

It is a hot Saturday afternoon. In the cool and commodious bar-room of the McAlpin, where the bar has been cut down six-foot length and the salvaged space filled with tables, three men are drinking ginger ale. A white-jacketed professional man behind the bar, the only other occupant, stares absently at his fingernails.

From Herald Square to the outskirts of Times Square there are few tombstones of the dear departed past but the Hotel Continental where the bar has become the office and the office a Western Union branch provides a shudder.

It would be hard to convince a traffic policeman that Times Square is not what it used to be, but you can't fool anyone with a memory. Look at the Hotel Knickerbocker become an office building and a crowd that blocks the sidewalk gawking at a simpering young woman in a drug store demonstrating rouge and powder on her own face. This was once the front of the bar where hung Maxfield Parrish's "Old King Cole," that merry old soul who didn't call for a frosted chocolate.

An electric sign on the New Amsterdam Theatre roof still proclaims the "New Midnight Frolic" and a red exit light still burns in the roof garden where the tables are piled as they were when Little Boy Blue Ziegfeld kissed them and put them there. The exit light rather rubs it in. There's nothing left to exit.

Chastened Existence.

At the Astor the second room clerk has to ask the first key clerk before he can recall where the barroom used to be. It is discovered leading a chastened existence as an overflow grill.

The Claridge bar, on the brass rail of which every actor in forty-eight States rested a foot sooner or later, has become a glorified ice cream parlor where the ladies of Broadway wait for tables at which they pay forty cents for an ice cream soda.

Further up the street a clothing store usurps the better part of what once was Rector's, a cabaret from which a famous musical comedy took its name. Jim Churchill's has became a chop suey station, and Dreamland an "auto saloon," "saloon" being used in a Parisian or Pickwickian sense.

If the mourners are gluttons for punishment let them pass on by Columbus Circle where Reisenweber's puts forth such efforts to one-half of one per cent. dissipation as it can, and turn into Central Park West and the bar-room of the Century Theatre. Where is the cut glass of yesteryear? The glistening rows of many shaped goblets have gone to the antique shop and a dozen bottles of soda pop defile the fixtures that were the pride of a celebrated cabinet maker.

$11,000 a Year.

It is a hot June night and the curtain is down on an intermission of a musical show. A boy stands behind the bar. Steps are heard on the stairs. Two men enter. They ask: "Where is the check room?" They are told. They leave. No more come. The bartender, if he may be so called, returns to the next day's entries at Belmont.

Out in Broadway the cash register of an orange juice stand chirps cheerily. There was one orange juice stand in New York in 1913 and it was a failure. One company has sixty now, ten on Broadway, and pays as high as $11,000 a year for ten feet of space.

This Is Better Than Laxatives

One NR Tablet Each Night For A Week Will Correct Your Constipation and Make Constant Dosing Unnecessary. Try It.

Poor digestion and assimilation mean a poorly nourished body and low vitality. Poor elimination means clogged bowels, fermentation, putrifaction and the formation of poisonous gases which are absorbed by the blood and carried through the body.

The result is weakness, headaches, dizziness, coated tongue, inactive liver, bilious attacks, loss of energy, nervousness, poor appetite, impoverished blood, sallow complexion, pimples, skin disease, and often times serious illness.

Ordinary laxatives, purges and cathartics—salts, oils, calomel and the like—may relieve for a few hours, but real, lasting benefit can only come through use of medicine that tones up and strengthens the digestive as well as the eliminative organs.

Get a 25c box of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) and take one tablet each night for a week. Relief will follow the very first dose, but a few days will elapse before you feel and realize the fullest benefit. When you get straightened out and feel just right again you need not take medicine every day—an occasional NR Tablet will then keep your system in good condition and you will always feel your best. Remember, keeping well is easier and cheaper than getting well.

Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) are sold, guaranteed and recommended by your druggist.

NO EARLY END OF PREMIER'S STAY.

Imperial Conference May Continue Until August.

LONDON, June 27.—The Imperial Conference, which reassembled to-day, and which was expected to enter upon a serious discussion of the various problems it was called to consider, is likely to last much longer than originally was proposed, probably throughout the month of July. Even then, it is believed, it will be found necessary to postpone action on many subjects pending further discussion.

Possibility of delay in the proposed daily meetings also is seen in the fact that Lloyd George has invited Eamonn de Valera and Sir James Craig to come to London for a discussion of the Irish problem.

During the past week there has been a full confidential reviewing of the Empire's foreign policy, but none of the speeches delivered in this connection will be made public. There has been a noticeable development recently in press comment on the subject of the renewal of the Anglo-Japanese treaty. Hitherto it had been generally assumed that the Government policy contemplated renewal of the treaty, but with modifications clearly defining its position with respect to the United States and China. A number of influential papers, however, in their most recent comment, have favored the idea of replacing the treaty by some tripartite agreement or understanding between Great Britain, the United States and Japan, which would regulate all questions concerning the Pacific Ocean and China.

This idea appears to be the outgrowth of a proposal raised in some quarters that the United States be brought formally into the treaty, and is advanced because it is considered that there may be serious drawbacks to any extension of defensive alliances. It is argued that while such alliances exist it is hopeless to expect any serious effort at disarmament.

Millions of People Are Suffering

Indigestion, Headaches, Constipation, Sallow Complexions, Kidney Pains, Rheumatism are all caused from a poisoned system, due to the Liver. Doctors recommend that you take one Tanated Calomel tablet before each meal, or two at bedtime, and in a few days your pains will disappears, your complexion will become clear and you will feel keen, bright, vigorous and life once more will be worth living. The wonderful success of this new drug (Tanated Calomel) is due to the fact that it is the only drug known that acts upon the Liver. No Salts or Seidlitz are necessary to remove it from the system, as it is self-illiminating. You, no doubt, have taken all sorts of medicine for your particular ailment, but you never get permanent relief, because the medicines you have been taking do not act upon the Liver. Doctors now say that 90 per cent. of all ailments are due to the inactivity of the Liver. A poisoned system soon decays, and that is why I would recommend that you go to F. C. Webber's, Charlotte street, and get a box.

SOCIETY BEMOANS SEASON'S FAILURE.

London Dull Socially, Gayety Dampened By Coal Crisis.

LONDON, June 28.—All society is bemoaning the failure of the London season. The week preceding the Derby should have seen social gayety approaching its height, but the widespread effects of the coal crisis have put a damper on the round of pleasure scheduled for this time of the year, and old stagers find it hard to recall any similar period when so little private entertaining was done.

No society debutantes are coming to town. Shortage of money has caused many society folk to cancel all their London engagements and to spend the summer as cheaply as possible in the country. By the King's desire, courts have been postponed and hotels and theatres are reporting slumps.

There are a number of overseas visitors in London, but "not enough to go round," as one hotel manager put it, and were it not for the Americans who have come over for the polo games, those who have to live out of profits made in the season would be in despair.

Dressmakers, tailors, and entertainment caterers are doing next to nothing, the reason being that the present period of industrial unrest makes it impossible to see a month ahead.

Efforts were made to make the Henley Regatta a social success. Henley is always a gay dress pageant. According to the fashion papers, the modish colors are yellow and red, with flower and fruit designs and with hats trimmed with wreaths of imitation vegetables.

The only benefit the coal strike has conferred upon London is the absence of smoke and fog. The continued clearness of the atmosphere is surprising Londoners, who are discovering views of their city the existence of which they hardly suspected.

Public health has benefitted very greatly, according to official health statistics. There has been an astonishing decrease in bronchial and pulmonary complaints. Pneumonia cases have gone down as much as 50 per cent. compared with March.

Dr. John S. Owens, chief of the advisory committee to the Meteorological Office on atmospheric pollution is the authority for saying that London's air has now reached a purity never before attained under modern conditions of life.

SHAUGHNESSY—GOSELIN.

A very pretty wedding was solemnised at the Church of the Sacred Heart this morning at six o'clock, by Rev. J. J. O'Brien, assisted by Rev. M. J. McHenry, when Mary Agnes, daughter of the late James Goselin, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Vincent Shaughnessy, son of Mr. Stephen Shaughnessy, of this city. The bride entered the church on the arm of her brother, Mr. James Goselin, Jr., to the strains of the wedding march played by Mr. J. Armstrong. She was charmingly attired in a suit of navy tricotine, with seal scarf and black hat, and carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses. Miss Annie Goselin acted as bridesmaid, wearing French blue, with hat to match, and carrying pale pink carnations. Mr. Joseph Shaughnessy supported the groom. Immediately after the ceremony, a dainty wedding breakfast was served to about forty guests at the home of the bride, 45 Crescent Street, where the decorations were prettily carried out in yellow and white daisies. Mr. and Mrs. Shaughnessy left on the 8.10 train for Toronto, Niagara Falls, and Buffalo. They will reside in Peterborough. The groom's gift to the bride and bridesmaid were amethyst rosaries. Many useful and pretty gifts testified to the popularity of the young couple.

Born in Valparaiso, Chile, May 17, 1860, the son of Robert Wylie and Jane Ross, of Kilmarnock, Scotland, Mr. Wylie came to Canada about 40 years ago and settled originally at Bell's Corners, where he opened a carriage and wagon building shop. Moving to Ottawa in the late eighties, Mr. Wlylie formed a partnership with Mr. Richard Shore, and started in business in a small way at Slater and Kent streets. Mr. Wylie soon acquired an extensive reputation as a clever carriage and wagon builder.

His ability brought him in touch with Messrs. Thomas Ahearn and Warren Y. Speer, who had a short time previously launched the Ottawa Electric Railway Company. The first eelctric street cars used in Ottawa were manufactured in St. Catharines.

DETROIT WISHES TO DRAW POWER FROM ONTARIO

MAYOR COUZENS NEGOTIATING WITH SIR ADAM BECK FOR TEN-YEAR CONTRACT.

DETROIT, June 28—Mayor James Couzens has informed the council that he has been negotiating for several weeks past with the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission for the importation of Niagara Falls electric power into Detroit.

These negotiations had proceeded to such a point, the Mayor said, that the city could enter into a ten-year agreement with the commission and get 25,000 to 60,000 horsepower into the city by autumn. This would be used to run the municipal street railway line. By the end of the contract period it would be possible to get as high as 90,000 horsepower into Detroit, which would be more than sufficient to supply the needs of the municipally owned lines and the Public Lighting Commission. This surplus, the mayor said, could be sold to the citizens. The householders could get this power for cooking purposes at prices cheaper than they now pay for gas, he said.

PARIS, June 28. Canadian Press. Many Canadian and United States Rotarians arived in Paris yesterday, in advance of the main body of the delegates, who are expecting to reach here on Friday and Saturday for their offiril visit to France.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, June 28.—(Canadian Press.)— Leading shares were strong at the opening of to-day's stock market. Transportations made initial gains running from large fractions to 1 1-2 points in response to the proposed plan of the Washington administration to fund the country's railroad debt. Oils, Shippings, Motors and Steels also made substantial advances. The market soon became unsettled, however. Mexican Petroleum forfeiting its advance of 3 1-4 points, while United States Rubber reacted about 2 points to a new low record.

Buying of Steels and Equipments and a brisk rally in oils under the lead of Mexican Petroleum lifted the markept out of its rut in the final hour. The closing was strong. Trading in stocks to-day was dull and narrow, although developments relating to market values and foreign exchange were mainly favorable. Sales approximated 550,000 shares.

Rails displayed more stability than any other group, adding in several instances to the opening gains. Mexican Petroleum extended its loss, but soon made a half-way recovery. Other reversals and rallies of the morning were led by Shippings, Tobaccos, Rubbers and several of the Steels and Equipments, notably Bethlehem and Harvester. Sears Roebuck continued to feature the heavy specialties with some of the prominent Chemical and Fertilizer issues. Call money opened at 5 per cent. and the firmer rate of exchange on London was attributed to the virtual settlement of the British coal strike.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, June 28.—(Canadian Press).—Sterling exchange steady; demand 3.75 3-4; cables 3.76¼; Canadian dollar, 12 per cent. discount.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, June 28.—(Canadian Press3.—A decline of three points in Canadian Pacific featured the extremely dull session of the local Stock Exchange this morning. This stock was the only issue on the board to show any variation in prices from the opening quotations, and the sales of 101 shares exceeded that of any stock on the list. At the close, Spanish River showed an advance of 1 point over yesterday's last quotations, with a hundred shares changing hands at 48½. Business in war loans was fairly brisk, with prices at the close from ten to forty cents off.

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, June 28.—(Canadian Press).—The local Stock Exchange was quiet during the early trading this morning. Abitibi opened a quarter point lower at 25, while Atlantic Sugar was fractionally stronger at 25½.

Brompton strengthened an eighth of a point to 23. Dominion Steel was down half a point at 23½, and National Breweries a quarter at 47 3-4. Spanish River remained unchanged at 48.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 28.—(Canadian Press).—Wheat prices declined today largely in response to talk of possible strike troubles affecting railroads and elevators. Besides country sales, especially in the south-west, appeared to be on a heavy scale. Demand here was confined for the most part to houses with eastern connections. Opening quotations, which varied from unchanged figures to 2¼ cents lower, with July 126 to 127 and September 122½ to 123½, were followed by a material set-back all round and then something of a rally.

Corn declined with wheat, and touched new low record prices for the season. After opening 1-8 to 7-8 off, including September at 61½ to 61⅛, the market underwent a further sag.

Oats turned downward as a result of the action of other cereals, starting unchanged to ¼ cent lower, September 39 1-8, and later showing losses for all deliveries.

Higher quotations on hogs gave firmness to provisions.

Several breaks in the price of wheat took place to-day, some sales showing a loss of as much as 9 cents a bushel, compared with yesterday's finish. Free selling on the part of country holders was largely responsible. July delivery fell to 119¼, and closed greatly unsettled at all the way from 119½ to 122.

LIVE STOCK MARKET.

TORONTO, June 28.—(Canadian Press.)—Cattle market receipts 545, trade draggy. Quotations: Heavy beef steers, $7.50 to $8; butchers' steers, choice, $7.50 to $8; butchers' cows, medium, $3 to $5; calves, $8 to $10; lambs, $13 to $14.50; hogs, a few selects, $13 to $14.50.

LACROSSE NOTES

WEIGHT NOT NECESSARY FOR HOME PLAYERS

(By H. S. MURTON in Toronto Telegram.)

Weight on a home is a good thing to have, but many homes have proved that it is not indispensable. One must do the best with what one has. And when weight is spoken of, dead weight is not what is required, but active dynamic weight, which is employed to the last ounce in the struggle against more massive opponents. For instance, I will recall a match which the Tecumsehs played in Montreal against the M.A.A.A. team. I think it was in 1910, at any rate in the year when Coach Shaughnessy made his first appearance with that club. An easy victory was looked for as the winged-wheel team had been dropping their matches with great regularity up to that time. It was in August.

Well, probably no home could be assembled with avoirdupois less than the combined weight of the five little men who figured that day, and yet they rolled up a score of some 11 or 13 goals against the stalwart Tecumseh defence. And such lengthy possession of the ball did they hold that the Tecumseh home just managed to ring up 4 or 5 for the day. It was a case of special preparation and a triumph for Shaughnessy. They had had two weeks' practice and went into the game trained absolutely fit, but not over-trained. And though light, each of these men was composed of ruggedness and strength, a little ball of concentrated energy. Georgie Roberts, Frankie Hogan, Johnny Tevden, Henry Scott, Fred Scott and Kane at centre.

Besides having strong legs, their bodies were strong, for part of their training consisted of gymnastics. "The little iron men" they were called. And their condition was such that they buzzed round like so many little hornets. Never a moment was any one of them still when one of their number had possession at their end. Back and forth, in and out they ducked and dodged with the quick abrupt foot work of a skilled boxer, and the big Tecumseh defence was in a panic of anxiety and bewilderment at these elusive little India-rubber figures which led them through such a maze of quick turns. Their passes were kept just exasperatingly out of reach of the big defence sticks until a slip or a false turn let one of them gain a foot or two on the inside, and bag, the net sagged.

AT THE CAPITOL

Tonight and Tomorrow

THERE IS PLENTY OF BASEBALL SCHEDULED FOR THE HOLIDAY

Peterborough fans have no reason to complain of the programme for Dominion Day, for it affords them an opportunity of seeing two rattling good ball games.

In the morning at 10 o'clock the Cobourg team will meet the Petes in a Central League fixture. To stay in the running the Petes have to win this battle, and they may have their hands full, for the Cobourg team has been re-organized and is now under the management of Catcher Tyson, the Rochester boy, who is whipping the team into better shape than it has ever been. The Lakeshore crew will be full of fight and the Petes will have to be at their best to earn a decision.

Manager Nip Dwan's Hillcrests are the attraction in the afternoon. Scott and Co. handed the Petes a bad beating at the beginning of the season and the Solomon crew are out for revenge on the holiday. With Hap Harrison in line they hope to show thir heels to the Dwan outfit. Scott will do the twirling for the Hillcrests. It should be a great battle.

HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP BATTLES

Anybody who wasn't afraid of Jack Johnson and who packed a stinging wallop in either fist was known as a white hope after the Texas negro became heavyweight champion of the world. The first important white hope to tackle Johnson was Stanley Ketchel, whose triumphs had been among middleweights.

He was no match for the powerful Johnson who knocked him out in 12 rounds at Colma, Cal., Oct. 16, 1909. Ketchel weighed only 177 pounds while Johnson's total displacement was 198 pounds.

Only once in the 12 rounds was there an opportunity for the Michigan fighter to win. This was just a moment before the finish when Ketchel sent the champion to the floor with a left swing to the jaw. Johnson toppled over on his back and made several attempts to rise before he succeeded. Whether he was purposely staying down for a rest, no one ever learned.

Seeing that Johnson appeared dazed, Ketchel rushed at the negro as soon as he arose. Johnson calmly awaited the attack and jammed a right and then a left against the challenger's jaw. These terrific swats not only sent Ketchel sprawling on his back, but their force overbalanced Johnson and he, too, fell down. Both men were on the floor when the referee began calling the seconds. Johnson got up, but Ketchel remained prostrate and was counted out.

IMPORTANT GAME IN SOCCER LEAGUE

VETERANS MUST WIN FROM CALEDONIANS TO STAY ON TOP.

An important football fixture is scheduled for to-morrow night. The Caleys will meet the G.W.V.A. at the Oval at 6 o'clock. The Vets are tied with the Woollens for first place with 13 points each, the Caleys are next, and to maintain their position the Vets must come through with a win to-morrow.

WAGERING LIGHT ON SATURDAY'S BATTLE.

Inflow of Currency From France Expected on Eve of Bout, However.

NEW YORK, June 28.—Wagering on the Dempsey-Carpentier bout for the world's heavyweight championship at Jersey City, July 2, is extremely light despite interest on two continents that promises to eclipse that evidenced in any previous title battle. Both men have numerous admirers who, as yet, have failed to back their opinion with much money. Stimulated wagering is expected on the eve of the bout with a probable inflow of currency from France.

According to figures at which some money has been wagered in Wall street, Jack Dempsey seems likely to go into the ring an odds on favorite at 3 to 1. Although in past bouts for the title the champion, almost invariably has been the favorite, not since the Sullivan-Corbett battle has the title holder been so strongly favored in a bout of major worth. Sullivan was a 4 to 1 choice over "Gentleman Jim." Willard was a 2 to 1 favorite over Jack Dempsey when the challenger won at Toledo. Jim Jeffries entered the ring favored at 2 1-2 to 1 to beat Jack Johnson at Reno. Johnson, three weeks before he met Jess Willard at Havana, was a 3 to 1 favorite but these figures shifted as the day of the bout approached and the negro climbed into the ring with the odds of only 6 to 5 in his favor. Jim Corbett as approximately a 2 to 1 shot over Bob Fitzsimmons when they met at Carson City.

The total amount of money wagered on the coming battle to date is estimated by a New York sporting man not to exceed $75,000. A large part of this amount has been placed in so-called "freak" bets. Odds of 9 to 5 have been quoted that Dempsey will win by a knockout. Persons who back Carpentier to drop Dempsey for the count demand odds of 20 to 1. Odds of 10 to 1 have been asked by persons who would wager that Carpentier will not answer the bell for the third round.

Paris, almost hysterical in its enthusiasm for the French war hero, nevertheless is dubious when money is mentioned. Word received here states that Dempsey rules as 8 to 5 favorite on the boulevards, with little money placed.

Betting men believe that the lack of wagering is due largely to the fact that Carpentier's supporters desire unreasonable odds. Also, they declare that the international aspect of the contest, while making for the unusual interest which will draw the greatest "gate" in the ring history, is largely sentimental and not conducive to heavy wagering for the reason.

"The bout does not compare with the Jeffries-Johnson and the Willard-Dempsey battles at a corresponding period," one Broadway man declared. "There was at least $2,000,000 wagered on the result of the Toledo battle and it is safe to say that as much or more changed hands at Reno when Jeffries lost to Johnson."

Inspired by Thomas A. Edison's psychological tests for prospective employes, the admission committee at Oakland Hills Country Club, in its July bulletin, proposes to announce that future applicants for membership shall be required to answer the following questions:

"Why do you think you can play golf?

"What is your favorite alibi? Do you think you can get away with it?

"Have you a goat? If so, do you ever let it out, or lose it?

"What is the shortest putt you ever saw missed? What is the longest putt you ever made and did it go into the cup? (Make affidavit.)

"If prohibition is extended to golf balls, what will you do?

"Are you a good linguist? How large is your vocabulary? Write out a few of your own new ones?

"Are you aware that not to replace your divots is a State Prison offense?

"How do you pronounce 'golf'? Do you put 'ell' in it?

"Have you a golf widow?

"What is the highest score you ever made? (Hesitate before answering.)

"Were you ever on your game?

"What is the correct number of grains of sand to use in your tee?

"Have you ever read the rules of golf? If not, how far did you get in what you did read? What did they mean to you?

NORWOOD VICTORS OVER ZION 13 TO 4

WINNERS WILL PLAY SERIES WITH KEENE FOR HONORS OF FIRST HALF.

At Norwood last evening, Norwood defeated Zion by the score of 13 to 4, and earned the right to play off with Keene for the championship of the first half of the East Peterborough Baseball League schedule. The early stages of the contest saw a scrappy game with Zion leading. In the fifth Norwood took a batting streak and piled up enough runs to make the game safe. The visitors threatened in the seventh, but were held to a brace of runs.

Alex. Kay and Kelvin Murray umpired the game.

The batteries — Zion, Rice and Caoughlin; Norwood, Green and Andrews.

Norwood and Keene will play home and home games and a third game if necessary to decide a winner for the first half.

Westclox Vs. Barrie's.

Westclox and Barrie's will play a Mercantile League game at the Oval to-morrow evening at six o'clock. This game is scheduled for July 2, and has been moved forward at the request of the clock-makers, who commence their holidays at the week end. Doughty will be missing from the Westclox line-up. As Barrie's practice at the Oval, the fur-trimmers are expecting a win.

City Leaguers To-night.

Hamilton's and Y.M.C.A. are scheduled to meet at Riverside Park this evening in a City League game, and C.G.E. are down for an exhibition game in Lakefield with the "U.F.O." team.

Tie in Church League.

George St. representatives in senior division of the Church Baseball League, tied up the series by defeating Park street team by 19 to 5 at the Oval last evening. The two teams will fight it out for the championship.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE ALLEN.

Pauline Starke, who appears in the Goldwyn production of Katherine Newlin Burt's story, "Snowblind," which comes to the Allen Theatre for two days, commencing to-day, was lame for a few days after her first day's work in the picture, which was taken in midwinter in Canada. Miss Starke wore thirty pounds of woolen socks and overshoes; and the strain affected the muscles of her legs. All the other members of the cast were overtired from the effects of the heavy clothing. Says Miss Starke:

"For over three weeks we wore one pair of felt inner soles, three pairs of woolen socks and over all that a pair of heavy boots. Silk hose and pumps certainly looked good to us when we got back to the Goldwyn studios."

THELMA PERCY MAKES HER COMEDM DEBUT AS MERMAID

Thelma Percy, who is leading woman opposite Jimmie Adams in "High and Dry," latest of the two-reel Mermaid Comedies, at the Allen Theatre to-day, is a younger sister of Eileen Percy, who recently became a star in Fox pictures. While this is her first appearance in fun films, she has had a stage experience of twelve year, starring when she was only six. She was one of the original children in the Maeterlinck sensation, "The Blue Bird," and appeared in "Pickwick Papers," "The Lady of the Slipper" and numerous other successes. She appeared in support of such players as Montgomery and Stone, Elsie Janis and Mary Nash.

Miss Percy went into pictures about two years ago. Serial fans will remember her with Eddie Polo in "The Vanishing Dagger." She also appeared with Sessue Hayakawa in "The Beggar Prince," and in "The Star Rover." However, she determined that her forte was comedy and it is promised that when she is seen in a bathing suit in "High and Dry" all will admit that she is correct in her selection. Much on the action of the picture takes place on the beach and there is a host of bathing girls in typical Los Angeles costume.

AT THE REGENT.

BLANCHE SWEET'S 'THAT GIRL MONTANA" IS GOOD WESTERN

Blanche Sweet as 'That Girl Montana' 'is the kind of girl who, when she has a hard task before her, squares her shoulders, tackles without any preliminaries and worries the dirty work out of sight. 'That Girl Montana" performed delightfully for the first time yesterday at the Regent Theatre, where she will remain until Thursday.

Marah Ellis Ryan wrote the novel of the same name from which Robert Thornby has directed the picture with all the innate love of the outdoor and the red-blooded dramatic power that stamped his direction of "Half a Chance," a previous Jesse D. Hampton-Pathe feature.

Blanche Sweet, breathlessly beautiful at times, and intelligent always, plays the part of a girl who, in the days of the gold rush to the Kootenai district tries to live down a reputation forced upon her by her father, who made her steal and cheat.

Mahlon Hamilton is more than satisfactory as Dan Overton, who loved "That Girl Montana." Clare DuBrey is excellent in the small role of Dan's faithless wife. Kate Price is Kate Price, bless her jolly soul Frank Lanning and Edward Peil give splendid character portrayals, as does Charles Edler as the Indian, Akkomi.

There are some real thrills in "That Girl Montana", and the action is smooth and fast. It is rich in human interest and the love theme is a tender and pretty one. The scenery is some of Nature's grandest—wooded mountain slopes and rushing rivers. It's a romance of the outdoors and very worth seeing.

GREAT PROGRAM AT THE CAPITOL

WALLACE REID AND HAROLD LLOYD IN FEATURE PICTURES.

The Capitol offers a great programme to-night and to-morrow with Wallace Reid in "The Love Special." The beautiful Yosemite Valley forms the background for many of the exterior scenes filmed in this picture, which is an adaptation of "The Daughter of a Magnate" by Frank H. Spearman, a big outdoor production something on the order of "The Valley of the Giants.' Reid plays in this picture the role of a railroad construction engineer, big, virile and thoroughly western. Miss A. Ayres has the leading feminine role and Clarence Burton is the villain, in a thrilling story of western life and romance.

Harold Lloyd, in "Now or Never," hasone of the funniest comedies of his career to complete the bill at Peterborough's new theatre.

AN AMERICAN OPINION.

Frank S. Turnbull, President of Rogers, Poet & Company, says: "To hasten normal conditions every merchant and manufacturer should sell his goods at present replacement values—take their loss on the merchandise that may have cost them more, absorb their loss and not attempt to pass it along to the buying public who for several years have paid good round prices for merchandise, giving handsome profits to merchants, and are now entitled to the first benefits of a falling market."

Science Proves the Danger of Bleeding Gums

Medical science proves that unhealthy gums cause serious ailments. People suffering from Pyorrhea (a disease of the gums) often suffer from other ills, such as rheumatism, anaemia, nervous disorders, or weakened vital organs. These ills have been traced in many cases to the Pyorrhea germs which breed in pockets about the teeth.

Four out of five people over forty have Pyorrhea. It begins with tender and bleeding gums. Then the gums recede, the teeth decay, loosen and fall out, or must be extracted to rid the system of the infecting Pyorrhea germs.

Guard your health and your teeth. Keep Pyorrhea away. Visit your dentist often for tooth and gum inspection, and make daily use of Forhan's For the Gums.

Forhan's For the Gums will prevent Pyorrhea—or check its progress—if used in time and used consistently. Ordinary dentifrices cannot do this. Forhan's will keep the gums firm and healthy, the teeth white and clean.

LIVE A CENTURY BY THIS RECIPE

(By SIR G. SIMS WOODHEAD, Principal of Medical Schools, Cambridge University.)

Metchnikoff said we ought to live till we are 120. I believe that if we come into the world with our full complement of health and strength; if our heredity is all right, if our parents were strong, if we have, as it were, come into the world in normal healthy conditions, we ought to live until we are a hundred.

But as a rule we do not.

There are accidents and there are various sets of conditions which interfere with the normal course of our lives. If you take, as Sir George Humphrey did, a whole series of old people you will find they lived under very good natural conditions. Sixty or seventy per cent. of them were not overactive, but they took plenty of exercise.

Lived Moderately.

When they were young they were not overworked. Their mental development was carried on slowly; their physical development was also carried on comparatively slowly, but equally thoroughout.

They did not overeat or overdrink; they are people who are not poisoned by an excess of the various substances in the alimentary canal, in the stomach and the intestines. The bulk are of equable disposition; they are not straining excessively after things they cannot attain.

In the healthy individual the processes of death take place so equally that no single part of the body gives way before the other.

The tissues of the body develop at very different periods of life. The thymus gland—a gland behind the thorax—is old when we come into the world; and at the age of fourteen it disappears; it has played its part in the earlier period of life.

The brain continues to grow and develop until a comparatively late period of life, but even this has its acme, its maximum at different periods.

The memory may go, but the intellectual power of co-ordination may remain, and so long as you have that the individual is not senile.

The times comes, however, when all these powers give way. They do so suddenly, and people who have lived to a very long life and been healthy die, as a rule, quite suddenly. They fall asleep, without any pain.

Machine Runs Down.

The machine stops; it has run down. That is the perfection of old age.

Why should we not live like that? Unfortunately, we all come into the world at a certain age. One child is born with a good start. It has a healthy body, a mind capable of great development: it is well balanced, and receives from its parents tissues capable of living for a long period. That child, under normal conditions, will live to a hundred.

But the next child, of alcoholic or syphilitic parents, the child that is starved when it comes into the world, will start its life at forty years of age. It cannot live beyond sixty, and in all probability may be cut off very early.

Consider these statistics of people who lived between eighty and a hundred. Fifty-six per cent. had lived in comfortable circumstances; 35 per cent. had been poor; 10 per cent. were affluent.

Ninety per cent. had always enjoyed good health; 92 per cent. had had a good digestion; 88 per cent. had had good appetites as well.

Ninety-four per cent. of these healthy old people had led an active life; 6 per cent. had led a sedentary life; 7 per cent. had lived much out of doors, but they had not carried on their excesses too late in life; they had gradually lowered their activities and I believe that is one of the great secrets of old age. Do any amount when you are young, but gradually ease off when you are getting old.

Another thing is that nearly all old people are good sleepers—I do not mean long sleepers, but sound sleepers. There is a difference.

A Car in which Quality is never Sacrificed for price—a car that, whether it be a trip of 5 or 500 miles you have the assurance of getting there without trouble.

DOMINION LIGHTNING RODS

THE ORIGINAL PATENT SPIRAL FLAT - STRIP COPPER CABLE

In Ontario, fires caused by lightning during ing April and May of last year resulted in the loss of about $160,000,00 worth of farm products and buildings.

There is abundant evidence that such fires could be largely avoided by protecting all farm buildings with a good system of lightning rods.

Reports of Rural Insurance Companies show that properly designed and installed systems of lightning rods afford absolute immunity from injury by lightning, and some companies will not insure a building that is not adequately rodded.

Dominion Spiral Flat-Strip Copper Cable is unparalleled in perfection of design and efficiency.

BURIED IN PETERBORO, TO WHICH HE GAVE THIRTY YEARS OF LIFE

EDWARD J. TOKER, ONE TIME EDITOR OF THE PETERBORO REVIEW, DIED IN TORONTO—FUNERAL HERE YESTERDAY.

Death, on Saturday last, 25th inst., removed from a seven years' period of trial and pain a man, well known in this city and who for thirty years had been identified with its activities and progress. Edward J. Toker passed away at the General Hospital, Toronto.

Reference to the details of his life, for the had passed his 87th birthday while in the hospital, may be of interest. Of English birth and education, his earliest years of manhood were spent in Australia, where he was for some time engaged in sheep farming and afterwards in the coastal shipping service serving to ports along the coast.

Arriving in Canada and coming to Peterborough in the early seventies he was for a time assistant to the late George Barlee in the County Registry office. His liberal education, wide attainments in languages and literature generally seemed to fit him with a store of knowledge that could be used on the newspaper and he became the editor of the Weekly Times, in Peterborough, shortly after its establishment by Walter Walsh and W. H. Robertson. On the publication of the Daily edition of the Weekly Review, in 1879, he took the editorship, and an interest in the business with the late John Carnegie, the firm title being that of Toker & Co. Afterwards the Peterborough Review Printing and Publishing Company was formed, of which Messrs. Carnegie and Toker remained the owners, and in 1887 the control of the Company passed into the hands of Messrs. Carnegie, F. H. Dobbin and S. R. Armstrong.

Mr. Toker, at the time joined the staff of the "Empire" in Toronto. As a newspaper man and writer he had a most extensive knowledge of political affairs which he handled from the point of view of the Conservative party with ability and vigor. He contributed to the columns of the Toronto paper through the political campaigns that followed, his work being marked with a marked earnestness in combatting the views of the opposition press and such as were made public on the platforms.

It may be added that in the Review office, while in control of Toker & Co., publication was begun of the Canada Lumberman. The preparation of the contents of the paper were undertaken by Mr. Toker and the publication, the first devoted to the industry, was a success. Afterwards it was disposed of and removed to Toronto.

When the Empire was merged with The Mail he was asked to go to Ottawa, where he found congenial work in the Department of Agriculture, having charge of the translations branch of the Department, and where his attainments in foreign languages were of large use. He had a gift for intensive compilation of statistics and reports and afterwards was moved to Toronto and given duties in the Labor branch of the Department. Twelve years ago in entering the building he slipped on the stone entrance, (having always had an infirmity in one leg) and fractured his right thigh. Followed a cessation of work and resumption after a period. But the cure was not complete, and for the last five years he had been confined entirely to bed. Complications set in that hastened the end. The body was brought to Peterborough and the funeral to the Little Lake cemetery carried out on Monday afternoon, being attended by members of the local Masonic Lodges and old friends who had known the deceased gentleman in earlier years. He was a Past Master of Corinthian Lodge. The funeral was from Comstock's Rooms, the bearers being Past Masters of the several Lodges, Wor. Bros. H .Rush, A. Stevenson, E. A. Peck, A. C. Herridge, T. E. Bradburn and W. Stocker

In private life he was true to his English traditions Ever the kind, thoughtful and courteous gentleman, ardently lending his abilities to everything that seemed to make for the benefit for the town and its institutions. In his later years in Peterborough he found the Peterborough Club as a home, where he met friends and cultivated to his own enjoyment and that of others the friendships that gained for him the respect and personal regard of a wide circle among those with whom he came in contact.

Of intimate family affairs it may be noted. He married Mrs. Georgina Mathias, widow of the late Wm. Mathias, his daughter from this marriage, Miss Grace Toker, living now in England. His brother, Major General Sir Allison Toker, lives at the Grange, Burford, Eng. Other relatives are Mrs. Georgina Gage, East City, and Mrs. Robert Orde, Otonabee, both cousins. His only sister was Mrs. George Barlee, now deceased.

Arrangements for the celebration of the 12th of July were completed. Lindsay and Emily districts are going to Port Hope. Verulam and several other districts will celebrate in Fenelon Falls.

IS FIRST JURY TRIAL IN MACKENZIE REGION.

Indian Charged With Murder of His Wife and Infant Child.

EDMONTON, Alta., June 28. — Major G. L. Jennings, superintendent of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police here, is escorting the judicial party that is to conduct the trial of Albert Lebeaux at Fort Providence, and will go on from that point to the Arctic coast. He is taking five men to add to the police detachments in the north and will inspect all the posts down the Mackenzie river to Fort McPherson and Herschel Island.

The strength of the mounted police in the north is being increased by the addition of 20 men this year, largely as the result of the new movement into the Mackenzie oil fields. A new post has been established at the Fort Norman well, and the post at Fort Norman proper after being closed down for several years, has been opened. Other detachments all along the way have been strengthened.

Great Slave Lake will be patrolled through the entire section by an auxiliary troop, which will cover both the south and north shores, and the new motor boat Fitzgerald, burning crude oil, from the Mackenzie wells, will patrol the Mackenzie river from Great Slave Lake to Fort McPherson, visiting all the camps and inspecting their sanitary conditions as well as looking after the enforcement of law and order.

The trial at Fort Providence of a slavey Indian charged with the murder of his wife and infant child will be held about the second week in July. It will be the first jury trial ever held in the Mackenzie territory and will therefore be an object lesson to the natives of the north that British law and justice are to prevail in the wilderness. Judge L. Dubuc has been commissioned to try the case, and C. C. McCaul and John G. Cory have accompanied him as attorneys for the prosecution and defence respectively, the latter being retained by the department of Indian affairs. Every provision has been made for giving Lebeaux a full and fair trial.

Another case of much the same kind may develop at Fort McPherson, where an Eskimo is suspected of murdering his wife.

GERMAN LABOR SHY OF SILESIAN CLASH

Heeds Leaders' Warnings Against Being Made Tools of the Nationalists.

While some of the leaders of the insurgents in Upper Silesia, and even the Central Committee of the United Communist Party of Germany, were busy during the early days of the anti-German revolt in the plebiscite district, which was begun under the leadership of Adalbert Korfanty the first week in May, trying to make the German workers believe that the movement was not merely pro-Polish but was of a Bolshevist character and aimed at the taking over of the mine and other property by workers' councils, the cooler heads among the German political and union labor chiefs were active in denouncing this assertion as a fairy story and warning their followers against being drawn into the conflict .Their appeals apparent ly have had the desired effect, as no large section of the German working masses has shown any great eagerness to get mixed up in the Silesian affair.

A manifesto addressed to the working people of Upper Silesia by the General German Trade Union League, the German Trade Union League and the Trade Union Council of Upper Silesia is given as follows in a Breslau dispatch of May 7 to the Frankfurter Zeitung:

"Nationalist fanaticism has again paralyzed the economic life of Upper Silesia and brought incalculable misfortune upon our home. Through force of arms the working population is being hindered from toiling. Thousands have been forced into the ranks of the insurgents against their will.

"Want and misery are the consequences of this lunacy. Women and children are going hungry already. And in addition to the economic misery come the mental torments brought upon many families. Murder, looting and kidnapping accompany the uprising. Fellowworkers, comrades, stop tearing yourself to pieces! The uprising is not directed against capitalism, it is purely political in its aims. Our life necessities will remain the same no matter how the fate of Upper Silesia turns out.

"Resumption of work means the restoration of peace and order. We therefore urgently ask you resume work wherever, it is possible to do so without danger to life or limb, and thus aid in restoring orderly conditions."

Following the issuing of a violent appeal by the Communists urging the German workers to follow the example of their Upper Silesian comrades and use the general strike to prevent any interference by the German or Entente with the progress of the so-called revolution, which appeal led to the suppression of the edition of Die Rote Fahne containing it (as cabled at the time), the Central Committee of the Independent Socialist Party of Germany came out with a pronouncement in the Freiheit of May 8 branding the communist statement as false and calling upon the proletariat not to be made the tool of Nationalist propaganda, no matter how disguised. Only through determined action by the workers of every country against the action at home, combined with international co-operation, could peace finally be secured to the inhabitants of Upper Silesia by the doing away with all "capitalist intrigues and imperialist adventures," was the conclusion of the pronouncement.

BOYS AND GIRLS PIG CLUBS, NOW

DOMINION OFFERS PRIZES TO ENCOURAGE PRODUCTION OF HOGS OF THE BACON TYPE.

During recent years, and particularly during the war period, Canada's export bacon trade developed very rapidly. This is proven by the fact that last year exports of bacon from the Dominion amounted in value to $34,00,000, and that our killings of hogs in eight years doubled in number, while those of Denmark and Ireland decreased considerably. With the return to normal conditions, vigorous efforts will have to be made in order to maintain this position.

The Live Stock Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture has entered upon a special campaign to stimulate the production of hogs of the bacon type. In co-operation with the Provincial Departments, an arrangement has been made to offer attractive prizes to members of the boys' and girls' clubs who exhibit at local fairs, both for quality of product and ability in judging.

Where such clubs do not exist, attempts at organisation will be made. The idea is not only to stimulate and sustain production, but to circulate knowledge of actual market requirements and thus to create a standard type of bacon hog for the entire Dominion.

When it is stated that the British market imports annually 500,000,000 pounds of bacon, understanding is possible of the value of the trade that is at stake. It is hardly necessary to suggest that the hearty co-operation of farmers and everyone interested is hoped for.

Rules and regulations governing the competition may be obtained from the Dominion Live Stock Commissioner at Ottawa.

HALF MILLION FOR FIGHT.

Rickard Withdraws Privilege of Percentage of Gate—Biggest Purse in History.

NEW YORK, June 27.—Jack Dempsey will receive a flat sum of $300,000 and Georges Carpentier $200,000, regardless of the outcome of the championship fight at Jersey City on Saturday.

Tex Rickard, the promoter, has exercised his contract privilege of recalling the previous arrangement whereby Dempsey was to receive 36 per cent. of the receipts and Carpentier 24 per cent.

This guaranteed purse or half a million dollars is by far the greatest in ring history. The highest previous record was $127,500 guarantee for the Dempsey-Willard match at Toledo in 1919.

Would Stop It.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., June 27 —Clinton N. Howard, secretary of the International Reform Bureau, left here to-day for Camden, where he said he would appear before Vice-Chancellor Teaming to seek an injunction to prevent the Dempsey-Carpentier fight at Jersey City on July 2. If he fails to obtain such a writ in the Chancery Court, Howard said he would appeal to the Supreme Court at Trenton.

Mr. Thompson worked on the farm a year and a half ago, butowing to failing eyesight he was compelled to give up work. He says that one day, when he was 85 years of age, he went out into the field and tired out three men on the mower, thus showing his remarkable strength.

OAK HALL

409-11 George St. M. J. MAHER, Manager

We are taught so many things in this world—science, literature, history. Our school curriculums are full of the things that others have learned, yet not one word teaches us how to live and most of us spend our entire life running about like frightened sheep trying to learn and a lot die trying to learn and a lot of us die without finding out. We use all our energy doing and have none left for thinking or for being happy. How much better it would be if we could learn to go a little slower and stop and get our bearings every day.

A most attractive porch or bedroom pillow can be made of gingham in a small check. This should have a ruffle stitch in with the seam all around. WEDDING BELLS

POST—RICKEY.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Rickey, 637 Aylmer street, charmingly decorated for the occasion with field daisies and ferns, was the scene of a quiet but pretty wedding yesterday morning at 10.30, when Alma, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rickey, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to George Harvey, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Post of Brighton, Rev. J. R. Webb performing the ceremony.

The young bride, leaning on the arm of her father, who gave her away, entered the drawing-room to the strains of the Wedding March, played by Miss Elizabeth Webber. Her dainty wedding gown was of ivory charmeuse, with veil and orange blossoms and bouquet of Ophelia roses. Miss Mae Post, the groom's sister, acted as bridesmaid, attired in pink crepe de chine and carrying pink carnations, and Mr. Arthur Clarke of Brighton supported the groom. The Misses Freda Rickey and Ruth Post, in white and carrying June roses, made charming little flower girls. Miss Verna Shore of Campbellford sang "O Promise Me" during the signing of the register. After the ceremony a dainty luncheon was served at tables decorated with bowls of pink roses, the young couple leaving immediately afterwards on a motor trip to Belmont Lake and other points. They will reside in Brighton.

Many pretty and useful gifts testified to the popularity of the young bride, among them a China service from the office staff of the William Hamilton Company.

CRONIN—CLANCY.

A pretty marriage was solemnised at 8 o'clock this morning at St. Peter's Cathedral, when Mary Lillian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Clancy, 186 Dublin Street, became the bride of John Emmet Cronin, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cronin, 577 Walnut Street, Rev. C. J. Phelan performing the ceremony. The bride, wearing a suit of sand tricotine, with small hat of Pekin blue, and corsage bouquet of mauve and pink sweet peas, was given away by her father. Miss Kathleen Clancy, in orchid organdie with hat to match, and carrying a shower bouquet of sweet peas, acted as bridesmaid, and Mr. Alric Letellier supported the groom. The wedding march was played by Miss M. Doherty, and Miss Gertrude Clancy sang an "Ave Maria" very sweetly during the offertory.

After the ceremony a dainty breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, the tables prettily decorated with orchids and roses—only the immediate relatives and friends being present. Mr. and Mrs. Cronin then left immediately by motor for Port Hope, where they will take the International Limited for Detroit and Erie, Pa. On their return, they will reside in Peterborough. Many useful and beautiful gifts testified to the popularity of the young couple, among them a substantial cheque and a complete cabinet of silver from the Grafton Co., Ltd., and a five-piece silver service from the Peterborough staff of the same firm, with whom both contracting parties have been associated for some years.

NORTHEY—CORBETT.

Trinity Church, beautifully decorated by the choir for the occasion, was the scene of a pretty wedding this afternoon at 1.30, when Lillian Grace Edniah, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Corbett, 210 Reid street, became the bride of Lieut. James H. Northey, second son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Northey, of Fenelon Falls. Rev. F. E. Malott performed the ceremony.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her brother, Mr. R. W. Corbett, of Port Angeles, Washington, to the strains of the wedding march played by Mr. George H. King. Her gown was of ivory satin de chine, with corsage and sleeves of shadow lace, court train, and silver slippers. Her tulle veil was prettily caught with orange b[illegible] and she carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and valley lilies.

Miss Vedra Storey, a cousin of the bride, acted as attendant, in pale blue organdie, with hat to match, and a bouquet of roses. Mr. Roy Northey supported the groom. The ushers were Mr. Gordon Lamb and Mr. Lorne Northey.

During the signing of the register, Miss Greta Giles sang "Because."

After the ceremony, a buffet luncheon was served at the home of the bride's parents, the decorations being of sweet peas and hyacinths. The young couple left on the 3.50 C.P.R. train for Toronto, where they will take the boat for Montreal, spending the honeymoon at their cottage at Alexandria Bay. They will reside in Toronto.

The bride's travelling suit was of French blue tricotine, with hat to match, and grey suede shoes.

Miss Corbett was associated with the teaching staff of the Peterborough Conservatory of Music for the last three years, and Mr. Northey served for four years overseas, receiving his commission on the Field.

NOT TO RENEW THE ALLIANCE WITH THE JAP

ALTHOUGH DISCUSSION OF THE TREATY JUST BEGUN THIS FACT HAS BEEN MADE ABUNDANTLY CLEAR.

MEIGHEN URGES SPEED; MAY RETURN JULY 21

(By Grattan O'Leary, Staff Correspondent of Canadian Press.)

LONDON, June 29.— The Anglo-Japanese Alliance is not to be renewed in its present form. Although discussion of the treaty by the conference of British Premiers has just begun, that much has already been made abundantly clear.

Owing to heavy domestic troubles demanding the attention of Lloyd George, the conference is proceeding slowly. Premier Meighen yesterday, however, urged greater speed.

The result of the by-election in Medicine Hat has probably confirmed the Canadian Premier in his determination to sail for home about July 21.

THE WEATHER

The rainfall of yesterday amounted to the considerable total of .71 of an inch. This section was particularly favored as west of Omemee, Bethany and Millbrook very little fell. South and east of Hastings and Campbellford there was little rain. In the section around Oshawa, on Sunday there were copious showers, while here it was extremely warm, and little sign of rain.—W. BOWMAN HAS BUT ONE TO DO THE SLIDING

(Special Despatch to Examiner.)

TORONTO, June 29. — Hon. Beniah Bowman is vastly amused over the statement made by Dr. Edwards, who in speaking at the Frontenac Conservative Association, said, "Beniah Bowman's kids are having a whale of a time sliding down the banisters and riding on the elevators in the Parliament Buildings."

The Minister pointed out that in the first place the report was slightly exaggerated, since he had only one child, and not a whole pack of them, as suggested by the Kingston speaker. In addition his son was attending school and so was not often around the buildings during office hours. Mr. Bowman thought that probably the youngsters referred to were some of the newsboys around the building who may have been seen so desporting themselves after leaving his office.

ORDERED MEN TO TAKE NO FRENCH PRISONERS

LEIPSIG, June 29. — (Canadian Press.)— Lieut.-Gen. Carl Stenger and Major Benno Crusius, former commander of the 53rd German Infantry Brigade in 1914, were placed on trial before the German Supreme Court here to-day on charges preferred by the French government. General Stenger was alleged to have ordered that no French prisoners be taken and Major Crusius was accused of having transmitted this order to the soldiers of the 53rd Brigade. The French government was represented by a commission.

GREEKS EVACUATE ISMID; MASSACRE FEARED BY ALLIES

TOWN IN FLAMES AND PANIC ENSUES IN DISTRICT

LONDON, June 29. — (Canadian Press).—The position on the Ismid Peninsula in Asia Minor, where the Greek and Turkish Nationalist forces are opposed to each other, is obscure, Cecil B. Harmsworth, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, stated in the House of Commons to-day. Information received this morning was to the effect that the town of Ismid had been evacuated by the Greeks and was burning, with the result that there was a great panic in the district. Mr. Harmsworth said there was danger of a considerable massacre, and the Allied representatives were taking steps to prevent such an occurrence.

MAN APPREHENDED ON ROAD, ARMED, AFTER ATTEMPTED ROBBERY NEAR BOLTON, DENIES COMPLICITY.

JAILED FOR CARRYING CONCEALED WEAPONS

(Special Despatch to the Examiner)

BRAMPTON, Ont. June 29.— Robert Wesley Jones, who was apprehended on the road between Palgrave and Bolton, a week ago yesterday when the Imperial Bank officials of Bolton were held up, was to-day sentenced to three months in jail by Magistrate Crawford for carrying concealed weapons.

Jones was carrying a 32 calibre revolver and several rounds of ammunition and pleaded guilty to the charge last Wednesday.

On questioning by Magistrate Crawford and Crown Attorney Morphy he insisted that he knows nothing of the men who took part in the Cedar Mills attack. Had no pals that day and was roaming around, he said, due to restlessness caused by the death of his mother, in Hamilton, seven weeks ago.

LITTLE OVERFLOW OF IMMIGRATION FROM U.S. HERE

PREDICTIONS THAT SUCH WOULD BE THE CASE CONSIDERED PREMATURE.

(Special despatch to the Examiner.)

MONTREAL, June 29.—Declarations to the effect that Canada is to receive the enormous overflow of European immigration now barred out of the United States by the new and drastic restrictions are at least decidedly premature, according to the opinion expressed by officials in Montreal to-day. Unless radical amendments are made to the Canadian immigration laws, the effect of the United States action will hard ly be discernable here, it is declared.

NOT LIKELY TO CALL MOUNTED TO PROTECT THE STRIKEBREAKERS

OTTAWA UNFAVORABLE TO ST. JOHN'S REPRESENTATIONS.

(Special despatch to the Examiner)

OTTAWA, June 29.—Representations looking toward the calling out of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police for the protection of strike breakers on the St. John Street Rail way are likely to be unfavorably received by the Government here.

The proposed wage cut by the Company was submitted to a board of arbitration. The Board ordered a reduction which was not acceptable to the Company but which the men accepted. The company desires a lower cut and the men claim that a lock out has been instituted against them. Now the company desires that the Mounted Police be requisitioned.

CITY WINS IN CIVIC STRIKE; OVER AT NOON

QUEBEC POLICE AND FIREMEN WILL RETURN TO WORK AT TERMS SUBMITTED BY THE CITY.

INCREASE OF FROM 75 CENTS TO $1 A WEEK

QUEBEC, June 29. — (Canadian Press).—The strike of the municipal firemen and policemen here ended at noon.

Mayor Samson, in announcing the end of the strike, stated that the men had agreed to return to duty on the conditions submitted to them by the city, and which were based on the report of the Board of Arbitration which recently inquired into the demands of the men for increased pay. The men will get increases in pay of 75 cents and one dollar a week, according to the length of service. The wage scale of firemen and policemen now runs from $18 to $26 per week.

(Special Despatch to the Examiner)

QUEBEC, June 29.—More than sixty of the striking police men had returned to the posts by noon to-day when the time limit granted by the City Council last night for the return expired. All these men will be fully reinstated and just what action will be taken by the city with regard to those who have not yet returned is as yet undecided. The city's ultimatum proclaimed that the municipality reserved the right to refuse re-engagement to any of the strikers and this appears to have had the result of keeping back all those who led the strikers out. In any event none of the leaders have applied for his former appointment. The police are therefore divided about about evenly, half having returned or will return shortly, while the remainder decided to stay away from the city hall until the "Scabs" are dismissed and all the strikers are re-instated.

The firemen since their walkout have presented a solid front. Not a single defection from their ranks has been reported. These men are loudly denouncing the police for their weakness in returning upon the city's threat of of dismissal, claiming that had both groups remained steadfast the city would have been brought to its knees. Only volunteers are manning the department and these have not been put to a test owing to the absence of fires.

Chief of Police Trudel was enthusiastic over the almost total lack of accidents and public disturbances snce the strike began, despite the number of public attractions and demonstrations which have been in progress. "I believe," he said, "there is no other City in America which could parallel this."

There is no doubt the sudden aggression of the city in placing the leaders under arrest has had the effect of breaking the back of the strike.

OVERRULES MOTION TO QUASH BASEBALL TRIAL

CHICAGO, June 29.— (Canadian Press.) — A motion by the defendants in the baseball trials that the indictments charging conspiracy by Chicago White Sox players to throw the 1919 world's series be quashed as illegal under the Illinois State law was overruled by Judge Hugo Ofreind here to-day.

IF EMBARGO IS NOT LIFTED WE MUST TRY U.S.

HON. DR. TOLMIE APPEARS BEFORE COMMISSION ENQUIRING INTO EMBARGO ON CANADIAN CATTLE.

SAYS WE MUST OBTAIN OUTLET IN THAT EVENT

(By Grattan O'Leary—Staff Correspondent of Canadian Press).

LONDON, June 29.—Hon. Dr. S. F. Tolmie, Canadian Minister of Agriculture, made the following significant statement before the British Commission enquiring into the cattle embargo: "Should the embargo be continued, Canada must endeavor by all means in her power to secure a permanent, unrestricted outlet for her surplus in the United States market."

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, June 29.—(Canadian Press).—With the exception of Mexican Petroleum, which declined 1½ points, price tendencies at the dull opening of to-day's Stock Market were distinctly upward. Speculative interest again centered in Rails and Steels, the chief features of yesterday's rally. Louisville and Nashville, Chesapeake and Ohio, Reading and New York Central displayed marked strength. Bethlehem and United States Steels were in demand with American Smelting, American Sugar, Sumatra Tobacco, Central Leather, American International and Allied Chemical. United States Realty represented the obscure specialties at a gain of 2 5-8 points.

Under steady pressure Mexican Petroleum increased its loss to 3 1-2 points, but the remainder of the list strengthened on light operations. Steels and equipments were further benefited by indications that the railway companies were coming into the market for supples. Studebaker and Pierce-Arrow, common and preferred, and some of the oils, notably General Asphalt and Royal Dutch, were firm. Sugars strengthened on a moderate advance in the price of the refined product, and coppers continued to harden on purchases of metal for foreign accounts.

Liberty 3 1-2 per cent. bonds were conspicuously heavy.

Call money opened at 5 1-2 per cent.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, June 29 (Canadian Press).—The market this morning showed very little improvement over yesterday in regard to activity, but there was a distinct improvement in sentiment. The whole list was strong and gains were scored by a number of stocks. A small lot of Dominion Canners changed hands at 24 1-2, as compared with 20, the best bid of yesterday. Canadian Pacific, after opening lower at 122, sold up to 123 3-4 on sales of 150. Part of this advance was lost, however, with the close at 123 1-4, a net gain of 3-4 from last night's close. Brazilian after a strong opening, lost its early gain, closing unchanged at 50 1-2. Paper stocks were very quiet, with Abitibi unchanged at 25 3-4. Spanish River, in which no transactions were recorded, was quoted at 51 bid, as compared with 48 1-2 bid last night.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, June 29 (Canadian Press).—Sterling exchange heavy. Demand $3.74 3-4; cables, $3.75 1-4; Canadian dollar, 12 1-16 per cent. discount.

TRENT WATERWAYS DEVELOPMENT ASSOCIATION HOLDS ITS FIRST ANNUAL CONVENTION AT ORILLIA

TOO LATE TO OPPOSE FIGHT, SAYS SUNDAY

(Special Despatch to Examiner.)

NORTON, Va., June 29. — The time to have opposed the Dempsey-Carpentier fight was before Tex Rickard has spent a barrel of money erecting the prize ring, according to William A. (Billy) Sunday, here to-day.

"I do not favor prize fights, but as it has been known for months that this bout was scheduled to take place, the time to have opposed it was before Tex Rickard had spent a barrel of money erecting the prize ring. Now that the scrap is to come off, I hope Jack wins, because Carpentier is a foreigner, and Jack is an American.

"In my opinion, a prize fight on Saturday is not as bad as a baseball game on Sunday."

Three attempts on the part of the International Reform Bureau and clergymen yesterday to block the fight ended in failure.

MANY PLANS FOR DEVELOPMENT OF ROUTE, ENTAILING ACCOMPANYING DEVELOPMENT OF DISTRICT, ARE MOOTED.

PUBLICITY LAST YEAR BROUGHT GOOD RESULTS

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

ORILLIA, June 29.—The first annual meeting of the Trent Waterway Development Association, given yesterday under happy auspices as guests of the Orillia Board of Trade, at one of the most beautiful points in the district, the Orchard Point Inn, situated at the junction of Lake Couchiching and Lake Simcoe, showed a decided improvement in attendance as against the previous year.

At the conclusion of the luncheon, Mayor Anderson of Orillia, extended a hearty welcome to the delegates, and was appropriately replied to by Mr. G. K. Fraser, President of the Association.

The annual report of the President reviewed the work of the year. Considerable activity has been devoted to advertising and publicity work. In addition to paid advertising, articles prepared by the association have been used in several Canadian and United States newspapers and films have been secured of the Trent route by the Canadian Exhibition Commission. Over 200 enquiries have resulted from the advertising, coming from all parts of the continent.

Charts have been prepared by the Department of Railways and Canals of this route, following the association's request for such.

The report concluded with a summary of the benefits which would accrue from all municipalities in the district.

The president also dwelt upon the reasons for the formation of the association, that is, chiefly, a desire to develop the great possibilities of the Trent Waterway, as yet incomplete for commercial purposes.

The Treasurer's report was submitted, showing that $1,030 had been spent on advertising the Trent Waterway, which was subscribed by the following municipalities: Beaverton, Bobcaygeon, Campbellford, Lindsay, Meaford, Orillia, Peterborough, and the Severn River Improvement Association.

The report also showed that $800 had been spent by the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce on the work of the Association since its inception.

Address.

Mr. A. L. Killaly, Chief Superintendent of the Trent Canal, as guest of the Association on this occasion, gave a short address on the development of the Canal to its present position, and stated that nothing definite could be stated as to the extent to which the Canal would be utilized until after its completion as a complete water route from Georgian Bay to Lake Ontario. He remarked that the attention of the Association should be devoted to urging the Government to complete the work as early as possible.

Election of Officers.

After a short discussion on the merits and demerits of the present officers of the Association, it was moved by Mr. A. W. Bell, of Midland, seconded by Mr. R. B. Rogers, of Peterborough, that the same officers be reinstated by acclamation and be given another chance. The motion was carried unanimously.

The offiers are as follows: Honorary President, Senator W. H. Bennett, Midland; President, G. K. Fraser, Burleigh; 1st Vice-President, Francis D. Kerr, Peterborough; 2nd Vice-President, J. Miller, Orillia; Secretary-Treasurer, Leon Frazer, Peterborough.

Honorary Presidents.

Senator W. H. Bennett suggested that the Honorary Presidents should include prominent gentlemen along the Trent Waterway route, who were particularly interested in the development of the waterways and on motion, duly seconded, the following were unanimously elected as Honorary Presidents: Sir William McKenzie, Sir Sam Hughes and Sir Edward Kemp.

Honorary Members.

Due to the particular interest shown by the various members of the Dominion House in the development and utilization of the waterway, it was moved by Mr. F. D. Kerr, Vice-President, seconded by Mr. A. W. Bell, of Midland, that the following members of Parliament be elected as honorary members of the Association: William A. Boys, M.P., Barrie; E. G. Porter, M.P., Belleville; J. A. Sexsmith, M.P., Havelock; Jas. B. Tudhope, M.P., Orillia;

NEW POTATOES DUE NEXT WEEK; WHEAT CUT BY JULY 12TH

Granted plenty of rain, the crops this year will be exceedingly good, farmers said to-day, although the fall crops in most sections are poor.

This week farmers in different sections began cutting clover hay, and the end of next week or the early part of the following week a start will be made on the timothy. Neither clover nor timothy hay is a very bountiful crop, for wide areas were killed out with spring frosts. The fall wheat is very patchy, and will not amount to much, taking the whole county into consideration, the Examiner was informed, but the spring wheat, except in South Monaghan, where it is stated to be very poor, is looking better than in some years. Yesterday's rain came just in time to save the crop from withering, and this morning the grains were all looking like a million dollars, reports say.

The crops, it is said, are about 8 days ahead of average. Wheat will be cut on July 12, it was predicted to-day.

Garden stuff is early this year too. New potatoes have been used in some parts, and next week will find them on the tables of city and farmer folk generally. Cabbages and cauliflower are plentiful. Green peas have been used for two weeks. Green beans are just coming in. Tomatoes will be ready in a week or two. In the fruit line, raspberries are coming along, and will likely be on Saturday's market, while red currants and gooseberries are ripening fast and should be plentiful on Saturday. This is plum year, farmers say, and the trees are heavily laden, and it also looks like a bumper apple crop, they say, all of which is the very best news to urban dwellers.

LADY CHURCHILL DIES.

STAND PATTERS OPPOSE CHURCH UNION PROJECT

CONGREGATIONAL AND PRESBYTERIAN CHURCHES IN TORONTO UNITE TO TAKE CASE TO COURTS.

TORONTO, June 29.—(Canadian Press). — While Assemblies and Synods are voting enthusiastically on the abstract question of church union, a handful of "stand patters" of the Western Congregational Church, backed by the Toronto Congregational Council, the Executive of the Congregational Union of Canada, and the Toronto District Association of Congregational Churches are strenuously fighting in the courts the concrete application of church union as exemplified in the union of a majority of the congregation of the Western Congregational Church with the congregation of Dale Presbyterian Church. The law firm of N. W. Rowell, K.C., has been retained by the anti-unionists to secure a declaration that the majority of the congregation of Western Congregational Church cannot take with them in the formation of Dale Western Presbyterian Church, the $70,000.00 which was derived from the sale of the Western Congregational Church building on Spadina Avenue to the Men of England Congregation. The statement of claim in the action which has been filed at Osgoods Hall is a weighty document of twenty-two typewritten foolscap pages.

The action is brought by representatives of the "stand patters" against the trustees of the Western Congregational Church who are among those who have gone over to the Presbyterian fold. The statement of claim states that the Spadina Avenue property was purchased in 1876 and was sold for $70,000.00, pursuant to the decision of a special meeting of the congregation on March 16th, 1921.

At the annual meeting of the church, which occurred on February 2nd, the Board of Management reported that the church was without a home. It was impossible to move into Zion Church as contemplated but that an offer had been received from Dale Church for the congregations to unite. Provisional articles of agreement had been drawn up which provided, among other things, that the united congregations should be known as Dale Western Presbyterian Church, that it should belong to the Presbyterian Church in Canada, that Rev. Bertram Nelles should be minister in charge, and that Rev. J. D. Morrow should be pastor emeritus; that the roll of communicants of each congregation should be transferred to a roll of the enlarged congregation. These articles were put to the annual meeting and were carried with only one dissenting voice. The meeting also empowered "to administer the funds accrued from the sale of the church in a manner that would be most beneficial to the work of God, particularly as applied, if approved by them, to down town work."

This last clause has been particularly bitter in the mouths of the "stand patters." They accuse the trustees of breach of their duties in submitting such a resolution to the meeting, and declare that their intention was to mislead those in attendance and to hide their real intention "which was that the said funds should be taken over to and form part of the fund of the Dale Western Presbyterian Church."

There was a meeting of the "stand patters" on February 15th, and they decided to take the matter before the Toronto Congregational Council, which body appointed a special committee to obtain information. This committee communicated with the Board of Management of the Western Congregational Church, asking for full explanations. All the reply evoked was a letter which opened with the remark, "We thank you for the kindly interest manifested in yours of the 16th inst. with regard to our amalgamation." This letter said that the story was too long to give in detail, and closed with the observation: "After all is said and done, does it really matter what denomination we are under so long as God's will and work are being performed?"

The committee then went to the Presbytery of Toronto for information, but all it obtained from this source was a copy of the articles of agreement for the union of the congregation.

CAMPBELLFORD'S BAND UNDER NEW LEADERSHIP

The Campbellford band was virtually re-organized this spring, and Mr. R. T. Cowell, organist of the Methodist church, was appointed conductor. Under his leadership the band has made rapid progress and has delighted the townspeople in recent concerts by its fine performances. Mr. Cowell has had an extensive experience, including the leadership of one of the overseas battalion bands, and is a musician to his fingertips. He is a valuable acquisition to Campbellford's musical life, and to the band which is now connected with the 40th Northumberland Regiment, he has brought a new inspiration. Its membership is now twenty-eight, six of the players being absent when the above photograph was taken.

INFLUENCED BY CHURCH, FACED BY OPPOSITION ON ALL SIDES, QUEBEC CIVIC STRIKE COLLAPSES

STRENGTH OF FORCE ARRAYED AGAINSH THEM AND EFFORTS OF THEIR CHURCH, FORCES SUBMISSION.

QUEBEC, June 29. — (Special Despatch to The Examiner.)— The strike of the local police and firemen which has been in progress since Saturday last at midnight, is now on the brink of settlement.

No other province in Canada has fought the tide of labor radicalism to the same degree as Quebec. While wages elsewhere soared, while the various branches of industry passed fom dispute to dispute, while the One Big Union made huge strides in the west, the quiet Quebec workmen persevered in the even tenor of pre-war days.

Quebec Labor's Position Unequalled.

Labor's position here is unequalled. The drifter or floater who has constituted one of the greatest problems in the larger industrial cities, by swelling the labor turnovers is almost unknown. The laborer or mechanic here is native born. His home family has lived here for generations, and, as aptically stated by Premier Taschereau recently, "his ancestors for generations lie in the nearby church yard, while the same church register records the birth in his family for possibly one hundred and fifty years."

This situation has been capitalized by the employer and as a result wages have been maintained at an extremely low level compared to other parts of the Dominion. Larger wages elsewhere were no inducement to the Quebecer to leave, as it meant the uprooting of the deepest social ties extant in the Dominion.

When both the firemen and the policemen pleaded for wage increase before the Conciliation Boards which sat here early in May they frankly admitted this situation when an opposing counsel would ask them why, if dissatisfied with their pay, they did not leave. Burly police sergeants confessed that in order to remain here and to support their families they spent thier hours when off duty engaged as common navies on the wharfs. Sergeants are paid $25 per week and many of them have families numbering up to fifteen to support. A constable is paid $17 per week in his first year, $18.50 per week for the second year, $19.50 the third year, and $21.50 in the fourth year, which is the maximum wage.

It is quite common for these officers to accept night and extra work as private watchmen for business houses, as gardeners and general handimen for wealthier citizens, and as casual labor where their services will be accepted.

Award is Small.

The evil consequences to which this situation may easily lead are numerous and obvious. Again the city has assumed a peculiarly Prussian attitude towards its servants. A Conciliation Board was authorized early in May for the police. Its first session was held on the 12th of the month, the hearing concluded on the 14th, the award announced on the 17th, yet this award was only accepted by the city on the night of the strike, June 25th, more than five weeks later. The award gives the men $1 per week of an increase, and as there were about 130 men on the force the amount involved annually was less than $7,000. The city's claim for not having accepted the award sooner was that it could not arrange the financing of the increase at the time. In the case of the firemen approximately an equal amount is involved.

But at no time in the interim marked from the date of the award to the hour of the strike did the city state its willingness to accept the board's ruling. Consequently the men decided upon the strike to force the issue.

Another peculiar phase then developed. Under the Galipeault law, which corresponds somewhat to the "Lemieux" Industrial Disputes Act, except that the former is applicable only to muicipal employees, the men submitted to conciliation and were prohibited from striking until the board had given its decision.

There is nothing in the Act which compels either party to accept the recommendations of the Board, yet the men are prohibited under another section of the Act from striking after the award is made, thus, briefly: The right to strike is taken from the employers and the city may with impunity refuse to pay any wage increase recommended by conciliation and the men have no means by which to compel the payment of the increase awarded them, except the weight of public opinion.

But so keen is the sentiment here against strikes that the men find themselves faced by hostility on all sides. Memory of the night fire which rendered five families homeless on Monday and which was blamed upon the strikers and their sympathizers, has embittered the public mind. The clerical leaders have waged a more or less open war on the refactory leaders of the strikers, and the International unions are capitalizing their rivals plight as a contrast to their solid position. Hemmed in on all sides and further weakened by the last municipal proclamation which has ordered the strikers to return to their posts by to-day, Wednesday noon, under penalty of forfeiting their appointments, the strike has virtually collapsed, and its end is believed only a question of hours. The men have lost on all sides.

TORONTO WOMAN GAINS 20 POUNDS

'TANLAC HAS BEEN OUR FAVORITE MEDICINE FOR TWO YEARS," SAYS MRS. MOORECROFT.

"Ever since Tanlac restored my health and built me up twenty pounds in weight two years ago, it has been the favorite medicine at our house, and it keeps us all feeling well and strong," said Mrs. Agnes Moorecroft, 60 Galt Ave., Toronto.

"My troubles started coming on me about the beginning of the war. I got to where I couldn't sleep, just rolled and tossed all night, and was so nervous even the ringing of the telephone would make me jump. I could scarcely eat anything and fell off several pounds in weight. My head ached awfully at times, and I was so dizzy I couldn't stand up.

"Well, two years ago when I began taking Tanlac I was in an a little while I went from one hundred and ten pounds to one hundred and thirty and felt just fine. Since then I've taken Tanlac along when I felt like I needed something to sharpen up my appetite, and it keeps me eating just fine and feeling strong and well all the time. We aways keep Tanlac in the house." Tanlac is sold in Peterboro by the Warne Drug Co., Ltd., and leading druggists.

MONTREAL, Que., June 29.—(Canadian Press.) —The union job printers in Montreal, to the number of several hundred, yesterday refused to accept a renewal of their contract with the employers, which calls for a 48 hour week, with a weekly salary of $32 and a bonus of $4 per week.

DROP IN HAY PRICE.

Farmers Selling Locally at From $22 to $24.

Loose hay on the market has taken a tumble in price. The slump was not altogether unexpected. Hay has held up around $28 and $30 since last winter, but a reduction in prices has had to be made by the farmers who dispose of the timothy on the market. Last week the farmers cut the hay prices to $22 and $24 to sell, and further reductions are expected to take place, for hay has evaded the avalanche of falling prices in a way that has not been a pleasure to horse owners.

MEMORIAL TO MAJ. BOLSTER

UNVEILING AT COBOURG ATTENDED BY CAMPBELLFOI D OFFICERS OF 40TH REGIMENT.

CAMPBELLFORD NEWS

CAMPBELLFORD, June 28. — The closing meeting for the months of July and August of the Epworth League was held last evening in the school room, the president, Mr. C. A. Wilson, presiding. After the devotional exercises Mrs. G. A. Kingston gave an excellent paper on the life of David Copenfield, which was thoroughly appreciated. Miss Vernd Saunders and Miss Ruth Taylor were appointed delegates to the summer school to be held in Albert College, Belleville, from July 4th to the 11th. The League will re-assemble on the 2nd Monday in September.

Miss Helen Keller is visiting at the home of her brother, Mr. Hugh Keller in Madoc.

Mr. Will Rowe of Lindsay spent the week-end with friends in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Johnston of Peterboro spent the week end at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James E. Johnston, Queen street.

Excursions Beginning.

St. Andrew's Sunday school will be the first this year to hold their annual excursion by the steamer Geneva on Tuesday, July 5th. On Wednesday, July 6th, the Tabernacle Church, English line, will run an excursion on the Geneva. No doubt a large number will avail themselves of a delightful sail on the canal.

Visited Cobourg.

The ofifcers of the local company of the 40th Regiment, Major J. M. Bygott, Lieuts. W. G. Davidson, F. R. Nancarrow, Charles Boyd and D. A. Montgomery motored to Cobourg on Sunday to accept the invitation to be present at the unveiling and dedication in St. Peter's church of a beautiful stained glass window in memory of Major Herbert G. Bolster, who was killed at the battle of Langemarcke.

The rector, Rev. F. J. Sawers, officiated at the dedication following the unveiling by Cols. Birdsall and C. Ackerman, comrades of the deceased.

The window consists of three panels; the centre depicts St. George, the patron saint of England, flanked on each side by the swords of justice and faith, interwoven with maple leaves and Flanders poppies. Beneath is placed a bronze tablet suitably inscribed. In the course of his sermon Rev. Mr. Sawers referred to the life of the late Major Bolster, who served also in the South African war, and was one of the first to respond to the call of his country at the outbreak of the late war. The service was attended by a large number of the officer friends of the deceased, the parade from the armouries being in charge of Lieut. Colonel F. D. Boggs, O.C., of the 40th Regiment.

Successful Garden Party.

One of the most successful garden parties ever held in Campbellford, was the one held in the Methodist church grounds last evening. The weather during the day was threatening but the evening was all that could be desired. The decorations were very artistically arranged and the music rendered by the band was thoroughly enjoyed by the very large crowd assembled. The Geisha tearoom was in charge of Mrs. R. T. Cowell, and to her the greatest credit is due for the success of the tearoom, everything being carried out in Japanese fashion, even to the eating of the ice cream with chop sticks. The telephone booth proved a novel attraction and the lemonade well was attended by Jacob (Everett Thomas) and Rachel (Irene Davidson) with Jack Cowell as servant. The fish pond was well looked after by Mesdames Malcolm and Glover and Miss Marion Moore. The home cooking stand was in charge of Mesdames Davidson, Gould, Carnahan, Williams and Denike. The flower stand was in charge of Mesdames G. A. Payne, F. J. Smith and Miss Grace Payne. In the ice cream booth were Mesdames Turner, Wood, Ashton Phillips, Wilson, Hore and Mr. Willie Hore.

During the evening there was a continuous programme in the tea room, the following artists taking part: Duet, Mrs. (Rev.) Glover and Miss Meiklejohn; solo, Mr. James Benor, Miss Burleigh, Mr. Lucy and the Sailor song by a chorus of little girls. The Maypole dance was repeated and, as usual, much appreciated. The home-made candy stand was in charge of Mesdames Kingston, Wiggins, Miss Ruth Taylor, and Miss Georgie Hay. The Methodist congregation feel very much gratified over the great success of the evening, and are deeply indebted to Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Cowell for their very able suggestions and assistance.

Obituary.

There passed away in Campbellford, after a brief illness, early on Tuesday morning, Mrs. John L. Fox. The deceased, whose maiden name was Agnes Woodbeck, daughter of Isaac and the late Mrs. Woodbeck, was in her thirty-second year, and was beloved by all who knew her for her true worth and genial manner. She leaves to mourn her loss, a loving husband and three children. The funeral takes place this afternoon from the home on Front Street to Mount Pleasant Cemetery, and will be conducted by the Rev. C. F. McIntosh.

Mrs. Johnston and family, of Ottawa, are visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H Ashton.

DEVALERA INVITES CRAIG AND FOUR OTHER ULSTER LEADERS TO A CONFERENCE IN DUBLIN

IN LETTER TO THEM HE SAYS HE WISHES TO LEARN THE VIEWS OF THE PEOPLE—TWO UNIONISTS INCLUDED.

DUBLIN, June 29.—(Canadian Press)—De Valera has written to Sir James Craig, Ulster Premier, Earl Middleton, who in 1920 advocated one parliament for Southern Ireland with six Ulster Counties under the Imperial Parliament; Sir Maurice Dockrell, M.P., of Dublin, A Unionist opposed to the Government's policy of Home Rule; Sir Robert Henry Woods, M.P. for Dublin University; Andrew Jameson asking them to meet him at Mansion House, Dublin, on Monday for a conference. He wishes to learn from them at first hand the views of the people.

Sinn Fein Leader Killed

..CORK, June 29. — (Canadian Press).—Commandant Leo. Murohv of the Mid-Cork Brigade of the Irish Republican Army", was shot dead to-day in a military round up at Waterfall near here. Forty-five Republicans were captured.

Murphy was wanted on charges in connection with several deaths and a kidnapping. The military surrounded a house in which Murphy was presiding over an "Irish Republican Army" battalion meeting. He escaped through the back door but was killed after he had gone a hundred yards. A quantity of arms and ammunitions was seized.

ARMISTICE EXPECTED.

(Special Despatch to the Examiner.)

LONDON, June 29. — An unofficial armistice in Ireland was expected to-day to be the first result of Premier Lloyd George's peace offer to "President" De Valera.

Sinn Fein leaders urged DeValera not to meet the Premier unless he agreed to withdraw the black and tan troops from Ireland.

Information from the Irish office indicated that such a demand would be refused.

However, with both sides anxious to get as much as possible from the forthcoming conference a lull in the hostilities was looked for. The fact that raids continued in Cork as late as yesterday did not lesen this belief.

CATHOLIC CONGRESS IN QUEBEC IN 1922

QUEBEC, June 29.— (Canadian Press.)— Quebec City has been chosen by the Catholic Hierarchy of North America for the holding of the Eucharistic Congress in 1922. This announcement, which was issued by His Eminence Cardinal Begin, has been communicated to all the churches of the Diocese of Quebec.

TAFT WILL BE CHIEF JUSTICE

UNDERSTOOD HARDING WILL MAKE APPOINTMENT TOMORROW BEFORE LEAVING FOR VACATION.

(Special Despatch to the Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, June 29. — Announcement of the appointment of William Howard Taft to be Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court, probably will be made shortly, it was learned to-day.

President Harding, it is said, has practically decided on the appointment of Taft, and unless there is some hitch, he plans to announce his appointment to-morrow just before leaving here for a week-end vacation in New Jersey.

GRASSHOPPER ARMY NEARLY WIPED OUT.

Most of Them Suicide on a Strange Mixture Containing Arsenic.

OTTAWA, June 28 (Canadian Press).—The grasshopper plague, which threatened serious damage to crops in southern Manitoba, Alberta, and Saskatchewan again this year, has been energetically checked by the Entomological Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Reports from the Western Provinces indicate that losses from the grasshopper plague this year will be practically negligible when compared with the wholesale destruction of standing crops of a few years ago.

The discovery of the poisoned bait —a combination of bran, sawdust, arsenic, molasses, and salt, or fruit— has proved effective.

Claimed Consumers are Charged Five Times What Farmers are Paid.

LONDON, Ont., June 28.—It is stated that the Middlesex Milk Producers' Association is considering establishing a co-operative dairy in London to market milk supplies, owing to the low prices which are being paid by local distributors.

It is claimed that consumers are being charged five times what the farmers are paid for milk.

BRAND VETERANS C.E.F. SLACKERS

TWO AMERICANS WHO WERE IN C.E.F. ON U.S. SLACKER LIST.

MIDDLETOWN, N.Y., June 28. — (Canadian Press.) — Thomas Smyth, of this city, whose name appears on the "slacker list," says he fought with the Canadians in France after being rejected by the United States' recruiting station for the army and navy in New York. He said he fought in the Hindenburg line under the 5th Canadian Rifles for 15 months.

According to a statement by his brother here yesterday, Max Berkowski, of this city, whose name appears on the slacker list, served under General Allenby at the capture of Jerusalem ,after first enlisting in the Canadian forces, and is now studying at a British government school in Palestine.

SYMPTOMS WOMEN DREAD

Mrs. Wilson's Letter Should Be Read by All Women

Clearfield, Pa.—"After my last child was born last September I was unable to do all of my own work. I had severe pains in my left side every month and had fever and sick dizzy spells and such pains during my periods, which lasted two weeks. I heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound doing others so much good and thought I would give it a trial. I have been very glad that I did, for now I feel much stronger and do all of my work. I tell my friends when they ask me what helped me, and they think it must be a grand medicine. And it is. You can use this letter for a testimonial if you wish." —Mrs. HARRY A. WILSON, R. F. D. 5, Clearfield, Pa.

The experience and testimony of such women as Mrs. Wilson prove that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will correct such troubles by removing the cause and restoring the system to a normal condition. When such symptoms develop as backache, bearing-down pains, displacements, nervousness and "the blues" a woman cannot act too promptly in trying Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

MR. DUMBLE'S SUGGESTION.

Police Magistrate Dumble's suggestion in regard to the securing by the city of Armour's Hill for park purposes, and his offer to be one of forty citizens to contribute $100 each towards the purchase of this property and towards the expense of grading it and planting trees, should create considerable interest. It has been a matter for regret by those who recognize the possibilities, that Armour's Hill presents, that the citizens should have defeated the bill submitted to them, authorizing the City Council to secure the property. The price at which it was offered—if used for park purposes — was $3,000, which is generally recognized as a very low figure. As Mr. Dumble points out, the Armour property could, at comparatively small expense, be converted into a park, of which every citizen would be proud. Its location, close to the famous lift-lock, which attracts thousands of visitors each year, and commanding a birdseye view of the entire city and of the countryside for many miles around, alone makes Armour's Hill a most admirable site for a park, and it would be a pity to have the opportunity lost because the advancing tax rate makes many ratepayers close their eyes to the advantages that lay in the securing of this property as a breathing spot for the community. Mr. Dumble's offer opens a new means of adding Armour's Hill to the city's park system. Are there thirty-nine other citizens in Peterborough who will respond to his challenge and carry the scheme through to success.

SATURDAY'S FIGHT.

There is something about every contest for the world's championship in the heavyweight boxing class that appeals to thousands of people who take no interest in prize fighting as a rule, but the fight on Saturday between Jack Dempsey of the United States, world's champion, and Georges Carpentier of France, champion of Europe, transcends in interest any engagement in the history of the ring. The circumstances are unusual. Ordinarily, in a contest between an American boxer and the representative of another country, the people of the United States would be almost to a man behind their champion. But Dempsey must go into the ring on Saturday knowing that millions of his fellow countrymen are hoping that he will be beaten, conscious that many of the leading newspapers have not hesitated to express their desire to see the invader win, and well aware that many posts of the American Legion have, by resolution, announced that their best wishes are with the challenger. The war record of the two men, of course, explains the unpopularity of Dempsey and the general desire to see Carpentier win. The world's champion has been denounced as a slacker, who refused to strike a blow for his country when his services were needed. On the other hand, Carpentier fought gallantly all through the war, and his years of service are making him the popular idol in the contest for the world's championship. Dempsey may be the favourite in the betting, but it is safe to say that the odds are not inspired by any sentiment in his favour. Thousands who will bet on the American because they feel that he has the best chance to win, are at the same time admirers of the French champion. It is this abnormal condition of affairs that makes this week's championship contest the most interesting on record.

EQUIPPING THE BLIND TO EARN A LIVING.

In the past few years much has been done to turn the pathetic idleness of our Canadian blind to a real and tangible usefulness.

Broom shops for Canadian blind men have been established and are operating in Halifax, Ottawa, Toronto, and Winnipeg. They are all working to capacity, filled with busy and sincerely cheerful stone-blind workmen.

Some were blinded by accident or sickness, a few were blinded in the war, while others have been blind from birth.

These men are earning their livelihood through their own honest effort. They have realised the dignity of self-support. They take great pride in the fact that they are an asset, not a liability, to the nation.

This noble work must be broadened out. It is within your power to help equip the blind of Canada to earn a living. Subscribe liberally to the fund of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, and let us build up on a foundation well-laid.

The Examiner will be glad to receive your contributions.

TROTZKY TALKS WAR.

Two years ago Tchitcherin said of Trotzky, "It is funny how the military idea has got into our general's head." Since that day certain brilliant successes by his armies in the field and the fortunate extrication of his troops from more than one debacle has transformed this intoxication into an obsession. To-day Trotzky visions every world question in terms of war. In his own country he is as hot-headed as the Queen in "Alice in Wonderland," and would solve every internal crisis with a wild shriek of "Off with his head!" In dealing with foreign problems he sees the ultimate triumph of his Communists through the same process that operated in the case of th "Ten Little Nigger Boys"—every enemy will gradually disappear "until there is none"—and the faithful remnant of Trotzkists will come into their own. What sort of an inheritance will be left for them to enjoy, if Trotzky has his way, after the decimation of everyone within and without Russia who does not see eye to eye with him, may be gauged by the present state of Russia after his theories have been operating for three years.

The latest outburst of this fire-eater, Leiba Braunstein, who likes to strut across the stage booted and spurred under the name of General and Commander-in-Chief Leon Trotzky, is to predict a great naval war in 1924 between Britain and America. Both countries should be grateful for the warning which the prophecy implies, for if Trotzky's words mean anything they indicate that he and his fellow-communists of Russia who boast of the International Brotherhood are still thinking and plotting in terms of war.

Trotzky paints a sombre picture of Britain. Her coal supply is failing, her national debt has increased, and the pound sterling has been vanquished. Of America, he says she is a "swollen gourmand," her chief crime being that she has acquired vast wealth under the despised Capitalistic system and that greater industry and more intense production give promise of merely whetting her greedy appetite.

This is all very sad from Trotzky's point of view, but instead of painting these black line pictures he might have compared either country with his own Russia. If Britain's coal exports have fallen twenty per cent. in seven years, as Trotzky says, how much has Russia lost in her export trade? What has becom of the 203 millions of pounds of wheat and the 186 millions of pounds of barley that she exported under the Capitalistic system in 1913? From what Russian ports is the timber being shipped that corresponds with the 163 millions of roubles of lumber that was exported before the war, and what has become of the 550 millions of roubles of manufactured products that were shipped out during that year? If Russia has not increased her national debt, it must only be because she has repudiated her national obligations, and if the pound sterling has fallen it has not tobogganed so much as the rouble. So also if America is a gourmand there is nothing very much to be ashamed of, if the appetite is the healthy one that comes from hard and honest work and the food of the worker is wholesome and prepared with the skill of the craftsman.

Both Britain and America have a heavy task before them to build their industries, but they do not forget that the havoc would have been less and the cost of rehabilitation would have been far lower if Russia had not treacherously forsaken her Allies and heeded the voice of the deceivers who have lured their country into such a state of desolation that their condition is without parallel in the history of civilisation. — Montreal Star.

PICTURESQUE FEUDAL CEREMONIES REVIVED FOR PRINCE'S VISIT.

Capital of His Duchy of Cornwall Welcomes Him.

LAUNCESTON, Cornwall, Eng., June 28. — Picturesque feudal ceremonies of 600 years were revived here when the Prince of Wales, who is also Duke of Cornwall, paid a visit to the old time capital of his duchy. Launceston has been a royal borough since about 1086.

The ceremonies included the presentation of rent and "offerings of fealty" in kind, according to ancient custom. The mayor presented to the prince 100 shillings and one pound of pepper on a silver dish.

To Sir Hugh Molesworth St. Aubyn fell the duty to offer a brace of greyhounds. According to ancient custom they should be pure white but the nearest approach obtainable was a well matched pei-bald couple.

Another ducal tenant tendered a pair of gilt spurs, and others presented a pound of cumin, a salmon spear, a faggot of wood, a pair of white gloves and a rose.

Strangest of all these curious terms of tenure is one requiring the representatives of the manor of Swannacott and St. Mary Week to present themselves at the ducal court clad in mantles of goatskins. The present day incumbent, Bethel Hutchings, stoically endured this attire over his ordinary clothes on a broiling hot day. His appearance suggested a blend of a modern country motorist and Robinson Crusoe.

The Prince, much amused at the variety of the gifts, solemnly confirmed all the loyal tenants in their holdings.

DID NOT REPORT HIS INCOME TAX, FINED $25

OSHAWA, June 2d.—In the police court here, Peter Parayko, Olive avenue, was fined $25.00 and costs for not filing his income tax papers as required by the Department, after receiving a registered letter to that effect. Col. J. F. Grierson, representing the Department at Ottawa, pointed out that every person, liable, whether warned or not, should make it their business to secure the papers and make them out as required. This is the first prosecution locally under the Income Tax Act this year.

IDLENESS DRIVES SERVICE MEN BACK TO THE FARM

NEW YORK, June 28.—Back to the farm! The fighting Yank who left the tractor for the tank, and then remained in the big cities on his return, has found starvation wages and rainy nights on park benches too much.

Miss Monica Barry Walsh, director of the America Land Service, said 200 men boarded trains leaving New York to-day to go back to the country. Last week 748 went and, the week before, 1,130, and still there are 468,000 men out of work in New York.

All Want to go Back.

"If we just had the money to handle these boys we could clear the park benches, in a few months," Miss Walsh said. "Right here is the solution of America's industrial problem. All the ex-service men, out of jobs, seem to have come to the big city and they are clamoring to get back. With our small staff we don't dare to advertise for men. We did that one day and they nearly tore down the place trying to get in.

"You wouldn't believe that there are men starving in New York, but there are. They may not be dying for food, but lack of proper nourishment causes many deaths.

"Last year we sent 1,800 farmerettes up in New York state to pick fruit. This year we sent 30 and we don't intend to send any more until we find places for the jobless men.

Funds are Needed

"Farmers won't pay fares for these men and we haven't any money. Last week we started a gang out hiking across country hoping to get them places without railroad fare, but the plan failed.

"The harvest season is coming on and we are as broke as the men, but even without assistance we can get back about 20,000 by that time.

"With sufficient funds we could clean the greater part of these 468,000 jobless in New York."

ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN

More than 45,000 women have ballot, but are not allowed to run for office.

More than 45,000 women have been educated in the Bible Women's Training School in foreign lands. Not more than 25 per cent. of the working force in any establishment in Canada shall consist of either inexperienced adults or young girls.

The proposition to erect in Washington a $3,000,000 club house for women is fast coming to a head and the intention is to finance it by $1 membership of individuals.

Black velvet is found as the lining on some of the fur garments arriving.

In New Zealand women have the also being used on cloaks designed for cold weather wear.

LIVING CONDITIONS

VIENNA, June 28 (Associated Press). — Finance and economics seem to have parted company in Austria. With its money situation chaotic, there is at the same time a generally acknowledged betterment of conditions of living.

Travellers revisiting Vienna say they do not recognise the city of a year ago. The mass of the people are better dressed and more plentiful food is shown in their healthy appearance. The green and sallow faces have disappeared, and on the whole the Viennese are nearly back to normal as far as external evidence goes.

Paris can hardly show a more fashionably gowned crowd of women than that which turns out for the ring promenade in the afternoon or throngs the high-class shopping district in the mornings.

The shop display of luxurious wares of every description increases until, the Arbeiter Zeitung says, it exceeds Vienna's best days of before the war. The same newspaper admits that there is steady progress and betterment in business and general conditions.

The famous delicatessen shops are re-opening with almost their old-time excellence. The windows are filled with fancy dainties for which the city was noted, canned stuffs of the finest foreign makes are to be bought, American crackers and biscuits are common in the groceries, the candy shops are re-stocked, and while last winter a pound of sweets was virtually unprocurable, the finest fresh bon-bons now are to be had in any quantity.

White bread is served in nearly every restaurant and the bakery windows again display the famous Vienna pastries and cakes. In the poorer districts, even the butcher shops and the groceries reflect the same condition.

Turning to finances, the current statement of the Austro-Hungarian bank speaks for it. There are at the moment 45,000,000,000 crowns in circulation and 4,000,000,000 outstanding treasury notes issued to the banks for discount. But this cheap money is plentiful. Everyone seems to have it and to be spending it. Enormously advanced prices for everything seem not to have affected the volume of business. Printing presses are now turning out around 5,000,000,000 crowns a month to meet the government expenses. The current budget shows a deficit of 50,000,000,000 crowns. The wealth levy has produced thus far about 9,000,000,000 crowns, one-half of which was paid in war bonds, leaving enough cash from this source to meet about one month's running expenses for the government.

Through its spokesmen and newspapers the government is urging the need of haste in the proposed credit plan of the League of Nations by which enough foreign capital is sought to establish a bank of issue whose new currency on a gold basis is expected to gradually retire and stabilise the value of the present crown.

Do This Tonight

Watch the quick effects—see the change in a week

Present this coupon to your dealer. He will give you a delightful ten-day test of a new teeth-cleaning method which millions are employing.

Watch the effects, quick, pleasant and conspicuous. Watch the new luster that comes. In ten days let your mirror tell you the way to pretty teeth.

Leading dentists everywhere advise this method now. You will see and feel the reasons when you make this test.

End the dingy film

The chief purpose is to fight film. This viscous coat, which you can feel, causes dingy teeth and also most tooth troubles.

Film clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. The old ways of brushing did not end it. So film-coats night and day threaten serious damage.

Film is what discolors, not the teeth. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. All these troubles have been constantly increasing. Despite the daily brushing with old methods, very few escaped them.

Now you can fight it

Dental science, after long research, has found ways to fight that film. Able authorities have proved them effective. Now leading dentists everywhere advise their daily use.

The methods are embodied in Pepsodent, the new-day, scientific tooth paste. Millions of people now use it, and the use is fast spreading the world over.

That is the dentifrice we urge you to try. Your druggist has a free tube for you. Enjoy its effects for ten days, then judge them for yourself.

Also starch and acids

Modern diet makes other things essential. And those essentials are embodied in this scientific tooth paste.

Each use of Pepsodent multiplies the salivary flow. That is Nature's great tooth-protecting agent. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits which may otherwise form acids.

It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is Nature's agent for neutralizing acids which attack the teeth.

This offer is for one week only. It means much to you and yours. Act now.

An ideal diet would do these same things, but few people get it. So dental science now needs the tooth paste to bring these desired effects.

Pepsodent will daily bring you five great benefits which the old ways did not bring. Together they mean a new era in teeth cleaning.

Men's tobacco stains

Men who smoke stain these film-coats with tobacco. The use of Pepsodent brings them conspicuous effects.

Food stains with women make these film-coats dingy. The glistening teeth seen everywhere now show how Pepsodent removes them.

But children need Pepsodent most. Their teeth are most subject to film and starch attacks. Very few escape them. Dentists advise that they use Pepsodent from the time the first tooth appears.

Watch teeth whiten

The results of Pepsodent are quickly seen and felt. No user can long doubt them. A book we send explains the reasons for them. A very short test will convince you that this new way is essential.

Present the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. Watch the other good effects.

Then you will see and feel and know that Pepsodent is necessary. You will realize that old methods were not right. And this discovery may bring life-long benefits both to you and yours. Present this coupon to your dealer this week. Cut it out now.

WITH banners, with drums they marched away, their eyes lit with the love of country, and reflecting the far gleam of adventure—

Stumbling, led by the hand, with no drums and no banners, they returned—sightless!

For you, for love of their country, they entered the street of everlasting darkness.

But they were not left to gloomy thoughts and self-pity. In Pearson Hall, a fine old-fashioned house on Beverley Street, Toronto, our blinded Canadian heroes have been taught a new usefulness. In Pearson Hall they have found happiness. A staff of competent instructors teaches them massage, cobbling, basketry, netting, typewriting, Braille (the blind print), English and French, etc.

TO REDUCE PURE RUBBER TO A GELATINOUS LIQUID

Only pure unvulcanized rubber is soluble. However, if the pure rubber is shredded into small particles and covered with mineral naptha or pure benzole, it will be reduced to a gelatinous liquid. In case a quick drying solution is desired, carbon disulphide should be used as a solvent.

Pain is Nature's signal that something is wrong, and unless it is quickly righted it may easily become serious.

If the aches are in the joints and muscles Absorbine Jr. will allay the pain quickly and restore the tissue to its former healthy condition.

Swellings which so commonly accompany pain are quickly reduced by a brisk Absorbine, Jr. rub.

Finally, a friend told me to try "Fruit-a-tives". In a week, the Constipation was corrected and soon I was free of pain, headaches and that miserable feeling that accompanies Dyspepsia. Children Think It's Fun

And so do grown folks who know the difference between electric ironing and the drudgery of using ordinary irons.

Ordinary irons make sad ironing days. Probably that's why they are called sad irons.

It is cheering to know, however, that, in thousands of homes throughout the country, ironing day is no longer a trouble day.

"Sovereign" Electric Flatirons have driven the old fashioned sad irons to the obscurity of some out-of-the-way shelf, thus abolishing their attendant train of well known worries and unknown losses and expenses.

A "Sovereign" Iron consumes only a few cents worth of electricity in doing the week's ironing of the average size family. Come in and iron with the most popular iron on the market.

Dear Peggy,
You angel child of course I'd like to come, — but how do you s'pose poor old Doug is going to get along in the meantime? He is such a helpless sort of man, you know, when it comes to doing housework!

I've been nearly killing myself with work lately, — can you imagine it? And as a result my hands are all rough and red. Or rather I should say they were rough and red, for they're smooth and white now. And the reason? Why, my dear, I just rubbed on a little Campana's Italian Balm for a few days! That certainly is the duckiest stuff.

In haste,
Marie

SIDE TALK

By Ruth Cameron.

What To Leave Out.

"The hardest thing in writing," says the Authorman, "is not to know what to say, but what to leave out."

Of course the Authorman is not particularly original in this statement. It has often been said before in one form or another. I remember recently reading somewhere that a certain historian spent weeks going over his proofs, and when asked what he was doing said, "Taking out adjectives."

But when the Authorman said that, it reminded me of a similar fact (no more original): namely, that one of the hardest things in the fine art of living is knowing what not to say and what not to do.

Good at the Positive, Bad at the Negative.

Many people who are fairly good artists at the positive side of living fall down when it comes to the negative side.

They don't know where to stop.

In other words, they lack the supreme quality of restraint.

Aren't you conscious of knowing many people in whom this lack is the flaw that makes the whole instrument imperfect?

People who would be interesting if they knew when to yield the floor to someone else and what to leave out, but who only achieve the distinction of being considered bores by their indiscriminate outpourings?

They Become Officious.

People who want to be helpful, and who only succeed in being officious and annoying because they don't know where to stop?

People who would be amusing if they only stopped at the right point, but who keep on and become clownish, or tiresome or vulgar?

Breeding and education and character-development inculcate restraint. It is found, of course, much more seldom in the young than in people of mature years. Occasionally over-breeding or an undue harshness in the teachings of life will result in too much restraint.

Not Many Of Us in This Danger.

In certain kinds of manufacture,—the making of steel, for instance,—there is a point at which the mixture has had just the right treatment to produce the desired consistency. To stop short of that point would ruin the product, to go beyond would do the same.

To impose too little restraint on oneself ruins one's effectiveness likewise to impose too much. How few of us need to beware the latter danger!

HIS BOY, BILL.

He was sick at heart and glum,
For his boy's not going to come
With his comrades, gayly marching
To the music of the band.
He was pale, like someone ill,
For his brave and big boy, Bill,
Is sleeping there at Argonne,
Where he made his final stand.
And he whispered: "It's a shame.
Two days later, victory came."

Then I looked him in the eye
And I made him this reply:
"There was someone in that struggle
Who broke down the tyrant's will;
One on whom the world depended,
Brave and big and strong and splendid,
Who changed all the tides of battle,
And it might have been your Bill.
Two days after Bill had fought,
Came the victory men sought.

"One there was, unseen, unheeded,
With the strength and courage needed
To dismay the tyrant monarch
And to check his rush of hate;
One there was, by death undaunted,
Struck the blow that Freedom wanted,
Fired the shot that brought the victory,
Though for him it came too late.
Your boy, Bill, who stood and died
May have turned the battle's tide."

Then I saw his eyes grow bright
With a touch of new delight
As he caught a distant vision
Of the way his boy had died;
And in accents clear, unbroken,
"It may be as you have spoken.
Bill, I know, would die to win it;
He was that kind," he replied.
Then he added, with a sigh:
"What a glorious way to die!"

STURDY MEN OF THE NORTH.

Arthur Heming Tells of Their Qualities — Has Sincere Regard For Their Virtues — Life Story of One Who Was Born There.

During the four seasons of the year I had lived with and observed the men of the northern wilderness; and not only had I learned to like and respect them, but to admire their generosity and honesty, their simplicity and skill, their gentleness and prowess; and, above all, to honor their spiritual attitude toward this world and the next. How different they were from the city dwellers' conception of them! But still you may want further proof. You may want first-hand knowledge of those northern men. You may want to study their minds and to look into their hearts. Then, may I ask you to read the following letter, written a few years ago by an old Canadian woodsman—A. B. Carleton—who was born and bred in the northern wilderness? Then you may become better acquainted with at least one of the men I have been trying to picture to you.

Bluffs and Bays His Home.

"I was born in the heart of the northern forest, and in my wanderings my steps have ever gone most willingly back toward the pine-covered hills and the grassy glades that slope down to cool, deep waters. The wander-lust has carried me far, but the lakes and waterfalls, the bluffs and the bays of the great northern No-man's Land are my home, and with Mukwa the bear, Mah-en-gin the wolf, Wash-gish the red deer and Ah-Meek the beaver I have much consorted, and have found their company quite to my liking.

"But the fates have so dealt with me that for two years I have not been able to see the smile of spring-time breaking forth upon the rugged face of my northern No-man's Land. I have had glimpses of it merely among crowded houses, out of hospital windows. Still, my mind is native to the forest, and my thoughts and fancies, breaking captivity, go back, like the free wild things they are, on bright days of springtime to the wild land where the change of season means what it never can mean in the town.

"What does spring mean to you town folk, anyway? I will tell you. It means lighter clothing, dust instead of sleet, the transfer of your patronage from fuel man to ice man, a few days of slushy streets and baseball instead of hockey.

Spring's Meaning to Woodsmen.

"What does it mean to the man of the woods? That I will try to tell. It means that the deep snow which has mantled hills and valley for five months has melted into brooks and rivulets which are plunging and splashing away to find the ocean from whence they came. It means that the thick ice, which throughout the long winter has imprisoned the waters of the lakes, is now broken, and the waves, incited by the south wind, are wreaking vengeance by beating it upon the rocks of the northern shore until, subdued nay melted, it returns to be a mere part of the waves again. Instead of the hungry winter howl of the wolf or the whining snarl of the speaking lynx the air is now filled with happier sounds; ducks are quacking, geese are honking, waved; are cackling as they fly northwards squirrels among the spruce trees chatter noisily; on sandy ridges woodchucks whistle excitedly; back deep in the birch thicket partridges are drumming, and all the woodland is musical with the song of birds.

"The trees, through whose bare branches the wind all winter has whistled and shrieked, are now sending forth leaves of tender green, and the voice of the wind caressing them is softened to a tone as musical as the song of birds. Flowers are springing up, not in the rigid rows or precise squares of a mechanically inclined horticulturist, but surprising one by elbowing themselves out of the narrowest crevices, or peeping bashfully out from behind fallen trees, or clinging almost upside down to the side of an overhanging cliff.

An Attractive Deformity.

"My camp on Rainy lake faces the south and in front is a little stunted black ash tree, so dwarfed, gnarled, twisted and homely that it is almost pretty. I refrained from cutting it down because of its attractive deformity. In the springtime, a few years ago, a pair of robins chose it as their nesting place. One bright Sunday morning as the nest was in course of construction, I was sitting in my doorway watching the pair. The brisk little husband was hurrying toward the nest with a bit of moss; but the mild sun, the crisp air, the sweet breathing earth, the gently whispering trees, seemed to make him so very happy he could not but tell of it. Alighting on a twig he dropped the moss, opened his beak, and poured forth in song the joy his little body could no longer contain. That is the joy of a northern No-man's Land in the month of May.

"We are so happy in our woodland here that we wish everyone might share it with us. But perhaps some would not enjoy what we enjoy or see what we see, and some are prevented from coming by the duties of other callings, and each must follow the pathway his feet are most fitted to tread. For myself, I only want my little log cabin with the wild vines climbing over its walls and clinging to the mud-chinked crevices, where I can hear the songs of wild birds, mingled with the sleepy hum of bees moving from blossom to blossom about the doorway, where I can see the timid red deer, as peeping out of the brush it hesitates between the fear of man and the temptation of the white clover growing in front of my home, and where I can watch the endless procession of waves following each other up the bay. Give the necessity of working for my daily bread so that I will not feel as though I were a useless cumbrance upon the earth; allow me an opportunity now and then of doing a kindly act, even if it be no more than restoring to the shelter of its mother's breast a fledging that has fallen from its nest in a tree top. If I may have these I will be happy. And happier still if I could know that when the time comes for me to travel the trail, the sands of which show no imprint of returning footsteps, I might be put to rest on the sourhten slope of the ridge beside my camp, where the sunshine chases the shadows around the birch tree, where the murmur of the waves comes in rhythm to the robin's song and where the red deer play on moonlight nights.

Nothing to Fear.

"Neither will I fear the snows of winter that come drifting over the bay, driven by the wind that whines through the naked tree tops, nor the howl of the hungry wolf, for what had no terror for me in life need not have afterward. And if the lessons that I learned at my mother's knee be true, if there be that within me that lives on, I am sure that it will be happier in its eternal home if it may look back and know the body which I had tried to guide through its earthly career was having its long rest in the spot it loved best."

Did you never meet a character like that in northern fiction? No, of course, not; how could you? . . . When the books were written by city dwelling men. Then, too, is not any production of the creative arts—a poem, a story, a play, a painting, or a statue—but a reflection of the composer's soul? So . . . when you read a book filled with inhuman characters, you have taken the measure of the man who wrote it, you have seen a reflection of the author's soul. Furthermore, when people exclaim: "What's the matter with the movies?" the answer is; Nothing . . . save that the screens too often reflect the degenerate souls of the movie directors.

DIES FROM INJURIES RECEIVED IN FIGHT.

WINDSOR, June 28.—Verser Helliotte, aged thirty, died at the Hotel Dieu yesterday from injuries received in a fight with half a dozen other men in a house at 531 Mercer Street the previous day.

The police say all the men were half crazed with liquor.

When Helliotte was found, he was alone in the house, bleeding from several cuts about the head, some of which appear to have been inflicted with a bottle.

John Lesquiski, a roomer in the house, was arrested in connection with the affair. No trace of the other men has been found.

BELLEVILLE MAN FINED HEAVILY FOR ASSAULT

BELLEVILLE, June 29.—Patrick Kennedy, who assaulted Robert Harris, of this city by throwing a shovel at him, ran up an account of $110, which he had to pay into the police court. This amount was compensation to Harris for medical attention hospital expenses and loss of time incurred by him as the result of Kennedy's assault.

Helene Chadwick

The rise of Helen Chadwick as a motion picture actress, although rapid, has been thorough and well-founded. She began her picture work for Goldwyn by playing the leading woman's role with Tom Moore in "Heartease" and is at present playing the feminine lead in the all-star production of Mary Rinehart's first story written directly for the screen, "The Glorious Fool," being directed by E. Mason Hopper.

Miss Chadwick was assigned, for her second appearance, to play the leading feminine role in the first Rupert Hughes picture, "The Cup of Fury," and made such a success in the part that she was given the lead in Mr. Hughes' second photoplay, "Scratch My Back," one of the biggest screen comedy hits ever made.

Comedy to Drama and Return.

She next played opposite Will Rogers in his cowpunching comedy, "Cupid, the Cowpuncher." From that she jumped into a powerful, emotional role in "Godless Men," then back to a domestic comedy-drama by Rupert Hughes, "Dangerous Curve Ahead!"

Following that came another Rupert Hughes drama, a picturization of his novel, "The Old Nest," which with his "Dangerous Curve Ahead!" is ready for fall release.

With Tom Moore Again.

Miss Chadwick then returned to comedy in "Made in Heaven," a Tom Moore photoplay. Her present picture, still in the making, "The Glorious Fool," gives her another comedy-drama role. Richard Dix, who is reported to give a remarkably fine performance in "Dangerous Curve Ahead!", plays opposite Miss Chadwick in "The Glorious Fool."

STAND PATTERS OPPOSE CHURCH UNION PROJECT

With something tangible to go on, however, the committee made a report. The articles, it said, provided simply for the absorption of the Western Congregational Church by the Dale Presbyterian Church, and "that the said articles are therefore neither morally nor legally justifiable."

The matter was then taken to the Executive of the Congregational Union of Canada, which expressed surprise and regret that Congregational rights had not been considered and conserved. In response to which there came from the Presbytery only a mild disclaimer of any intentional discourtesy. The Toronto District Association of the Congregational Church then became seized of the matter, and by resolution hoped for an agreement "by which those members wishing to join another denomination may do so without either destroying the organization of the Western Church or depriving it of its property." To the "loyal" portion of the congregation, the association offered its "hearty concurrence in their project to continue in Congregationalism."

Strengthened by these expressions of opinion, the stand-patters held a meeting on May 10th, twenty-eight being present, of whom all but two were said to be members of the Western Church in good standing. The meeting authorized William Iordan, G. H. Irons, A. J. Peter, A. S. Johnstone, and B. R. James Norris to apply to the civil courts for an order directing the Board of Management to hand over to them all the records, organization and assets of the congregation. It is stated that the Executive of the Congregational Union recognize as the Western Congregational Church those members who have not seceded. Those who voted to become members of Dale Presbyterian Church are declared to have ceased to have any right to representation at annual meetings of the Congregational Union. Rev. Mr. Nelles is declared to have ceased to be a member of committees of the Congregational Union, and F. R. Sweeney, one of the Board of Management, is declared to have ceased to be a member of the Congregational Union.

In a nutshell, the application to the courts is based on the contention that without the unanimous consent of every member of the congregation, the trustees of the Western Congregational Church could not be empowered to take the church funds over to the Dale Western Presbyterian Church. It is contended that "no part of the trust funds can be lawfully diverted to the use or subjected to the control of any other association or body of Christians, or at least any other association or body of Christians not professing, adhering to, and maintaining the whole fundamental principles embodied in the constitution of the Congregational Church without the unanimous assent of the members of the Congregational Church. Those who have adhered to and associated themselves as members of the Presbyterian Church have thereby lost and forfeited all right, title to, and interest in the said trust funds."

PEASANTS STILL OPPOSE REDS IN VOLGA DISTRICT.

Irregular Fighting Continues, Says Man Returned From Russia.

RIGA, June 28.—Irregular fighting between Russian peasants and Red troops is continuing along the Volga river in the vicinity of Saratov, according to Daniel Isaacc, a Seventh Day Adventist missionary of Parker, S.D., who has arrived at Riga with his wife formerly of Harrington, Kan., after a sojourn of many years in Russia.

Mr. Isaac said that the peasants led by Antonoff Makhno, Wakulin, and other irregular leaders whom the Bolsheviki term "bandits", are constantly opposing the Red contingents in the Volga villages, although they are mostly armed only with pitchforks and scythes.

"Fighting began in January, when the commissars seized sheep, cattle and grain, even to chicken food, leaving only 20 pounds of grain per man to support the people through the winter," said Mr. Isaac. "A hundred or more villages in this district which is largely populated by German colonists, are threatened with starvation. The fighting, however, is only a question of 'whites' and 'reds' alternately driving each other in and out of the devastated villages."

Mr. Isaac left the village of Warenburg, on the Voga, where he had a church, early in May. At this time, he says Antonoff had about 40,000 irregulars, whom the Bolsheviki could not catch because they were mounted on fast horses and able to harass the enemy and afterward detreat. These irregulars' he added have been killing a number of Jews in the Volga territory.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac arrived at Moscow on May 8, being permitted to leave Russia in company with Lettish refugees. They spent a week in Moscow, where he found that a number of stores had been opened particularly for the sale of foodstuffs including white bread, eggs and milk all of which were available, although prices were high.

Mr. Isaac brought the news that O. A. Reinke of New York, pastor of the Adventist Church in the Volga territory, died of typhus February 28, leaving a widow and a ten year old daughter who are still living in the village of Hoosenbach near Saratov. They are unabe to leave because they are Amercans.

"Conditions in Russia are worse in the country than in the cities," said Mr. Isaac, 'for there is a shortage of even bread and potatoes. However, the opponents of Bolshevism seem to have lost all power of reorganization and there does not seem to be any chance of a real rebellion in the near future."

ONE OF LUCKIEST DAYS OF HIS LIFE

THAT'S WHAT TORONTO MAN SAYS OF TIME HE BOUGHT HIS FIRST BOTTLE OF TANLAC.

"One of the luckiest days of my life was the day I bought my first bottle of Tanlac," said William Battiste, 80 First Avenue, Toronto, Ont.

"Five years ago I was taken with a sudden attack of headache, followed by an almost complete shattering of the nerves, and for three weeks lay unconscious in a hospital. After an operation I improved some, but never completely recovered my health. I was always restless and nervous and did not sleep well. My stomach was so bad that nearly always after eating I suffered the severest pains. I had headaches frequently and I could hardly stand the pains in my shoulders, arms and knees. I was constipated and had such dizzy spells I was almost afraid to stoop over for fear of falling. I lost thirty pounds in weight and was so weak and run down I could not take up my business again.

"But from the way Tanlac helped me just seemed like the medicine was made especially for my case. I have a fine appetite and eat everything without its hurting me. My nerves and muscles are stronger and I sleep like a child. My aches and pains are all gone and, in fact, I feel better in every way than I have in many a day. Tanlac has done me so much good I can't praise it enough."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by E. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd.; in Havelock by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd.; in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert by A. J. Scott; in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

COUNTY COUNCILLOR REFUSED RAISE IN PAY

KINGSTON, June 29.—When the County Council raised the pay of their members from $5 to $8 a day, Reeve G. A. B. Clark, of Kingston township, objected to the increased indemnities. Later, on drawing his $40 pay for five days' atendance at meetings, he the same day handed over to Mr. J. F. Leatherland, treasurer of his township, $15, the difference between his former salary of $5 a day and the new daily rate of $8.

SLOW PICTURES OF BOUT.

Dempsey-Carpentier Bout First to Be Filmed This Way.

NEW YORK, June 27.—For the first time in ring history a heavyweight championship bout will be "shot" with the slow-motion camera next Saturday, when this new departure in the world of the movies will be brought into play at the Dempsey Carpentier fight at Jersey City. The pictures aken by this camera will be a part of the official fight film being made by Fred C. Quimby for Promoter Tex Rickard.

The slow motion camera, which shows every action at a speed sixteen times slower than normal, will be placed at various points around the ring, so that every movement and every blow of the battle will be recorded. It is said that Jack Kearns, manager of Dempsey, was especially eager to have these pictures taken, so that Dempsey's superiority could be demonstrated in case both men were on thir feet at the end of the twelfth round.

In any event, those behind the project predict that it will be one of the most interesting aftermaths of the bout. It will effectively quash the many arugments that invariably arise after a fight of this sort concerning the kind and nature of blows, their number and the incidents that led up to the knockout, if there is any. It will be recalled that there weer many and various versions as to how the Dempsey-Willard fight ended and as to what blows floored Willard.

MILK IS A COMPLETE DIET; SHOULD BE GENERALLY USED

MAY BE TAKEN IN MANY FORMS, INCLUDING THAT FAMILIAR COMBINATION WITH BREAD OF BABYHOOD.

AND THERE'S PLENTY OF IT

What is the most nourishing and at the same time most economical food? Eminent physicians say at once—milk. Dietitians during recent years in press and on platform have been exhorting with the masses of nonchalant Canadians to use more milk and notable success has been met with in educating people to the value of milk and so it is that the once despised nourishment of babies has won its way into public favour and millions of grown-up Canadians have found that the milky way leads to health and economy.

Right now in the heart of the summer season when milk is plentiful is an opportune time to write an article about milk with especial reference to the multitudes of ways in which those who have an unqualified abhorrence of plain milk may take it camouflaged." A reminedr of the fact that milk is at its best at this season and is most perfecly balanced is not amiss perhaps.

Milk Forms Ideal Meal

What to eat during the warm weather is a problem that cannot be evaded by any person and in milk drinks and dishes the most adaptable economical and healthful answer is found. If the reader loves milk warm from the cow or cold from the ice box the summer food problem is easily solved. For such as you-fortunate one-bread and milk, graham wafers and milk, half and half or in whatever proportion desired and a fruit for desert is a model midday summer meal. However if you do not belong to this class of milk lovers and there are thousands like you, but still hold the lacteal fluid in high esteem for its vitamine value and its perfection as a balanced food do not worry for there are many ways to encompass the milk and the difficulty and take pleasure in doing it.

How About a Milk Shake?

As a preparation for an afternoon work an ice cream soda coated with heavy syrup and at freezing point is an impossibility but a milk shake wth enough syrup to flavour it solves the difficulty admirably. A frosted milk shake, a Broadway (coffee and chocolate mixed) with or without an egg and a sandwich or a saltine will be highly satisfying when nothing else will. Suppement such a midday meal with some fruit eaten in the open if possible and followed up with a little quiet or a glance at some fiction to distract one from the humdrum world and one feels in fighting trim when the afternoon's work is started. Such a luncheon is inexpensive and to equal it a hotel or cafeteria would demand many times its cost. In such a luncheon the elemental feature so desired have been secured relaxation with a light easily digested but nourishing food and these elementals should be reached in every summer luncheon.

Bread and Milk.

Milk lacks starch and this is why bread and milk are "Siamese Twins". Bread and milk should not be regarded as an old-fashioned drink. There are now no old-fashioned drinks—at least not in this province. No one should be ashamed to be caught in the most up-to-date restaurant, hotel or cafeteria partaking of a bowl of bread and milk—in fact according to restaurant proprietors bread and milk is much in demand and it is no uncommon sight to find towards midnight in many eating places portly business men at a table with their noses in respective bowls of bread and milk. These men have learned that a midnight supper of steak with several courses is not conducive to a pleasant or profitable day's work the following day. Father and mother should set the examole for the family in bread and milk consumption and establish the rule that 'tween meals this is the only refreshment the kiddies can have.

Soups Contain Milk

Malted milks and nourishment to the liquid lunch and devotees of buttermilk or the fermented milks are well aware that in partaking liberally they are doing a good thing for their intestinal tracts. Another fine way of getting your quota of milk if the straight method is not pleasing is via the vegetable pure soups. Tomato bisque, and the asparagus, pea, celery, and clam soups made with milk are delicious and are breaking many Canadians of their penchant for cold beverages. The soup should be just nicely warm and if your philosophy is equal to the test you will discovery that the after effects are more cooling if anything than only cold nourishment.

Ice Cream a Food.

Did the reader ever thing that ice cream was a food? Try eating it as such with bread and butter or crackers and see if it isn't satisfying. It is far more pleasing than with another sweet. As a matter of fact a splendid luncheon can be made of ice cream with fresh fruit—no syrup—and bread and butter or some light wafers. There are also ice-cold creamy rice custards that any capable cook can make and cold baked custards two suitable dishes to serve for luncheon on any warm day.

Something Nice

Speaking of food drinks iced chocolate based on milk is one of the most pleasing possible to devise. Make a thick chocolate and put it in the ice box so that you will not need to dilute it too much in icing it. Fill the glass two-thirds with the cold chocolate add cold milk and a single piece of ice when served and top with whipped cream. This beverage you will find bears no resemblance to the usual watered ice chocolate.

Milk should rightfully be the national drink. The luncheon subject is just as important to the housekeeper with or without children as it is to the business man or woman. In hot weather if you are lanmuid or too busy to eat it is a big mistake to "go on your nerve". Not only will you suffer temporarily from undernutrition and finally from over eating when the deferred meal time comes but those around you will likely keenly feel your nerve strain and irritability. The writer's advice therefore to all who want to eat nutritously expeditously is to take milk if not in one form in another a matter to the person's own choice.

Perfect Food.

To many it seems strange that milk can be a perfect food as it is 85 per cent water. In answer to this —it is not the food you eat but the food the body utilizes that gives you strength, rebuilds and vitalizes the functioning organs. A concentrated ration is not suited to sedentary people or summer conditions. From a glass of milk is obtained three to four per cent protein, four to six per cent fat, five per cent. milk sugars while valuable minerals represent about .7 per cent.—everything but the starches which your bread or butter supplies.

Cream is concentrated milk with about three times as much fat as milk. Whipping cream contains as much as 46 per cent. fat and in the states it must have at least 30 per cent. to be legal. No matter in what way we use the word "cream" we refer to the best and to be a figure of speech like this it must be widely accepted truth and the acme of quality. On the score of economy, however, many people deny themselves cream but are prfectly reckless on other less sensible purchases for the menu. Cream is plentiful now and wherever possible it should be used with fresh fruits and vegetables in generous quantities. Try what cream will do to the quality of your meal and see if the price is not warranted. Another enhancing feature of cream is the amount of vitamines contained. Butter fat is a source of vitamine value without a peer.

It is now in order to propose a toast in milk to the health and prosperity of this province. May Ontario blossom like a rose, may it have ever a happy contented people, may it lastly have till the crack of doom thousands of herds of prize milk cattle, with acres of rich land to pasture on and with millions of Ontarians depending on them for the most nourishing liquid food given to mankind by a bountiful Creator.

PREPARE CIVIC HOLIDAY PROGRAMME; EXHIBITION DIRECTORS ARE ACTIVE

DECIDED LAST NIGHT TO BUILD AN ADDITION TO GRAND STAND AT THE FAIR GROUNDS—WILL DOUBLE ITS CAPACITY—NEED THE CO-OPERATION OF THE PUBLIC.

Plans for a programme of attractions at Exhibition Park on Civic Holiday were sketched by the Fair directors at their meeting last night. The card will include three horse races for purses totalling $1,100, a band concert, probably vaudeville acts and other features which should make an interesting afternoon. The programme so far has just been tentatively drawn up, and will be altered and revised as the Exhibition Board develops its plans. It is recognized that the Civic Holiday celebration cannot be made the success that is hoped for unless there is the fullest co-operation for the citizens. The Exhibition Board entered into this work at the request of the City Council. In the morning of the holiday the Hunter Street Bridge will be officially opened, and the afternoon's attractions will complete the day. Mr. Bert Caldwell, of Toronto, will lead in community singing, and it is expected that the Football League will assist by arranging a match for which a suitable trophy will be offered.

Extend Grand Stand.

The directors decided last night to proceed with the erection of an addition to the grand stand that will double the seating accommodation. This work will be launched at once in order that it will be completed and ready for the Civic Holiday crowds. It will be a steel and concrete stand, roofless for the present, but eventually covered and joined to the present stand in a complete whole. As soon as the finances of the Exhibition Board permit the new annex will be roofed.

PICNIC STARTED FOR SOUTH BEACH, LANDED AT WALLACE'S POINT

The annual excursion of George Street Sunday School was held on Tuesday. Although the boat set out for South Beach, it landed at Wallace's Point. This change of direction was due, not to poor piloting of the boat, but to the large number of logs which kept up a bombardment on the bottom of the boat. As there was little wind, the older people were able to enjoy the scenery from the deck, and the younger set below joined heartily in a variety of games and forgot there was such a thing as rain. The rain had stopped and everything was fine when the boat stopped at the Point. After the races were run off, a large number went in swimming and enjoyed themselves in various ways.

The races and winners were as follows:

Girls; Under 8—1, D. Routley; 2, Mary Vance. Under 11 — 1, Olive Elcombe; 2, E. Routley. Under 13 —1, T. Hardill; 2, L. Long. Under 15—1, O. McCall; 2, F. Simpson. Over 14—1, Miss E. Outram; 2, Miss L. Hamilton.

Swimming—1, Miss E. Outram.

Boys: Under 8—1, F. Kingdon; 2, Max. Parnell. Under 10 — 1, Ted Dorman; 2, J. Bradshaw. Under 12 — 1, W. Outram; 2, H. Dorman. Under 14—1, D. Robertson; 2, E. Fowler. 14 and over—1, F. Miller; 2, B. McGill.

Ladies' race—1, Miss Kingdon; 2, Mrs. Lee.

Men's race—1, T. Robertson; 2, C. E. Smalley.

DAMNING VIRTUES WE DON'T PRACTISE.

Doubtless everyone has at one time or another heard and realized the application of Butler's famous couplet: "Compound for sins they are inclined to By Damning those they have no mind to."

A companion piece for it came to me the other day when I heard a woman making what is evidently a favorite statement of hers, for the fourth time.

She was talking about some women who had done wonderful war-work, giving all their time from eight in the morning until six at night to the service.

"It certainly is wonderful what some of these women do," she said; "and yet I sometimes wonder if, when they give so much time to work outside their homes, they can be given the proper amount of time to looking after conservation in their homes. You know that is terribly important, too. And I find it takes a great deal of time."

She paused, and one of a group of admiring auditors (she is quite a prominent woman in her own circle) construed the pause aright and came in with: "And you do such splendid work that way, Mrs. L., you ought to know."

She Did Not Think the Honor Misplaced

Of course that brought a modest disclaimer from her, but it was reasonably plain that she did not feel that honor was being given where honor was not due.

Have you guessed my companion piece?

Exalting virtues we have a mind to
By damning those we're not inclined to.

If the lady ever sees this, I fear she may think me ungracious. I do not mean to be. For, though I use her as an example, it is only as a chance example of what I fear is a very common foible.

What One Does, Always the Right Thing.

The tendency to believe that what one does must be the best thing to do because one does it, is almost universal trait.

I have often heard people tell about their faults with a certain tender pride that showed they felt the fault was raised to the level of a virtue by their patronage.

A Tenderness For Ones Own Faults.

In fact, I have even caught the one person whose conduct is my main concern at some form of this self-deception.

But just now, when practically everyone is doing something and when no one can do everything, in the way of public service, it seems to me that criticism of that sort shows up rather more ungraciously than at any other time.

CANADA'S DESTINY DEPENDS ON MAINTENANCE OF HIGH IDEALS

DR. NORWOOD, OF PHILADELPHIA, AT CONCLUDING CHAUTAUQUA MEETING SAID CANADA'S OPPORTUNITY WAS AS INTERMEDIARY BETWEEN GREAT BRITAIN AND THE UNITED STATES.

Perhaps the most outstanding feature of the very interesting Chautauqua programme given during the last week was the brilliant address by Dr. Robert Norwood, of Philadelphia, formerly of London, Ontario, in the closing session last evening. "The Dominion and Its Destiny" was the subject of a wonderfully inspiring speech from this gifted orator. "Canada's greatest sin has been the sin against its own wonderful soul, its genius and its personality," said the speaker, remarking that in the Dominion ,as in all other great nations, there were two great contending ideals of government, one the materialistic and the other the idealistic. "There is great need in this hour for education amongst men and women concerning ideals and standards. I warn the boys and girls of Canada in the present hour of the spirit of apostasy against the soul of music in the wild pursuit of jazz, and I believe that the prevalence of card-playing in our day is due to the fact that we have lost the art of conversation; our brains have become atrophied, and, having nothing to say, we sit down and go through this pantomime of shuffling."

Warnings of History.

The failure of the ancient kingdoms of Egypt, Nineveh, Babylon and Jerusalem to respond to their highest ideals in the hour of trial was regarded as the cause of their downfall, and the speaker warned Canadians against a similar failure. Canada's great opportunity lies in her possibilities of mediation between the peoples of Great Britain and those of the United States in a future struggle which the speaker seemed to regard as being quite probable if attention is paid to the jingoists and "devilish forces" unloosed in the world to-day, who are trying to force a breach between the two great Anglo-Saxon races. In the event of such a deplorable disaster, the speaker averred, taking into account the distinguishing characteristic of the English-speaking race to refuse to turn back, these two great nations would be "bled white." It would be suicidal warfare which would allow of the entrance into dominion of the lesser races of the world.

Insidious Propaganda.

"The great Anglo-Saxon race has a powerful enemy to-day and that enemy is the insidious propagandist within its own borders." Dr. Norwood appealed to Canadians to do their part in acting as peacemakers, and recommended the abolition of foolishness in the matter of party politics. "The election of 2,000 years ago, when Barabbas was favored over Christ because of party politics, was the first example of this sort of folly." The enormous factor of education, the universities which the speaker declared should be free to all, and which he regarded in most instances as monuments to our religious differences, and the futility of much of our conduct in regard to these same religious differences were regarded by the speaker as important in the advancement of the nation. He complimented the people of Peterborough on their freedom from prejudices of this sort, instancing the case of the young clergyman who recorded the friendly feeling existing between the Bishop of the Roman Catholic church and the ministers of the city.

Canadian Literature.

At the afternoon session, Dr. Norwood delivered a splendid address on "Modern Canadian Poets," advocating the reading of our own Canadian literature, especially amongst the boys and girls of the rising generation, and giving extracts from the works of Peter McArthur, John Garvin, Albert Watson Lloyd Roberts, Rev. Father Dollard and Wilson Macdonald.

Miss Ruby Gall and her Old Song Singers supplied the musical part of the programme, in quaint, old-fashioned cotsumes for their rendering of the songs of long ago. With a quartette of splendid voices and a pianiste of rare ability, they gave old darky melodies, nursery lullabies and popular songs of the days gone by in a charming manner, making, with the speaker, a fittingly impressive close to one of the most delightful Chautauqua programmes ever heard in Peterborough. That the junic members have not been neglected was evidenced by the good attendance all week at their programmes of games and music, under the direction of Miss Ruth Whitworth, while the general manager, Mr. Claude Kinnick, lookeda after all arrangements with untiring cheerfulness.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of the Examiner,

Dear Sir,—In reading your valuable paper on the eve of June 27, I read an article signed by the Deputy Attorney General and goes on to say that the Lord's Day Act is openly violated by persons buying from the farmers along the country road. Now, Sir, to my mind this no more than the Lord's Day Act is violated in our own city of Peterboro. It is no unusual thing to see children also grown people coming out of Ice Cream Parlours eating ice cream cones as well as carrying it away buying candies and anything they have in the store. Now Mr. Editor I think for the good of the young that are growing up in our city it would be well if such places were made to close. These places that I refer to are not eating house but purely candy and ice cream parlours Thanking you Mr. Editor, for your valuable space, I remain.

CITY LEAGUE AND JUVENILES TO PLAY DOUBLE BILL ON SATURDAY

To-night—Westclox vc. Barrie's.
Thursday—Bankers vs. Generals.
Saturday—C.G.E. vs. Y.M.C.A.
St Peter's vs. Lakeviews.

The above are the games in the three local leagues for the remainder of the week. Westclox and Barrie's are playing at the Oval this evening, in order to allow the clock-makers to get away on their holidays to-morrow. A win for Barrie's will give all four teams in the Mercantile League a chance for second half honors.

Bankers and Generals will play in the Juvenile series to-morrow evening at Riverside Park. Generals may use some new material in an effort to stop the financiers.

On Saturday afternoon, the City League and its Juvenile series will put on a double bill, with Y.M.C.A. and C.G.E. and St. Peter's and Lakeviews as the opposing teams.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE ALLEN.

MANY HURT DURING FILMING OF GREAT JUNGLE ROMANCE IN HOLLYWOOD STUDIOS.

Ten persons were more or less seriously injured during the filming of the great serial production of "The Son of Tarzan," the Edgar Rice Burroughs' jungle romance which will be shown at the Allen Theatre beginning Thursday. With one exception all the accidents occurred at different times.

P. Dempsey Tabler and Eugene Burr, both actors, were the first to suffer hurts. Both men sustained broken ribs when a small rowboat capsized. George Morrell, an assistant director, came next with an injured limb, torn during an automobile accident, when Roy Somerville, the scenario writer who adapted "The Son of Tarzan" for the screen, nearly lost his life.

Gordon Griffiith, the young boy screen actor, narrowly escaped blood poisoning from a wound caused by the scratch of an angry lioness, while Mae Giraci, another juvenile in the caste, received painful hurts when she was attacked by a small ape.

ROMANCE IS THEME OF CONSTANCE'S NEW PICTURE.

Romance, romance—theme of the poet's song, dream of young lives, sweetest memory of old age—romance, that sings in the green wood and is wafted upon the airs of spring—romance, in short, that is one of the most delectable things in life, is the motif of Constance Talmadge's new screen picture, "Romance and Arabella," in which she is presented by Lewis J. Selznick. "Romance and Arabella," from a comedy of the stage by William Hurlbut, will be seen on Thursday at the Allen Theatre.

Constance Talmadge has been called the girl of a thousand expressions because she possesses the ability to alter her expression and manner with such remarkable ease and adeptness. She is probably the most vivacious actress of the screen, with that effervescent, bubbling youth that is irresistible and irrepressible. In her various select pictures she has displayed an originality of style and a charm that is as indefinable as it is apparent. There is no doubt but that in "Romance and Arabella" she has achieved a masterpiece of characteristic and realistic acting. The picture is a comedy of the highest type and is perfectly suited to the beautiful young star.

Harrison Ford is again seen opposite her and Walter Edwards directed the picture.

AT THE CAPITOL.

TO-MORROW, THURSDAY, THE CAPITOL OFFERS A REMARKABLE SHOW. GEORGES CARPENTIER, HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPION OF EUROPE, IN A MILLION DOLLAR PRODUCTION, "THE WONDER MAN." SEE THIS PICTURE AND GET A LINE ON THE CHAMPION BEFORE THE BIG FIGHT JULY 2ND. ALSO A BIG TIME ACT OF VAUDEVILLE DIRECT FROM KEITH'S CIRCUIT.

The elite of Washington society forms the background for "The Wonder Man," the Robertson-Cole super-special picture, starring Georger Carpentier, idol of France and European heavyweight champion.

This unusual drama of American society, directed by John G. Adolfi, for Robertson-Cole, promises a revelation in motion pictures of the newer and better sort. The versatility of Carpentier, according to eminent critics, will prove a great surprise to lovers of the cinema art.

Based on an intriguing story of love and mystery, in which Carpentier is given opportunity to display his capacity as a boxer, a sportsman and as a gentleman of the first order, "The Wonder Man," should prove to be one of the most commendable productions that the Capitol theatre has ever presented.

Included in the picture is a boxing bout, with men of national and international prominence forming the audience. At the time the boxing scene was taken more than 2,000 persons packed the studio. This realistic scene, said to be the most perfect of its kind ever filmed in the history of the screen, shows Carpentier in the ring for the first time on this side of the Atlantic. He fights four fast rounds with a worthy opponent.

Among other commendable reports on "The Wonder Man," received from critics who witnessed the pre-review, is the sensation created by the superb acting of Carpentier. His ability as an actor of the first magnitude promises to be a revelation to the lovers of the cinema art.

AT THE REGENT.

FAMOUS WESTERN TALE FILMED FOR TOM MIX

"Prairie Flowers," a most successful novel by James B. Hendryx, has been made into a motion picture by William Fox under the title, "Prairie Trails," and will be presented at the Regent Theatre for an engagement of three days. Tom Mix, the celebrated cowboy star, plays the principal role.

A few months ago, it will be remembered, Mix scored a great success with "The Texan," a thrilling western picture telling the adventures of dashing Tex Benton. "The Texan' was filmed from a very popular Hendryx novel, and "Prairie Trails" is a sequel to it, giving more adventures of Benton, and in particular his love romance.

In every picture Tom Mix makes he introduces some original stunt in riding, roping, or just straight abrobatics. "Prairie Trails" is said to be crammed with such thrills. Those who have read the book and have been enthralled by Benton's hair-raising exploits will realize the terrific punch they will carry when actually presented on the screen.

George Marshall directed "Prairie Trails," and the cast includes Charles K. French, Kathleen O'Connor, Robert Walker, Gloria Hope, Sid Jordan and other well-known players.

RAIN ENDED GAME AT LINDSAY

Lindsay and Oshawa are having unusual difficulty in getting their series played off. On Wednesday of last week Lindsay visited Oshawa, and fifteen minutes before the game was scheduled to start, a big thunderstorm destroyed all chances of playing. Yesterday, Oshawa made a trip to Lindsay, and after an innings and a half had been recorded in the score books, with no runs in, down came the rain, and Umpire Alex. Kay had to call the game off. Oulette was in great form for Lindsay, striking out five of the first Oshawa men who faced him. No date for playing off the game has been decided upon.

TRENT WATERWAYS DEVELOPMENT

and G. N. Gordon, M.P, Peterborough

Membership.

On recommendation by the Executive committee, submitted by the Vice-President, Mr. F. D. Kerr, the membership dues to the Association were set out for the ensuing year as follows: Associate Membership, to include municipalities, organizations, etc., $10; Individual Membership, to include Hotel Proprietors, etc., $5; these amounts being considered by the Executive to be a nominal sum for each to assist in defraying the expenses and work of the Association.

Incorporation.

Owing to the importance of the work of the Association, and its necessity to the Central Ontario District for concerted effort on the part of its general development, the Executive committee were authorized to carry out the necessary arrangements for the incorporation of the Association.

Suggested Ativities.

As the majority of the work during the year devolves upon the Board of Directors of the Association, various suggestions were given by the delegates present for the consideration of the Board.

Senator Bennett, known as the father of the Association, and possibly known better in the northern section of the waterway as 'Waterway Bennett,' suggested that the Government should be prevailed upon to use the moving picture films of the waterway at the various motor-boat shows in the United States and Canada; also that regattas should be formed at various points throughout the waterway during the summer, at which attractive prizes could be given.

Mr. Frost of Orillia, suggested that signs should be placed throughout the waterway, with an emblem of the Association, and showing the name of the place at which the sign was placed. This idea, he considered, would also be a good thing for the various municipalities throughout the district to place similar signs on highways.

Mr. R. B. Rogers of Peterborough, the engineer responsible for the world-wide known Peterborough Lift-Lock and Kirkfield Lift-Lock, suggested that all effort should be made for the commercial utilization of the waterway, as he considered that on the completion of the waterway a considerable saving would be made if shipments could be transported from the Great Lakes through to Montreal on this short waterroute.

Tourist Traffic.

Reports from all delegates present showed that the present season would prove to be a record one as regards the number of tourists visiting this district, and could no doubt be attributed to the effort of the Association in placing this district of ideal summer resorts before the people of the whole continent.

Local Delegates.

Peterborough, being the birthplace of the Association, was well represented by the following delegation: His Worship Mayor A. A. McIntyre, Aldrman N. E. Phelan, Mr. J. J. Duffus, President, Chamber of Commerce, Mr. F. D. Kerr, Vice-President of the Association; Mr. R. B. Rogers, Civil Engineer; Mr. A. L. Killaly, Chief Superintendent of the Trent Canal; Mr. A. L. McIntosh, Hydraulic Engineer, and Mr. Leon Frazer, Secretary of the Association.

DRURY ASKS CHURCH IF TORONTO WILL ACCEPT

(Special Despatch to the Examiner)

TORONTO, June 29.—Premier Drury before leaving this morning for Barrie, where he will attend the marriage of his sister to-morrow, addressed a letter to Mayor Church asking whether the city of Toronto was prepared to accept the Government's proposition with respect to the guaranteeing of securities to an aggregate of $3,000,000 of which $2,375,000 were for the purchase of the Toronto and York Radial Railways.

ARTIFICIAL ICE PLANT HAS A DAILY CAPACITY OF 10 TONS

THE SANITARY ICE SUPPLY NOW OPERATING IN PETERBORO USES FILTERED WATER AND IS OTHERWISE THOROUGHLY MODERN.

SPECIAL DELIVERY FLEET

In to-day's Examiner appears the advertisement of the Sanitary Ice Supply. This is a new and unique manufacturing plant owned and now operating under local management. As may be gathered from the name the product of this plant will be artificial ice. With the opening of an artificial ice plant in this city the company is advancing the city's status as a progresive community to a parity with many of the prominent Canadian and American cities, where since the beginning of the century artificial ice has been manufacutred and widely used.

Can be No Ice Famine.

There is another factor to consider in favour of artificial ice. There can be no ice famine so long as there is a supply of ammonia, electricity, and "elbow grease." No matter if King Frost goes on strike some winter and there is a poor ice make and the followng summer Old Sol does his best to melt all the tiny supply, the artificial ice plants turn out their cold product just the same, subject to no fit or whim of the weather gods.

Up-to-date Plant.

Believing that an artificial ice plant was needed in Peterboro, and it would be supported by citizens, the company has built a modern, efficient plant on Water street north, and ten tons of ice are being manufactured here daily. Eight weeks and four days from the time the first sod was turned the machinery was first operated and the first cake of ice formed. The building, soundly constructed, on a cement foundation, is 60 x 40 feet. It is single story, divided into garage, office and plant, and when completed will be bricked in front and clapboarded with cedar, and will be exceedingly trim and tidy. The ice plant is at the rear. In front is the garage for the four cars, cement floored, with repair pits, and when completed with every facility for the repair of cars. The office is at the front, and is being fitted up for office work and is nicely finished in narow cedar. C. Rutherford and Howard Shurter were contractors of the building.

Not Complicated Machinery.

The manufacture of ice by artificial process is not so complicated as many people believe. A principle of Nature is made use of. Whenever a given mass of liquid changes into vapour a certain amount of heat is absorbed. Vaporization produces cold. Ammonia is used in ice-making machines because the gas liquifies at ordinary temperatures under relatively moderate pressure and it absorbs a great amount of heat in vaporization.

Well Water to be Used.

The water at present being used is from the mains but in a few days the ice will be made from water from a well, 175 feet deep, sunk under the plant, but for which the company has been awaiting the delivery of a pump. This has now arrived and in a few days this water will be in use. The water from the mains would be quite satisfactory, for every drop is put through a fine gravel and sand and charcoal filter, which is part of the equipment, but every precaution is being taken to secure the very best water possible.

Call Every Day.

It is the plan of the Ice Supply to call every day on their customers. If no ice is desired a card, "No ice to-day," which is given to each customer, is to be hung out. It is estimated that a great saving can be effected on artificial ice over natural ice, as the latter is declared to last much longer. It is stated that a refrigerator full of artifiicial ice should ordinarily last four days.

Sold on Ticket Plan.

The ice will be sold on the ticket plan—the same as milk or bread. You pay only for what you use. The prices are regulated by the size of the refrigerator which governs the demand of course. For $5, 900 lbs. of ice are given, if it is for a 100 lb. refrigerator; if a 25 lb. regrigerator, 750 lbs. for $5, or if it is only a small one the charge is $2 for 275 pounds. The wholesale prices for ice are based accordingly. Although the plant has only nicely got started there has been a brisk demand for this pure sanitary ice, and when the Examiner was at the plant yesterday an order for a ton was delivered within 15 minutes of the time it was received.

GERMAN POLICE TRACE MOVEMENTS OF ALL CITIZENS

HALLE, GERMANY, May 30.—(Associated Press, by Mail).—The Security Police organization of Middle Germany, which has been the scene of widespread Bolshevik agitation and frequent clashes between Communists and government forces, has developed a system of espionage which enables it to record the daily activities of virtually every citizen and to trace minutely the movements of strangers.

The latter, without exception, are treated as suspicious characters until the authorities are convinced their business is legitimate and their intentions honorable. Even with the most genuine official documents, the police are not easily satisfied that a stranger and particularly a foreigner, is not pondering deep plots and dark deeds against the government.

In the latest rioting here and in other central German cities, when nearly 4,000 Communists were arrested, innocent circumstances often assumed a sinister aspect in the minds of the police. The Associated Press correspondent, who had been many times examined by minor officials and frequently searched, was twice formally arrested and subjected to cross-examination by the superintendent of the district police forces.

Knew All About Them.

"We know all about you," said this man when the correspondent was taken before him, and from a card he read the record of the American's movements for the three days he had been in the district. He knew the contents of telegrams which had been sent in English, had record of onversations held with German officials, Communists, hotel waiters, porters, policemen on the streets and chauffeurs.

He was, however, in doubt about the correspondent's opinions regarding Communism, and wanted to know about a certain interview with leaders of Communists who were fighting near Eisleben.

"You made a speech to them and appeared to have been favorably received," he said. "What was your purpose and what did you say?"

Assured there had been no speechmaking, the superintendent summoned the chauffeur who had been employed by the corresponden in an effort to reach the Communists. The official finally was convinced the visit was only for the purpose of securing information and that no influence, except an American passport as identification, was employed over the rebels.

He then dismissed the correspondent who, however, next day was again arrested as he entered the local police headquarters. There followed another examination which ended only when the American threatened to report the treatment he had received to the proper government official in Berlin.

Police Nervous.

The attitude of the police, and their palpable nervousness, arose, they explained, out of the fact t at the Communists outnumber them ten to one.

HOW TO REMOVE SCALE FROM THE OLD RADIATOR

One of the simplest and most efficient methods of cleansing the radiator of the scale which forms in it is to fill the water-system with a strong solution of washing soda and hot water, running the engine tion is then drained out of the system and the scale will come with it. Do not race the engine while carrying out this process.

MARY GARDEN AND BILLY SUNDAY GET ACQUAINTED AT REVIVAL

Mary Garden, world-famous singer and managing director of the Chicago Opera company, has hit Billy Sunday's sawdust trail. The two met in Cincinnatti the other dav.

The singer and the revivalist were stopping at the same hotel and Billy, with Bob Matthews, his secretary, and Billy Jr., was ushered into the parlor of the Garden suite, when in came Mary, bubbling over with the vivacity that rarely leaves her.

"Which is Mr. Sunday?" she asked.

"That's me," said Sunday, laughing, and Miss Garden shook his hand heartily. Sunday introduced his companions and then the singer sat down on a lounge and pulled Billy alongside her. Followed a twenty-minute chat between the two—so alike in energy and forcefulness, though their fields are different.

Miss Garden drew her trim, gray-spatted ankles up on the lounge, which seemed to embarrass Billy a bit, but he rolled his gray cloth hat in one hand and, like a bashful schoolboy, answered her questions. Soon, however, he began to talk, too, for Billy Sunday isn't the kind to let anybody else do all the talking when he is around.

They talked of Billy's home at Winona Lake, Ind., of how Mary wants to go west this summer and ride bronco ponies, and how each keeps the throat in good shape, and how probibition is making the United States better. Billy said he had to keep his voice under constant watch.

"You know," he said, "when your voice goes bad you can have an understudy go in to bat for you, but with me it's a case of talk or shut up shop." And he grinned a Sundayesque grin.

Mary tapped Sunday on the chest and leaned forward.

"Nobody knows," she said, "what it takes to breathe right so that one can sing right." And Billy agreed.

They talked about Mary's new job as manager of the opera company, and both agreed one must know how to handle people.

"You can't handle them all alike," said Mary, laughing.

"Really," she told him, "you are doing a most won-n-derful work." So Sunday told her all about it and how he enjoyed it, and then invited her to come to the tabernacle, where he is conducting an eight weeks' revival.

So Mary agreed to go and bring with her Horace Potter, her own manager, and her sister and her secretary.

She laughed and he grinned as they prepared to part.

Next day Mary appeared at the tabernacle for the afternoon sermon. Her party came in during the invocation. Mary stood with bowed head and then took a seat at the side of the platform.

When Sunday arrived he shook hands with her and mounted the platform.

Mary joined her million-dollar voice with the voices of 5,000 other people and sang "Brighten the Corner Where You Are" and "Will There Be Any Stars in My Crown?" She didn't sing very loud, so nobody knew whether she was accustomed to singing 'em or not, as she held a red hymn book which one of the ushers offered her.

Billy started off by saying that in no matter what field one is he can by effort get to the top, whether it's preaching or playing baseball or grand opera singing.

Then he mentioned his meeting with Mary.

"Hugh!" he said, "when I first met her I didn't know whether to call her Mary or Miss Garden. But then I thought I hadn't heard her ever called Miss Garden, and everybody called Roosevelt Teddy and Lincoln Abe, so that when one is popular it doesn't bother one to be called by the first name.

"There's Mary Garden over there," he said pointing.

And Miss Garden, clothed in sable and silk wearing pearls and diamonds, stood up, her red turban making a colorful figure. She laughed and bowed and the crowd applauded.

Then Billy invited her up on the platform, but she didn't want to go. Finally she ascended three or four steps, but as the applause broke out anew she ran down again and flopped into her chair. Mary Garden, who has sung before crowned heads and audiences numbering thousands, suffered "stage fright" in Billy Sunday's tabernacle.

So she remained in her seat while Billy preached about compassion on one's fellow men, and it was noticed two $10 bills went into the tin pan passed as a collection plate by one of the ushers.

She listened intently to the sermon, leaning forward—her white gloved hands clasping a cane she brought with her.

After the sermon the party left at once.

"What did you think of it?" the reporter asked Miss Garden.

"He's immen-n-nse!" said Mary seriously.

Later when Mary told Sunday that she favored prohibition Billy said:

"I always did like you, Mary, but I like you better than ever now!"—Public Ledger.

LEAVE TO PRESIDENT DUTY ON LUMBER

Ways and Means Committee Change Wording of Provision in Tariff.

WASHINGTON, June 27.— As a concession to opponents of a duty on lumber Republican members of the Ways and Means Committee have changed the word "shall" to "may" in the reciprocal duty provision appiying to Canadian finished lumber.

The bill as it will be introduced in the House, according to reports to-day, will provide that the President may, in his discretion, impose a duty on lumber "planed' on one side or more and tongued and grooved" equal to whatever duty may be applied by another country.

The effect is to permit the President to impose the 25 jer cent. ad valorem Canadian duty if he wishes to do so instead of applying the duty automatically.

FRENCHMAN BUILT FIRST MOTOR CYCLE

Trouve Developed Powered Cycle in Paris in 1880.

While motorcycles in this country were not manufactured in any great quantity until after 1902, it is interesting to observe that the first motorcycle was given to the world by a Frenchman back in 1880. This first motorcycle was made by M. Trouve, in Paris, and created great interest and excitement. Fifteen years elapsed before the first real improvement was recorded. This was the invention of the petrol tricycle by Count De Dion. Messrs. Bouton and Trepardoux, also Frenchmen, helped him in the perfection of the invention.

The first machines were crude affairs, naturally. They were inefficient as to mechanism and rather risky to operate, considering the road conditions, etc., of those days.

It remained for American inventors and manufacturers, however, to perfect the motorcycle and market it on a large scale. Today, one of the large American manufacturers has a yearly output that is greater than 50 per cent. than the largest foreign manufacturer.

HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP BATTLES

The only boxer that ever got a real good day's work out of Jack Dempsey was Bill Brennan. Usually Jack knocks an opponent out in the first two or three rounds and collects his day's wages. But somehow or other Bill is one of those fellows who can't get to sleep right away. Once it took six rounds for Dempsey to quiet his nerves and on another occasion Bill remained awake twice that long.

This second occasion was 1st December at Madison Square Garden. Brennan was sure feeling fine that night. He acted as though he had just taken a shower under the Fountain of Youth and instead of sticking around wondering which way to dodge next, he stepped up and showed the champion all his stuff.

Some of it didn't seem to sit very well with the king of fighters. Early in the bout Brennan handed him a wallop that for a moment seemed to daze the head that wore the crown. A little later on his glove slashed Dempsey's mouth and after a while other corpuscles began to take the air in the vicinity of the champion's ear.

The experts said Brennan carried the fight to Dempsey for ten rounds. Some skeptics believed the champion tarried that long to give the movie fans a treat. Other people whispered that the real low down on the thing was that Dempsey had not trained hard for the scrap and was not in good condition. The fact remained that none of his caveman punches were in evidence during the early part of the fight.

He assembled one of these wallops in his left arm during the 12th round and let it loose upon Brennan, squarely amidship. The big challenger's body assumed the posture of a half-opened picket-knife his head dropping almost to his knees. Fighting hard against the approaching end, he spread out his legs and remained up. While sawing in this position Brennan received a sound smash on the jaw and fell to the floor.

HENLEY BOAT RACES OPEN TO-DAY UNDER IDEAL CONDITIONS

HENLEY, Eng., June 29.—(Canadian Press). — Four days of boat racing opened here to-day under ideal weather conditions. Seventy-one crews and scullers were entered for the various events, forty-one crews intending to compete in the three eight-oared events.

FOOTBALL NOTES

CALEDONIANS WON.

Despite the showers last night the practice game between the Woollens and the Caleys was pulled off at Nicholls Oval with the ranks of both teams depleted on account of the unpropitious weather. The Caleys won 3 to 2. There were only a few spectators, and the ground was slippery and made fast football impossible.

Football fans are eagerly waiting the outcome of to-night's engagement between the Caleys and the War Vets, which practically decides the City League winners. If the Caleys win the Woollens will be the victors; if the War Vets win they will be city champions. The game is called for 6 p.m. J. Clark will referee.

COBOURG AND HILLCRESTS ARE HERE ON THE HOLIDAY

The Cobourg-Peterborough Central Ontario League fixture at Riverside Park on Friday morning should be an interesting battle. The Petes are fighting with their backs to the wall and if they drop Friday's fixture they will be out of the running for the first half of the Central League race. They are out to stop their losing streak and to hit the stride that carried them through to the top of the last season, and a win on Friday will mean a lot to them. Cobourg will have their strongest line-up of the season, and are working smoothly under the leadership of Manager Tyson. The game will be called at 10 o'clock sharp.

In the afternoon the famous Hillcrests will be the attraction. They walloped the Petes unmercifully early in the season, but the Central Leaguers expect to give them a different kind of a battle on the holiday and to show the Toronto crew that all the baseball in the O.B.A. A. is not confined to the Queen City. Manager "Nip" Dwan can be counted upon to have his strongest line-up in action and it should be a worth while game. It is slated for 3 o'clock sharp.

Y.M.C.A. NOSE OUT HAMILTON'S IN CITY BASEBALL LEAGUE GAME

With the base paths strips of mud, the grass slippery with moisture, and a June shower gently splashing down upon the players, the Y.M.C.A. defeated the Wm. Hamilton team at Riverside Park last night by 5 runs to 4 in a City League fixture. Considering the conditions the game was not a half bad exhibition.

It was featured by the most spectacular catch of the season. Alex. Fitzgerald playing left field for the Y. team pulled off the circus grab, and his feat was nothing less than robbery. The play came up in the third innings, when Thompson met one of Dickson's slants squarely, and the ball sped far out into left field with "triple" marked all over it. Fitzgerald, however, was off with the crack of the bat and running with his back to the plate stuck up his bare hand, and going at full speed and with his arm extended to the last possible inch, gathered in the drive. It was one of those "impossible" catches that occur about once in a blue moon.

The Y.M.C.A. trotted out a new battery, Dickson doing the heaving, and Huff working behind the bat. Dickson held the Hamilton team to five hits and outside of the fifth innisgs had fairly easy sailing. Cousins opened game for Hamilton's in spite of an injured hand, and the Y crew put over three runs with only one hit in the first innings. Kitchen went to the mound in the second and held the winners in good style.

The opening innings gave the Y. M. C. A. a flying start. Herbison was safe on Russell's fumble, and Alex. Butcher was hit. Huff fanned but Callaghan let Tudhope's grounder get away and Herbison and Butcher scored. Tudhope registered on a passesd ball.

Hamilton got one back in the second on Herbison's bad throw to first on Cupoli's tap, a miss by the same player of Cousin's roller, and a passed ball which sent Cupoli in.

A pass to Pogue and Thompson's high throw to first on Dickson's drive, gave the Y another in the second and they added their last run in the third. Gibbs dropped Tudhope's fly to start with, and after Fitzgerald had popped to the pitcher McWilliams hit to Callaghan, who fumbled. He recovered in time to nip Tudhope at the plate, McWilliams going to second on the play, and scoring on George Butcher's single over second.

Singles by Murphy and Lebarr, a wild pitch by Dickson, O'Heron's sacrifice hit and Thompson's single to left scored three for the Hamilton outfit in the fifth. They had the tieing run on third with only one out but Dickson threw out Callaghan and fanned Cupoli.

There was no further scoring:

RING BATTLES OF DEMPSEY

No. 7.

Jack Dempsey and Jess Willard met for the world's heavyweight championship at Toledo, O., July 4, 1919. The day was blistering hot. Thermometers at the ringside registered as high as 130 degrees. The big arena, constructed to seat 75,000 persons, contained only a few hundred more than 19,000. The gate receipts, however, insured the financial success of the project.

There was a marked contrast in the demeanor of the boxers as they entered the ring. Jess Willard, the champion, was almost arrogantly confident. He approached the ring with a sure stride, climbed through the ropes and gazed calmly out on the crowd with the suggestion of a confident smile playing around his mouth.

Dempsey's manner was more serious. A scowl, which visitors at his Atlantic City training camp have seen this summer while he has boxed, was intensified as he heard the instructions of Referee Ollie Pecord. The casual observer would have said he was doubtful of his ability to defeat this huge opponent.

With the bell for the opening round, doubt as to Dempsey's confidence vanished. He rushed Willard, plying him with rights and lefts, first to the jaw, then to the body.

After 45 seconds of action, a right to the body and a left to the jaw dropped Willard to the canvas. For the remainder of the round, the champion displayed courage seldom equalled in the squared circle. Seven times during the round, Willard was either knocked down or sent helpless to the ropes. He was prone when the gong sounded for the close of the round. In the clamor, the gong was not heard, and it was believed for a moment that Willard had been knocked out. Dempsey even started to leave the ring, believing that he was the victor. There has been doubt as to whether he actually got out of the ring.

Willard, a gory, bloody mass, both eyes closed, but still fighting, managed to last two more rounds. He was unable to answer the bell for the fourth round, and Dempsey was declared the winner by a knockout in three rounds.

Carpentier became a heavyweight in 1913. The year which saw him defeat Marcel Moreau for the middleweight championship of France and then invade the ranks of the heavyweights to twice defeat Bombardier Wells, the big Englishman, was probably the most sensational of his career.

Carpentier, through his superb boxing skill, gave Moreau a terrific beating in eight rounds, forcing his opponent to quit, although with a ruse in which Moreau's seconds declared that his glove had been split and his hand injured.

Carpentier was now ready to meet Wells. The bout was staged in Ghent, June 1, 1913.

Carpentier knocked out Wells in the fourth round. The Frenchman declares that the first three minutes of that match were the worst he ever experienced in the ring. Wells knocked Carpentier down a count of nine in the first round. Spectators were amazed when the Frenchman regained his feet. Hanging on, he weathered the storm. He stalled through the second, felt out his man in the third, and found that the stomach was his opponent's vulnerable spot.

In the fourth, after about a minute of action, Carpentier feinted for the jaw. Wells lifted his guard, and Carpentier shot a right to the mid-section that sent Wells down and out. It was a remarkable show of pluck and recuperative power on the part of the Frenchman, still in his 'teens.

Dempsey won the title like a virile, two-fisted fighter, and it was believed that he would box often, without quibbling as to terms and guarantees. But he, like many other champions, realized that the time for reaping a financial harvest would not last forever, and, guided by Kearns, was out to "get his."

A theatrical tour which the pair undertook did not result in a "killing," however, for Dempsey, the fighter, was a far different person from Dempsey, the actor. The motion pictures, however, offered him revenue. Trouble with draft officials which finally resulted in the clearing of his name from the charge of evading military service, also occupied considerable time.

Dempsey did not enter the ring in a formal contest as champion until September 6, 1920, when he met Billy Miske, St. Paul light heavyweight, in a bout at Benton Harbor, Mich. He had met Miske twice before in no-decision bouts of 10 and six rounds. The match turned out as anticipated, an easy victory for Dempsey, by a knockout in three rounds.

The bout, however, drew a "gate" of $134,204, and served to replenish the Dempsey-Kearns coffers to the amount of $55,000.

The sensational knockout of Wells by Carpentier made the Frenchman more than ever the "Pet of Paris." Everywhere, he was greeted as a conqueror with adulation that would have done no good to a man less balanced in judgment. He was the first Frenchman to achieve international prominence in boxing, which is not primarily a French sport.

Carpentier fought Jeff Smith, the American middle and light heavyweight, in Paris shortly after the first Wells battle and defeated him in 20 rounds. Wells, in the meantime, was demanding a return battle and Carpentier readily acquiesced.

They met the second time at the National Sporting Club in London, Dec. 8, 1913. The betting was "even," for England still refused to believe that this slender Frenchman was really a match for Wells. Wells was nervous. His knees shook as he looked across the ring at the cool, smiling Carpentier.

Carpentier spent no time "feeling out" his man. Out of his corner like a bullet, he whinped in savage blows to the heart and stomach, centering his fire on the mid-section. Wells, in desperation, stuck out his right. Carpentier slid under it and blazed away with a blow to the heart. Wells' knees sagged. Carpentier hooked a right and a left to the jaw. Wells went down for the count. The bout had lasted less than one minute.

Now, more than ever, French joy knew no bounds. Pictures of Carpentier festooned Paris. Sculptors made him their model. Statuettes of the boxer adorned automobiles. More than ever, he was the "Idol of France."

WHO'LL WIN?

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

MONTREAL, June 29. — Fred Beauvais, (Indian guide): "I had two dreams in which I saw Carpentier winning the championship from Jack Dempsey. It was just as plain as if it had appeared on a movie screen. I think that Dempsey will lose, because Carpentier is a great boxer."

LYALL'S WERE EASY FOR HAMILTON I.L.P.

Reporting the semi-final football game for the Ontario Cup which was played in Hamilton Saturday between the Labor Party team and Lyalls, of Ottawa, the Hamilton Spectator says the visitors were on the defensive for at least three-fourths of the game. Hamilton I.L.P. won by the score of 5 to 0.

"And while the Ottawa boys did not show anything that the Hamiltonians did not already know, due allowance must be made for the fact that they had travelled something like 1,300 miles in the course of the last two or three weeks," comments the Spectator. "They looked travel-worn, and did not appear to be greatly worried when their Ontario troubles were over for another year. Fate decreed that they must travel to Brantford, St. Catharines, as well as Hamilton.

"The I.L.P. defence was seldom in difficulties. The halves played a particularly fine game, and the Ottawas never got a chance to settle down. Forty minutes had elapsed before Scanlon got a shot. In the second half he did not have to handle the ball more than half a dozen times. Hamilton had four goal kicks during the game, and Ottawa 24; Hamilton had six corner kicks and Ottawa one. That's the story of the game in a nutshell."

70,000 WILL SEE SATURTAY'S BOUT IN LARGEST SPORTING ARENA EVER

NEW YORK, June 28.—(Associated Press).—The greatest arena Tex Rickard has built is ready to accommodate approximately 70,000 spectators when Champion Jack Dempsey meets Georges Carpentier in Jersey City, July 2.

Since April 28, more than 600 workmen have been distributed over all sections of the huge octagonal saucer which grew daily under their tatto of hammers until today, when their labor was completed. The great reinforced structure, covering nearly a third of the tract known as "Boyle Thirty Acres", awaits the inspection of government engineers and the installation of telegraph wires through which millions of persons, compared to whom the 70,000 actual spectators will be numerically insignificant, will see the "Battle of the Century" through their mind's eyes.

Twenty-five minutes from Broadway and 42nd street, a more advantageous site for the contest could not have been chosen. Tube trains under the Hudson River will carry thousands of persons to stations near the arena. Ferry boots will carry more thousands across the river from Manhattan to trolley centers in Jersey City within easy reach of the battle ground. More than a dozen trunk line railroads with Jersey City as a terminal, will bring their quota from distant places. Several trans-continental railroads, with yards only a few blocks from "Boyle's Thirty Acres" will park special trains of Pullman cars on convenient siding which enthusiasts from distant points will use for shelter during their stay here.

The arena is the largest ever built by Rickard or any other promoter for a boxing contest. It exceeds by far the amphitheater in which Johnson and Jeffries met in 1910 at Reno, Nev., and also the one where Jess Willard lost his title to Jack Dempsey at Toledo, O., two years ago. It has been built at a cost of $200,000. Two and a half million feet of lumber, equal to 475 miles of boards, laid end to end, or about 140 car loads, have been used in the construction.

Better than ever before at a boxing bout, holders of reserved seats will be protected at Jersey City, in July 2. Long experience in the psychology of "fight crowds" has taught Tex Rickard the wisdom of precaution. Fences, with barbed wire barricades, will mark the limits of the various seat sections, to which the crowd will have access through 20 entrances. Every seat, except five dollar general admissions, has been reserved, and holder of a $50 or a $40 seat will enter and walk to the desired point of vantage with as much ease and certainty, Rickard assures, as the purchaser of an orchestra seat in a metropolitan theater.

Advance sales have indicated that a greater proportion of women will attend the bout than has ever been the case in a title heretofore. Rickard has declared that nearly one-fourth of the crowd will be composed of feminine spectators. Boxes immediatey in the rear of $50 seats have been constructed with the aim of accommodating "box parties" comfortably.

Numerous groups of officials, including Governor Edwards of New Jersey and his staff; Mayor Hague of Jersey City and possibly Harry M. Daugherty, Attorney General of the United States, will add to the color and the quality of the unusual throng.

Only in the varying distance at which the different priced seats are located from the ring, will they vary in desirability. Persons in every part of the arena will have a clear view of the boxers throughout. No posts poles or obstructions will hamper the vision. From the ring raised about five feet above the level of the ground, the seats extend in a gentle slope upwards in every direction for approximately 300 feet, making the breadth of the arena, from side to side, slightly more than 600 feet. The structure, at its most distant point, is 38 feet high.

Fans, curiosity-seekers and the hangers on, familiar to every boxing crowd, have made life a bit irksome for the force of watchmen whom Rickard has installed at the arena, on day and night shifts, for protective purposes. Refreshment tents and booths for those who will vend "soft drinks, peanuts, crackerjack and souvenirs", have been erected outside of the big enclosure, within the past week. War prices for these commodities may prevail but as yet none of the vendors has had the temerity to flash a menu or give an inkling of the cost of edibles to the intending purchasers.

Inside and outside the arena, the big bout promises to furnish the most colorful scene which the patrons of boxing ever have witnessed.

Emigrants to Brazil and America Say They Cannot Find Work.

MADRID, June 27.—El Imparcial publishes a long list of anonymous complaints from Spaniards who have emigrated to Brazil and the United States and other American countries requesting the Spanish authorities to provide them with transportation home. They say they are unemployed and that they find the employers in the countries to which they emigrated firmly determined not to engage foreign workers.

Most of the complaints express regret that the writers left Spain on what they claim were false representations by the emigration agents.

"Legs Are Now Part of the Portrait"

The Artistic and Logical Explanation of Why Modern Woman, Posing for Her Photograph, Displays Shapely Shoes, Calves and Even the Knees, as Well as a Pretty Face.

THAT word "portrait" has meant a great many different things. In peasant Europe it means an extraordinary display of Sunday clothes with only the face exposed. In Turkey it means a pair of eyes. In African countries where they wear no clothes at all, it means what it might mean to a sculptor.

Just now civilization is startled, and not infrequently shocked, to discover that "portrait" means a display of the actual outlines of the body quite beyond anything it ever meant before.

Imagine this bit of conversation:

"How do you like her portrait?"

"It's rather good, but I don't think it does justice to her legs."

No mid-Victorian moralist, even with a Jules Verne imagination, ever could have predicted such a fragment of dialogue.

Yet it is right out of life.

By Ethel Thurston

At Left—Mrs. Rodu Iremescu of Bucharest, Roumania, Photographed on Her Arrival Here to Study Economic Conditions, and Above, Miss Audrey C. Norman of Richmond, Va., Who Has Just Returned from Abroad Where She Made a Study of the Newest Fashions.

THE newest fad in portraiture appears have reached its limit. The portrait of a woman may now include a view of her legs. Perhaps it might be said that a view of the legs is expected. But even though it is permitted, and not infrequently applauded, the new portrait still seems to be shocking to the great conservative mass of the population.

Nor is the new fashion less disturbing because it is an outgrowth of a short skirt style that gradually, almost insidiously, one might say, raised the skirt to within about an inch of the knee. Condemnation is heard on many sides. The clergy thunder against it. In some instances rebuke has been given to those who showed their portraits to friends. But, on the other hand, those who justify the total effect, assert that the lower limbs are now a reasonable part of the portrait and are likely to remain so.

Naturally, one would be led to believe that the display of prettily fitted silk hosiery, and, perhaps, a dimpled knee, had its origin in the brain of some fashion king or queen. But, be assured to the contrary, such was not the case. What did it? Microbes! Yes, as sure as you're born, microbes, millions of 'em, clinging to the hem of that skirt; which, even without a train, used to sweep the streets as thoroughly as the department street cleaning, carrying home all sorts of dust and bacteria.

So the doctors and the scientists got after those long skirts, and, behold! about 20 years ago, the skirt went up to the ankle. And then—

Well, the most populous spots that we can recall in those days were the approaches to railroad terminals on rainy days, and corners where old Boreas blew his stiffest. Ache in the neck used to be a common masculine ailment then. But, anyway, that ankle-high skirt was the start. And it gradually crept up. And then came the rainy-day skirt, reaching to shoe top; and it won the approval of the athletic girl and crept even higher.

You see, when the skirts went ankle-high women discovered for the first time in centuries that legs were good for certain things they had never been put to before. Basket ball, for instance! Hand ball, hiking, mountain climbing, bicycling! And they found that if they were a bit higher that they could indulge in these sports without buying special costumes or emulating the Heavenly Twins, originators of bloomers for bike riders. So, up they went a bit higher.

But even that four inches above the ankle didn't quite answer the demand of the American girl. She had lost her mincing step. She wanted to stride right out, like a man, if we may say so; she wanted to escape from such a limitation as the hobble skirt. So! She cut the Gordian knot with a pair of scissors and made a slit up the sides. At the same time she sent the skirt a bit higher.

Fashion Bared a Dimpled Knee

Then came the war, when the great hue and cry were for economy in all things. Milady's tailor saw a great chance. That skirt went up to the calf. And now——

Well, that's how it happened that legs are now part of the portrait. Picture it yourself. You have come to recognize the legs of the girl who lives down the street equally as well as her face. In fact, when you mentally photograph any woman you know you include the ankle and the calf and, sometimes, even the knee. For the short sock fashion bared many a dimpled knee to the public. So, isn't it logical that when you get a picture of the girl nearby or see one of your neighbor's wife on the mantel-shelf of her home, you, of course, pay just as much attention to the legs as to the faces.

"I think that if the photographer had told her to cross her legs a bit differently it would have better displayed the contour of that calf," you will say. And your gentleman friend then may reply, "Well, maybe he wanted to show more of her ankle. You see, it is quite slim and exceedingly pretty. And as for fat calves. Why, there's nothing particularly charming in them."

And you won't think anything more about carrying on such a conversation than you did when you said, some years back, "If the profile were a bit sharper it would show up the character of her face better. Then, too, the swan-like feature of her neck is utterly slighted. Some of these photographers are so stupid." To which your companion answered, "Well, maybe the photographer had a reason for it. Perhaps he didn't want to show too much of her neck, you see."

Some say that the bathing suit has had much to do with the new portraiture of the fashionable woman of today. Down at the beach, where one met all her friends, one-piece bathing suits displayed all the charms endowed upon her by nature.

Of course, most of the foregoing offers excuse for what those whom the fashion has shocked, declare to be the abandonment of womanly diffidence. But there are reasons for it, good reasons, too, and logical ones, that disprove anything that is not modest in the new portrait, even though it appears startlingly ingenuous. Getting in and out of public conveyances and private automobiles has torn many, many expensive clothes. How often have you heard that hem rip. Expensive gowns have often been ruined by an extra high trolley car step. The short skirt is the answer to this problem. Moreover, it is just as modest, every bit so, as the tight, more ample skirt. Anyone who has watched a woman board a trolley car, one with a particularly high step, not a so-called "hobble-skirt" car now used generally, has noticed that the very tight skirts go way up above the knees and cause men to look, inquisitively. But the short ones, not being tight at the bottom, cannot go any further. And the men don't look because they have already seen what there is to see, if they saw the lady on the street a moment before she boarded the car.

Some of the "Exhibits"

But judge of this for yourself. Look at the photopraphs reproduced on this page. And also note the varying style of beauty in the legs of Mrs. Rodu Irimescu, wife of a prominent engineer of Bucharest, and in those of Miss Audrey Carrington Norman of Richmond, Va. Mrs. Irimescu's ankles are perfectly in accord with her well-turned calves; but a mere glance shows that they would have looked out of place on the slimmer and differently shaped calf of Miss Norman, whose legs are just as pretty, however, the photographer asserts. Isn't it a fact, too, that the leg part of the portrait of Miss Norman fills out the picture better than the costume of hand-knitted silk and wool mixture, trimmed with angora, from Paris, and an angora hat, trimmed with gold braid from Switzerland, which she is wearing. After all, those Scotch heather stockings hold the eye, don't they?

Would you prefer this sort of beauty to that of Miss Chrissie Anderson of Missouri, who startled Washington recently with her trouser bloomers?

If none of these legs proves to you the necessity of their presence in a portraiture, glance at those of Mlle. Bourgeois dite Mestinguett, the French danseuse, who thinks so much of hers that she has had them insured for $100,000. Would not such slim yet graceful legs fit well in any portrait? Would a portrait of her be complete without the legs?

Although Miss Chrissie Anderson (at Left) Is from Missouri, She Doesn't Care to Be Shown. So She Has Designed This Bloomer Skirt Which She Considers More Dignified Than Tight or Short Skirts.

Having Insured Her Shapely Legs for $100,000, Mlle. Bourgeois Mestinguett, the Parisian Dancer, Has Selected This Startling Pose in Which to Have Them Photographed.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 29 (Canadian Press).—Wheat prices developed moderate strength to-day after a weak start. Good export business, resulting from yesterday's big break, in values, helped to rally the market, and so did the continued drought and heat in the north-west. Opening quotations, which varied from unchanged figures to 1 1-2 cents lower with July 118 to 110 and September 117 to 117 1-2, were followed by upturns all aroumd to well above yesterday's finish.

Corn rallied with wheat. After opening 1-8 to 1 1-8 cents lower, including September at 59 1-8 to 59 5-8 the market scored substantial general gains.

Oats were lifted by the strength of other cereals, starting 1-8 to 1-2 off, September 37 3-8 to 37 1-2, and then turning up grade.

Higher quotations on hogs gave firmness to provisions.

Subsequently a decided further advance took place in wheat. Crop reports from the north-west were the worst so far this season. The market closed strong 4 1-2 to 6 cents net higher, wth July 123 3-4 to 124 and September 122 1-2 to 123.

The bride, wearing a suit of white canton crepe, large white embroidered crepe hat and carrying a bouquet of Ophelia roses and lilies of the valley, entered the church on the arm of her father, who gave her away, to the strains of the wedding march played by Mr. Frank Tattersall, who continued to play soft music throughout the entire ceremony. The bridesmaids were Miss Mary Harstone of Peterboro and Miss Nancy Greenleese of Toronto, in gowns of orchid and green organdie, with hats to match, and carrying sweet peas. Mr. Walter Blackwell acted as groomsman.

Mr. and Mrs. Blackwell left immediately on an extended motor trip the bride traveling in pink crepe de chine with hat to match. On their return, they will reside in Toronto.

OBITUARY

STANLEY CAREY.

The death occurred at the Receiving Hospital, Detroit, on Monday last, of Stanley Carey, formerly of Otonabee. The deceased, whose death was caused by a train accident, was 30 years old. He was employed as bookkeeper in the works of the Cadillac Motor Co., and expected to take his vacation within the next two weeks and join his wife, who has been visiting his father for the last month. He leaves to mourn his loss his wife, one child, his father, three sisters and three brothers. The funeral will take place from the Sacred Heart church at 10 o'clock on Thursday morning. Interment in St. Peter's cemetery.

W. G. HANKINSON.

There passed away Tuesday night at the family residence, 563 Bethune Street, after a short illness, W. George Hankinson, beloved husband of E. Theressa Thomas. Besides his wife, there are left to mourn his loss, one brother, C. A. Hankinson, of Campbellford, and one sister, Mrs. Geo. H. Bartlett, of Meyersburg. He was born in Percy Township in 1871. A good portion of his life was spent in the mercantile business in Parry Sound and Sudbury. He was a member of Trinity Methodist Church, Peterborough. He was an enthusiastic supporter of fraternal societies, being a member of the Oddfellows, Independent Order of Foresters, and Chosen Friends. Mr. Hankinson had a bright and cheerful disposition, and the kindness and thoughtfulness shown all with whom he came in contact won for him a host of friends. His early death will be greatly regretted by friends throughout the whole province.

The funeral will take place at 2 p.m. Thursday, from his late residence, 563 Bethune Street, to Little Lake Cemetery, Rev. F. E. Malott officiating.

CITIZENS ORGANIZE ASSOCIATION TO ADVISE CIVIC BUSINESS, INVESTIGATE CITY FINANCIAL PROJECTS AND ACT AS FACTOR FOR PROGRESS

OWNERS' AND TENANTS' ASSOCIATION INTENDS TO SUPERVISE BUSINESS OF CITY COUNCIL, BOARD OF EDUCATION AND UTILITIES COMMISSION—LARGE CIVIC EXPENDITURES UNDER FIRE—PROFITEERING ALLEGED IN MEAT AND BREAD AND ANNOUNCEMENT MADE THAT COMPETITIVE MEAT MARKET WILL BE ESTABLISHED—DEMAND FOR AUDIT OF UTILITIES BOOKS REAFFIRMED.

About 200 of the city's ratepayers gathered in the G.W.V.A. Hall last evening for the purpose of (1) Receiving reports and deciding future action regarding increased water rates; (2) Organising an Association of owners and tenants; (3) Considering any other business referring to the welfare and progress of the city.

With a constitution providing as its objective the supervision of the business of the City Council, Utilities Commission, and Board of Education, the creating of a deeper interest in civic affairs, the advancement of the welfare of the city, and to investigate and report on civic financial projects, the Association was launched amid enthusiasm. Large civic expenditures underwent heavy oratorical gunfire, as did also the alleged profiteering in meat and bread. In connection with meat prices, it was announced that a competitive meat market would be established here in July, and citizens were asked to patronise it. The demand of the recent citizens' meeting for an independent audit of the books of the Utilities Commission was reaffirmed.

Ald. J. J. Turner occupied the chair and opened the proceedings by reading a report of the negotiations between the Peterborough Utilities Commission and those interesting in discovering reasons for the proposed increase of 80 p.c. in water rates. After the meeting of citizens held in the G.W.V.A. Hall on June 17th, a meeting was held with the Water Commissioners, and increased expenditures for this year which might justify the proposed increase were reduced to four items which appear to be the main excessive amounts over ordianry expenditure that must be raised: 1st, operating expenses last year were $6,500 more than in 1919; 2nd, we voted to have a filtration plant at a cost of $350,000. The contract has been let, and interest charges for six months are approximately $11,375; 3rd, an item of $3,500 that the Commissioners passed in their estimate this year to take care of the operating expenses for three months of the filtration plant, which it is believed will be turned over to the Commission about the 1st of October; 4th, an item of $1,500 interest charges on some extension debentures amounting to about $30,000.

Report Showed Surplus.

Mr. Turner then proceeded to analyze these four items which were set forth by the Comission as necessary expenditures over and above their charges for 1920. "While there was a deficit last year of $6,500 in operating expenses, the annual report, which has been published, shows that while they had a deficit of $6,500 in operating expenses last year, they must have had sufficient money in thier contingent account, because their audited statement shows a surplus of $166.95. I assume, then, that $6,500 charge of extra expenses in operating last year was taken care of by contingent money that was on hand, which wiped out that deficit and left a credit balance of $166.95. We are up against a similar operating expense this year, providing it costs the same. I understood the Commissioner to say, but he claims I misunderstood him, that he found a reduction in operating expenses of about $2,000 up to about the 1st of June. He says, however, that it was a reduction of $2,000, which would amount to some little sum at the end of the year. We will have to take care, then, of this item of $6,500.

Rates to Cover Interest.

"The $11,375 interest charges on debentures for the filtration plant is taken care of by the increased revenue they are getting of $11,600 from the city for fire protection. This amount eliminates the item of $11,375 and gives them $225 as a surplus. Also, the whole of the $350,000 may not be spent. If the full amount be not expended by the end of the year, they will save on their interest charges. I am not prepared to say as to this.

"The third item for operating expenses of the filtration plant for the last three months of the year providing it be taken over on the 1st of October, is $3,500. The plant may be ready by this date, but it seems to me that with all the work that is to be done and the tests which must be made before it is accepted from the hands of the contractors, that $3,500 is in doubt.

"The $1,500 interest charges on debentures is the last item. We have $30,000 worth of debentures to issue, but as far as I know, there are only $10,000 worth in the hands of the City Council, which will be issued after the 1st of July, being taken up by the City Trust, who have the money to invest.

WILL LET PAVING STAND FOR A YEAR

(Special Despatch to the Examiner.)

TORONTO, June 30. — Mayor McIntyre and Ald. Phelan of Peterboro, attended Sir Adam Beck yesterday, and requested that he permit the George street paving to stand till next year. The Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission has already paved between the tracks of the Peterborough Radial Railway, and the Engineers of the Commission have been complaining about the delay in the city's paving. However, the deputation was successful in obtaining from Sir Adam Beck the assurance that he would consent to the matter resting till next year, till the cost of cement was lower, and the city would not be made to pay the high prices at the present time.

EXAMINE COWS' STOMACHS; THE HILLS REMANDED

PENDING PATHOLOGICAL EXAMINATION OF THE ANIMALS ALLEGED TO HAVE BEEN POISONED, CASE ADJOURNED

FATHER AND SON ARE STILL AT LIBERTY

Robert Hill and his three sons, William, Davis and Russell Hill, of Dummer Township, were remanded until July 13th, when they appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning for a preliminary hearing on the charge of poisoning eleven cattle belonging to one of their neighbors, who testified against them on a somewhat similar trial three years ago.

A crowd of pre-war proportions heard the arraignment, and many of the spectators recognized the Hill men who had become familiar figures through their previous court troubles. Only Wiliam and Davis Hill were led to the witness box this morning. They have been refused bail, but the father and the other son are at liberty. They were seated at one side of the court room. The four of them followed the brief proceedings casually and without any show of deep concern or anxiety.

G. N. Gordon, their solicitor, asked for an adjournment, to which Crown Attorney Hatton consented. The Crown is awaiting the results of a pathological examination of the cows' stomachs being made in Toronto, seeking a trace of strychnine.

On the agreement of prosecutor and counsel adjournment was made to July 13th. The recognisance of Robert and Russell Hill was extended and Wiliam and Davis return to the county jail.

WILL DELAY SATURDAY EDITION AND COMBINE IT WITH SPORTING EXTRA

Because of to-morrow (Friday) being a holiday, and Saturday only a half-day in The Examiner plant, it has been found necessary to delay the hour of publication of the regular edition on Saturday.

Instead of being published at one o'clock, as is the custom on Saturdays, it will be combined with the sporting extra which is to appear on the streets immediately after the end of the Dempsey-Carpentier heavyweight championship battle.

Although a delay, this will have the advantage to subscribers of giving them a detailed account of the championship bout in the regular edition, eliminating the necessity of purchasing an extra.

It is likely that the hour of publication will be shortly after three o'clock, depending, of course, on the closeness with which the fight adheres to its scheduled time.

PLAN UPRISING BY SOVIETS IN TURK CAPITAL

BRITISH FORCES RAID NUMEROUS PLACES IN SEARCH OF REDS AND ARREST SUSPECTED RING L ADERS

WOULD BE IN CONCERT WITH TURKS IN CITY

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 30.—(Canadian Press).—The Turks and Bolsheviki are reported to contemplate a vast uprising in this city, which would be accompanied by the destruction of public buildings. Early yesterday morning allied troops, acting under orders from General Harrington, commander of the British forces in Constantinople, marched through the principal streets of the city and raided hotels in search of Bolsheviki.

British soldiers, with fixed bayonets, entered buildings occupied by the Bolsheviki organization and seized large quantities of arms. Several men, alleged to be the principal ring leaders in the reported uprising, were arrested. More than sixty prisoners were placed in military lorries by the British.

Greek forces have withdrawn from Ismid, 56 miles south-east of this city.

ARREST FOR MURDER SEVEN YEARS AGO

Mounted Police Hope to Solve Slaying of Logger in 1914.

VANCOUVER B.C., June 29.—Tom Williams, an Alert Bay Indian has been arrested and committed for trial on a charge of having murdered Ernest Jack, a young fisherman and handlogger, at Nearter Bay, Dickson Island, September 2, 1914.

The finding of Jack's body by two loggers two years later, in a hollow log covered with an Indian mat, gave the first clue of the young fisherman's mysterious disappearance. He had been shot through the head. A forest fire swept the camp of the two loggers before the police could be communicated with, and all trace of the location of the body was lost.

Sergeant Angeman of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police took up the search early this year and found the blackened skull and bones. Suspicion rested on Williams and he was arrested.

HOLD UP SEVEN NEAR KINGSTON AND TAKE $70

MEMBERS OF ORCHESTRA STOPPED AT MIDNIGHT LAST NIGHT BY GANG OF ARMED MEN IN STOLEN CAR.

BLOCKED HIGHWAY AND FORCED THE DELIVERY

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

KINGSTON, June 30.—A sensation hold-up was staged about midnight near the village of Westbrook, when seven Kingston men, members of a local orchestra who had been playing at a dance in Westbrook, were held up by three masked men, each armed with a rifle and a revolver, who compelled the members of the orchestra to hold up their hands while they relieved them of all their money which amounted to about seventy dollars.

The men held up were Edward Paradise, driver of the car, Howard Birch, Matthew Donnelly, James Foden, Frank Salsbury, Bert McAuley and Arthur Watson.

The three hold-up men ran ahead of the other car, and placing their car crosswise of the road, in this way compelled the second car to stop, and as it stopped the highwaymen fired off their weapons and ordered the men in the car to give up their valuables, which they did.

The hold-up men made their escape. The car which they were driving had been stolen from a resident of Kingston and later was found in Frontenac park, where they had driven it.

HON. J. D. REID HERE FOR BRIDGE OPENING

WHAT IS PETERBORO'S GREATEST NEED?

Mrs. W. R. Morris: "I am glad to see the matter of technical preparation for industrial life being brought before the public. In our Collegiate Institute and Normal School, we are giving technical preparation for professional life. In an industrial city, is not the proportion of adolescents in industrial life even larger than those who expect and wish to enter the professions? Dr. Miller, of the Ontario Department of Education, who made a survey of the city's need of industrial education last fall, says that provision for such education is a real necessity if the following needs are to be met:

First—Technical education for boys and girls about to enter industrial, commercial, and home-making activities, those obliged to attend from one to four years, etc.

Second—The need of providing suitable part-time instruction and training for adolescents required to attend school under the Adolescent Act, etc.

Provision for educational needs means heavy financial outlay. It is for the people to say whether they are willing to spend money for such a purpose. The Provincial and Federal grants to industrial schools cut the cost to the community in half. A $400,000 building costs the community $200,000, the other $200,000 being covered by Government grants. The maintenance of the schools, salaries, etc., is cut practically in half also to the community through Government grants. How long will these Government means be available? Until a certain sum is exhausted. Shall we apply for our share of city grants in the near future, or shall we risk the chance of this money being exhausted before we have awakened to the possibilities of Governmental assistance? We realize the need now. What shall we do about it? The Board of Education is like other civic bodies. It can only go as far as the will of the people permits. Let us hear from some others.

LOCAL DEPUTATION PROTESTS RAISING HYDRO POWER RATES; IS TOLD INCREASE NECESSARY

UNKNOWN ASSAILANT SHOOTS MAN IN ARM

(Special Despatch to The Examiner.)

SUDBURY, June 30.— While putting his auto in the garage at 1.30 this morning Lester Burton, local barber, was shot in the right arm and left hand by an unknown assailant who crept up on him in the darkness. Only two shots were fired, both taking effect. The assailant escaped.

Burton was taken to the hospital, and it may be found necessary to amputate the hand. Revenge for some real or fancied wrong is believed to have been the motive for the deed. The police are working on the case.

LONDON PAPER SAYS JAP PACT TO BE RENEWED

MODIFICATIONS AS TO ATTITUDE OF THE U.S.

LONDON, June 30. — (Canadian Press.)—The Pall Mall Gazette and Globe says the British Cabinet today decided upon a renewal of the Anglo-Japanese Treaty but that discussion is proceeding on certain modifications that have been suggested. These have special relation to the American attitude towards the treaty and the position of India, the newspaper adds.

PROVISIONAL AGREEMENT TO BE BALLOTED ON—MINERS RETURNING.

LONDON, June 30. — (Canadian Press.)—The threatened strike in the engineering trades, due to diffedences in regard to wage reduction, was averted to-day at a conference of representatives of employers and engineers. The conferees accepted the provisional agreement which had been reached by committees representing the two sides of the controversy. The terms will be balloted upon by the men within a fortnight.

LONDON, June 30. — (Canadian Press.) — According to district reports the British miners are readily accepting the new agreement made between the coal owners and the executive of the Miners' Federation, and there is no reason to doubt that there will be a general resumption of work on Monday. Some pits have already resumed operations.

SIR ADAM BECK SAYS INCREASED COSTS AND HIGH RENTALS FORCE COMMISSION TO MAKE CHANGE.

$5 PER HORSE POWER MORE IS PROPOSITION

(Special Despatch to the Examiner.)

TORONTO, June 30. — The deputation from Peterboro which waited on Sir Adam Beck, chairman of the Hydro-Electric Commission, and L. E. Ireland, manager of the Central Ontario System of the Hydro, yesterday afternoon, to protest against the proposed increase in power rates here, were promised consideration of their protest, but told that the high rentals charged for the surplus water in the Trent system by the Dominion government and the increased cost of operation made a new rate absolutely necessary.

The deputation consisted of G. N. Gordon, M.P., chairman of the Power Committee of the City Council, Robert Hicks, chairman of the Utilities Commission,, Mayor McIntyre, Mesrs. C. E. Sisson and E. F. Mason, members of the Utilities Commision, City Clerk S. R. Armstrong, and H. O. Fisk, Superintendent of the Utilities Commission.

The Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission required so Sir Adam Beck claimed, that power users should pay the cost of generating and delivering power so the Peterboro Utilities Commission should pay the increased rates. This would amount to $5 per horse power increase which would affect each householder, and was caused by the Department of Railways and Canals rental charges of $2 per horse power available at the generator of the Power Commission, and the increased cost of material and labor.

Mr. G. N. Gordon objected to the Ontario Power Commission fixing a 75 cent monthly minimum rate on each householder because, he claimed, this would put the great burden on small users, who were generally working men, whose monthly bills did not average 75c per month. Mr. Gordon insisted that each consumer should pay for what he used and no minimum monthly rate should be fixed.

Mr. Robert Hicks suggested that there be no increase at present, claiming that the rates could stand until the end of the year even if it was necessary to exhaust a reserve the Peterboro Utilities Commission now have in this department.

TO QUADRUPLE IRISH FORCES

REPORTED IRISH CONSTABULARY TO BE INCREASED FROM 12,000 TO 50,000.

LONDON, June 30 (Canadian Press).—The forces of the Royal Irish Constabulary are immediately to be quadrupled, says a despatch.

This would mean increasing the number of men in this service from 12,000 to 50,000.

Newspapers of this city to-day took diverse views regarding the probable effect of the refusal of Sir James Craig, the Ulster Premier, to meet Eamonn DeValera, the Irish Republican leader, and Mr. DeValera's letter to Sir James declaring that the Sinn Fein could not accept the invitation of Prime Minister Lloyd-George to a conference relative to Ireland.

Some editorial comment was inclined to be very gloomy, interpreting Mr. DeValera's assertion that the Prime Minister's proposal was not acceptable in its present form as an indication that such a meeting was unlikely to occur

NEW U.S. TARIFF LAW LOWERS DUTY ON SEVERAL ARTICLES FROM EMERGENCY BILL LEVEL

DUTY ON WHEAT REDUCED FROM 35 CENTS TO 25 CENTS A BUSHEL—OTHER CUTS MADE BUT TARIFF STILL HIGH.

EMERGENCY DUTY ON CORN TO BE RETAINED

WASHINGTON, June 30 (Canadian Press).—The new Republican wages. We want the farmer to have Protection to American industry and completely revising the Underwood-Simmons Tariff, for nearly eight years on the statute books, was introduced in the House yesterday by Representative Fordney, of Michigan, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee.

The Bill, over which the Committee had laboured for four months, and to enact which Congress was called in special session by President Harding, underwent a few eleventh-hour alterations.

Some features of the permanent Tariff Bill made public yesterday of particular interest to Canada follow:

The duty on wheat, which was 35 cents per bushel in the Emergency Taric Law, is reduced to 25 cents, which was the Bayne-Aldrich rate.

Canadian wheat came in free under the Underwood Act.

A duty of 15 cents per bushel on corn in the Emergency Act, which was the same as the Payne-Aldrich Law, is retained, corn having been on the free level in the Underwood Act.

There is a duty of 2 cents per pound on fresh beef and veal, which is the same as in the Emergency Law.

Butter is given a duty of 8 cents per pound, which is an increase from the rate of 6 cents in both the Emergency Law and the Payne-Aldrich Law, and from the rate of 2½ cents in the Underwood Act.

There is a duty of 6 cents per dozen on eggs, as compared with 5 cents in the Payne-Aldrich Law.

Onions are given a duty of 75 cents per hundred pounds, as against 20 cents per bushel of 57 pounds in the Underwood Act, and 40 cents per bushel of 57 pounds in both the Payne-Aldrich and Emergency Acts.

The duty on potatoes is made 42 cents per hundred pounds, instead of 25 cents per bushel of 60 pounds in the Payne-Aldrich Law and 25 cents per bushel in the Emergency Law.

Potatoes were on the free list in the Underwood Law.

Increased duties are provided for olives and almonds at the request of the California growers.

HASTINGS MAN DROWNED WHEN CANOE UPSET

BERT SHERWIN SANK BEFORE HELP COULD REACH HIM—NEIL SCRIVER RESCUED.

WERE FISHING

HASTINGS, June 29.—A deep gloom has been cast over the whole community by the news that Mr. Bert Sherwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sherwin, had been drowned in the Trent just in sight of his home. It appears that Mr. Sherwin and Mr. Neil Scriver had gone out fishing in a canoe about 4 o'clock this afternoon when by some means the boat upset and both men were thrown into the river in about 20 feet of water. Their cries for assistance soon brought a large number to the spot and every effort was put forth to save the men. Mr. Neil Scriver was rescued in time to save his life but Mr. Sherwin had sunk to rise no more. Many boats were soon on the spot, grappling irons were brought to the scene and after an hour or more of hard work, the body was recovered. Dr. De La Mat ter was on hand and used every means to resuscitate, but all to no avail, death had claimed him as his victim. Coroner Dr. Richards of Warkworth, was sent for, and the body was removed to Mr. Tate's undertaking rooms. Deceased who was only some thirty years of age, was an employee, of the Hastings Tanning Co., and was a general favorite and a good and faithful workman. He leaves to mourn his untimely death, his young wife and three children, the youngest being a babe of only a few months, also his father and mother, to whom sympathy is extended in their sad loss. The funeral has not yet been arranged for.

Public Meeting

A public meeting was held on the Town Hall on Tuesday evening, when the national Cooperage Company, by the use of lantern slides, demonstrated to the large audience present, their barrels in the course of manufacture. A number of people have signed their willingness to invest in shares, and the location is almost assured.

Twenty three pupils are writing on the entrance Exams here.

Issued Rain Checks.

A number of the citizens motored to Castleton this afternoon to witness the ball game between Hastings and Castleton. Only one innings was scored when the game was called off owing to a severe storm passing over.

Dear Miss Hinton—As the end of the term is now at hand, and we are about to be severed, we, the pupils of S. S. No. 8, Dutch Line, wish in some measure to express our heartfelt appreciation of your kind services to us a teacher. Your pleasant manner, and your ever-willing way will never be forgotten by us and now, Miss Hinton, we beg of you to accept this little token as a reminder of the happy days we spent as we mingled here together, and we assure you, will ever be remembered by us.

AGAINST PACT WITH JAPS IN OLD, NEW FORM

MEIGHEN TELLS CONFERENCE ALLIANCES OUT OF TUNE WITH TIMES AND ARE FUTILE TO PREVENT WAR.

LONDON, June 30.—(By Grattan O'Leary, Canadian Press Correspondent).—The question of the advisability of renewing the Japanese Alliance resolved itself into a full dress debate in the Conference of Premiers yesterday. Right Hon. Arthur Meighen who had circulated his case in confidential document and who intended to speak but briefly, addressed the conference for an hour. Premiers Smutz of South Africa, Hughes of Australia, and Massey of New Zealand followed with speeches of equal length.

Premier Meighen, it is understood urged against the renewal of the treaty either in the present form or with modifications. He pointed out the Canadan objections to it which were largely in line with his arguments already indicated in these despatches but based the greater part of his case.

Upon the claim that the old policy of alliances is out of tune with the times, that alliances, as a means of maintaining peace, have proved futile in the past and the time has now come when new methods ought to be tried for the prevention of war.

IRELAND'S FUTURE EXPECTED TO BE DETERMINED IN SERIES OF SECRET CONFERENCES NOW

MEIGHEN SAYS WE MAY REFUSE SOON "TO CARRY ODIUM OF IRISH STATE"

CHICAGO, Ill., June 30 (Canadian Press).— Acable to The Chicago Tribune from London last night says:

"The Hon. Arthur Meighen, the Canadian Premier, is reported as having expressed himself very strongly to the Government on the Irish issue, saying 'the mess must be cleaned up at once, or the Dominions would refuse longer to carry the odium of sharing in the misgovernment of Ireland.'"

FOR THE TIME BEING THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT IS OUT OF THE ARGUMENT AND WHO WILL SPEAK FOR IRELAND NOW DEBATED.

WAR OFFICE GOES ON WITH ITS CAMPAIGN

(Special Despatch to the Examiner.)

LONDON, June 30. — Ireland's future is expected to be determined in a series of secret meetings which may show the way out of the present bloody impasse.

For the time being the British government is out of the argument. The two Irish factoins are concerned with the question of whether one man shall speak for all Ireland or whether the Sinn Fein will concede Ulster the right to its own spokesman, if the peace conversations with the government are undertaken.

De Valera roused a storm of criticism by writing the Ulster Premier, Sir James Craig, practically demanding a preliminary meeting in Dublin. Sir James' reply, declining such a meeting, was anticipated.

Ulster has acquired a national consciousness in the short time her parliament has been in operation. Sir James had universal backing in Ulster in his stand that Ulster will speak her own mind in the conference called by Premier Lloyd George.

There was some disquiet, many of the officials believing that the serious question still was far from settled. Others knowing of the secret conferences which led up to Lloyd George's open invitation, believed the remaining difficulties would be swept away in private and the way cleared for a peace gathering with both Ulster and South Ireland representatives.

Meanwhile the British government has not slackened its preparations to crush the Sinn Fein by force—the war office is continuing its augmentation of military forces and outfitting them with munitions for carrying out the planned campaign.

It is stated that other arrests on similar charges are expected within the next few days.

A Car as Fine As Its Wonderful Motor

Everywhere you hear the Chalmers motor spoken of with real enthusiasm by its owners.

It is due the Chalmers motor that it should be praised. For it is truly a wonderful car.

Its Great Performance

It is wonderful in the efficiency it gets from to-day's poor gasoline. In the added miles it returns. In the way it performs and stands up.

These things are largely due to preheating the fuel by the hot-spot before it enters the cylinders.

As a direct result of this fine performance, upkeep and replacement costs on the Chalmers are surprisingly low.

Motor Not Only Feature

But Chalmers excellence is far from beginning and ending with its motor. It is a car that is finely built in every detail.

It affords consummate riding comfort, drives with a minimum of effort, and is beautiful in design and finish. We invite you to look into Chalmers records and Chalmers standing without delay.

THE HYDRO RADIAL PROBE.

Premier Drury, in the course of an address at the Northumberland County U.F.O. picnic at Cobourg the other day, defended the Hydro radial project, declaring that it would have been breaking faith with the people if the Government had not decided to probe the proposal before definitely committing the Province. The Drury Government was quite justified in ordering an inquiry in regard to Hydro radials and the majority of the people endorse the action of the Farmer-Labour administration in this respect. The chief objection is that the inquiry has been prolonged and dragged out to such an extent as to make the average citizen wonder when it was going to end. So-called experts from far and near have given estimates and conjectures and guesses as to the cost of building radial lines, the expense of operation and the probable profit on deficit. The figures that have been collected must fill many volumes. The delay has given the veteran Hydro enthusiasts an opportunity to say that the probe is a diplomatic way of blocking the whole scheme and to accuse the Government of being, at the best, luke warm towards the project.

OSHAWA'S STREET TROUBLE.

The Oshawa Council submitted a by-law to the ratepayers on Saturday to provide for the repairing of the town's two main business thoroughfares, King and Simcoe streets, and the measure was defeated, due, it is said, to the objection of citizens on other streets to pay for work for the benefit of the ratepayers whose premises are situated on the two streets in question. Civic pride evidently does not mean anything to the people of Oshawa. If there is any worse section of paving in any municipality in Canada than the portion it was proposed to re-surface, its notoriety has not reached Peterborough, and visitors who have seen the roadway or been bounced over it in a motor car are astonished that a majority of the citizens of this—in other respects—progressive town should have been so blind to their own interests or to the welfare of the community that they should refuse to authorize improvements that are entirely necessary. There are roadways in Peterborough of which the citizens are not proud, but compared to Oshawa's two principal business streets or to the main street in Bowmanville, the worst of Peterborough's thoroughfares should be regarded as perfection itself. King street in Oshawa is the connecting link in the Provincial Highway and its present condition is such as to make most motorists decide to detour around the town instead of risking the passage of this wretched road.

DOMINION DAY.

It is to be feared that Canadians enjoy the picnics and sports of their national holiday without much thought for the significance of the anniversary. It is to the majority merely a holiday that gives them a chance to make merry, and the national aspect of the occasion is ignored. We are not a flag-waving people and are rather inclined to be dumb so far as the voicing of our love for our Dominion is concerned. These are not serious faults, and yet there are times when, with all the good-natured amusement we take in the spread-eagle speeches of our neighbor's Fourth of July orators, we might, perhaps, be not amiss if the example of the United States were to be followed in the celebration of the birthday of our Dominion. Numbered in our population are hundreds of thousands of citizens to whom the history of Canada is a sealed book. They know nothing of the formation of the Dominion and July 1st to them simply means a day's release from work. Were it not for the newspapers these new citizens of ours would not even have an inkling of what Dominion Day stands for, and the task of enlightening them should not be left altogether to the papers. At public gatherings an Canada's birthdays a few minutes might profitably be devoted to an explanation of the significance of the occasion, for it is by such appeals to the patriotism of the people that the development of a national spirit is fostered.

CANADA'S BIRTHDAY.

Of all the holidays in the year Dominion Day should be held in the greatest regard by Canadians, for it observes the formation of the great Dominion of to-day and is Canada's one national holiday. Fifty-four years ago to-morrow the union of the Provinces of Canada into one federation was accomplished. There have been great changes since 1867. In population the Dominion has grown from 3,500,000 people to at least 9,000,000, its railway mileage has increased almost twenty times, and in territory it includes nine Provinces and two territories, instead of the original union of Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. Its fifty-fifth birthday finds Canada prospering and progressive, suffering to some extent from industrial depression, it is true, but a paradise in this respect compared to many other countries. One of the greatest crops in the history of the Dominion is predicted, the unrest and disturbances that have been a port-war development in various parts of the world are unknown in Canada and the future is bright with promise. Canadians should not only be a happy, but a proud people on their national holiday, for they have every reason to rejoice that their lot has been cast in this fair fertile land, and join in the petition of Charles G. D. Roberts' fine verse:

"Father of unity, make this people one.
Weld, infuse them in the patriot's flame.
Whose forging on thine anvil was begun
In blood late shed to purge the common shame:
That so our hearts, the ferver of faction done,
Banish old feud in our young nation's name."

MUNICIPALITIES' DIFFICULTIES.

During the past year attention has been drawn almost every week to some municipality which was having difficulty in meeting its financial obligations. The question of finance, especially that of debt and of raising the revenue necessary to met the debt charges, was prominent at the convention of Saskatchewan municipalities held last week in Prince Albert and reported elsewhere in this issue. The subject was also covered in the report on municipal finance and administration presented at the bond dealers' convention in Toronto earlier this month. It is one of the outstanding questions in Canadian finance at the present time, and will be with us continually for some years to come. In fact, when a country reaches the extent to which Canada has now attained it is unavoidable that some municipalities will be unable to meet obligations undertaken during the period of earlier development, just as some businesses prove unsuccessful and go into the hands of the creditors.

The bond dealers and investors have now had sufficient experience with municipal defaults to arrive at a uniform method of dealing with them. They aim at protecting the bond holders, both as regards capital and interest, though in some cases it is found necessary to postpone part of the interest payments. The attitude of the municipalities, as the other party to the contract, has not always been so clear, and sometimes it has appeared that there was a desire to escape some of their liabilities. When a borrowing municipality maintains its position to be absolutely sound, and later urges upon the bond holders the absolute necessity for relief, the change of attitude is not consistent.

There is a third party which is indirectly concerned in these negotiations. This is the Province. The Province, however, is not responsible for the debts of municipalities within it, though the latter are organized and exist under Provincial laws. The utmost that the Province can safely do is maintain a moderate control over municipal finances, through the limitation of assessment in proportion to property values, debt in relation to assessment, and tax rates. Provincial debts are already burdensome, without the addition of municipal debts, and the admission of any such obligation would moreover encourage municipal defaults. Bond holders and bond dealers must recognize this, and must also recognize that in the field of municipal and perhaps even Government bond investments losses will take place, just as they are found in other investment fields in Canada.—Financial Post.

Help the Blind to Read

3

IF you were blind, and unable to read—imagine the prospect!

Only a few years ago the blind of Canada had to ask kind-hearted relatives and friends to read to them. At other times they sat in their darkness, brooding over their helplessness.

To-day the blind can read! There are books with raised letters to make this possible. From reading these books they obtain pleasure that is simply immeasurable.

Our Library and Publishing Department has collected a library of about 9,000 volumes, all printed in the Braille embossed type, which the blind people have been taught to read with their fingers. From this library blind Canadians from all parts of Canada and Newfoundland get books. They await the arrival of these volumes with an eagerness that would be an inspiration to you to behold.

To date this invaluable library has cost $8,000 per year. The books are expensive to purchase in the first place and there is no income from the subscribers. Help us buy new books for the blind. Contribute to this noble cause.

McClary's Protected Element

McClary's Protected Element is the final touch of perfection in the Electric Range.

Keeping the many wire coils in the Elements free from grease, dirt and damage is assured with McClary's Protected Element. Dirt impairs heat radiation.

Salt in grease or water may fuse the coils—burn them out, cause damage and repair bills.

McClary's Elements are encased in disks of tough, protecting porcelain made by a secret process.

The wire coils are embedded in the porcelain disk, snugly protected from damage of any kind.

McClary's Electric Range

The tough, smooth disk heats quickly, retains the heat, will stand any amount of wear with heavy pots and pans — cannot get out of order like the exposed Elements of ordinary ranges.

—In fact, it eliminates Electric Range worry.

McClary's Protected Element is only one of many advantages you get in a McClary's Electric Range.

Next to the Protected Element, McClary's seamless, jointless oven is the most valuable feature of McClary's Electric Range — sanitary, clean and efficient.

CROP CONDITIONS

The following is a summary of reports made by the Agricultural representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Hay is being cut much earlier than in ordinary seasons. The average yield for clover and timothy will be comparatively light, some representatives putting it at about half a crop.

Alfalfa and sweet clover have been giving more satisfactory results for the first cuttings.

Kent is of opinion that some fields of fall wheat will be ready for harvesting in about a week, and says that there is considerable Hessian fly in a number of the early sown fields. Rye is also coloring for ripening.

Oats, barley and other spring grains are likely to be short in straw this year unless timely showers come.

Early potatoes are doing well in Lincoln. The representative reports that he marketed some on June the 17th. They have been bringing $3 a bushel in Essex, where the crop has also been unusually early.

The hot weather has been just the thing for corn, but like the other field crops, it would be the better for more moisture.

Essex reports that outdoor tomatoes were ripening during the week, and have been selling at $3.75 a basket.

Lincoln reports that peach trees in cultivated orchards are recovering from leaf curl.

Blight and the hot, dry weather have been lessening both the yield and the length of the bearing season of strawberries in nearly every fruit district. Speaking of the former trouble the Lincoln representative observes: "Expert opinion is divided on the injury caused to strawberry patches. Some contend that it is due to blight, while others contend the injury has resulted from late spring frosts damaging the roots and so arresting flow of sap."

Raspberries are promising a good yield so far.

Prices of bacon hogs are holding well around $12 a cwt., although a respresentative in eastern Ontario speaks of a shipment purchased at $10. Young pigs are scarce and dear. The Port Arthur representative reports sales at the weaning age from $10 to $12 each. Brant, however, quotes them as selling at $12 a pair.

Cattle upon the grass are practically at a standstill, as the very warm and dry weather prevailing has been affecting the pasture. There has been a noticeable falling off in the milk flow, but not so seriously as some feared.

During the week cheese has been selling on local boards at fram 15 3-16 to 17c a lb.

The Lambton representatives says: "The following incident is typical of the cattle situation as it affects the farmer of this country. One farmer in relating his experience says that he purchased $4,005 worth of stockers last fall, fed them all winter the crop that grew on 170 acres of land and sold them about a month ago for $4023. This shows how the farmers have to take their losses."

The Simcoe representative reports: At a recent sale in this county of pure bred live stock, prices showed quite a slump from last year although as far as the bulls were concerned in most cases they brought full value, ranging from $71 to $120 for ordinary year olds. The cows being a little better bred, brought more; but they were really under value in most cases, the highest price being 202 and the lowest $65."

Lambton states that a number of married men with families have been placed at wages averaging about $400 a year, with cottage, etc.

EAST EMILY HAPPENINGS

EAST EMILY, June 29. — The Epworth League of the Bethel Methodist Church held their annual garden party on the church lawn on Friday night, June the 24th, when a large number gathered to share in the strawberries, cakes and pies with which the tables were ladened. The programme was rendered in the church, and consisted in part of speeches by the Rev. Mr. Harrington of Bethel, and the Rev. Mr. Stillman, of Omemee. The Misses Lowe gave a duet. The Rev. Mr. Mellor, of Oakwood, contributed a very interesting address on his five months' work in a construction camp. The Misses Lowe then sang another duet, which please the audience immensely. The programme was closed by singing God Save the King and every person went home highly delighted with the evening's entertainment.

The electric storm which passed over this district last week caused considerable damage. Mr. and Mrs. John Lintick were both knocked unconscious in their home on the 3rd Line of Emily, and on recovering consciousness again, found that the wood shed was starting to burn. Fortunately they extinguished the blaze before any damage was done.

Ripe Raspberries.

The raspberries are getting ripe, and there are all prospects of a bountiful crop this season.

Franks-Boate Nuptials.

On Wednesday, June 22nd, in St. James Church, Emily, Miss Christina Boate, daughter of Mrs. George Boate, and Mr. Wilbert Franks, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Franks, Peterborough, were united in marriage, the Rev. Mr. James, of Omemee, officiating.

The bride was unattended, and looked charming in a taune suite and black hat. She carried a shower bouquet of roses. Mrs. Ross Boate played the Wedding March. The church was beautifully decorated with daisies and roses.

The young couple left amid showers of confetti on the 5 o'clock train for points west, and on their return will reside on Water Street, Peterborough.

600 MEN APPLY FOR WORK; MANY ARE DESPERATE

MONTREAL, June 29.— (Canadian Press.)—Over six hundred men applied for work to-day on the site of the new nine million dollar Mount Royal hotel. The number actually engaged on the work at present is ninety-one. Most of those applying to-day were literally desperate. One man even went so far as to threaten a contractor with physical violence if he did not take him on.

APSLEY FOOTBALL TEAM SCORES WIN IN OPENING GAME

APSLEY, June 29. — Apsley is waking up. It now has a football team—a real live team that is likely to make a name for itself if it can last. The formation of the team is viewed as a revolt against petticoat government to which the young men have been subject for some time, and already rumours of offers of compromise from the fair enemy are in the air.

On Thursday last the team journeyed to Glenalda to the Methodist picnic there and played a match against the Purdeyville team, which resulted in a victory for Apsley, the score being 1-0, the winning kick coming from Charlie Smith from a pass by Stanley Windsor in the last minute of the game. Apsley had most of the play throughout, and if the half-backs had supported the forward line better the score would have been greater. Purdeyville has promised to play a return game at Apsley on July 8th on the St. George's church picnic grounds and a good game is expected. Apsley's team was as follows: Goal, W. Garnshaw; full-backs, Stanley Windsor, William Garnshaw; half-backs, Roy Brown, Tom Lean, Elijah McKay; forwards, Vernal Windsor, Jim Lean, Will Johnson, Lloyd Young, Charlie Smith.

The Rev. C. A. G. Spence acted as referee.

Purdeyville has a good team, but lacking combination and dash. Apsley's former reputation as an invincible team also had its effect upon the opposite side, affecting the morals of the team considerably. However the tables may be turned on the return game.

On account of the postponement of the church picnic to July 8th, the last day for receiving entries for the bird houses competition has been fixed for July 5th. All entries must bear the name, age and school section attached, and be delivered at the parish room. Entries for the mile championship race must be made not later than July 6th. Admission to the picnic grounds by tickets only. Adults, one dollar, children 50 cents—or if purchased before the day 75 cents and two for 75 cents respectively.

The Rev. C. Spence acknowledges with thanks for the Marshall family $10 from Mr. and Mrs. T. Z. Webster, Lakefield, and clothing from Mr. Pattrick, Belleville.

Writing Examination.

The entrance examination started at the school here on Tuesday. About seventeen from the district are writing and the school accommodation is severly taxed. Desks and seats had to be improvised to accommodate the candidates.

Rain is badly needed. A slight shower fell on Monday night —not enough to lay the dust. Oats and hay on knolls and high ground are drying up. The raspberry crop will, after all, be a failure unless rain comes at once.

Mr. Philip Elmhirst's condition is much improved since last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman James and family made a motor trip to Apsley on Sunday returning to Dunsford the same evening.

Miss Grant returned on Saturday after visiting friends in Toronto.

TRENT RIVER HAPPENINGS

TRENT RIVER, June 29.—A few local showers passed over this locality yesterday, but not sufficient to be of any benefit to the crops.

Misses L. Taylor and Olive Haig of Toronto, are guests at the Sedgwick House.

Miss Dayman of Toronto, is a guest at the Sedgewick House.

Mr .and Mrs. Osborne of Toronto, are guests with Mr. and Mrs. Goodman at the McCleary cottage.

Mrs. Jewett and children of Toronto are holidaying at Pleasant Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Bradford and friends motored home to Toronto this week after spending a week at 'Sockwyn.'

Mr. Ed. Howse returned from Toronto yesterday, where he went to his home over Sunday.

Mr. Fred Gain, of Toronto, spent over Sunday with Mrs. Gain at the Christie cottage.

Spring grain look favorable, notwithstanding the great need of rain, and the hay crop is light.

Eggs have gone up to 30c. and butter still sells at 35c. Porkers are selling at 12 1-2 cents live weight.

Guests at Cedar Isle this week are Mr. and Mrs. T. Bilton, and Mr. Beird of Toronto. A full house is expected over the holiday.

RAINMAKER HATFIELD ON LAST LEGS; FARMERS PEEVED, CROPS BURNING

(Special Despatch to the Examiner.)

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., June 30. — Rainmaker Hatfield is on his last legs. With the crops in the Medicine Hat territory burning up in a temperature which for the past ten days has ranged from 85 to 96 in the shade, the maker of weather is non persona grata with the grain growers in the south eastern corner of Alberta.

One week more without rain, and Mr. Hatfield will be about as popular as the Meighen government proved to be on Monday in the Medicine Hat constituency.

Hatfield's precipitation record for May and June to date still stands at 2.23 inches and a copper sky is not promising any increase. However, Hatfield, if he is nothing else, is optimistic.

On Saturday afternoon a meeting with the rain maker was set by the executive of the Medicine Hat Agricultural Society which last winter employed him to make the clouds perform this summer. Some mighty plain speaking was indulged in by the representatives of the farmers, who pledged himself to pay Hatfield $8000 to produce four inches of rain during May, June and July; and he was told to produce it and do it without delay. Hatfield, however, was candid; he declared that conditions for bringing in moisture have been unusually poor, but stated that unless all signs failed there would be a good rain before the week is over.

The last rain fell two weeks ago to-morrow, and was a fairly good one, so that the crops in the summer fallows are worrying along, and if Hatfield's promises are true the farmers may have enough crop to be able to dig up the necessary eight thousand but should the man from California fail again this week, as he did in Alaska in 1906, there is a good deal of talk that he will purchase an extra pair of shoes, and make the trip over land into Montana via the Cyprus Hills route.

Hatfield started out this spring playing the strong end of a 31 to 6 shot. This week will tell whether he goes home a winner or on his uppers.

GOOD PROGRESS AT FILTRATION PLANT IS MADE

IS NOW THOUGHT WORK WILL BE FINISHED SOONER THAN FIRST ESTIMATED.

With about 150 men employed on the entire work the two contracting companies building the filtration plant and the 2,000,000-gallon filtered water reservoir report good progress, and it is confidently expected the plant will be opened much sooner than originally estimated.

The work on the plant itself is well advanced and the part known as the settling bed, which is really a huge concrete reservoir in which the water temporarily rests, is practically complete.

To speed up the laying of the concrete floor on the large reservoir a night gang has been working, and the floor is now finished and pouring the walls will be proceeded with. The reservoir measures 170 by 140 feet and will be 15 feet deep. The cement which is being used is waterproofed by mixing a special compound in it, the composition of which is carefully guarded by the company. This waterproofing adds considerably to the cost of laying, but ensures the absolute resistance of the cement to all action by the water, the contractors say.

Saving by Nearest of Pit.

As the gravel for the concrete is obtained within 100 yards of the work a great saving has been effected in time and cost, as was similarly experienced on the Hunter street bridge. A powerful crusher is operating across the road in the pit. Boulders and rocks of all sizes disappear in its gullet and reappear ground up in suitable sizes. The crusher has disturbed a whole colony of sand martins who lodged in the pit. The birds have transferred their headquarters to th bank of earth thrown up out of the reservoir, and over the heads of the workmen on the reservoir the birds in hundreds are circling and setting up a din that almost drowns out the two cement mixers.

SAYS ACID STOMACH CAUSES INDIGESTION

Excess of hydrochloric acid sours the food and forms gases.

Undigested food delayed in the stomach decays, or rather, ferments the same as food left in the open air, says a noted authority. He also tells us that Indigestion is caused by Hyper-acidity, meaning, there is an excess of hydro-chloric acid in the stomach which prevents complete digestion and starts food fermentation. Thus everything eaten sours in the stomach much like garbage sours in a can, forming acrid fluids and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. Then we feel a heavy, lumpy misery in the chest, we belch up gas, we eructate sour food or have heartburn, flatulence, water-brash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and drink while it is effervescing and furthermore, to continue this for a week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble wth excellent results.

SOUTH AMERICA A HAVEN FOR REDS

WHEN RUSSIA GETS TOO HOT LEADERS WILL GO THERE.

REVAL, Esthonl, June 30. — According to recently intercepted correspondence from Communist officials in Moscow to Communist agents abroad, advising them of the "inside situation" in Russia, South America is looked upon as a final haven of refuge by many of the less hopeful Bolshevik leaders in event Russia becomes too hot for them.

One of these letters recently published in a Reval newspaper, the Posldnie Novosti, advises one of the official's friends, who now is apparently in Germany, to "convert your valuables into dollars as frequently as you can, or, better still, into South American currency."

"The Octobrists," the letter adds, meaning by them those Communists who participated in the October, 1917 revolution "are frequently sending their families abroad. Soon it may be I shall send my wife across to you, in which case try to put her up as best you can."

Referring to the political situation this Communist wrote: "Illitch — (meaning Lenine, that being his middle name by which he is popularly known in Russia) is weakening; Zinovieff has grown too fat. Trotzky alone remains as of old the unrecognized Napoleon, but he is 'evolutionizing' also."

In connection with the sending abroad of the families of the "Octrobrists," this letter goes on: "Will you kindly keep a detailed account of their arrivals and of their means? Further, by a decisoin of the military department of the party, I want you to withdraw from the banks all the deposits at your disposal and put them in safe hands. Bring to Switzerland one third of the 'iron fund' and hand it to B——. The rest can be left in Germany for any eventualities."

The writer constantly refers to the ruling councils of the Bolsheviki as "the Olympians,' and remarks that "our Olympus is going the pace too fast."

"From January," he says, "the situation in the council of the party and in the Central Committee, has come to a point to the last degree. The results of these conflicts was the expulsion of Comrades Krylenko Bontch-Bourovietch, Dubov, Blumenthal, and many others. This was the last gesture of the gay party gods. For a word said against Illitch, Krestinsky or Zinovieff, even not in public, ostracism is imminent."

Flower Girl—Can I offer you something for Madam, sir—?

Diner—No, thanks.

"Violets? A box of Bon Bons?"

"No."

"Oh, just a little rose!"

Diner — I said No, I meant No. Can't you see we're married?

SUMMER SEVERE TIME ON POULTRY.

Cleanliness Is Great Factor in Warm Weather.

At no time of the year does cleanliness count for more in the poultry business than when the warm weather commences. Fowls kept in closed, stifling sleeping quarters cannot be in a really healthy condition, or give very good returns. It would be much better to have the windows removed from the poultry house, to have them cleaned and stored away in some place where they could not be damaged until needed again, and pieces of wire netting put in place of the windows. This will keep out any vermin and at the same time allow more fresh air for the fowls. Many of the losses among adult fowls in the summer season are the result of unhealthy roosting quarters.

The poultry house should be thoroughly cleaned. Give the roosts a good coat of kerosene or some liquid lice killer, clean out the nests and burn the old nesting material, then give the nests a thorough whitewashing inside and out, leaving them to dry in the sun for a while. A thorough spraying with whitewash of the whole interior of the house will make the place more sanitary. If the floors are of earth, remove a few inches of the top soil and replace with some fresh sandy soil. If they are of wood or cement, scrape and sweep them clean, then wash with a fairly strong disinfecting solution. Sunshine, combined with fresh air, is one of the best germ destroyers we have, but it is possible to have too much sun for the fowls if some kind of shade is not provided in very warm weather, to be used when needed.

Colony houses scattered through an orchard make a very desirable place for fowls or growing chickens. Always provide plenty of pure drinking water in clean pans and keep it in a sheltered place, out of the sun. Be sure the adult birds are not too heavily fed, especially on corn or buckwheat or any of the fat-producing foods. Select the fowls that you do not intend to hold over for another breeding season and sell them early while the price is high and while they are in good condition, before they commence to moult.

The fowls which are to be kept over as breeders, and also growing chickens intended for stock birds, should be given liberal range.

Free range where there is an abundance of green food and animal food in the form of insects, worms, etc., to be had, is very essential to the best growth, health, vigor and vitality in stock intended for either breeding or laying purposes.

RUSHING TRENTON FERTILIZER WORKS.

Extensive Premises Covering Two Hundred and Fifty-Five Acres.

TRENTON, June 30. — Good progress is being made at Trenton by the Chemical Products Ltd. in building operations not only on the big steel structure for the Fertilizer plant, but activities are noticeable in every direction on the extensive premises which cover an area of 255 acres.

Phosphate rock is largely used in the manufacture of acid phisphate, used in fertilizers, thirty to thirty-five thousand tons will be required every year, as a hundred tons will be used daily. Until such times as the phosphate rock in this mineral section of Ontario is mined in paying quantities, the company will import phosphate rock of the small pebble variety from Florida and Trenton in barges, and with the construction of the wharves on the River Trent where the company is acquiring land now under lease from the government, it will be possible to unload the cargoes of rock at the plant.

This phosphate rock carries 70 per cent. of iron and this will be a by-product which will find a ready marget for the iron furnaces of Ontario.

MISCHIEVOUS LAD STARTED MOTOR AND MADE MUCH TROUBLE

HAMILTON, June 30.—A mischievous lad made a great deal of trouble and caused considerable damage on Ottawa street, outside the race track. Charlie Carver, 120 Gibson avenue, left his car parked on the street, giving instructions to a boy standing nearby to hold the key for the auto while he was away. Shortly afterward another lad is reported to have taken the key and started the car, with disastrous results. He ran into the rear of a car bearing license No. 47519, doing damage to the rear fenders, and then backed into the front of the Police Department Ford, damaging the radiator. The youngster made his getaway before he was noticed

OSHAWA'S VETERAN TOWN CLERK DEAD

OSHAWA, June 30.—The funeral of Oshawa's veteran Town Clerk and Treasurer, Mr. Thomas Morris, aged 78, who passed away at ten o'clock in the morning of Tuesday last, took place this afternoon, Rev. George Yule of the Presbyterian Church officiating.

The late Mr. Morris had not been in the best of health for some time. His last visit to the Town Hall, where for over 40 years he had been a familiar figure, was on Christmas Day. He had worked steadily up until that time, laying down his pen that he had wielded so long in the public interest, only when through physical disability he could no longer use it.

A man who had been associated with Oshawa's municipal history for so many years and who devoted the greater part of his life in the town's service, his death is a community loss. He was appointed Town Clerk September 12th, 1898, holding the position for practically 37 years, the duties of Treasurer being added some years ago. He also served as Assessor and Collector and was for a number of years a member of the Town Council.

Voice of the People

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—What is the town side trying to do withe old village anyhow? Do you want to leave us without any business at all? We are surrounded by an open country. What's the matter with that? Anybody in Ashburnham can get to it in three minutes' walking. Parks are for places and people where the open country is far away. North Ashburnham is cut in two by a park now and the north part might as well be tacked on to Lakefield for all the good it does us. On the east the canal will stop our growth. On the south we have the septic tank and the railway. On the west, vacancy and to bem ore vacancy, and the Bridge. If you want to buy anything buy the Swanston Hotel block and make a graveyard out of it. The village is like a funeral now, and instead of being humming with life and industry, it is getting worse and further away every day. Is the population increasing? It is not, and with all the parks shut up for eight months in the year, the villagers and the village might as well shut up. We have no leaders.

WATERMAN'S Ideal Fountain Pen is the product of an organization that for the past thirty-six years has been making fountain pens exclusively. To-day the line of Waterman's Ideal Fountain Pens covers every proven advance in fountain pen construction.

It includes the regular and safety types of dropper filled and pump and lever filling devices of the self-filling types.

Being pioneers and recognized leaders of the industry, we are the natural market for inventors with ideas that in their judgment would improve our product.

No one is or has been keener to investigate these claims than we are, because it has been our intention from the first that if ever a better fountain pen than Waterman's Ideal was made we would make it.

It has happened and will happen again that fountain pens appear on the market with "talking point" devices that during our far greater experience we have already experimented with and found either impractical or inferior to devices of our own intended for the same purpose.

The man, woman, or child who buys Waterman's Ideal Fountain Pen gets 100% fountain pen efficiency because every material, process or device included in it has been proven by the longest years of experience and experiment as unequaled for its purpose.

Back of every Waterman's Ideal Fountain Pen is a world-wide service to assure its enduring satisfaction.

Letters To Father

The little boy who wrote these letters is now a man, and the father who kept them so safely all through the years has gone a long piece on the way from which no traveller returns. The letters, with many more like them, were found carefully tied together and are yellow with years. Just like the letters any little boy would write while on his vacation. A post card says: "I am thare all right and Ant Sooson wants me to sta longger and I wood lighk to sta longger to, good by." A letter dated Jan. 15, 1900, runs like this: 'Der Papa, I was sick on Monday and I did not go to sleep all last night, and I was at Gorden Armstrons on Friday, and I will be good when you come home, and will you bring me home some gold transfers. I got three exland marks for riting, and mamma ses shes very desapointed becos you are not coming home on Wednesday. Your little son, George, and thees are kises." (8 lines of X's.)

One written on Jan. 11, 1903, reads: "Dear father, I thought I would write you a few lines. Ever since you went away I have been sick with the grip. Sport was very frisky yesterday about 9 o'clock; lizy let him out, and just before he got out the side entrance he made for some kids going to school. O, but I mustn't foreget to tell you about Ensa. I had a little bird named Ensa. I opened the cage door and in flue Ensa. Mother had a very sore leg, but it is all right again. Tudy Leyis comes over ones and a while. We had great fun about 4 o'clock this morning; Sport came flying upstairs to my room, jumped on the bed and started licking my face, then I woke up, Sport gave me a slap with his paw and then jumped down. I am busy framing pictures for my room, but I always make such a mus I nearly get killed. The rink is all snow now so it look a box of baked beans. This old pen that I am writing with makes bout 100 blotes a minute. I must say good by as my hand is getting tired, so good by, from your loving son, George."

One to his aunt reads: "Deer Ant Mery and Fred, we have a nise garden and whee have letus, radishus, corn, patatos, qucombers, sweet pees. I want Fred to come down and go fishing and Ant Mery for do come down and stay for two mons and you will be as black as a niger, deer Ant Mery, and ask Osten to come down and fish to and we will have a good time. Give my love to Lil and grandma, Osten, Uncle Johen and all the frens, yor loving little nephew and cosen, George. Rite soon, let us no when Freds coming."

The Chinese usually open a conversation with "How old are you?" instead of "How do you do?"

Women Hard Where Logic Concerned

Dr. Robert Norwood, the eloquent speaker who charmed the Chautauqua audience on Tuesday evening last, remarked of women and the vote that it has been said that women will always vote for the man who wears their favorite brand of necktie, "but," he said, "men have discovered that this is not the case. Emotionally, a woman may be a seething volcano, but when it comes to a question of logic there is a hard core of ice in the centre of the flame."

HER TROUBLES OF THREE YEARS END

HAMILTON WOMAN IS DELIGHTED AT RESULTS SHE GOT FROM TANLAC—GAINED TEN POUNDS.

"It certainly beats anything how quickly the right medicine will get a person to feeling right," said Mrs. Susan Squires of 384 King William street east, Hamilton, Ont.

"For about three years I suffered so from stomach trouble I couldn't eat a meal without being in misery for hours afterwards. I had dreadful headaches, and at times a terrible pain caught me in the back of my neck and it hurt so bad I could hardly stand it. I was so nervous the least little noise would frighten me, and at nights I just lay awake for hours, and by morning felt so tired I could hardly get out of bed.

"But by the time I had finished my first bottle of Tanlac I hardly felt like the same woman, and now I am eating just fine and never have a touch of indigestion. I sleep like a log nights, wake up in the morning feeling good, without an ache or pain to trouble me. I've gained ten pounds in weight and am wonderfully strong and well in every way. My sister-in-law has taken Tanlac with good results, too, and we both feel thankful for our good health the medicine gave us."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by E. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowlers' Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

STRONG HOPES FOR SIR SAM'S RECOVERY.

Lindsay Post: Strong hopes are held for the recovery of General Sir Sam Hughes. He has successfully absorbed the last blood transfusion and is gaining every week. A consultation was held between Dr. McGibbon, of Bracebridge, and local physicians and reports show that the examination was entirely satisfactory.

When Men Wish To Appear As Impressive They Don Women's Attire, G.K. Chesterton Says

Mr. G. K. Chesterton says that when men wish to appear very dignified and impressive they don feminine attire, as lawyers, judges, priests, etc. Dr. Frederic Poole, the eminent traveller who lectured at the Dominion Chautauqua last week on 'China and the Chinese," appeared in the costume of a high official before the revolution; the straight shapeless skirt and heavily embroidered smock of the ancient Chinse pictures. Although the men of the old dispensation wore these womanish garments and cultivated long pigtails, they had little use for the gentler sex. A Chinaman, if asked as to the extent of his family, will answer that he has no children if they chance to be girls, and feminine babies are often strangled at birth, like so many useless kittens. Among the coolies the boys marry at the age of twelve, continuing with their education while the new girl-wife helps with the housework.

And the Chinese language, which is written in the picture form, is indicative of the male attitude of mind. The ancient sign for "man," which was exactly like a schoolboy's picture of the schoolmaster, with a four-pronged central figure surmounted by a round circle for a head, has been shortened in modern times to a vertical line with the legs only remaining. A horizontal bar thrust through this, as one might say, "I, number one," signifies "great," while two bars means "heaven." A square divided into four compartments is "rice field," and this sign, with the figure for "man" beside it, is "farmer." An open square means 'box," which, with a "man" inside, becomes "prisoner." The signs indicating "mouth," "man" and "rice field" spell "happiness," which has a significance plain enough to those who have been acquainted with famine for many centuries. A variation of the rectangle for "mouth" makes "woman," and if the character for "male child" be added, we have the word "good," another significant combination. The sign for "woman" being duplicated means "quarrel," while a triplication of it signifies "gossip." The characters for "roof" and "pig" stand for the word "home," and if one adds "woman" to these two, one has the Chinese character for "marriage," a somewhat uncomplimentary reference to the men. But the "roof" and "woman" signs together signify "peace" or "tranquility," which someone has been unkind enough to point out is due to the fact of there being only one "woman" beneath the "roof."

So the Chinese also can justly claim descent from Father Adam, he who started this dispute between the sexes so long ago.

Supervised Playgrounds Here Will Be Opened On Tuesday

Next Tuesday, July 5th, will see the official opening of the Supervised Playgrounds of Peterborough for the summer season of 1921. From nine to twelve and from two to five o'clock of any day many a weary mother in this warm season may leave the task of looking after and amusing her restless little brood to experienced hands and be perfectly content in the knowledge of their safety and well-being during this time. Supervision is the point emphasized on these grounds, and until the swimming schedule is completed, later on, two attendants will be on the grounds constantly. When the swimming season is arranged one supervisor goes with the swimmers and another stays on the grounds. As the yearly total usually reaches between 1,3000 and 1,400 on the four grounds equipped for this purpose, some idea may be arrived at of the amount of good rendered both mothers and children by the Supervised Playgrounds. Here the younger element may revel in the sand-boxes, the "giant stride," slides and hand-ball, while swings, teeters, basketball, volley and baseball contribute their quota to the enjoyment of the older children. The serious-minded may indulge in raffia work, basket weaving, knitting, sewing, cross-stitch on canvas—different branches of easy and interesting industrial work in open-air surroundings.

Supervisors for the different grounds are as follows:

Queen Mary—Mr. McMackon and Miss Nelson. Miss Nelson is commencing her third season in Peterborough playground work and Mr. McMackon his second. Both have given excellent service in the work. Mr. McMackon being very popular on Central grounds last year, where he proved himself a promising young-play director.

King Edward—Mr. Ingram and Miss Walsh, both new to Peterborough playgrounds work. Miss Walsh is a local young lady, a member of the teaching profession.

Queen Alexandra—Mrs. Staunton.

Central—Mr. Davis and Miss Stenton. Mr. Davis comes highly recommended from Toronto, where he has been connected with Y. M. C. A. work, and was a leader in the athletic and play life of the community in which he labored.

One Mother Dies To Every 135 Born In United States

In the United States in 1919 one mother died for every 135 babies born and every eleventh baby died before it was a year old. This is a record which reflects upon our boasted civilization, for six countries are shown to have a lower infant mortality and 16 out of a group of 17 a lower maternal mortality than the United States, which loses more mothers in proportion to births than practically any other civilized country and apparently loses more on an average each year than the year before. The death rate from childbirth rose from 6.1 per 1,000 births in 1915 to 6.2 in 1916, 6.6 in 1917 and to 7.4 in 1919.

Experience has proved that thousands of deaths of both mothers and children could be prevented every year by public measures for their protection. In New York City among 4,496 mothers who were supervised by the New York Maternity Centre Association before and after the birth of their babies, the maternal mortality rate of the United States and the rate for deaths in early infancy was less than half that for the whole of the city. In other cities of the United States and in foreign countries the institution of infant welfare measures has been followed by greatly decreased rates.

Measures which are instrumental in preventing this waste of life are as follows: Prompt and accurate birth registration, health centres, public health nurses, special clinics, trained attendance at childbirth, adequate hospital service, education of the mother in maternity and child hygiene and education of the general public in the significance of and necessity for maternal and infant health.—Extract.

Over his keys the musing organist,
Beginning doubtfully and far away,
First lets his fingers wander as they list,
Then builds a bridge from dreamland for his lay.

Not only around our infancy
Doth heaven with all its splendors lie;
Daily, with souls that cringe and plot,
We Sinais climb and know it not.

Knitting And World Events

Is there something psychological that connects knitting with great world upheavals? It would seem that this occupation would be an essentially peaceful one, for there is nothing more homey or comfortable-looking than one of the old pictures of the old-style grandmothers knitting before an open grate fire, with the cat dozing on the hearth rug. But the knitting women of the French Revolution who recorded in a scarlet design the dropping of aristocratic heads in the gory guillotine basket have been immortalized forever by Charles Dickens, and the great World War brought forth a perfect furore of knitting. Women knitted on street cars, in church, at the theatres, when they went visiting on Sunday they took the clicking needles along and worked away, and one who didn't knit was neither fashionable nor patriotic in those days. After the grey socks, which took some strange shapes and forms, had been discarded as no longer necessary, sweaters came in, and young ladies vied with one another to produce a record number of pink and yellow and blue fluffy hug-me-tights and similar warm comforts. But the knitting needles are silent now. They have disappeared from social gatherings, and no longer is the conversation monopolized by the proper shaping of a heel or the latst idea in pullover sleevs. Those who are in a position to know say the home knitting craze has waned in a startlingly rapid manner and knitting no longer appeals.

FREQUENT HEADACHES

A SURE SIGN THE BLOOD IS WATERY AND IMPURE.

People with thin blood are more subject to headaches than full-blooded persons and the form of anaemia that afflicts growing girls is almost always accompanied by headaches, together with disturbances of the digestive organs.

Whenever you have constant or recurring headaches and pallor of the face, they show that the blood is thin and your efforts should be directed toward building up your blood. A fair treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will do this and the rich, red blood made by these Pills banishes the headache.

More disturbances to the health are caused by their blood than most people have any idea of. When your blood is impoverished, the nerves suffer from lack of nourishment, and you may be troubled with insomnia, neuritis, neuralgia or sciatica. Muscles subject to strain are undernourished and you may have muscular rheumatism or lumbago. If your blood is thin and you begin to show symptoms of any of these disorders, try building up the blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and as the blood is restored to its normal condition the trouble will disappear. There are many people who owe their present state of good health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and most of them do not hesitate to say so.

If you are suffering from any condition due to poor, watery blood, or weak nerves, begin taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills now, and note how your strength and health will improve. You can get these Pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50c a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Catholic Women Contributing To Affair's Success

The arrangements for the 1st of July excursion under the auspices of the Holy Name Society, which takes place to the T. A. S. Park to-morrow, have been looked after by a committee of energetic workers of both sexes, and the Catholic Women's League is going to have a great deal to do with making the affair an entire success. A slight departure from the custom of other years has been taken in the request to all comers to bring their own baskets, but all sorts of light refreshments will be supplied on the grounds. Mrs. Jas. V. Callivan and Mrs. Jas. O'Brien are looking after the supply of sandwiches, pies, doughnuts, cake and coffee, assisted by Messrs. J. Kelly and John Hanrahan; Mrs. Legendre is convenor of the booth dispensing soft drinks, fruit and ice creams, with Messrs. G. H. Giroux and W. Gallagher, and Miss M. O'Connell, assisted by Miss M. Heffernan and Mr. A. Doherty, will sell cigarettes, chocolate bars, candy and chewing gum.

A game of baseball has been arranged, with races for children under 5 years of age and from 10 to 12 years of age. An orchestra has been engaged for dancing—the Harmony Players—and Miss Margaret McCabe has been invited to assist with this part of the programme. A well-waxed floor is promised, the dance hall to be under the direction of Mr. T. Turcotte.

Mr. Dannie Simmons and Mr. Jack Primeau have consented to give performances for this occasion and should prove drawing cards. There will be swings for the children and rides in a pony cart, and the "little horses" will gallop their mad way around the small stationary track. Arrangements have been made for lighting the grounds and for the demonstration of an electric dish-washer. Special precautions will be taken for the safety of the arriving and departing crowds, with part of the wharf roped off. Altogether, this occasion promises to be one of the most enjoyable in the long list of successful T. A. S. picnics, and everyone, both young or old, will have a good time.

RAILWAYS TO HILL TOWNS

In Inaccessible Alps Planned.

ROME, June 30. — Hill towns of Italy which dot the landscape from north to south and have been the subject of writers and painters for centuries are threatened with an invasion of modern mechanical contrivances which will rob them of their aged romance and unspoiled picturesqueness.

The hill towns are relics of the old feudal system. The lord of the manor built his castle upon a hill and the whole of his vassals clustered their habitations about him. The position on almost inaccessible heights was sought for safety from invading neighbors. These towns dotting the hills stand to-day almost untouched by the centuries. The walls of the houses are thick and strong. Food has been hauled up to the hills by hand labor and horses since they were built. Women carried on their heads the water and other household necessities.

The plan now is to build Alpine railways from the plains to the hills as labor-saving devices. The perfect Alpine cable lines which the Italian army built over the Alps during the war are being sought for the work. Already a number of the towns have applied to the ministry for the discarded Alpine cables, so that they can be erected for the towns.

HINTS TO HOUSEWIVES.

Scallop shrimps just as you would oysters.

Lima beans are excellent served with tomato sauce.

Add coffee or tea instead of water to stove polish; it makes the stove shine better.

Used with warm water as a mouth wash, soda heals and hardens sore and inflamed gums.

Your omelet will not fall if, when beating it up you add a pinch of baking powder about the size of a pea.

For cleaning diamond-paned windows the sash brush is dipped in ammonia water and forced into the corners to get out the dirt, a dry brush of the same shape being used for polishing.

When loosening a cake from the centre tube of cake pan use a steel knitting needle of fair size. This will move around the tube easily and not crowd or cut centre of cake as a knife is liable to do.

When cooking the fish lay it on a greased baking sheet that will fit in the baking pan. tOherwise it will be hard to remove from the pan intact. Serve the fish whole, garnished with slices of lemon and parsley or cress.

Whichever you choose it will be the BEST you ever tasted.

SOMEBODY'S SISTER

(By BYRON STAUFFER)

In our old school reader was a poem entitled "Somebody's Mother." It told of an old woman helped across the busy slippery street by a bright laddie who returned to the merry group of his fellows to say: "She's somebody's mother, boys, you know,
For all she is aged and poor and slow.''

I wish a rhyme could be given us on "Somebody's Sister", to stir the noblest imaginations of our youths and elevate their demeanor toward every young woman they meet.

Somebody's sister waits on you in the restaurant, my boy. She comes from a home with parents in its memories. Hers may be a humbler circle than your sister knows, but to her brother she is just as precious as the maiden who will greet you at dinner to-night is to you.

Somebody's sister is the chambermaid at the hotel that sheltered you last night. She has the meanest task in the house, and usually does it well Too often she is forgotten, except when rude gibes are passed. Women travelers can acquire no more Christ like habit than that of encouraging the girl who makes the beds.

Somebody's sister clicks the type writer in your office young man. The angel of your home does not need to call forth the heroism that the stenographer exercises every morning as she prepares for her daily bread-winning feat. I knew a young woman whose father's sudden death compelled her to leave her piano and painting lessons in order to qualify as a stenographer. Her swift fingers soon supported her frail mother and two little sisters.

By and by, the young fellow in the next office cutivated her acquaintance. One day, when he thought matters were ripe, he motored her out to see a lot his rich father had given him. After some effort, he succeeded in explaining that, if she'd have him, he put up a nice bungalow in the autumn. She took the proposition home with her, balanced it with her duty to her three charges and after a half day's crying, declined it and cheerily went back to her work. You can afford to tip your hat to the stenographer, my son. Treat her with respect.

Somebody's sister is behind the counter where you buy your box of candy. There are but one or two lives, or perhaps merely one or two reverses, between your sister and such a position. A funeral or a failure might put her there any day. And the candy counter girl is likely just as sensitive and of as fine a fibre as your sister is. Bestow the same courtesy upon her which you would want to be shown the girl you guard so jealously.

Somebody's sister is walking by the street corner where you and your chums are congregating tonight. You are feeling merry, with a bit of loose change in your pocket and the day's work over. But remember, the next young woman to happen along may be your sister or your sweetheart! Treat the one as you would have your chums treat your own.

WHAT IS WOMAN'S WORK

Decidedly "woman's sphere" has been struck by an earthquake and absolutely destroyed. Every day women find that women are competent for new duties. The fixed, forbidding rule of other days—"Thus far shalt thou go and no further,"—is brushed aside, and the whole, glorious world with all its delights and unbelievable beauties, beckons women on and on.

Women without domestic ties went first; then married women without children and widows, followed those who had hacked and hewed a narrow path. They all found they had a head for business. They all understood how to grasp details, because woman's work, for centuries, has been a thing of minutiae. Think of what every home woman has to have in mind daily—baking, washing, ironing, sewing, buying, nursing—trades, all of these yet every one must be well understood by the home woman. Then, beside, there are the little duties like scrubbing, dishwashing, scouring, dusting, stove-blacking, mending and a thousand othwhen our men were called to national service, they left behind them an army of skilled workwomen.

Women are skilled because they must always be ready to do the next thing. Any woman who has a thorough understanding of good housekeeping—who can do her home work well—is a success. Such women are ready to go into the world to do work. How longingly she looks back to the days when she was sheltered in her home, her employers will never know. How she keeps the home fires burning still, in spite of being away from them eight hours a day, is a surprise even to herself. Yes, "a woman's place is in the home"—but it is not her only place.

Every girl should be taught the trade of housekeeping so that she may know how to look after her own home; but what use is this trade, if she never has a home to keep? It is a melancholy fact that women have appetites; they get as hungry as men. And so the girl should be given a trade, as well as the boy. It is far more serious for girls to be left alone in the world without means for self-support, than for boys to be so stranded. Doctor Talmadge was one of the first public leaders to urge parents to teach their girls business habits. He said, "I would rather see my daughters safe in their caskets, than alone in the world without business training."

Schools now teach manual training and domestic arts to boys and girls as a matter of course. Boys take the cooking course, sometimes, and many girls are found in the classes of metal working and carpentry. The bars are down; the road is open to all. Women's life, once the dishes are washed and the house in order, is no longer a perpetual holiday. Housekeeping is easier, but life is broader, fuller and happier because we know that 100 cents make a dollar, and how to say "no" and mean it, and how to say "yes" and stick to it. We dress, now, for health and comfort, and fit our incomes to our needs, nad we are just as womanly and lovable as we ever were, even if our sphere is the same as man's.

WHAT CAUSES GAS ON THE STOMACH

It is caused by fermenting, sour, waste matter in the intestines. This old, foul matter should be thoroughly cleaned out with simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adler-i-ka. WAR MEDALS FOR EX-SERVICE MEN.

Those Who Are Entitled to Receive Them—Applications Must Be Filed With Department.

During the discussion on service medals, at the recent convention in Hamilton of the G.A.U.V., none of the delegates could say for sure who was entitled to this medal. The British war medal is issued to all ranks who rendered approved service overseas: that is, who proceeded from their place on enlistment across water other than the waters dividing the islands of Great Britain and the Channel islands, between August, 1914, and midnight, Nov. 11, 1918. Conducting duty and tours of instruction duty do qualify for this medal. This means that any soldier of the C. E. F. who proceeded overseas from Canada between the foregoing dates will receive this medal. It is also awarded for service in Bermuda and St. Lucia and Siberia.

Victory Medal.

The victory medal is issued to all ranks who served on the establishment of an authorized unit in a theater of war between Aug. 4, 1914, and midnight Nov. 11, 1918. Conducting duty and tours of inspection do not qualify for this medal. A person who traveled on a hospital ship during the war, as a passenger, will not receive it, but a member of the staff of a hospital ship is qualified providing the ship traveled to and from a theater of war. There has been a good deal of argument over the definition "theater of war;" therefore, for the purpose of deciding who is and who is not eligible for the medals in question the term is defined to a detail in a long memorandum in the hands of the military officials. This memorandum is the final arbiter on all disputes over any particular theater of war.

All those who consider they are entitled to one or both of these medals should get an application card from the nearest Post Office, fill it in and mail it to the Director of Records, Militia Headquarters, Ottawa.

In connection with those who served with the forces in Canada, at Niagara Falls, Welland Canal, internment camps and other places, it has not yet been decided whether anyone who enlisted in the C. E. F. will be given a medal by the Government of Canada, but it has been definitely settled who are to be issued with the 1914-15 star, the British war medal and the victory medal. It has likewise been finally determined by regulations drafted by the same power to whom the memorial plaque and scroll and the King's certificate on discharge are to be awarded.

NOMINATES TAFT AS CHIEF JUSTICE

WASHINGTON, June 30 (Canadian Press).—President Harding today will send to the Senate the nomination of former President William Howard Taft to be Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court.

This was indicated last night by the Administration leader.

The President, it is understood, will appoint Mr. Taft, with the expectation of having the nomination confirmed by the Senate before that body takes its proposed recess.

BRUTAL ASSAULT ON OSHAWA CONSTABLE.

OSHAWA, June 30.—When Lake Constable W. Culling went to investigate a complaint by two Lakeview Park ladies that a number of young men in the park were using foul language and gambling, he was suddenly attacked from the rear with some instrument which the constable could not detect. The weapon struck his hand with such violence that the third finger of the left hand was badly smashed and the fourth and fifth fingers dislocated.

Constable Culling was forced to give up the chase and hasten for medical aid, but was eventually forced to go to the hospital, where he remained for the night.

His assailants have not been identified.

LEAGUE PROVING TO BE EXPENSIVE

USE OF ENGLISH AND FRENCH AND H. C. OF L BIG FACTORS.

GENEVA, Switzerland, June 30.—Obligatory use of two languages, French and English, in all its transactions, and the high cost of living at the headquarters in Geneva are given by the special committee investigating the workings of the League of Nations as an explanation of what has been considered in some quarters as the excessive cost af the organization fi. The expense for last year, as already reported, was about $4,150,000.

"There can be no doubt," says the committee's report, "that, rightly or wrongly, the League of Nations has the reputation of costing too much." The report then goes on to explain how the complexity, diversity and novelty of the work undertaken necessarily cost heavily, particularly since it is in the hands of a comparatively young institution that lacks experience.

The dual language of the League requiring translation and duplicate publication of all documents alone accounts for one- third of the entire expense, the report says, then points out that the location of the headquarters of the League in Geneva accounts for a good deal of the excessive outlay.

"Since the main purpose of the Commission of Inquiry is to suggest every form of economy", the report says, "it feels bound to point out that, at the moment, Geneva is—and so far as it is possible to foresee will remain—a city in which the cost of living is comparatively higher than in almost any city in Europe and where the rate of exchange is, at the moment of writing, the most disadvantageous for the great majority of states members of the League."

The report suggests that were the League headquarters located at Brussels, Fontainebleau, Turin or Vienna, or almost anywhere else, an immediate economy would be effected that would be appreciated by all members of the League and particularly by those whose exchange is depreciated.

HOW IS YOUR HAY FEVER PROGRESSING?

Mixture of Red-top, Ragweed Pollen a Favorite Hypodermic Injection—Horses, Cats May Make Folk Ill.

That summer fiend, hay fever, has already claimed some victims, and ere long, many in this city will, in varying degrees of discomfort, be sneezing and choking, the while they view the world through red, tearful eyes. But hay fever is fast losing its terrors. The comparatively new treatment of inoculating the sufferer against it is making steady progress, and those who take a course of doses of a liquid manufactured from the pollen of the grasses or weeds or trees to which they are sensitive, frequently overcome their susceptibility. Red-top—that grass which to-day carries a reddish tassel of seeds—common field daisy ragwood—the plant with the bamboo-like central stem surrounded with shoots resembling asparagus tops—golden rod and scores of other weeds, plants and trees, contain in their pollen, some substance which causes hay fever in certain people. To some pollens the victims are quite immune, others affect them immediately.

Pollen Soaked in Water and Injected.

A German doctor with a Scotch name was first in the field with a pollen-made antidote for hay fever. He made his discovery some eight years ago. To-day in Toronto and all over this continent, the manufacture of hay fever dope from various pollens is proceeding apace. The process of manufacture is, roughly, to soak the pollen from any particular plant or tree in sterilized water. The resulting liquid impregnated with the injurious protein from that plant is the medicine to be administered. With a lengthy list of pollen thus treated, and ready for use, the next thing is to determine which plant or plants are causing the patient's malady. The doctor accordingly takes his scalpel, and on a carefully sterilized portion of the patient's arms, makes a series of faint scratches, so faint that they do not actually perforate the skin. He may make even twenty of these semi-abrasions. To each he then applies a separate pollen extract—thus testing the patient with twenty different pollens.

Some Wonderful Cures.

In two minutes' time a bright red spot will have appeared around the scratches inoculated with the species of weed to which the patient is susceptible, while no effect will have been made upon the other scratches. It may be one weed only that affects the sufferer, but it is frequently a combination of several. If the latter be the case, the doctor makes a mixture of the offending pollen extracts, and starting with an infinitely small dose, gives the patient a series of eight or twelve doses, increasing in intensity over a period of three or four weeks. In many cases this proves an absolute cure. Just why the proteins in these various plants should set up hay fever in different people the medical profession cannot yet determine, though some complicated theories have been advanced.

"Hay" Fever From Cats, Horses.

Strange still is the coryza, akin to hay fever, which some people suffer by being exposed to the presence of horses, or perhaps rabbits or cats. Victims to the presence of these animals are cured almost literally by that curiously prophetic old wizard formula of "taking a hair of the dog that bit them." This old superstition, uttered by a fakir long before the days of modern medicine, has in a way been verified in the light of present day science. For those so afflicted by these animals are cured by inoculation made by steeping the hair and dander from the skins of the offending animal is sterilized water and injecting hypodermically.

Cotton-wood Fluff Got the Professor.

Last summer visiting Edmonton on the tour of the Medical Association, a well-known professor at Toronto University was told by a professor friend in the college at that northern city a curious tale of hay fever. Several members of the staff had been suffering, but apparently they were not susceptible to any of the common weeds thereatbout from which solutions had been prepared. Noticing one evening the masses of cotton-wood fluff under a clump of little poplars on the campus, the professor gathered up a specimen intending to test it. Next morning he who had never been subject to hay fever, awoke with all the symptoms. A test of the cotton-wood fluff revealed it as the cause not only of the professor's illness, but that of all the other hay fever sufferers thereabout.

A Hay Fever Association.

Doctors administering hay fever anti-toxins endeavor to do so in advance of the ripening date of the particular weeds to which the patient is sensitive. And carefully noted tabulations of these ripening dates are kept. Over in the United States, where hay fever claims its victims by the tens of thousand, they have what is known as the American Hay Fever Association, a society which makes a careful collection of all data connected with the malady and which can supply information regarding localities in all the states and provinces where sufferers may go to escape the summer plague.

Hay fever inoculations frequently only render the patient immune for one year and have to be repeated next season.

BUSINESS IS BUSINESS.

BELLEVILLE, June 30.—Speaking to the three lodges of A.F. & A. M. here on St. John's day, Rev. Bro. D. C. Ramsay said:

"Business must be plain every day business in dollars and cents. The man who continually sells at or below cost is not a public benefactor, he is much more likely to become a public charge. A man must be good-headed as well as goodhearted."

POTATO SPRAYING

Spray before late blight appears. Once blight has appeared spraying is of no value. Sraying once is almost as useless as not spraying at all.

Spray five times, commencing the middle of July; repeat end of July, middle of August, end of August and middle of September.

Spray before rainy periods; once the spray mixture has thoroughly dried on the leaves it will not wash off.

Spray from the tops down and from below up. Use good pressure, cover the whole plant. Half spraying will not pay; don't waste your time and money proving it; the experimental farms have already proved it.

Spraying pays a dividend every year. It increases the yield. It prevents storage rot. Late blight reduced the crop on the average during a five year period by 130 1-2 bushels per acre. Late blight caused a loss of 21.3 per cent. of the crop from digging time to the following April. You may—the country cannot afford to do without spraying. Do your duty.

Don't try spraying your potatoes with lime sulphur; it is worse than useless.

Home made bordeaux beats factory made Bordeaux.

The standard bordeaux mixture is made by using four pounds to six pounds bluestone, four pounds lime, to 40 imperial gallons of water. (To control the potato beetle, add to each 40 gallons of bordeaux mixture eight ounces of Paris green and one and a half pounds arsenate of lead paste.) Ask for directions how to prepare bordeaux mixture.

Hand-spraying an acre (four applications) costs from $3 to $4 per acre; spraying with one-cylinder pump costs $3.50 per acre; while spraying with a two cylinder horse pump costs $6.50 per acre. The best sprayer to use is the one that gives rigid construction and lacks unnecessary complications.

RANEY ADVISES TO LIFT PRICES BY ORGANIZING

SAYS FARMERS MUST AND HAVE THE RIGHT TO ORGANIZE TO MAINTAIN PRICES, AND THUS WAGES.

SAYS FARM PRODUCE IS THIRD OF 1920 PRICE

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

MOUNT FOREST, June 30.—The Hon. W. E. Raney, Attorney-General, told the farmers assembled at the U.F.O. picnic here that the farmers had a right to organise to maintain prices. A year ago to-day the prices, he said, were very high, and to-day they are low. The price of things that the farmer has to sell is only one-third of what it was one year ago, and the price of the things that he had to buy was not much lower.

"It is organisation and organisation we want to keep up the wages. We want the farmers to have an organisation. We want to keep up the wages. We want the farmr to have an organisation, and along with the farmers we want their wives to make an organisation and educate the young farmers.

'We must keep the wages up to do this. We must have an organisation. The farmers are not specially organised. To-day you are called together—to-morrow you will be scattered about, and when you think of to-day, just remember, every one of you, to do some work, no matter what kind of work it is you are doing, to help organise a U. F. O.

CROP REPORT

Following is a brief synopsis of telegraphic reports of crop conditions in Canada, furnished by Bank of Montreal branch managers from every province in the Dominion.

Prairie Provinces

Edmonton District — Conditions very favorable, sufficient moisture and no damage of any kind reported Calgary District—Crop making excellent progress. Considerable danger from grass hoppers in some parts, but these are being combatted. Lethbridge District—Conditions excellent south and east "on Stirling "Weyburn Line". Elsewhere rain needed. Damage by cutworms at Lomond, Retlaw, Bow Island and Foremost, Unfavorable report from Retlaw and Sundial. Regina District—All grains making strong growth under ideal conditions. Grass-hoppers in south, but no damage and precautions taken. Saskatoon District—Wheat uniformly good. All grains growing rapidly with indication heavy wheat and oat crop. Winnipeg District—Conditions continue excellent. Generous rains and prospects good.

Province of Quebec.

Reports generally indicate that while recent rains have greatly improved growing crops, more moisture is badly needed. Hay prospects poor. Indications pointing to a fifty per cent. crop. Grass pasture sorely in need of rain. Fruit prospects only fair.

Province of Ontario

Weather conditions this month have been very favorable to growing crops, which, as a whole will have made excellent progress and the general outlook is most favorable. Recent rains have been very beneficial. Fall wheat is headed out in some districts, average crop expected. Other grains satisfactory. Roots of all kinds doing well. Small fruits plentiful. Other fruits promise good yield. Hay is light in places but fair yield is assured. Cutting now in operation. Tobacco growing conditions excellent.

Maritime Provinces

Lack of rain has retarded crops in all districts and rain is needed in practically all sections. Hay is expected to be light. Fruit prospects continue fairly favorable. In Prince Edward Island general conditions are good. A fair hay crop is expected. Grass pasture improving owing to recent rain.

Province of British Columbia

Weather continues favorable with heavy rains more or less general. Field crops very satisfactory. Hay particularly heavy in all districts. Roots progressing favorably. With acreage below average eighty per cent. yield predicted. Tomatoes and vegetables looking well. Tree fruits are passing through heavy June drop but reports from Okanagan estimate apples and pears will equal crop of 1919. Stone fruits not as heavy as early set indicated. Berries abundant. Cherries below average. Pasturage excellent.

HEAVY DAMAGE BY HAIL IN FEW DAYS IN SASKATCHEWAN

REGINA, June 30. — (Canadian Press.)—Local hail insurance officers have received claims during the past few days from nine districts, mostly in the south-western part of the province. The claims have been filed from Jasmin, Perdue, Swift Current, Griffin Young, Seamans, Yorkton, Asquib and Lemsford. Farmers in these districts claim their crops have been damaged anywhere from 50 to 75 per cent. by hail in the past few days.

EXCHANGE PAY IN ENGLISH MONEY AT PAR AS PREVIOUSLY

OTTAWA, Ont., June 30.—(Canadian Press.) — Militia Department will still continue to exchange at par, pay and allowances received by soldiers in English currency, although conditions surrounding the privilege have been made much more stringent. It was considered that it would have been unfair to soldiers who might still be paid in English money to cancel the privilege, Sir Henry Drayton, Minister of Finance, said.

TERMS AMERICA THE HAPPY HUNTING GROUND FOR DIVORCE IN DEBATE.

LONDON, June 30.—America was described as "the happy hunting ground of divorce" and "the home of divorces," by the Rev. A. V. Magee, vicar of St. Mark's Church, London, during a discussion of the divorce question by the London Diocesan Conference just ended. A resolution was adopted pledging the conference "to adhere to the principle of the indissolubility of Christian marriage."

The Rev. Mr. Magee denounced Lord Buckmaster's bill in Parliament for divorce reform, saying it could adequately be described in two titles, "Divorce While You Wait" and "Marriage on Trial For Six Months."

An amendment to the resolution tha the conference should pledge itself to adhere "to the teaching of Jesus Christ concerning marriage" was lost.

WHAT TO DO ON THE HOLIDAY

There is no dearth of attractions for Dominion Day in Peterborough, in spite of the fact that there is no attraction scheduled for the Exhibition Grounds as there has generally been in the past. It should not be hard for citizens to decide what to do to-morrow—undoubtedly most of them have already figured on how they will spend the Dominion's brthday.

There a many citizens who will want to get away from the city, and the trains to-day and to-morrow morning will carry hundreds to spend the holiday, and likely the week-end, with friends or relatives out of town.

Those fortunate ones who have summer cottages at the Lakes will, it is a safe bet, fill them on Dominion Day, if at all possible, and there will be many camping parties down the river, at Rice Lake, and up the Lakes, availing themselves of the brief respite from the humdrum of everyday life.

Excursion to Stoney Lake.

An excursion to Stoney Lake will leave George Street Wharf at eight o'clock, and it is expected that the Stoney Lake will be crowded to capacity. Meals will be served on board, there will be a refreshment booth, and music for dancing. This is a popular trip that never grows old, and there will be many families avail themselves of this pleasant way of spending the holiday.

Holy Name Society Picnic.

Probably St. Peter's Holy Name Society annual picnic at T.A.S. Park will attract more people than any other single event on 1st July. The picnic has always been largely attended, and it is not expected that it will fall down in the matter of attendance this year. Beginning at 10 a.m., boats will leave the Street Railway Wharf. A fine programme of sports, music, and dancing has been arranged, and everythng is set for a bumper crowd.

Motor Trips.

Those who want to get out in the open to-morrow, but do not want to go near the water, will motor far afield. Burners of "gas" will take their families or friends and go for a merry spin far away over country roads, stopping at some quiet nook for their basket luncheon, or as guests at one of the many country hostels where good cooking is the rule.

Peterborough should contribute a good many to the motorists who will roll up the dust on Hon. Biggs' roads to-morrow.

Big Baseball Bill.

Baseball fans can all tell you how they will spend Dominion Day. Two good ball games are scheduled for Riverside Park to-morrow. Cobourg will play Peterborough at 10 a.m., and Toronto Hillcrests, Peterborough's old contenders, will meet the locals again in the afternoon.

Crowded stands and packed grounds will contain that section of the city who will back a ball game against any counter-attraction.

The Moving Picture Houses.

Attractive bills are at each of the local movie houses to-morrow, and the cool interior of the theatres should attract a large number of people who want to spend an afternoon or evening, but do not want to go to a lot of bother to be amused or entertained.

MAJORITY SLUMPS FROM OVER 70 TO 18.

Further Reverses for Meighen will Mean Early Election.

OTTAWA, June 30. — The Union Government came into power in 1917 Tennessee. This will be brought to 71. To-day the standing of the parties in the House is as follows:

Government, 124; Liberals, 83; Progressives, 17; Independents, 6; Vacancies, 5. The Opposition totals 106. The Government's majority is therefore only 18, with five bye-elections to be held. A loss in any one with the very substantial majority of a reduction of two in the government's majority. It will be evident, therefore, in view especially of the very considerable number of sick men in the government ranks that a of these, but Maple Creek will mean sult in connection with any number of the contracts pending will conceivably force an early general election.

MEIGHEN GOING TO FRANCE ON SUNDAY

TO TAKE PART IN UNVEILING OF GREAT WAR CROSS.

LONDON, June 30. — Canadian Press. Premier Meighen has accepted the invitation of the Imperial War Graves Commission to go to France during the week end and take part on Sunday in ceremonies in connection with the unveiling of the great War Cross erected in one of the Vimy cemeteries, near Arras, in memory of many Canadians who fell in the fighting there during April, 1917.

LABOR BILL HIGH ON SOME FARMS.

Intensive Farming Calls For Plenty of Help — Farmer Must Be Alert to Hold Down Expenses.

In the great majority of agricultural undertakings, labor is the costly or money-consuming factor. The more intensive the work in production of food crops the greater the expenditure of labor expenditures, then all well and good; expend all labor within reason, or whatever the selling price of the product warrants. However, special conditions that justify heavy labor expenditures are usually confined to districts where there is an unlimited market for luxury food crops. But the ordinary food crops, that are most commonly grown in farm practice have not a selling value sufficiently high to permit of a labor expenditure equal to more than 50 per cent. of the selling price of the product. With selling prices for food products too frequently on the decline, with labor charges and general overhead charges comparatively steady, the prospect of profit is not always encouraging. Where selling prices vary as much as 600 per cent. in one year, for certain commodities, those who are forced to sell at the lower level are not likely to receive sufficient for their produce to pay the labor bill.

With little or no control on the price at which a food product must sell from the farm, the adjustment of the labor cost of operation is apparently the most likely way to obtain relief. The intelligent use of crop rotations in farm practice, more extensive use of properly developed meadows and pastures, more grazing by live stock, more extensive use of farm machinery, proper use of every field, fewer and larger fields and permanent crops where possible, are some of the ways that will lead to reduction in labor costs.

BYNG UNVEILS WAR MEMORIAL

HAS BEEN INVITED TO NIAGARA-ON-THE-LAKE, WHERE CLOCK TOWER TO BE ERECTED.

NIAGARA-ON-THE-LAKE, Ont., June 30.—(Special Despatch to The Examiner). — Lord Byng, the new Governor-General of Canada, will unveil the memorial clock tower now being erected here opposite the historic town hall in memory of the Niagara men who fought and fell in the world war. Mayor Musson said last night an invitation had been sent to Lord Byng to come to Niagara during his visit to Toronto to open the Exposition.

The memorial clock will be finished long before that time, it is expected. It will stand 32 feet high and will be an exact replica of the celebrated Campanile of Venice, one of the world's art treasures.

The clock, which was made in England, is now on its way here. The dial will be four feet wide, and in striking the clock will connect with the bell in the Town Hall tower, which has rung for nearly a century. At night the clock will be illuminated.

The clock tower base is of Queenston stone, the brickwork of tapestry brick.

The names of Niagara soldiers who served in the war, as well as the heroes who fell, will be engraved on the clock tower.

It is the first clock tower to be erected in Canada, and is costing about $10,000.

MISGIVINGS AS TO U.S. TARIFF

SIR HENRY DRAYTON, THOUGH, SAYS "THERE IS A WAY OUT".

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

OTTAWA, Ont., June 30.—Official Ottawa views with considerable misgiving the new permanent United States tariff bill, an outline of which has been made public to-day. Until, however, the Minister of Finance and his experts have had an opportunity for a thorough analysis of the measure no official staement as to proposals for the overcoming of the disabilities to Canadian trade which will result will be forthcoming. While admitting that the effect on Canadian trade might be far-reaching, Sir Henry Drayton expresses the hope that "there is a way out.'

Canadian products most seriously affected, include wheat and wheat products, cattle of all kinds and foodstuffs generally. While it is admitted that the imposition of a 25 per cent. duty per bushel on wheat will have a serious effect on the marketing of Canadan grain the effect on the live stock industry will, it is believed, be the most serious. In years gone by Canada exported many cattle to Great Britain. Specially equipped vessels were provided for the purpose and special business arrangements made. But with the opening of the American market, Canadian cattle under the Underwood tariff, all the machinery was scrapped. The new tariff means that it must again be revived painstakingly under conditions of finance which at present render business with the United Kingdom very difficult indeed.

Some idea of the effect of the new tariff may be gained from export statistics for the past three years. During the year 1919 total grains, flour and kindred produces exported from Canada was as follows: To the United Kingdom 160,700,000 dollars; to the United States 9,000,000; to other countries, 63,000,000. For 1920 to the United Kingdom 212,000,000; to the United States 25,000,000; to other countries 88,000,000.

1921 (fiscal year) United Kingdom 125,000,000, United States 112,000,000, other countries 10,000,000. Total exports of living animals were as follows: 1919, to the United Kingdom, one million dollars, to United States 33 million dollars, to other countries $437,000.

1920 to United Kingdom, $107,000, to United States $47,000,000, to other countries two millions.

1921 to United Kingdom $34,000; to United States $25,000,000; to other countries $400,000.

It will be seen that since the war conditions ceased, the United States has become more and more Canada's chief field for export of these products. Difficulty of financing in Europe will add to the problem now presented through the United States' tariffs. As a matter of fact in the past the United States could afford to purchase heavily from Canada for export purposes. Now, however, that export markets have been restricted, it does not pay the United States to add to her own exportable surplus.

It is staed there that the duties imposed under the Young bill prejudically affected Canadian export to the United States approximating 160,000,000. The new duties will not only have an adverse effect on Canadian trade, but also upon the exchange situation, although one of the chief articles of Canadian export, namely lumber, is not affected. It is, however, to be noted that the value of imports from the United States is steadily decreasing. For the two months ending May 1920, Canadian imports from the United Staes totalled 133,000,000 dollars. For the same two months this year they only totalled $89,000,000.

Any suggested solution of the disabilities imposed by the new tariff will depend largely on the political tenets held by those who make the suggestions.

The Government holds that the moral of the whole thing is that it does not pay for any country to place the marketing of its produce on the hands of its chief industrial competitor.

Liberals and Progressives on the other hand may claim that the situation has to some extent been provoked by Canada's rejection of reciprocity. In this connection the bill provides that the President may at any time enter into reciprocity negotiations with any country.

Our business offers splendid advantages for promotion and development. Many former employees in our Mechanical Department are to-day occupying highly paid positions on our Editorial and Selling staffs. The General Manager himself was formerly a Compositor, which is evidence that the opportunity for advancement is practically unlimited.

Our plant is splendidly equipped with new model linotypes, non-distribution system, and a bright, airy Composing Room. We carry group insurance on our employees as follows:

Foremen of Departments $2,000.00

Journeymen $1,000.00

Apprentices and Bindery $500.00

We also maintain a nurse in our establishment to take care of minor accidents and to call at the homes of any who are away through illness.

The "MacLean Club" gives many entertainments during the winter and picnics during the summer, and our people have every opportunity of becoming well acquainted with one another.

Our men struck on June 1st last, but we are gradually building up a new staff. Some departments are now sufficiently manned to take care of our present requirements. On the Composing Room Staff, there is steady employment for a few additional men.

Our sixteen publications enable us to give steady employment the year round to competent, efficient, workmen.

We have definiteiy adopted the open shop principle and neither now nor in the future will any discrimination be shown against non-union employees.

Men who have worked anywhere from two to five years at the trade, and who are now employed at some other work, may want to take this opportunity of getting back to the printing business.

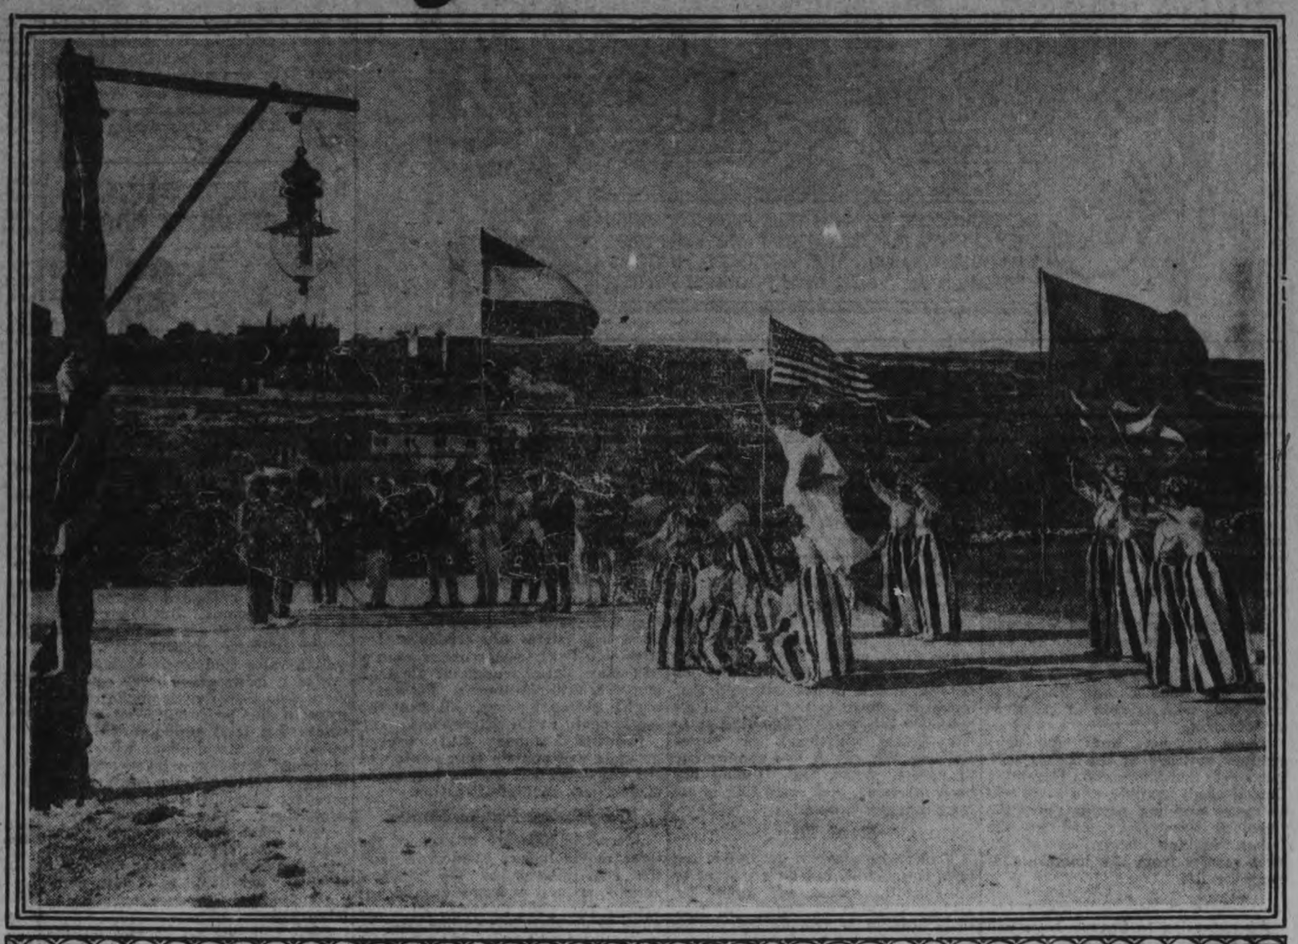
A Little America Close by Jerusalem's Wall

Where a Noble Band of American Men and Women Have Been Holding for Nearly 40 Years a Lonely Outpost of American Civilization in a Strange, Far-Off Land, Overcoming Persecutions, Poverty and the Hardships of the World War, by Following the Golden Rule and Living a Life of Christian Charity.

By JAMES MORGAN

AFTER the fall of Jerusalem an airplane, flying across the desert to Egypt, brought to the outer world the first detailed news of the city in nearly two years. One of the first items in the report was that the American colony was safe and that it had been the means of aiding thousands in the last demoralized months of Turkish rule.

Many readers in this country must have wondered why there should be an American colony in Jerusalem, and what it could be doing there. It is a strange story, which opens with a shipwreck in the Atlantic, 40 years ago, when an American woman, on her way to France, was rescued from floating wreckage, but her three daughters—all her children—were lost. "Saved alone," the mother cabled to her husband, Horatio G. Spafford of Chicago, who wrote a revival song under the title, a song which Sankey made familiar to the multitudes who attended the big Moody meetings.



Young Ladies of the American Colony in Patriotic Exercises with the Colony Band Playing for Them.

Young Americans Sleighing in the Streets of Jerusalem Where Snow Seldom Falls. The Main Building of the American Colony Is in the Background.

Burned Their Bridges Behind Them

"It Is Well with My Soul" is another hymn by Mr. Spafford, which is better known today. A great host of churchgoers will ask for no better introduction to this founder of the American Colony in Jerusalem than these well-remembered lines from his pen:

When peace like a river attendeth my way,
When sorrows like sea billows roll,
Whatever my lot, Thou hast taught me to say:
"It is well, it is well with my soul."

Mr. and Mrs. Spafford were stirred by the conviction that they were spared to each other for some higher purpose than they had been pursuing. He was a prosperous lawyer, and they had both been active workers in a big Presbyterian church in Chicago; but they resolved to give themselves thenceforth wholly to the service of God and of their fellow-men.

A few zealous spirits rallied about the standard of sacrifice, put everything they had into a pool, and sailed away to Jerusalem, in the hope that there they could more surely overcome temptation and sin than in the midst of the great city by the shore of Lake Michigan.

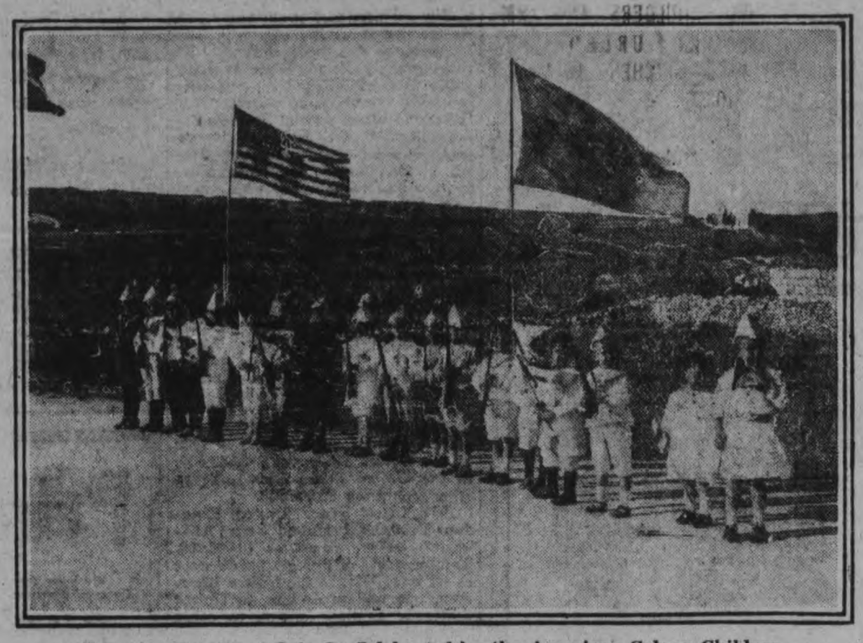
Here were 14 American men and women, with five children, pulling up roots that were deep in the soil of our new world and transplanting themselves in the alien soil of Asia. They left forever home and kindred and native land—everything—to live and work and die far off beyond the seas among strangers in race and religion, in speech and dress. They burned their bridges behind them; cut themselves off from their base of supplies, and, harder still, from the sympathy of their families and friends, to risk all on this plunge into Islam and the Orient. They had no church or missionary society back of them. They did not go to preach the Gospel, but only to live it as well as they could; to try to set an example of Christian living and Christian charity at the scene of the crucifixion.

The triumphs of this little band of pilgrims over persecutions, poverty, epidemics, the perils and hardships of the great war; their astonishing successes in overcoming obstacles, their eleventh hour deliverances from disaster would be a tale more easily told . . . if this were an age of miracles.

Although the colonists arrived in Jerusalem without a word of Arabic, they quickly learned enough of the language of the people to begin to teach their new neighbors the simple rudiments of modern, American education, and Mahometan and Jew flocked to them until they have had at times as many as 1000 pupils. The only thing they promised at the outset not to teach was theology. So well did they overcome the natural suspicion of the Moslem church and earn its trust that these American Christians have had the unique experience of holding school within the sacred walls that rise above the ruined halls of King Solomon, in the holy inclosure of the Harem esh Sherif, or Place of the Temple, now the chief sanctuary of Mohametanism in the Holy Land.

Arabic is now almost a mother tongue with the teachers in the colony. The most prominent among them, Brother Jacob, is a man of wide and deep culture and of a noble humanity as well.

It is enough to say for these Christians and Americans that the Grand Mufti of Egypt, who holds a place second to none in the Moslem world of Syria and Palestine, entrusted his son to the colony, the youth living with the colonists as well as going to school to them. One of the oldest and closest friends of the colony is the last mayor of Jerusalem under the Sultan. To him fell the hard duty of lowering the crescent, which had waved 500 years above the gates of the Holy City, and of bearing the white flag of surrender to the British forces.



How the Fourth of July Is Celebrated by the American Colony Children.

Practising the Golden Rule

This Faidy Effendi, who has in the past held the delicate post of Turkish Governor of Bethlehem, where he guarded the manger in the Church of the Nativity, who has been also a judge and a member of the Parliament at Constantinople, sent both his daughter and his son to the American school. The son received from his American teachers much of the early instruction that prepared him to enter the great English University of Cambridge.

"I have always proclaimed," this high Moslem official has declared, "as the Grand Mufti himself has proclaimed in a speech in Paris, that if I ever should accept the Christian religion, I would unhesitatingly try to enter the American colony as an active member."

Moslem and Jew and Christian have been brought together by the colony in a common fraternity. "Those Americans," said one of their graduates, the son of a Jewish banker, "lives the real life of love to the neighbor as taught in the Bible. I always pray that the rest of the world may learn to live such a life as they."

The colony feeds hungering mouths as well as hungering minds. Its first rule is never to turn anyone from the door. Many years ago it was nearly eaten out of house and home by 300 uninvited, but not unwelcome guests, who threw themselves on its mercy. These were a strange people, who believed themselves to be of the Tribe of Gad, and, in accordance with their peculiar reading of an Old Testament prophecy, they suddenly appeared in Jerusalem after 25 centuries of wandering.

The purse and the larder of the colony were then almost empty and the colonists hardly knew where the next meal would come from. Nevertheless, they mortgaged everything to keep the supposed Gadites from starving and to help them to become self-supporting.

When the money that the colonists had brought from America was gone they found themselves facing want in a land where it would seem impossible for an American to make a living. But the bread they had been casting on the waters began to come back to them in wondrous ways and with strange timeliness.

For example, the colony had taken in a blind man, and this apparently helpless charge on its charity brought in the first dollar that it earned. He had been a pedler, and he was sure the American pastries, which the women cooked, would sell "like hot cakes" among the European residents. they did, and from sending the blind man out with a basketful of "goodies," a wagon was soon required to deliver them.

A second example of how the colony was helped in helping the helpless is another interesting story. A globe-trotting Englishman, who wandered in from the desert, had nothing to give in return for months of hospitality except a battered and apparently useless photographic camera. But a man, apparently equally useless, a crippled member, who had been a cabinetmaker when he was a young man in Vermont, made a new box for it. By and by the German Kaiser came along on his combination pilgrimage and drumming tour to the Holy Land, and the colony, with the only commercial camera in Jerusalem, did a rushing business with the pictorial press of the world. Today it has the largest and busiest photographic establishment in all the near East.

Caught in the World War

Readers of the National Geographic Magazine have enjoyed many series of photographs of Palestine and Syria, which were the products of the colony. The interesting descriptive articles accompanying the pictures came from the pen of one of the colonists, John D. Whiting. Mr. Whiting is the first American born in Jerusalem, his New England parents having been one of the little group of pioneers who followed Mr. and Mrs. Spafford, and he is now the highly respected American vice-consul in his native city.

Under the spur of necessity the colonists first learned how to make things for themselves and next they gradually went into making or collecting things for sale—religious articles fashioned out of mother of pearl, ancient glass, antique rugs and other treasures of the storied East. They also gather and press for Sunday schools and other church organizations the wild flowers that are mentioned in the Scriptures, a New England botanist, who graduated from Bowdoin College being most active in this department.

When the colony had weathered the storms of more than 30 years and seemed to have emerged into the sunlight, it was caught in the hurricane of the world war, which brought years of cruel hardships but which also brought the colonists an opportunity for greater usefulness than ever before. The story would fill a book, and some day a book should tell of this lonely little outpost of American men and women in the enemy's country, following the armies of their foe to minister to the sick and wounded in the desert, battling with a plague of locusts, braving the cholera and typhus and fighting hand to hand with hunger at their door.

Ordered Deported by the Enemy

Enemy aliens and Christians though they were, these Americans were entrusted by the Turk with the management of the government soup kitchen, where they fed 3500 people daily for two years, and they were also placed in control of four military hospitals. With few doctors to aid them and with a woful lack of disinfectants, of cotton for bandages, of soap and even of water, the devoted men and women of the colony dared the deadly germs that infested the Turkish army while they nursed thousands of sick and wounded, whose cause they hated but whose sufferings they pitied.

The Germans could not share the simplest trust of their Turkish allies in this example of Christian charity, and when Gen. von Falkenhayn came he sternly commanded that the entire colony, regardless of age or sex, should be driven from home and deported. The Turkish officers loyally stood by the colonists and finally succeeded in having the deportation limited to the six American men who were of military age.

While those six were waiting to be sent away from their wives and children—to meet, perhaps, an Armenian fate—Falkenhayn and his Germans themselves found it prudent to leave in haste, for the British were rapidly advancing. And the Turks let the Americans stay. When the Turks also abandoned the city, Ali Fouad Pasha, the Sultan's commander, announced to the colonists: "Tonight we leave Jerusalem. We have decided not to take the six Americans away with us, and we leave you all to care for our sick and wounded. You have not been serving us; you will not serve the enemy: you are serving God."

When Gen. Allenby and his British troops came, they were greeted by these soldiers of the cross from America, who had advanced upon Jerusalem so many years before and taken the city, though they marched without arms or banners. On the next Fourth of July a band of little warriors, with toy guns and paper helmets, paraded along the road that runs from the Damascus Gate bearing the colors of England and the Stars and Stripes. They were the children of the colony, celebrating both the independence of the United States and the delivery of the Holy City.

Naturally its experience and high standing in the community make the colony peculiarly useful to the new government, with its strange tasks, and various colonists have received important parts in city planning and in the fight against tuberculosis.

Among the newspaper and magazine illustrations of the capture of Jerusalem, which were published in this country, was a picture of the reception which the colonists gave to the captor, with Gen. Allenby standing by the side of a woman of gentle and handsome presence. This was Mrs. Spafford, widow of the founder, who still is spared to grace the colony.

Most of the original members sleep now in the American cemetery on a slope of Mt. Scopus, but their children and grandchildren keep alive the spirit of the pioneers. Within very recent years there have been 10 weddings among the colonists and 23 births. With the recruits that have come from the United States, Sweden and other countries, there are, in all, more than 100 persons in this Little America close by the hoary walls of Jerusalem, where an American welcome to an American home—with an American kitchen!—gladdens the heart of an American visitor,

Suspend Discount.

"The discount rate to consumers is 3⅓ 1-3 p.c. There are some straight contracts with factories and others not subject to discount, but domestic users receive a rebate of $22,200 in discount. In addition to this there is $800 that applies on other contracts, making a total reduction to the public of $23,000 for paying their rates in proper time. If it is granted that $11,500 is the total outside money they require, and I have my doubts about this sum being necessary, then six months at $23,000 would be sufficient to take care of everything they ask for. I understand there is a net revenue of $66,000 from the water, and it is difficult to see why they require some $50,000 more to carryon for 1921. We have cancelled one item and believe the other three could be filed down. If these three stand, then I maintain that the difference in the discount for 6 months of this year will give them sufficient revenue for this year to furnish a surplus.

Other Days, Other Discounts.

"There are other things hard to understand. In 1902 we took over the water system. At that time, domestic consumers had a discount of 10 p.c., which was, through the capable management of the commission, increased to 33 p.c. We then paid $50 per hydrant for fire protection. From 1902 to 1919 costs decreased from $50 under the commission to $27.50 and in 1920 increased to $35 to take care of extra operating expenses. Then this year, when the rate is increased from $35 to $80 per hydrant, we cannot understand why it is.

"If I were performing a contract with you,' Ald. Turner continued, "you would expect it to be completed before payment was demanded, and I see no reason why we should be asked to pay for filtered water before it is delivered to us.

130 Per Cent. Increase.

"The commission took as a basis a seven-roomed house, on which the old rate would be $10 per annum and the new rate $18.14. You must remember that the rate which the city is paying for fire protecion is added in proportion to your taxes. In a seven-roomed house worth $6,500, besides your $18.14 for water rates, you would pay $4.88 additional for fire protection in your tax bill, making a total of $23.02, an increase in water rates of 130 p.c. For a house assessed at $3,000, the total bill for water and increase in fire portection would $20.39 an increase of 100 p.c."

Mr. Lytle Enquires.

Mr. Wm. Lytle enquired of Mr. Turner: "Mr. Chairman, you were an alderman at the time the Water Commissioners raised the rate on hydrants from $35 to $80. Was this previous to the election in December?"

Mr. Turner— "No, it was during February, when the various departments submitted their estimates to the Council to be included in the budget."

Mr. Lytle—"Did they intimate to you at that time that the domestic rate was to be increased?"

Mr. Turner — "I was away from home at the time, but I am under the impression that the Commission said there would be a re-adjustment of domestic systems by putting same on hydrants to check up and eliminate waste."

Mr. Lytle—"In that case, they had to come to you, but now they don't. They know that a great many people think the Commission has to go to the Council, but they are the same as the Board of Education and can force anything through."

Why Council Acceded.

An enquiry from Mr. Worth elicited the information that the Council felt that it was safeguarding the people against an increase in rates by acceding to the demands of the Commission of $45 more per hydrant for fire protection.

Mr. Worth—"You have been fooled, that's all."
